SHELBY COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Doris Bender, Director

Sometimes Individuals and Departments as well become so interested in their own special problems that they lose sight of larger and more important issues. Perhaps we in Shelby County are guilty of being so engrossed in our own Public Welfare problems that we have given little thought to the problems of the State but since there are certain facts which every citizen of Alabama should be awara of let us put aside our own troubles and think for a while as "Alabamaians' rather than as "Shelby Countians."

Alabama was one of the first states to pass social legislation which would qualify her to cooperate with the federal government in its program of social security. How does Alabama compare with other states in the amount of assistance given and in the number of individuals being helped?

Alabama is one of thirty-eight states granting old age assistance. "The average monthly amount granted by these states is more than $18.00 per person as compared with $7.39 per person in Alabama. Only three states are granting as small as or lesser averages than Alabama." The State Department of Public Welfare tells us that 18,000 of the more than 35,000 who have applied for old age assistance are eligible for help. A few more than 8,000 are being helped.

Alabama is one of twenty-four states granting aid to dependent children. "The average monthly aid given for each child by the twenty-four states is $10.55 as compared with $3.51 in Alabama."

In Shelby County the average monthly amount granted per person for old age assistance is $2.28 as compared with $7.39 in the State. The average monthly aid given for each child is $1.63 in comparison with $3.51 being given in the State as a whole.

IN AND AROUND BESSEMER

Bessemer celebrated the passing of the old year and welcomed the New Year with blowing of whistles, shooting fire works, a midnight show at the local theatre, dances and parties "There is much more favorable prospects than the past few years have warranted, more industries are operating, more stores and shops are occupied practically all residences are filled and better conditions exist throughout the district.

Mr. and Mrs Ansel Bradley and daughters, Jean and Ann, of Gadsden visited in North Birmingham during the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. B. R Busby and daughters, Doris and Lois, Mrs. Walter Robertson and son Thomas, spent Wednesday at Dargin with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Stonecypher

Mr. and Mrs B R Richey announce the arrival of a son on January 3rd. Mother and baby are doing fine at their home in Brown Station.

Bert. 10 year old son of Mrs. M. E. (Acker) Griffin had the misfortune to smash his arm very badly last week in an electric washing machine wringer, but in improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Goodwin and sons visited the family of J. M. Richey Sunday

Clay Kirkley, who is working with the Southern Bell Telephone at Tuscaloosa visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kirkley this week end.

Dr and Mrs. H. W Hayes and son William, of Calera have returned home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Milton Nesbitt of Pratt City.

Mrs. Dewey Jones (Estelle Nichols) and her two sons, Tom and Hugh spent Tuesday with her sister, Mrs. C. W Bradley.

OUR GLORIFIED YOUTH

(EDITOR'S NOTE: One of the most beautiful tributes to the unfortunate young matrons who lost their lives in the Selma Tragedy during the Holiday Season, we reprint from the Selma Times-Journal, written by a friend who knew the victims intimately. As we go to press two more names have been added to the list: Mrs. La Noyette B. Smith and Mrs. Ed Smith.)

The names of Mrs. Tyler Wilby Cleveland, Mrs. Bernard Reynolds, Mrs. Alston Keith and Mrs. T. G Gayle have appeared on this page of the Selma-Times Journal so frequently that their passing can not go unnoticed here. Gifted with essential social grace each was an adornment to what is known as "society". Gracious, friendly, hospitable each filled a happy niche under the soft light of the drawin-room, each was what we call "popular" because mingling with her friends was a joyous pastime. They were gay and free and folksy, each a distinct individuality that made her interesting as well as beloved. Their passing breaks a circle filled with light and warmth.

But underneath the surface of these charming young women lay the fundamentals that furnished them so much to give to their community, which all gave in full measure. Each lovely life was a distinct contribution to our civic life. They played and smiled and scattered grace notes in the harmony of our civic chorus, but the dominant chord of their personalities played a melody of useful service whose beauty will ring abidingly in our hearts leaving a lilt in memory because "they came and stayed and went."

Such lives as theirs were not unfullfilled. Each attained richness and fullness. Their contribution to music and art, charity, church and home in an unusual measure for ones so yong ronded out their years. Each knew love and motherhood and the sweet and incomparable joy of homemaking. Because of their gifts and talents and the certainty that none would turn aside any request for service in any capacity that made our city brighter, happier and better, they were important in a community that needed them on many occasions. They danced and sany and played, but they gave their unstinted strength to the needy, to culture and to religion for which their city that mourns them is happier, purer, stronger. They leave us much to build on as we look upward at the rainbow that spreads like a colorful arch for their passing into the Beyond, where the light of their undecaying gladness will reflect always, forever youthful, forever loved, forever glorified, into the heavy heart of a community that is thankful and can smile beneath the pall because they scattered sunshine every step of their short but useful way.

Heart Drifts

OUR TROUBLES

They are the grime that comes from fear
From fretting and from worry.
From what we do or do not hear—
We'll lose them in a hurry.
May happiness come as a soap
To make the laughter-bubbles,
And wash away with cheer and hope
Each one of all our troubles.
—W. D. N.

CONQUEST

They're marked in their unyielding strength—
Impressed here like a die
Upon my heart—the words they said
"You're much too big to cry."

I've conquered in their hardened might
When life has gone awry,
I've steeled myself. In all these years
No one has seen me cry.

My triumph is an outward thing.
Deep in my heart still lie
Those tears, unshed. Lord, touch my heart
To be too big to cry!

WARNING

If along the wayward years.
Two stray paths should meet.
Some place in a distant town
On a casual street,

Smile if you can still recall
That there was aspring
When we loved each other best;
Pause, remembering.
But if I am jus ta face,
Dearest dont pretend
I am wise enough to know
Even love can end.
—H. W.

YOU CAME TO ME

You came to me at dusk when you were weary—
So many times brief hurts the long day gave
Were mine to comfort in the quiet evening;
When you were weak I coaxed you to be brave.

You have forgotten—now that tall hills beckon,
Somewhere you march to beat of rhythemic drums;
And sunlight falls across the fields you journey—
Will you be lonely when the evening comes?
—H. W.

HEAVEN

When I have died, dear Lord,
Please, not gold heavens not harps not songs to sing!
(Life was so long: You are enough adored.)
Let me be twenty-five: Let children cling
Around my skirt when I lean past my gate
Watching if he is late:
Let it be dusk . . a thrus call sweet and thin . . .
And he come by and kiss me, and come in.
—M. W.

NEW CONSTRUCTION UNDER FHA SHOWS INCREASE

1-6-86 Circuit Clerk

According to information just released from the office of Robert Jemison Jr., State Director Federal Housing Administration, more than 700 new homes have been built in Alabama, under the Federal Housing Administration plan. These homes have been constructed in 92 different towns in the State.

Th evolume of business done in Alabama, under Title II of the National Housing Act, for the year 1936 showed an increase of 31 per cent over that of 1935. During the year 1935 a total of 1256 applications for an amount of $3,513,074 were filed while in 1936 the amount was $4,629,464. Of the total amount of applications filed during the year 1936, $1,808,790 were for the construction of new homes. This being approximately 40 per cent of the total. The percentage of new construction applicatoins filed in 1936 showed an increase of 76 per cent over that of 1935.

Title II of the Act has to do with the insuring of mortgages, and to aid in construction of new homes, the acquisition of homes already in existence and the refinancing of mortgages Loans have been made in 139 different towns in the State, by 108 banks and other financial institutions.

Under the terms of the National Housing Act no funds are furnished by the Government, but they are furnished by financial institutions, and the loans are insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

Title I of the Act has to do with the making of loans for the purpose of altering, repairing and modernizing homes and business property. Loans of this character have been made in every County in the State, and the volume has reached 11,000 for an amount of $3,500,000.

DR. J. B. PARHAM IS NEW ADDITION TO LOCAL CIRCLF

Shelby County citizens are taking advantage of an opportunity to extend a cordial welcome to Dr J. B. Parham of Calhoun, Georgia, who has permanently located in Columbiana and will engage in the practice of medicine.

Dr Parham comes to Columbiana highly recommended. He is an experienced physician of 20 years standing. He received his medical training at Loyola University in Chicago, and is fully equipped to efficienty fulfill the requirements of his profession. Complete office equipment with X-ray has been installed in his offices and he is subject to calls night and day.

Dr. and Mrs. Parham and their 3 children are at home at the Practice House, and the Democrat personnel joins Columbiana citizens in proffering a sincere and cordial welcome to her newest citizens.

HELENA NEWS

Pupils of Junior One, Two and Three of the Helena Junior High School entertained at a Silver Tea on Tuesday, December 22nd.

The beautifully appointed table was spread with a lace cloth and centered with a Christmas tree. Red tapers in silver holders, burned at either end of the table.

Miss Katie Mae Winslett, assisted by Miss Margaret Roy poured tea. Assisting in serving were: Misses Virginia Gilbert, Thelma Chandler, Sara Nelson, Willie Douglas and Mary Frances Russell.

Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Rebecca Payne.

The receiving line was composed of Misses Gladys Jenkins, Ruth Robison, Doris Butler and Dorothy Denson.

Music for the afternoon was furnished by Misses Mary Nell Lowry, Nettie Mae Stone and Betty June Payne.

Mr. and Mrs. E J. Sullivan spent the Christmas holidays in Elkmont, Alabama

BOARD OF REGISTRARS TO MEET

The Shelby County Board of Registrars will convene in the Courthouse on Monday, January 11 1937, and will be in session for ten days for the purpose of registering all persons who will be eligible to vote this year.

J. H. Fulton, Chairman.

BOARD OF REVENUE PASSES ROAD PLAN

At a regular meeting of the Board of Revenue on Monday, a plan was worked out whereby Shelby County will be able to build the road from the Bibb County line to the St. Clair County line—Montevallo to Vincent—thereby assuring the County future permanent development.

The Board is to be congratulated upon taking this decisive step forward.

L. C. WALKER HAS TABLES TURNED ON HIM

....An automobile tag which had been lost on the Highway was returned to the Probate office. The Judge thought it a bit careless and was wondering HOW on earth anyone could lose a tag from their car—when checking the records the owner of the License Number was JUDGE LEN C. WALKER. Was his face red? Ask Mary Woolley.

County Court was in session on Monday. A number of cases being disposed of by Judge Walker

CIRCUIT COURT POSTPONED

The January term of the Circuit Court has been postponed according to an announcement by Judge W. W. Wallace on account of the Legislature. Hon. L. H Ellis, prominent attorney, is connected with practically every case on the docket. He is also a distinguished member of the House of Representatives. Further announcement will be made after the Legislature adjourns.

BUN WHITE

Bun White, one of the most universally liked members of the Sheriff's forces, dropped by the office Tuesday and in chatting over official duties, we learned that he and his deputies have led quite an active life for the past few days capturing nine men, 13 stills and 3 automobiles. Nine stills and 3 men in ONE day! Wotta man! John Barleycorn is—on the "run."

L. H Ellis left for Montgomery on Monday resuming his official duties in the House of Representatives.

Lost by L. C. Abbott, an automobile tag. Finder please return.

Timely Pledge

It is good to read Harry Hopkin's assurance that no person in actual need is going to be cut off the relief rolls this winter.

In various cities the pruning down of work relief rolls was accomplished in a pretty hard-boiled manner during the last few weeks. While it is unquestionably true that a number of skulkers and shirkers were thereby removed from the public payroll, the plain fact remains that we still have an enormous number of unemployed people who are unable to find work in private industry.

It is just as important now as it was in the very depths of the depression to save these people from hunger and destitution. Mr. Hopkins' pledge that "no one in the United States who is in need of relief is going to be dropped" is and timely and much needed reassurance.

3 Cent Postage To Stay?

Somebody in Washington, remembering that the three-cent postage law will expire next summer, undertook to sound out the postoffice department with respct to the chances for return to the two-cent rate. Department officials would no, with one exception, permit direct quotation of their views. None, of course, could speak with absolute authority. But they assured the interviewer they could see little likelihood that the department would recommend abandonment of the three-cent charge. One gave the reasons supporting that view.

The extra cent on first-class postage, he explained, has added between $75,000,000 and $90,000,000 annually to the postal revenues. "In 1934," he pointed out. "we were about $12,000,000 to the good, so that three-cent postage obviously has kept us out of the red." He and hi sassociates in the service just can't see their department chieftain recommending sacrifice of revenues needed to keep it "out of the red" They look for retention of the three-cent charge indefinitely—recalling, incidentally, that it was reimposed by a law passed during the closing months of the Hoover administration, with a Republican postmaster-general in office.

Business and the general public may seek a return to the two-cent postage system by the new Congress. At their request bill it so that end can be introduced. But Congress, in all likelihood, will accept the administration's guidance in this as in other revenue matters. Senator Harrison has expressed the opinion that no tax increases will be necessary, but rather pointedly refrained from encouraging hope of tax reductions. So it appears highl yprobable that the three cent postage law will be re-enacted, regardless of any opposition. The Washington "preview" of the postage rate outlook may have been staged for the benefit of folks who have been planning or at least considering such opposition.

Greater exterior beauty than ever before and roomier interiors, due to an amazingly simple new method of construction, are outstanding results of the superior engineering skill used in designing the 1937 models of kerosene operated refrigerators marketed in this vicinity, it was announced by Turner's Service Station, Servel Electrolux dealer.

The way in which the engineering department of Servel, Inc. ,of Evansville, Indiana, has progressed from year to year n its efforts to bring its refrigerators to their present high degree of superiority is a story of scientific achievement and styling that every housewife should know, Mr. E. B. Turner of Turner's Service Station, stated.

The secret of the perfect symmetry which characterizes the 1937 models lies in the fact that the 'shell' of the cabinet is practically constructed of one piece of steel, which is a new departure in the construction of refrigerators.

By eliminating panels and points, thus avoiding all seams and evidences of riveting on the surface of the cabinet, Servel Electrolux engineers have been able to give the 1937 models those smooth, rounded corners, the greater curvature of the front and that general streamline aspect that make the refrigerators even more charming in appearance than those of the last two years.

To the main single piece which comprises the sides, top and front of the new model, onlv two other pieces are added ,th eback and the bottom, all of which are rivited and sealed from within, which gives the entire frame a strength, and rigidity that insures stability, durability and long life. These results could not have been obtained without this new method of "one piece" construction.

Having developed a freezing unit of lasting durability because of its absence of moving parts, Servel Electrolux engineers have produced a cabinet that will stand the test of the years. In other words ,the long life cabinet matches the long life freezing unit which it encloses. A new feature, relating to the durability of the model, is the construction of the legs in pairs which are bolted through flanges in the single shell to give added strength to the whole cabinet.

The new models have the same glossy white appearance that have made women call Servel Electrolux refrigerators the most beautiful of them all. The improved design of the 1937 product ;was passed upon by groups of women as was the case in the 1935 and 1936 models.

An improved process of ifnishing with a special kind of enamel baked on at high temperatures is another important factor relating both to the beauty of the 1937 model and in increasing its length o flife. A lasting finish must resist the action of fruit juices, liquors, smoke or fumes. It must not peel, chip or blister under all conditions of dampness or heat. It must thoroughly protect the metal against rust. It must not scratch or mar. It must not discolor under prolonged exposure to light. After the most gruelling tests in the Servel Electrolux laboratories, a finish designed to meet with the foregoing requirement was developed for the 1937 product.

Another element assuring longer life for the refrigerator is the new special Servel Electrolux insulation which is ven more heat resisting than that used hitherto. Because of the thorough sealing from within, together with the inherent properties of the insulating material, the insulation chamber will remain permanently dry.

By a novel planning of the interior, the shelf area has been increased to an appreciable extent without in any way interfering with its convenient arrangement. On the contrary, owners of the 1937 models will find them more convenient. A wider door opening offers more ready access to the food compartment.

In spite of the fact that the refrigerator is more roomy ,the cabinet is so built that it will occupy less space in the kitchen than formerly.

Other conveniences provide for greater accessibility to the food stored in the refrigerator ,more adaptability to different kinds of food, grea ter ease in obtaining ice cubes, and new facilities for placing foods in the proper location i nthe box. The central location of the cooling apparatus gives more useful space in each side of the interior.

There are not interior doors or projections t oreach around and the wide angle used for the trim makes it easy to reach all parts o fthe interior. Trigger trays and the trigger release make the removal of ice trays and ice cubes a quick and simple operation. The split shelf and tall bottle space afford greater facilities for storing articles and bottles of different sizes. The tubular light location furnishes the greatest amount of illumination to the interior.

There have been no changes in those fundamental priciples of refrigeration which hav emade Servel Electrolux different from all other types of household refrigerators, namely, the utilization of heat to cause cold thus affording silence. The same mi racle that makes Servel Electrolux silent gives it lasting durability because there are no moving parts to wear. Freezing is caused by a small flame from an improved kerosene-burner which makes it economical to operate.

Improvements in connection with the fuelling of the 1937 model include a strainer to keep out impurities in the kerosene, and a gauge to show how much kerosene is in the tank. One filling provides an ample supply for a week o rten days.

PURE CORN BETTER FOR SALE THAN MIXED CORN

AUBURN—The United States Department of Agriculture now confirms statements of R. J. Goode, Alabama Commissioner of Agriculture, J. C. Lowery ,extension agronomist, and Dr. M. F Jackson, farm produce agent ,that Alabama farmers will pro fit by growing pure instead of mixed corn for sale.

Pure or nearly pure white corn is prized by corn millers, and premiums often are paid for such corn, says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

POWERFUL FERTILIZERS BEING PRODUCED BY TVA

AUBURN—The Tennessee Valley Authority is proucing super-phosphate fertilizers, two to five times more powerful than those generally used, and farmers and agricultural experiment stations in seven valley states are giving them a thorough testing, says the Associated Press.

The authority is striving still further toward higher concentration of plant food, maybe phosphorus itself, an element in which 90 per cent of all soils are deficient. Utilizing giant electrical furnaces of the big, war time plants at Wilson Dam, the Authority has already produced fertilizer material with phosphorus content as high as 60 per cent.

FARM BUREAU REQUESTS NUMEROUS FARM CHANGES

AUBURN—The American Farm Bureau Federation resolves that a national farm policy must provide: for restoring and maintaining a high degree of soil fertility; a schedule of agricultural tariffs to protect the domestic market from competing imports that hold or force American prices below parity levels of industrial and agricultural commodities; aggressive efforts to develop new domestic farm products; state and federal marketing agreements; the holding of surpluses from market channels in the most economical way under a system of federal loans based on warehousing or trust receipts.

FARMERS ADVISED OBTAIN "REAL TRUTH" ON VARIETY

AUBURN—Cotton growers planning to grow a new variety of cotton in 1937 are likely to suffer a heavy loss unless they obtain the "real truth" about the variety before buying the seed.

This warning comes from officials of the Alabama Experiment Station and the State Extension Service who advise that the safest guide for farmers in buying cotton seed is the cotton variety tests of the State experiment station. The results of the 1936 tests will be made available to farmers and others early in January, states H. B. Tisdale, plant breeder.

Farmers desiring to purchase seed of a new variety are being advised to confer with their county agents who have the results obtained in tests conducted over a period of years. It has been found that these tests remove the "guess" in selecting a suitable variety of cotton.

Radio receiving sets have been presented to the Alabama Future Farmer Chapters at Eva, Vernon, and Jackson as prizes in corn and cotton contests.

POULTRY NEEDS FEED TO REPLACE GREENS

AUBURN—Farmers can improve the health o ftheir hens and increase their egg production during the winter months by adding five per cent alfalfa lea fmeal, good grade ground lespedeza, or soybean hay to their mash, advises John E. Ivey, extension poultryman.

This advice is given by Mr. Ivey after calling attention to the fact that it is harder to give hens a well balanced diet in cold weather when little, if any, green feed is available. Even if some green feed is available, the birds usually do not have access to it, as most o fthem will be confined in houses to protect them against severe cold, he points out.

Keep a close check on the body weight of layers, as heavy autumn egg production tends t odrain their weight and vitality.

Give more scratch feeds if they are under weight, but reduce the amount of scratch feed if they are too fat. Excess fat is not good for the birds. Neither is it advisable to waste money on overfeeding.

Ivey added that it is not too early to start thinking about next year's feeding program. If you have land suitable for growing scratch feeds, plan to raise your own and save the expense of buying it. This will increase your profits.

This year's high prices should point out more strongly than before the importance of producing scratch feed at home when possible. Producing seventy-five per cent (1 bushel corn per hen) of the poultry feed at home should become a regular farm practice.

Elimination of filler from fertilizers world save farmers of the county about $7,500,000 annuallq reports the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils.

Centipede grass is being used to stop soil lossed on the demonstration project of the Soil Conservation Service and Extension Service near Greenville in Butler County.

FARM TENANCY PROGRAM IS BEING FORMULATED

AUBURN—President Roosevelt's committee on far mtenancy expects to report a tenancy program to the President by February 1, 1937, reports the United States Department of Agriculture.

The importance of legislation being passed to solve the farm tenancy problem in the South is emphasized by a report of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in which it is pointed out that the highest rate of tenancy exists on cotton farms. In 1930, 73 percent of the cotton type of farms ,as classified by the census, were tenant operated.

BLACKSTRAP MOLASSES GOOD FEED FOR CATTLE

AUBURN—Blackstrap molasses is one of the cheapest feeds available to Alabama livestock producers this winter, advises F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist.

One pint of blackstrap per head per day will cheapen the ration of either beef or dairy cattle and will replace an equal wieght of corn, he says.

Ensilage is one of the best substitutes for pasture for dairy cattle. Three pounds of ensilage and one pound of hay per 100 pounds of live weight of cattle fed daily will supply thei rroughage requirements.

Forty-eight cows in the Alabama Cow Testing Association were listed as "quality cows" during November for producing over 800 pounds of milk or 40 pounds of butterfat during the month.

More than 30,000 families in Alabama were aided by the Resettlement Administration during its activities up to November 1.

DAIRY HERD GAVE $2.12 FOR $1. WORTH OF FEED

AUBURN—The McLean Stewart dairy herd of Montgomery County returned $2.12 worth of milk for each $1.00 worth of feed it consumed during November this year ,announces F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist, in reporting that the herd averaged 548 pounds of milk and 30.2 pounds of butterfat.

The second highest producing herd was owned by R. B. Kent, Birmingham. It averaged 548 pounds of milk and 29.6 pounds of butterfat.

A study of dairy herd improvement association records made in Alabama on over 3,000 cows shows that cows that freshen in September and October produce the most milk and butterfat and show the greatest returns over feed costs, he advises.

Breeding cows to purebred bulls with plenty of production back of them is one of the cheapest and surest means we have of increasing production and lowering our feed cost per gallon of milk or pound of butterfat.

MRS. TERRELL ENTERTAINS WITH ELABORATE DINNER PARTY

Columbiana homes have been unusually hospitable during the past Christmas season, and one of the loveliest courtesies extended during the glad Yule Tide was a formal dinner party given bv Mrs. Lena Merrell in her beautiful home on Main Street on December 22nd.

The house was elaborately decorated with the holiday motif. Red and white roses adorned the five tables arranged for Bridge — which was played after the five course dinner was served. Misses Jeanette Niven, Elizabeth Taylor, Jean Letson and Saranel Carter assisted Mrs. Merrell in entertaining.

Those who shared this generous gesture from one of Columbiana's most popular hostesses included: Dr. and Mrs. Lowell Naff, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Ehney A Camp of irmingham; Mr and Mrs. Lloyd Shinn of Sylacauga; Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Dunlap of Siluria; Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gould of Wilsonville; Miss Tress Nickerson of Columbus, Georgia; Mr. and Mrs. Homer J. Walton, Mr .and Mrs. Cecil Duke. Mr and Mrs. oe Stone. Mr. and Mrs Levert Christian of Columbiana.

MISS JEANETTE NIVEN HOSTESS

Miss Jeanette Niven, popular collegiate was a gracious hostess to a number of her college friends when she entertained with a dinner party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Niven on New Year's Eve.

Greeting her guests, in a beautiful gown of rose taffeta the gracious young hostess ushered them into the brilliantly lighted dinin groom. From an artistically appointed table centered with a crystal bowl of red roses with tall crystal candelabra holding red candles casting a mellow glow over the merry guests, they were served a delicious four course dinner. The place cards were novel red baskets filled with green mints with red whistles for favors.

Gathered around the festive board Green and white tapers burned in silver holders and on either side mints and nuts were placed in silver dishes.

The hallway was lighted by a big Christmas tree fully trimmed and the gifts were displayed on tables near by.

The bride-elect wore an afternoon frock of black net over taffeta, with diamonte clips at the neck and repeated at the waist line. She carried a handkerchief of linen set in a deep hand of tatting, that was a wedding present of her mothers.

MISS MARY ELIZABETH LOKEY HONORED

Mrs. Tom Reinhardt, Mrs. Paul Smith and Mrs. W. P Pope were the charming hostesses honoring Miss Mary Elizabeth Lokey, bride-elect of January. with a shower at the home of Mrs. Pope.

Guests were met at the door by the hostesses and presented to the bride, her mother, Mrs. O. F. Lokey and her aunt, Mrs. Frances Edmonson of Hattisburg, Mississippi.

The guests registered in the Brides ook and were shown int othe dining room where coffee and cake were ser ved, then proceeded into the hallway where the gifts were displayed.

The living room was decorated with huge sprays of holly and mistletoe tied with red satin ribbons.

Miss Harriett Clarke Pope presided over the Brides Book and Miss Aileen Pope directed the guests to the dining room where Misses Katherine Smith and Bobbie Reinhardt served more than fifty guests.

The dining table was covered with a handsome lace cloth, and decorated with graceful silver deer standing near a mirrored plaque and tiny green tree. These central figures were wreathed by silvered toy sprays

POOR FOLKS HAVE CHILLUN

BY MILTON BIRD

"I ain't never knowed but one guy," Upshaw Davis said to me as we sat on the creek bank in Jungle Hollow fishing, "whut wanted t' have a whole lot o' chillun."

He pulled out a mud perch about the size of his hand and strung him on a wire that dangled from a twig into the water.

His words startled me. I looked up quickly and asked: "But they all da, why?"

He was puzzled and it showed in his bright eyes. "I don't know," he said, "I reckon it's 'cause they can't he'p it." Again his cork disappeared under the blue, even water. The fish apparently had run under a log and got away. Putting on new bait, he continued: "Yep, there wus a guy who come in here last year who b'lieved in big families, an' wus well on 'is way t' having a record covey till th' law flushed 'im at 'is still one day an' sent 'im off fer two years."

He dumped a fresh supply of snuff just inside his lower lip and began his story:

" 'is nam wus Samuels an' he lived with 'is wife an' kids on th' second hill frum th' creek in a one roo mshack Jake Stallings put up there last year t' keep 'is cans in. 'Is family's still there, hanging 'round th' place like buzzards 'round a sick calf, wating, I reckon, for the government t' turn their paw ball loose so th' game kin go on.

"Samuels wus in th' war an' th' noise over there sort o' got th' best of 'is head so th' horspitals took on a new boarder right off. It seems that when they got back home those doctors in Washington turned all o' Samuels loose but a 'special part o' his head that wus some bothered up by the noise, an' that he'd used 'fore th' war started to figger with. Anyway, he comes down here last year, full o' a hankering t' have a whole army o' 'his own, an' acting strange; so we jest took 'him fer whut he one wus, an' felt sorry fer 'is wife who had th' worst end o' th' bargain.

"He wus getting 'long sort o' so till th' law flushed 'im with 'is still going an' him a toting water frum the creek faster than scared men tote water t' fires in little towns. He had more chillun than he could 'ed in 'is one room, but had already made 'rangements fer a new room with Joe Eaves, an' wus as happy as a guy with a turrible hang-over lying in the shade asleep dreaming he is neck deep in a creek with th' water running in his mouth and out 'is ears.

"The law come up an' had 'im 'fore he knew whut had took place. He looked at 'em fer several minutes an' then said something 'bout 'is wife needing water fer the scrubbing, an' a dam fool who'd make liquor that close t' 'is house, an' ended up by wanting t' know if they wanted 'im t' help 'em tear th' thing up.

"That wus in May. He stayed in jail till July an' then they carried 'im 'round t' th' court room t' have 'is trial. Frum th' looks o' th' room eve'y body frum th' Hollow wus there Samuels had refused the help o' a lawyer, an' wus gonna make 'is own speech, so all th' folks frum miles around wanted t' hear it.

It wus late in th' afternoon when he got 'is chance t' tell th' jury whut wus on 'is chest, an' he wus mad enough t' tell 'em plenty too, 'cause th' solicitor had made 'im out something 'tween a sheep-eating dog and a half-raised guy who t' start with had lived three doors frum th' last house th' angel had had brains fer.

"He looked at that jury like a man looks at a cocked gun or women look at busted legs an' bad cut faces, and bellowed loud enough for y' t' hear 'im ten miles with th' wind at y' back. There wus so much snickering an' so many loud words frum th' judge about keeping order that I didn't catch all o' it, but what I did get went something like this:

" 'They says I wus breaking th' law. Gents, I tell y' I wusn't. An' I'll tell y' why I wusn't." He reared back then an' took out 'is handkerchief an' wiped the sweat off o' his face an' neck. 'It's 'cause there's something a heap more important in this world t' me than th' law. Yes, something that keeps me busy an' not thinking 'bout things that ain't up t' scotch with th' officers. He walked over an' put 'is hand on th' head o' 'is wife who wus sitting in a chair jest across th' table frum th' solicitor. It's this little woman, Gents,' he said, 'an' th' kids we've got.'

"Then he told th' long story of his suffering in France when the war was going on, an' th' pain he an' th' Mrs. was taking to help 'is government get ready fer the next war, an' what it would mean t' him an' them, if they, th' great jury, wus to b'lieve he wus at that still, away frum 'his family an' them a needing 'im.

"Then he would stop fer several minutes an' cry like a baby, an' wring 'is hands, an' run over an' jabber at 'is wife, all th' time sweating like a man who had walked under a window jest when th' woman inside had decided t' throw out th' dish water.

"That went on fer twenty minutes 'fore th' judge figgered it wus time t' call it quits. Samuels looked at 'is Honor, shook his head weakly up an' down, an' took 'is seat.

"Th' jury must o' had something favorite fer their supper an' wanted t' be there 'fore it wus all et up 'cause they came back after being out 'bot three minutes with Samuel's ticket t' the pen an' expenses paid fer two years folded up in a paper they handed t' th' judge."

Upshaw Davis drew in his line and put a fresh worm on his hook. He got up and walked back away from the creek and I realized his story was finished. Still, I wasn't satisfied. I wanted to know one thing more about Samuel's family. Those future soldiers who would give their lives for their country.

"What about his family," I pressed him further, "are they being taken care of?"

Upshaw laughed amusedly. "Sure" he said. "Th' welfare lady looks after 'em; his wife and all seven o' 'is little gals. And Jim," he said suddenly, apparently realizing that Samuel's children would never be soldiers "them socks an' things th' women knitted must o' meant a lot to th' soldiers during that last war."

POWERFUL FERTILIZERS BEING PRODUCED BY TVA

AUBURN—The Tennessee Valley Authority is proucing super-phosphate fertilizers, two to five times more powerful than those generally used, and farmers and agricultural experiment stations in seven valley states are giving them a thorough testing, says the Associated Press.

The authority is striving still further toward higher concentration of plant food, maybe phosphorus itself, with a large nelement in which 90 per cent of Tennessee soils are deficient. Utilizing electrical furnaces of the big, contests hydro-electrical furnaces of the big, delicious sesame plants at Wilson Dam, the city has already produced fertilizer material with phosphorus content as high as 60 per cent.

POULTRY NEEDS FEED TO REPLACE GREENS

AUBURN—Farmers can improve the health o ftheir hens and increase their egg production during the winter months by adding five per cent alfalfa lea fmeal, good grade ground lespedeza, or soybean hay to their mash, advises John E. Ivey, extension poultryman.

This advice is given by Mr. Ivey after calling attention to the fact that it is harder to give hens a well balanced diet in cold weather when little, if any, green feed is available. Even if some green feed is available, the birds usually do not have access to it, as most o fthem will be confined in houses to protect them against severe cold, he points out.

Keep a close check on the body weight of layers, as heavy autumn egg production tends t odrain their weight and vitality.

Give more scratch feeds if they are under weight, but reduce the amount of scratch feed if they are too fat. Excess fat is not good for the birds. Neither is it advisable to waste money on overfeeding.

Ivey added that it is not too early to start thinking about next year's feeding program. If you have land suitable for growing scratch feeds, plan to raise your own and save the expense of buying it. This will increase your profits.

This year's high prices should [illegible] out more strongly than before [illegible] of producing scratch [illegible]

FARM TENANCY PROGRAM IS BEING FORMULATED

AUBURN—President Roosevelt's committee on far mtenancy expects to report a tenancy program to the President by February 1, 1937, reports the United States Department of Agriculture.

The importance of legislation being passed to solve the farm tenancy problem in the South is emphasized by a report of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in which it is pointed out that the highest rate of tenancy exists on cotton farms. In 1930, 73 percent of the cotton type of farms ,as classified by the census, were tenant operated.

BLACKSTRAP MOLASSES GOOD FEED FOR CATTLE

AUBURN—Blackstrap molasses is one of the cheapest feeds available to Alabama livestock producers this winter, advises F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist.

One pint of blackstrap per head per day will cheapen the ration of either beef or dairy cattle and will replace an equal wieght of corn, he says.

Ensilage is one of the best substitutes for pasture for dairy cattle. Three pounds of ensilage and one pound of hay per 100 pounds of live weight of cattle fed daily will supply thei[illegible]nts.

DAIRY HERD GAVE $2.12 FOR $1. WORTH OF FEE

AUBURN—The McLean Stewart dairy herd of Montgomery County returned $2.12 worth of milk for each $1.00 worth of feed it consumed during November this year ,announces F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist, in reporting that the herd averaged 548 pounds of milk and 30.2 pounds of butterfat.

The second highest producing herd was owned by R. B. Kent, Birmingham. It averaged 548 pounds of milk and 29.6 pounds of butterfat.

A study of dairy herd improvement association records made in Alabama on over 3,000 cows shows that cows that freshen in September and October produce the most milk and butterfat and show the greatest returns over feed costs, he advises.

Breeding cows to purebred bulls with plenty of production back of them is one of the cheapest and surest means we have of increasing production and lowering our feed cost per gallon of milk or pound of butterfat.

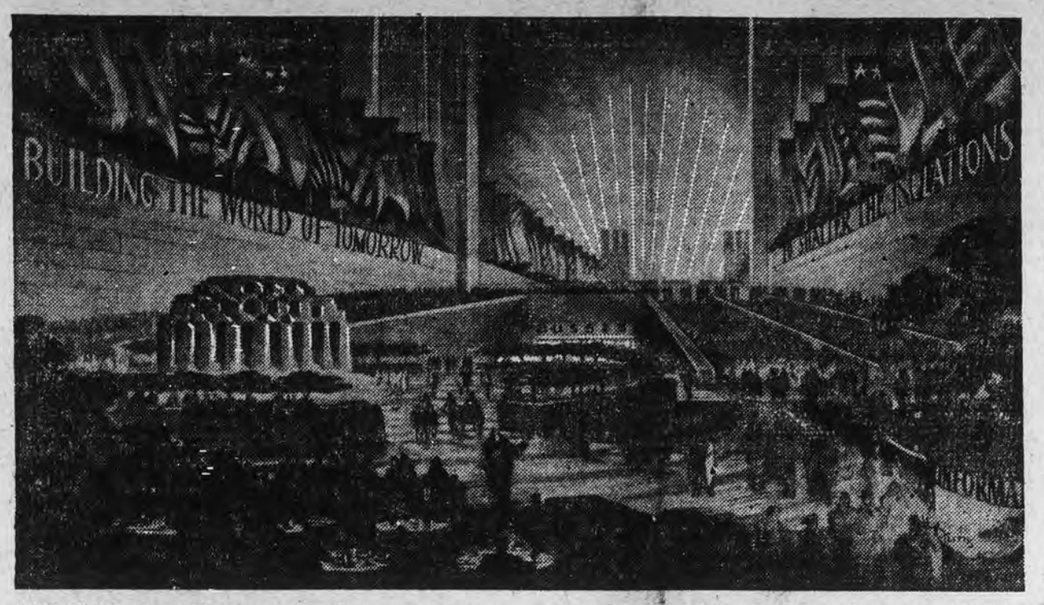
FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA HOLD MEET IN JEMISON

The Central Alabama district of the Future Farmers of America met at Jemison last Monday night, January 4th in the agricultural building of Jemison High School.



Taking most importance in the meeting was the planning of a district rally at Jemison on February 27th which will take up the whole day. In the morning visits will be made to the projects of vocational agricultural boys at Jemison and private homes where poultry, strawberry farming or truck farmng is carried on extensively. The afternoon's program will be largely taken up with a basketball tournament of the five chapters in the district: Jemison Billingsley, Columbiana, Clanton and Isabella. R. E. Camack State F. F. A. Advisor will address the distrct members in the morning also.

February first will be the date for the next meeting which will be held at Clanton; more definite plans will be made for the rally at that meeting.

Members of the Columbiana chapter attending the last meeting were: J D Falkner, Howard McEwen, Hobart Blackerby Frank Wilder Royce Morris, Alvie Wolf, Albert Lokey, Edgar Vardaman T C Rush, and J. W. Stone, advisor.

THROUGH BROAD AND BEAUTIFUL ENTRYWAYS VISITORS WILL PASS TO THE NEW YORK FAIR

NEW YORK, (Special).—Forty thousand persons an hour—visitors from every state and every nation—must be accommodated in comfort at but one of the entryways to the New York World's Fair of 1939, according to arrangements the Fair Corporation is completing to handle a maximum daily attendance of 800,000. The artist's drawing, as reproduced above, calls for a magnificent double-decked entryway with underpasses, overpasses, pedestrian walks, bus terminals, comfort stations and bridge connections assuring comfort while providing an area of architectural splendor. Shown is a ramp leading from the exposition grounds toward the I.R.T.-B.M.T. subway terminal, at a point where it is necessary to cross over the Long Island railroad tracks and to avoid undue congestion of pedestrian traffic. Shown in the left foreground is a domed restaurant within a fountain basin and a concourse bordered by grown plane-trees, and, nearer, an open-air cafe and an information kiosk. Along the flanking walls the artist has delineated the Fair's world concept which looks to the building of a peaceful, happier World of Tomorrow.

90 ACRE TRACT IS BOUGHT BY STATE FOR QUAIL FARM

Commissioner of Conservation I. T Quinn has announced the purchase of a 90-acre tract of land in Autauga county, which will be converted into a state quail farm. At the same time, the commissioner also made known the employment as superintendent of the farm of Stephen Hare who, he said, is recognized as one of the best game breeders in the United States. Mr. Hare, whose home is in Virginia has already taken over these duties and is now engaged in making such repairs and improvements as are deemed necessary, and installing equipment.

The quail farm is located near Prattville, west of the Birmingham highway. This property includes a modern residence, a fine lake in its southeast corner, and plenty of cover suitable for raising quail The new superintendent come sto this state with the recommendation of W B. Coleman, of Richmond. Va., rated as probably the world's foremost game breeder under whom Mr. Hare received his training. Before coming to Alabama, Mr. Hare served as superintendent of the state game farm in Illinois.

"Acquisition of the farm and the employment of Mr.Hare marks the departments first attempt to raise quail for propagation purposes," Commissioner Quinn said. "If successful in this venture, the department hopes to expand the project to include other game species."

WILSONVILLE P.T.A. TO MEET TUESDAY

The Parent Teacher Association of Wilsonville will hold a regular meeting in the school auditorium on next Tuesday evening, January 19th at 7:30.

Mrs. Howard Reinhardt, the Program Leader, will present an interesting program on Play—The Child's Health Insurance." Every parent is vitally interested in this subject and is urged to attend.

Following the program, Miss Ida Edwards will direct the recreational period. The hostesses of the evening who are preparing the refreshments are: Mrs. Embrew Weldon, Mrs. P. B. Niven, Mrs. Dewey Bolton and Miss Virgie Boyer.

A new project is to be planned for the Association at this meeting. Come and bring your frends and lets plan a project that will be worth while for our school.

L. & N. EMPLOYES HOLD A GIGANTIC SAFETY MEETING

A gigantic "safety friendly service" meeting of nearly 30,000 L. & N. Railroad employes and their families residing in 13 southern states, will be held via radio, when that company broadcasts from WSM at Nashville, Tenn. on January 15th.

A thirty minute program of song and story portraying incidents in railroad life, including a short talk by the railroad's president, James B. Hill will go on the air at 9:30 p. m.

The broadcast will be made from the stage of the War Memorial Building at Nashville as a feature of a meeting of some 2000 railroad employes from that vicinity.

GOVERNMENT WILL RELEASE COTTON

WASHINGTON—The Commodity Credit Corporation announced recently that a "reasonable amount" of the 3,000,000 bales of 1933 and 1934 cotton on which the government has made loans would be released to producer-borrowers between February 1 and April 1.

The corporation declared that it would make available to the trade only so much of the cotton "as will properly supply current' domestic and expert requirements.

Shelby Teachers Meeting Emphasizes New Curriculum

On January 9th the Shelby County teachers met at the Columbiana High School. This meeting was acclaimed one of the most interesting of the year since children and teachers from different sections of the County demonstrated what their schools had been doing in try-outs of Curriculum Adjustment.

The meeting was begun with community singing, followed by devotional led by Mrs. Hunt. Next came a most interesting Unit of work on Kindness given by the members of the first grade of Columbiana Elementary school under the supervision of Miss Gertrude Bishop. Wilsonville school was represented by the second grade, which gave a demonstration on safety. This group was trained by Miss Ida Edwards. Mrs. Nivens then explained the values that the third grade of Columbiana received from a Unit of Work on The Toy Shop. Doris Payne. Mary Lee Jones and James Castleberry Jr., from the Siluria High School contributed much to the interest of the meeting by giving the group an insight into their activities along the line of the Changing Curriculum. The merits of these units were explained to the teachers by Mrs. Walton before the demonstration.

Following the announcements by Mr. Appleton, the teachers met in the High School, Intermediate and Elementary groups. Work on Curriculum adjustment was continued in the group meetings using the Peabody Bulletin as the basis of study.

Many other teachers made reports in each of the group meetings

The High School Group was honored with the presence of three of our leading citizens: Mr. J. L. Davis, Mr. Luther Fowler and Mr. A A. Lauderdale, who told us of the qualities of high school students that they ha' employed. This gave the teachers an insight into the training needed by high school students who begin work after finishing high school.

Siluria led the group in a discussion on the Curriculum Bulletin.

The Teachers' Organization was called by Miss Mary Peters. Reports were asked for on professional improvement, Research and Ethics.

CAMP BRANCH LOSES TO BUCK [illegible] BY DECISIVE SCORE

Coach Ray Thornton led his Buck Creek boys to a 35 to 5 victory over the breezy Camp Branch five here last Thursday night. This is the second game the "Creekers" have taken from the Camp Branch squad this season.

'Wop' Massey set the scoring pace for the Creekers with 13 points, followed close by Elvin Moore, who scored 11 points, Harold Fikes followed both with 4 points while Truitt Seay displayed his wares for the Camp Branch team

Olin Robinson and Ray Thornton, although unable to do any of the actual scoring displayed rare skill for the Buck Creek team throughout the entire game

Anyone interested in playing the Buck Creek team may arrange a game by communicating with Ray Thronton at Siluria

Line ups and summaries:

Buck Creek (35): Massey 13, and Moore 11, forwards; Robinson, center; H Fikes 4, and M Fikes 2, guards Thornton, Payne 1 Scott 2 and Dukes 2.

Camp Branch 5: Creamer and Hale 1, forwards; Seay 2, center; Payne and Gilbert 1, guards; Nash 1, and Miller.

Referees: Jackson, Wallace and Creamer.

NATIONAL FARM LOAN MEETING

The annual stockholder's meeting of the Shelby County and Columbiana National Farm Loan Associations will be held in the Courthouse in Columbiana on January 21, 1937, accordin gto an announcement made today by J. B. Williams, Secretary and Treasurer of the Associations.

At this meeting reports will be made of the past year's activities and the stockholders will elect members of the Board of Directors to serve during 1937 The Association has invited a representative of The Federal Land Bank of New Orleans to speak to the meeting on various phases of the Federal farm credit system, according to Mr Williams

Indications are that there will be a large attendance at this meeting, Mr Williams said. The national farm loan associations are cooperative credit associations operated under the supervision and regulation of the Farm Credit Administration. The membership of each assocatoin is restricted to borrows from the Federal Land Bank and no other persons are eligible as shareholders. This cooperative credit system has made available to farmers through national farm loan associations first mortgage agricultural credit at interest rates which are at present the lowest in history.

A GREAT WRITER HAS PASSED ON

The death of Arthur Brisbane removed from the ranks of current journalists the most wdely read writer in the nation.

Mr. Brisbane had an unusual gift of clear expression and pungent thought which attracted millions of people to form a habit of reading his celebrated columns.

One might differ with the veteran Hearst editor on many subjects but he was always interesting arresting thought and stimulating mental reaction. After all, isn't this the chief end of all writing and, by this standard, wasn't Mr. Brisbane about as good as the present age had to offer?

SHELBY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB HOLDS ITS FIRST MEETING OF YEAR

The club held its first meeting of the new year January 8th at the home of Mrs. W. A. Green. We had our regular noon hour social together and were served with a delicous plate lunch.

After lunch our meetng was called ot order by our president, Mrs. W. A. Green with the song "Alabama". Roll called by our secretary and each member answered with a very helpful household hint. Mrs. L. Pate had charge of the citizenship program.

Mrs. Green was appointed to meet with the Merry Makers Club to discuss plans for a new club room.

Miss Nolen gave a demonstration on how to know a good milch cow, and the care of cows. After which she gave us an interesting talk on her trip to Florida.

Mrs. Green read an article on Will Rogers.

Those present at the Club were Mesdames: W. A. Green, Brymer, C. R. Jones L. Pate, J. C. Howell L. Curlee, Holmes, Stonecypher A. A. Thornburg, A. B. Bristow, J. T. Sandlin; Misses Nolen Frances Jones and Wilma Howell.

The next meeting of the club will be February 12th with Mrs. Holmes. The subject will be "Etiquette."

TUSKEGEE QUINTET TO GIVE PROGRAM IN COLUMBIANA 24

The famous Tuskegee Quintet, noted for their perfect harmony, will appear at the Courthouse Auditorium Sunday afternoon January 24 1937 at 3:00 o'clock. This group of singers, trained under William Levi Dawson composer of the "Negro Folk Symphony" will offer a splendid program.

William Dawson directed Tuskegee Institute's 75 voice choir at the opening of Radio City in New York

The Quintet specializes in harmony yet they pour into the songs of their fathers a combination of sincerity and beauty that is irresistible.

The singers are being presented here by Fred Douglas Andrews of the County Training School and Zelia Stephens, supervisor of Negro Schools in Shelby ounty Funds will go to the County Training School.

The Supreme Need Of 1937

(From The Richmond News Leaders)

That dominant note of optimism that sounds thru every forecast for 1937 is sustained by a firm chord of recovery. None can deny that. Even a pessimist, though he may remark that every New Year's Day since 1930 has brought predictions of better business, will have to admit that they never have had so solid a justification in business statistics or so sound a basis of public confidence.

Unemployment will continue, not only through 1937 but until America makes the long and complicated adjustment to the labor-saving machinery developed in the years that followed the war-time expansion. The mere mechanics of an industrial revolution may be perfected in a decade; the economics may not be solved for two generations.

Ni dire consequence need follow if the country accepts the fact that a certain residual unemployment is inevitable. Man is as adaptable to taxation as to climate.

Business, moreover can and ousiness must adapt itself to the complete abolition of child labor in factories, to better wages in the sweated industries and to shorter hours for those who now labor over long, tiring, monotonous tasks. The president and the Congress will insist on these reforms. They should be effected in the best practicable manner, with the least delay and with the minimum disturbance of good industrial relations.

We do not believe that Mr. Roosevelt intends to ask of Congress much more than appropriations for unemployment relief and laws to aid the underprivileged worker, rural and urban. If there is a better legislative fight in the Seventy-fifth Congress, it is apt to be over the method by which these things are to be done. Our own belief, reluctantly reached, is that in the end we shall have to reconcile ourselves, as a nation to a constitutional amendment that will make it possible for government to compel the payment of a minimum wage for a reasonable work week. Once again, the law abiding majority will have to accept unwelcome restraints because of a shameless, recalcitrant and selfish minority.

If a battle over these issues is avoided and foolish strikes are prevented, there is no threat to further industrial recovery during 1937 except, of course, the prospect of another war. Here we can do no more than weigh probabilities. For the moment they seem to be against war in 1937. Beyond that, everything depends on the willingness of the victors in the last war voluntarily to amend a treaty that otherwise will be revised by the losers in blood and misery.

For the advancement of peace in the world as for the furtherance of tranquility at home, the supreme need of 1937 is the gracious old quality of moderation—moderation o fthought, of language, and of action. Danger lies, as it always has, in the extremes whether they be of radicalism or of reaction. Here in Virginia for example, thoughtful persons realize that the one way by which we can escape another struggle over liquor control is for every user of alcohol to practice the fundamental law of self control. It is the same in all human affairs. The seed of moderation is a sense of fair play; the fruit of moderation is contentment.

An official over in Chilton County had taken in quite anice sum during the morning hour. Upon leaving for lunch he hid the greater part of the money in the waste basket. While he was gone burglars looted the cash drawer and escaped with what little he had left. We can't help wondering what possessed the man to hide the money in the waste basket. At any rate, it worked.

We are not addicted to work, but we can manage to do enough to earn a livelihood. But among the types of employment for which we have absolutely no desire may be listed deep sea diving.

China has adopted a sure way of ridding herself of undesirables. In the course of twenty-four hours one hundred and thirty drug addicts, thieves and other undesirables were executed. That ensd that.

National Ideals Preserve Democracy

The nation has come to the end of an eventful year. For the first time since the worst days of depression, industry has felt the stimuli of better times, of broadening markets, of increased earnings. Prospects for the future are immeasurable brightened.

Yet we must not be blind to the vital problems that all of us as individuals and as members of the economic and social order, still face.

The depression, for example, caused a great increase in the burden of taxation and wisdom of emergency spending has passed, and the time for balancing our books has come. No less a figure than the President has said that it should soon be possible to meet outgo with income, so far as the Federal government is concerned and in achieving that he will have the wholehearted assistance of all responsible elements in our national life. Furthermore, once the budget is balanced, we must apply ourselves rigorously to reducing th edebt and thus eventually decrease the tax load. Such a program would give the strongest possible spur to the recovery movement.

The problem of unemployment looms almost as large today as it did at the abysmal low point. Industry has pledged itself to do all within its power to curb this intolerable condition, and in doing that it must have th ehelp of government, to the extent that no legislation be passed which will frighten and discourage the investor—the source of all productive employment

In conclusion, it would be well for us all, on the threshold of the new year, to look abroad at dictator-ridden Europe. In many great countries the free press has been abolished. Free speech has become a crime. All criticism of those in power has been silenced with imprisonment and death. In some countries the right to worship has been abrogated by law the state has been made Divine, the dictator in power must be regarded as a god, and the individual has been reduced to an actual state of slavery.

While we pity the citizens of those nations and wonder that such things could have come to pass in this century we can learn an invaluable lesson from their plight. We still live under a Constitution that guarantees us freedom of religion, freedom of speech and freedom of the press. Upon the preservation of that Constitution and the liberties it guarantees depends the future of the United States and the American people. In the pursuit of an economic millenium we must not sacrifice national ideals and principles that are the very lifeblood of demcrary.

What Are We Going To Do?

The statistics will be rather gruesome but, in a few weeks, you will hear that the year 1936 set a new record in the number of lives snuffed out on the highways of America, where millions of sensible citizens pursue the great god Speed ,when they sit behind a steering wheel.

If all the editors and all the speeches, spoken and written on the subject of highway safety, were collected in one pile the summit would probably reach the height of the bodies, collected in one heap. Neither broken bodies, sorrowing hearts or warning words have been powerful enough to stop the slaughter that takes away one hundred Americans every day.

There was a time when we believed that safety could be attained by strictly limiting the speed of vehicles but we have passed on. As long as faster cars are built that well be greater speed than before and as long as individuals delight in telling of record trips in better time the laws on the books will not stop the death list from mounting.

"Laws on the books" are worthless unless enforced and worse than useless if consistently ignored. The laws of the land, attempting to regulate the speed of motor vehicles, are violated so many more times than they are enforced that a speeder, caught by the law, is almost regarded as an innocent victim of circumstances. Even the wriver, who kills, is given the benefit of the doubt and dismissed, too often with the saying, "Well, everybody violates the speed laws."

This is no effort to solve the problem merely to impress upon all readers that the problem exists. What are we going to do about it, if anything?

CHARLES SWANN, JR.

INTRODUCING
THE LITTLE NEW YEAR BABY
FOR 1937

So far as we have been able to learn after a thorough check-up on the activities of Dr. Stork we believe that the Democrat baby for 1937 is young Mr. Horn he being the newest citizen reported to the office.

So, we extend heartiest congratulations to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Yeager Horn—and heartily welcome him into our circle of readers. He now becomes a life time subscriber, and we hope each succeeding year brings t ohim success and happiness. We assure you the Democrat will follow his future career with keen interest. Charles Swann Jr., whose picture appears above, is the first New Year baby we enrolled and we feel sure he has a message of welcome which he will send as spokesman for the group of New Year babies—FIVE in all—and perhaps the other kiddies will have a message to send too. Mail to the Democrat you little ones for 1933-34-35-36! We also page Little Miss Wyatt, whom we believe is still "leading lady".

We eagerly await the NAME of our newest acquisition—but for the present we shall have to send personal good wishes to Bambino Horn for we understand he has not received his life heritage—yet!

And speaking of Bambinos, we have just received a wire from Mr. and Mrs. Gary Luttrell and learn that Dr. Stork left a little girl with them on Tuesday morning in Atlanta Of course, finding myself in the possession of a little niece this morning is just too happy a message—not to celebrate in some way. So, across the miles we send greetings, sincere, until we can arrive and extend them personally.

VIOLETS

For the first Spring Violets, those shy little children of the meadows, we extend our hearts deepest gratitude to Mrs. James Crawford 'Bunny' as she is affectionately called by numerous friends, and want, at this time, to express our keen appreciation for their fragrant loveliness. which we enjoyed. until the last tiny purple petal drooped and faded. Our favorite flower — always redolent with happy memories! We thoroughly enjoyed wearing them—and the thought which prompted sending them. made the flowers all the sweeter.

Standard Oil Company Expresses Appreciation For A Former Worker

The fact that WORK and honest EFFORT with a Company is sometimes appreciated has been definitely proven this week, by the Standard Oil Company. As a token of their gratitude to Mr. Seale, a former worker whose life was tragically lost some few years ago when a train hit his truck while on duty for this nationally known Company, the State Manager Mr. D. H. Bohler, of Birmingham came to Columbiana, and inquired about the famly of their former employee. We hear he left with Mrs. Seale a handsome check, hoping she could and would spend it in a happily profitable way.

Just a bit of thoughtful kindness and a bit of business courtesy generously extended—but what a joy this gift will bring to the little family who were left berefit!

The Rev. Wilds S. DuBose Announces Interesting Services Honoring Columbiana Citizens

On the fourth Sunday in January. the Rev. Wilds S. DuBose will preach a special sermon in the Stockham Memorial Church in Woodlawn. and cordially invites all residents of Columbiana now living in the Magic City to be present. This service will be dedicated "COLUMBIANA DAY" —and a large number of former residents will answer the cordial invitation extended by this popular and brilliant Pastor.

JOAN CAROL NICHOLS

The advent of Joan Carol Nichols, beautiful five months old captivating little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nichols, furnished the signal on Friday afternoon for "time out" while the entire official force succumbed to her feminine charms. Bundled cozily in a baby blue eiderdown suit, big brown eyes looking wondering around the noisy shop, she expressed herself as being only mildly interested when we personally conducted her around the office and introduced her t oour co-workers. She was accompanied on her first inspection tour of the newspaper industry by her lovely mother, Virginia Nichols, Mrs. Irene Stone and tiny Anne Stone who had advanced about two years along the Highway of Life, and felt she was quite capable of telling our interesting visitors when it was time to go—for awaiting Lady Anne at the Drug Store, she stated, was an ice cream cone.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club was delightfully entertained at Mrs. John Curlee's apartment in the new Wooley apartment house on Thursday, January 7, with Mrs. Howard Whitaker as joint hostess.

Red roses added a touch of color to the attractive rooms. Our president Mrs. Homer Walton made a good talk and plans were made for the New Year. Our Secretary reported a total of $20.00 from the sale of articles made by Talladega blind students, the money being sent to the Talladega school. Money was also sent to the student the club is helping through school.

Mrs. Whitaker gave a very interesting paper on "This Generation Thinking Nationally." Two books: "The Long Night" and "The Doctor" were given the club library by the two hostesses.

During the social hour a delicious salad course was served by the charming hostesses. Visitors enjoying the hospitality were: Mrs. H. Cole, Mrs. Parham, Mrs. Lida Wood.

The next meeting of the club will be held with Mrs. Henry Nichols on January 21st.

Columbiana Grammar School Has Five Sets of Twins On Roll

Columbiana holds the distinction of being a bit above the average in many ways and for its size we now believe we hold the distinction of being the only school in the State for a town of this size to boast of five sets of twins who answer "present" each morning. There are among this number of future Americanos: Jane and Jean White attractive daughters of Mrs. Annabel White of Shelby who are in the 5th. Grade. Mae and Fay Pitts ,daughters of Mr. and Mrs J H Pitts, Columbiana RFD 2. Preston and Dewey Davis, sons of Mrs. T. E. Hughes who are in the 2nd Grade. May and Fay Davis, daughters of Mrs. Joe Roper in the 2nd Grade, who live near Columbiana, and Dillard and Willard McMath, grand sonsof Mrs. Kate Thornton, who are also in the 2nd Grade. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pitts also have another set of twins in their interesting family. Now, Mr. Ripley — come across — This is true — Believe It Or Not.

MAYOR HARRY GORDON

We were intrigued with glowing accounts of that colorful city—New Orleans, as related by Lord Mayor Harry Gordon upon his return last week. We were also occupied for a few minutes in trying to ferret out the Key to New Orleans which was presented by the Mayor of that City to our own progressive official. Upon close inspection we found the KEY to be a cigar lighter—and when we left our friend, he was thoroughly familiar with the "KEY" to the situation and puff-puff-puffing along in his usually progressive and energetic way, and by the way, planning for another trip along Canal Street—in the near future.

DR. E. B. COOPER

It is with regret that Columbiana citizens and dental patrons over Shelby County will bid Dr. E. B. Cooper good-bye on next Friday, when he goes to accept a lucrative contract offered him by the T. C. I. Company in the Magic City. Congratulations mingled with friendly disappointment over losing this efficient and most capable dentist, who has made good "professionally" and who numbers his friends by legions throughout the County, will accompany him along with all good wishes for future success and happiness.

DR. H. KRAUSE

Dr. H. Krause .who was visitng in Columbiana last month, while enroute to Pensacola, where he owns extensive real estate holdings had the honor of being the recepient of an autographed Photograph with good wishes from Hon. R. A. Gray, Secretary of State, State of Florida. Dr. Krause is an annual visitor to this part of Alabama and has been for the past twenty years, and is Commissioner of Deeds for the State of Florida in Illinois.

Ten Years Of Electrical Progress In Alabama

A Review by Thomas W. Martin, President, Alabama Power Company

TEN YEARS AGO the annual use of electricity per residential customer was only 391 kilowatt hours. The average for the year ending November, 1936, was 1,133 kilowatt hours per residential customer.

Ten years ago the average price per kilowatt hour for residential electric service was over 7½c. The average today is only about 3¼c, and many customers purchase much of their electricity at 1c. The decrease in average price has been 58½%. (Note: The average price declined in EACH of the 10 years.)

Ten years ago we had 4 home economists to assist customers in getting the greatest use at lowest cost from their electrical equipment. Today there are 20 of these talented women at your call.

Ten years ago electric light was just electric light. Today the principles of scientific lighting are embraced in modern lamps—I. E. S. Lamps—and you get more and better light for less money. 22 lighting specialists are at your call. Ten years ago there was none.

Ten years ago electric water heaters were in the experimental stage and expensive to use. Today they provide the accepted method of heating water in thousands of homes and the electricity for operating them comes at the lowest price.

Ten years ago a practical electric dishwasher was the inventor's dream. The clumsy, imperfect models of a decade ago have been perfected, the price is within reach of modest incomes, and the most distasteful and unsanitary of kitchen tasks is doomed to become a thing of the past.

Ten years ago a "modern" electric range cost $150; today a much better range—faster, prettier, more efficient—costs only $75.

Ten years ago 374 miles of rural electric lines served Alabama farms. Today there are 3,850 miles of such lines and 1,000 additional miles will be built during 1937. The number of miles of rural lines has increased each year of the decade—due to this company's long interest in rural electrification.

Ten years ago our taxes amounted to approximately $837,000 for the year, or about $15 per customer. For 1936 they will be about $2,600,000 or about $23 per customer. The average amount of money we receive in a year from residential customers is about $37 each. (More from some; much less from others.)

Ten years ago the huge Martin and Jordan Dams in Tallapoosa and Elmore Counties had not been completed, although construction was in progress. Construction had not yet started on Tallassee and Thurlow Dams. Gorgas No. 2 Steam Plant in Walker County was still in the blueprint stage.

Ten years ago we had already established the policy of lowering rates as often as prudent business judgment would permit; we had established and were pioneers in the electrification of rural Alabama; we were among the few statewide agencies promoting the development of Alabama's agricultural and industrial resources; we had already developed a "grid system" in Alabama and in cooperation with electrical transmission systems in neighboring states.

Many of these things became possible because imaginative minds in this great industry are constantly at the service of the public.

We look back on this record with justifiable pride, some of which you will perhaps share because these activities have been largely instrumental in making Alabama one of the foremost electrically-minded states in the nation and making simpler and easier many irksome tasks in the home.

We expect to continue these progressive policies, so that ten years from today, you and we may again look back and say, "Well done!"

Thos. Martin
President, Alabama Power Co.

SHELBY COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Doris Bender, Director

"A stitch in time saves nine." A bit of time taken in seeing that brakes are properly adjusted and that tires are in good condition may save life on the highway. A bit of precaution taken on a rainy day may prevent the development of a cold—or even a case of pneumonia—and save life from the ravages of disease. But lives may be saved in ways other than the prevention of accidents and the prevention of disease. There is such a thing as the saving of lives freem dependency, from delinquency ,and from neglect. Whether we consider the saving of happiness to the individual or the saving in usefulness and in money to the county and state an ounce of prevention is certainly worth a pound of cure. The Department of Public Welfare is particularly concerned with prevention o fthis kind.

Work with children gives many opportunities for constructive work, and at the present time Shelby County is fortunate in being one of a fewcounties in the State to have the services of a special children's worker. In cases where financial assistance is needed (and it is needed in many cases) the worker is seriously handicapped in doing constructive work; for when the bare necessities of lif eare lacking it is hard to see beyon dthem. Therefore, much of the caseworker's time must be spent in finding resources for supplying these needs, so that little time is left for helping the family in making plans for carrying on unaided. Is it economy to give assistance in amounts so low that it does not make possible a standard of living which is conductive to happiness, health, or even decency?

Good Roads Means Progress To County

With the contemplation of paving the highway from the Bibb County line to the St. Clair County line means to the people of Shelby County that we are going forward as naturally we should expect to.

This paved road will mean much to the citizens of Shelby County. It means first of all that we have a progressive and co-operative Board of Revenue. It means that Shelby County will take her place among the leading counties of Alabama.

Jefferson County concerns are joining hands with Shelby County in fostering this move ment to permanent progressive development.

This is the first of a series of Good Roads in Shelby County Editions of the Shelby County Democrat.

Alabama Power President Announces $3,700,000 Improvement Program

1,000 Miles Of New Rural Line, To Serve 4,500 Additional Customers, Included

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(Special)—Following a meeting of the Board of Directors of Alabama Power Company, Thomas W. Martin, president, issued the following statement:

"Alabama Power Company budgets for 1937 indicate anticipated expenditures of more than $3,700,000 for additions and betterments. This construction budget of $3,700,000 could easily be increased to $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 if the threat of subsidized government competition of the TVA were removed. This threat has made it impossible for the company to raise needed capital in the open market," Mr. Martin said. "Because of this difficulty, we are being forced to trim our expenditures to the bone and spend on new construction and expansion of facilities only what is actually necessary to maintain a high efficiency of service."

It was pointed out by Mr. Martin that the Northern subsidiaries of Commonwealth and Southern had been able to make substantial savings in interest through refunding operations. "If the government competitive threat was removed we could do as well as other companies in the system and save about $1,900,000 a year in interest charges," he added. "This saving could be passed on to customers, thereby lowering electric rates materially.

"In the interest of public service, security holders and employees of the private utilities, the T. V. A. problem should be settled at an early date," Mr. Martin declared. He expressed the belief that the Southeastern power pool, which has received emphasis from President Roosevelt, could be worked out for mutual benefit. "Our company will join with other utilities in cooperating with the government in perfecting such an arrangement," Mr. Martin declared.

Of the total amount, approximately 2¼ million dollars will be spent for the extension and improvement of the distribution systems of the Company throughout the State. Included in this item are 1,000 miles of new rural line, to serve approximately 4,500 additional customers. It is estimated that 6,650 new rural customers will be added to existing and new lines during 1937. It is expected that the upward trend in the use of electric energy so evident in 1936 will continue. In order to assure satisfactory service to all present and prospective customers of the Company, it is necessary continually to improve and enlarge the system to take care of demands for electric service.

During 1937, the Company estimates that there will be added to its lines and placed in operation 4,350 electric ranges, 3,000 electric water heaters, 12,000 electric refrigerators and 150 air-conditoning systems.

The Company expects to spend approximately $70,000 during 1937 to make additions and extensions to its street-lighting systems, to meet the requests of municipalities for additional service under the new promotional street lighting rates.

Although no new generating plants are proposed for 1937, a number of important improvements will be made to facilities throughout the system in line with the Company's policy of meeting the power needs of its customers and being prepared at all times to render adequate and continuous service.

Alabama men and women will be employed almost exclusively in the program of the Company. Local electricians throughout the State will find employment in wiring homes and places of business, and local dealers will sell much of the wiring material, fixtures, and appliances required by customers.

Commenting upon the greater domestic use of electricity, Mr. Martin pointed out that the average consumption per urban domestic customer of Alabama Power Company during 1936 was 1149 kilowatt-hours. The average rate for urban domestic consumption for the month of December was 3.07c per kilowatt-hour. This is less than half the average rate of ten years ago and marks the progress which has been made as a result of the Company's continuous policy of selling electricity at prices which make it possible for customers to make complete use of the service, including a liberal use of the heavy appliances.

PETE JARMAN IS NAMED CHAIRMAN OF A COMMITTEE

Pete B. Jarman Jr., representative from the sixth Alabama congressional district, began his congressional career in the 75th Congress as Chairman of the Committee on Memorials. an important committee on World War Veterans, irrigation and reclamation legislation. This is a most unusual record for a new congressman to begin his work in congress with. Seldom ever is a new man named as chairman of even a minor committee The people of the sixth district will be justly proud to learn of this honor bestowed upon our representative so early in the game.

We are looking forward to more honors, which we know he will receive as he continuues his service in the national halls of legislation. We are sure that Pete will continue to serve the people of his district in a most efficient manner.

CONDEMNED MEN APPEAL TO GRAVES

MONTGOMERY—Five Alabama prisoners, all condemned to die January 29th, will go before Governor Graves and the State Pardon Board to plead for clemency.

The condemned are James Franklin and Edgar Skelton, of Tuscaloosa, white men convicted of the "torture slaying" of John Pate, rural evangelist; Joseph Crowell, of Birmingham, Negro convicted of killing Sam Philato; Will Ross, of Dallas County, Negro, convicted of killing Allen Leshore.

TUSKEGEE SINGERS TO APPEAR HERE

Sunday at three o'clock the Tuskegee Quintet will be presented in the courthouse auditorium in a program of negro music. The singers are celebrated for the interpretation of the spirituals of their race.

Up from the cotton fields and negro cabins of the southland came the spirituals. They expressed the hope faith, and joy characteristic of the negro race. The Birmingham Age-Herald, speaking editorially said of the spirituals:

"The more one hears this singing, the more he feels that all the world that has not heard it, is missing something truly great, something that will not only give it joy and uplift, and a sense of all the tragedy and all the glory of huma nexistence. but something that the world deeply needs."

The quintet will feautre such numbers as "Certainly Lord," "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," and "Wasn't That a Mighty Day?"

The singers are being presented by Fred Douglas Andrews of the County Training School and Zelia V. Stephens, supervisor of negro schools in Shelby County. Funds will be used toward the erection of a vocational educational building at the Training School. Tickets for white people are on sale at the Columbiana Drug Store.

COLUMBIANA WINS DOUBLE HEADER AT CALERA FRIDAY

In a double header at Calera gym last Friday night, Shelby High's flashy quintet swamped the Fayetteville High team by the one sided score of 31 to 9 and in the second game trounced the Fayetteville Independents 35 to 14.

Led by Frank Martin, whose steady scoring netted thirteen points in the first game and 15 in the second, Shelby's fst team completely bottled the High School attack and piled up 31 points without much effort. B. Martin scored ten points in the first game also.

Playing a more experienced team in the second game, but piling up more points, the Shelby team held the Independents to 14 points; F. Martin led again in scoring. D. Wallace scored ten points to compete with Martin.

The line-ups follow: 1st game:
Shelby, (31) F. Martin (13), B. Martin (10), D. Wallace (8); F. Wilder, Bolton.
Fayetteville High (9): Lipsey (4), Roberson, Pearson (1), A. Roberson (1), Russell (3).
Second game:
Shelby High (35): F. Martin (15), B. Martin (6), D. Wallace (10); Morris (2), Wilder (2).
Fayetteville Independents (14); Stowe, Mitchell (6), Hatchett (2), Webb, Skelton (6).

BUCK CREEK WINS THREE GAMES DURING PAST WEEK

The Buck Creek boys came through another week undefeated, by taking three games by a large score. The first game, which was played Monday at Camp Branch, gave the boys confidence throughout the entire week and enabled them to take Thompson's squad by a score of 25 to 9. Camp Branch being defeated the other two by a score of 61 to 35 on Monday and 39 to 22 on Wednesday.

All through the game, with Camp Branch last Monday night at Camp Branch. the Buck Creek squad displayed distinct superiority, especially in the first quarter. However, in the second half the Branchers gave the Creekers quite a bit of unexpected surprise and for a limited time made the prophesying of the game rather difficult and uncertain.

The name of little "Wop" Massie spelled poison to both the Branchers and the Thompson Warriors, while the rare skill displayed by Lindle Hale for the Branchers and Mooney for Thompson was not to be overlooked. Harold Fikes and Ray Thornton for Buck Creek and James McDaniel for Camp Branch also played the basket for a reasonable amount of points in the Monday night game at Camp Branch.

The Thompson Warriors could have not doubt, made a much better showing had their entire first team been in the game.

Both Buck Creek and Camp Branch would like to schedule games with other teams in the county. Anyone interested in a game with either team communicate with Virgle Creamer of Camp Branch or Ray Thornton of Siluria.

Line-ups and Summaries:

Buck Creek (61): Massie (25) and H. Fikes (10), forwards; Robinson, center; Clayton (7) and Connotoria (5), guards; Payne (2), Thornton (9), Moore (3), M. Fikes and Creamer, substitutes.

Camp Branch (35); Hale (12) and V. Creamer (3), forwards; McDaniel (5) center; Stamps and Seay (8) guards; Nash (1) and Miller substitutes.

Buck Creek (25): Moore (1) and Payne (6) forwards; Robinson (3) center; M. Fikes (7) and C. Creamer guards; Clayton, Massey (6), Thornton (2) and H. Fikes, substitutes.

Thompson High (9): Miller and Gilbert, forwards; Mooney (5), center; Pat Lee (2) and Champion guards Gilbert, Tillie and R. E. Lee (2), substitutes.

PROTECTIVE LIFE INSURANCE CO., HAS GROWN THROUGH DEPRESSION

For thirty years, in spite of wars, epidemics and depression, the march of time has brought growth and progress to Protective Life, Alabama's largest life insurance company. In many respects, the year 1936 was the greatest of them all. But even so, the Company looks forward to greater progress in 1937.

Here's the record since the depression began in 1930:

1. Protective Life has increased its insurance in force from less than seventy millions to over ninety millions—a gain of 28%.

2. Protective Life has increased its assets from approximately seven nd one-half millions to over nine nd one-half millions—an increase of 26%.

3. Protective Life has increased its reserves from approximately five and one-half millions to approximately seven and one-half millions—an increase of over 30%.

During this period Protective Life ade significant advances in such directions as expansion of territory he organization of a group, health nd accident department; a savings and loan insurance department; a new liberal agents contract; and the announcement of several new protection and investment contracts.

There are several opporunities for ambitious men. 1937 will see many men come into the life insurance business as representatives of Protective Life. The Company offers modern contracts and business-getting agency services. Every Protective Life agent is given continous training under experienced men.

Protective Life is known as a low cost company. It writes both participating and guaranteed low premium, low cost non-participating insurance.

During the years of the depression Protective Life met promptly and at par every obligation and in addition made new investments each year.

The reserves set aside for its policyholders are in excess of the legal reserve requirement. They are further strengthened by Protective Lifes unusually large capital, surplus and contingency reserves.

It has always been accorded the highest ratings by Best's Life Insurance Reports ,the recognized authority for the rating of insurance companies.

Protective Life was one of eight important companies of the United States selected by the United States Steel Corporation to carry the group life insurance on the employees of the Corporation and its subsidiaries —said to be the largest group life insurance contract ever written.

At any time during the depression, even at the depreciated values of bonds and real estate, Protective Life had more than ample surplus above the legal reserve for the protection of its policyholders.

Sam Agee And His Poetry

BY MILTON BIRD

"Love," Upshaw Davis said to me one day, "is all right I reckon if a guy is able t' keep it in its place. But when y' mix it up with a boy that's too young, or a fellow who tries t' write verses; well, it jest sort o' gits out o' place, an' if ht' guy who's flirting with it ain't mighty careful he's liable t' spend th' rest of 'is life picking up th' pieces of all them things him an' 'is gal piled up in front o' love's door."

We were sitting on the main street in Jungle Hollow, on two wooden boxes, watching the town grocers and clerks and idlers pass the time. At the far end of the street, coming in a zig-zag fashion, with his long arms dangling at his side, we could see Sam Agee. He was gloriously drunk and in his right hand he held a pint bottle which he raised to his lips ever so often without changing his pace.

"Yep," Upshaw continued, watching Agee out of the corner of his eye, "y' got t' be careful with love, It's worse than th' war wus, or as band anyhow, when it hits y' jest right."

Sam Agee, mumbling to himself, passed on down the dusty street.

"Is that what hit Sam?" I asked.

Upshaw filled his mouth full of home grown tobacco, crossed one bony leg over the other, and answered: "That's whut it wus."

Then he laughed, a slow, hollow laugh that lingered in the hot Au gust air. "Don't many folks know 'bout it," he said. "I reckon Sam's sort o' shamed o' it, an' th' gal who swapped 'is heart off fer another gizzard whut wus more t' 'er likin, is married now an' mightn't like fer 'er chillun t' know how close htey come t' calling Sam papa."

He settled himself comfortably and told me the story, word for word, of Sam Agee's plight.:

"It all took place twenty years ago this past winter, Ol' man Jim Scroggins who wus buried three years ago 'cause th' fever wouldn't let go of 'is stomach, wus at that time th' head man o' th' whole Hollow. Ol' Jim didn't make Whiskey but he furnished sugar fer eve'ybody else an' made scads o' money doing it. He had more money than th' bank at Holbache, an' a gal who wus so pretty th' neighbors didnt seem t' mind that she wus a little off on th' suzject o' writing poems.

"Well ,th' old man wus crazy 'bout 'is gal. He sent 'er t' school in Holbache where she learned a lot 'bout writing 'er rhymes an' forgot a lot 'bout th' people o' th' Hollow in general an' er' papa in particular.

"All this wus starting t' worry ol' Jim, so he says t' me one day something 'bout bringing 'er home an' getting some guy t' come down t' th' Hollow an' learn 'er first hand. I wus just twenty then, but had long since learned t' figger with m' head, an', 'fore th' ol' man had finished 'is little speech, I'ed made up m' mind whut t' do 'bout th' whole thing.

"I told 'im t' bring 'er home by all means, an' added, when I seen he wus gonna listen t' my reckoning, that I would help 'im find some guy who'ed come down t' th' Hollow an' learn 'is gal t' scribble real first class verses.

"Next day I went t' Birmingham an' called 'round at one o' them work offices t' see if they might he'p m' find some guy who'ed want t' make some easy money pushing a pencil with th' best looking gal in th' whole county. Th' man who wus running th' place looked at m' like he figgered th' sheriff an' some men frum th' crazy house might be coming next, and then asked m' gentlelike t' have a chair. Then he started digging in 'is desk drawer, like a dog does who's treed a field rat in a hole, an' a throwing cards an' papers all over th' place.

"I twusn't long though till he called up some fellow on th' phone, an' in no time at all he had another visitor who looked more like the pictures o' Abe Lincoln th' history books carry than any o' th' pictures in any o' th' two books look like each other.

"He told me th' guy's name wus Sam Agee, an' him that mine wus Upshaw Davis, an' that if we could manage t' rake up 'bout ten dollars t' go in 'is desk drawer, he'ed see that we done business on th' spot. I counted out ten one-dollar bills, give 'em t' th' man behind th' desk, an' took th' one who looked like Abe Lincoln outside t' tell 'im m' business.

"T' start with he balked harder than any mule that ever pulled a syrip mill. He'ed jest been left at th' altar by some gal frum Bessemer an' by th' time th' dandelions had started t' wilt in 'im arms, he found out that love ain't always as apt t' find th' church as th' guy is who baited th trap an' hired th' preacher. He had a heap t' say 'bout women an' their faults, an' where they all ought t' be an' what he would o' done with 'em if he had made th' world, an' ended up by making me promise not t' have anything but strict business mixed up in th' plan.

"Then he showed m' some of 'is stuff an' it looked like th' real thing. It wus all 'bout some young fellow who'd cut up 'his heart instead of 'is pa's hog, an' with enough fancy trimmings throwed in t' boot t' sweeten th' tongues o' eve'y couple in America.

"But wait," he said then, taking 'is verses back an' putting 'em in 'is inside pocket, "I got t' have a manager so's th' thing will look on th' up an' up.'

"I figgered that wus all right so we decided on a manager an' a three way split on th' profits. Th' plan wus t' collect fifteen hundred dollars fer fifty rhymes Sam an' Jim's gal wus t' write, signed by 'em jointly, an' offered t' th' public by Jim an' whatever printing house jim hisself decided on.

"That wus in November. In January Sam an' 'is manager hit th' Hollow, dressed in bright colored suits an' loud ties, an' looking fer th' world like two stray peacocks who'd lost th' way t' paradise an' had stopped in t' find out frum somebody. I had already made eve'ything all right with ol' Jim, so I took 'em right up t' 'is house an' set 'em down in th' parlor.

"It wusn't long till Jim an' 'is gal come in. I never seen Jane looking prettier. She looked like a rose with th' best parts of a daisy an' a lilac an' a dandelion throwed in fer good measure. I made 'em known t' m' friends frum th' city, an' th' way Jane looked at Sam an' the manner in which Sam handed th' look back t' 'er wus something t' see. They must o' looked at th' other like that fer five minutes 'fore Jim broke in on 'em by saying: 'I hope y' two youngsters find each other 'greeable an' hit off y' work in grand style.

"January passed, an' February come an' went, an' with March jest six days away frum April, we wus still shy about fifteen rhymes. I wus gitting worried. I could recollect whut Sam had said in Birmingham 'bout leaving love out o' th' plan, but nearly three months seemed t' me a mighty long time fer it t' take a guy t' write fifty verses, 'specially since he wus doing it with a member o' the very sex he wus hating. An' I didn't much like th' way Sam wus looking out of 'is eyes either. I had seen that look one before an' now there wus a Mrs. Davis 'cause o' it.

"But Jim an' Sam's manager wusn't worried a bit, so I figgered I may be jest crossing m' bridge 'fore I got t' it an' forgot th' whole thing till one evening 'bout dark two weeks later.

"Me an' Jim an' Sam's manager wus sitting in Jim's yard talking. Th' subject wus th' verses an' Jim wus crowing mightily 'bout how happy 'is gal wus since th' coming o' Sam. Th' manager added something then 'bout how it wus helping 'em both, an' I agreed though it skeered me t' do it. Then Sam took out a book o' poems by a fellow named Scott who lived a long time ago in some far off place an' started t' read out loud. When we wus 'bout half done 'is gal come up out o' the woods, where her an' Sam had gone that morning t' write a rhyme 'bout muddy creek, an', between hard sobs that shook 'er breast mightily, she said:

"Papa, I-I reckon we'll have t' f-forget 'bout th' p-poetry. M-Mr. Agee wanted m' t' m-marry 'im, an' 'cause I w-wouldn't do it h-he tore all th' verses up an' s-said he never e-expected t' write anymore.'

Upshaw spit on the ground and wiped it out with his heavy shoe.

"But", I asked him, "what happened to Jane, and her poetry.?"

"Shucks,' he responded quickly, "she got married pretty soon an' had no time t' think o' rhymes an' th' like. An' Sam, he's been drunk ever since, mumbling 'bout rhymes an' women an' what they'll do t' a guy."

Breeding dairy cows to purebred bulls is one of the cheapest and surest means o fincreasing production and lowering costs per gallon of milk in our future herds.

GRANDMOTHER SAID

"SOMEDAY someone will invent a wonderful kitchen-range —it will be beautiful, it will be cool, it will be clean, it will save time, it will cook better—and it will be economical."

"HOW PERFECTLY THRILLING"
—said the little Girl.

SOMEDAY IS HERE!

TODAY the "little girl" is the proud owner of an ELECTRIC RANGE. She enjoys "Miracle" electric cookery . . . meal-getting is so simple and easy for her that it is really a pleasure. Unlike grandmother, who spent tedious hours over an old-fashioned stove—watching, waiting and basting—she places a complete meal, including meat, vegetables and dessert, in the big automatic oven of her electric range and then forgets it until meal time.

Her range is so clean that her cooking utensils are as bright and shiny as the day she bought them. She never ceases to marvel at the speed with which electricity cooks. She tells her friends how low her electric bill is. HOW HER HUSBAND PRAISES HER WELL-COOKED PALATABLE FOODS! She is teaching her little girl to want an electric range when she grows up!

Electric Ranges of excellent quality are available at terms as low as $2.50 DOWN and a small amount monthly

Cultivate Saving Habit

America is emerging from the worst depression in its history. During the past six years millions of Americans have been brought to realize how careless and extravagant the ywere n prosperous times preceding the depression. They have no doubt noticed that those who did not spend all of their earnings has surplus enough to weather the depression without having to go on relief and suffe rthe hardships that were experienced by millions of Americans.

This is a good time for thos ewho can afford it to cultivate the saving habit. A great many of us could have afforded it back in the 20's and a vast majority failed to save.

Of course, the best time to form the saving habit is when one is young and has many working days ahead. Probably no young man wants to work for some person or concern all his life. The best plan for securing independence and security against joblessness is to start the saving habit.

Savings are capital in a sense The young man or woman with a savings account, which is now guaranteed has an opportunity to become an employer instead of an employee.

How Long, Oh Lord?

The vast complexity of the civilization in which we live is being given perhaps its most vivid demonstration by the auto strike. And never was there a more convincing example of the futility of attempting to treat in the narrow scope of state lines with the problems which that complexity creates.

With flashing speed a cause here brings an effect way over there. A glass sortage in Toleda or Pittsburg means a shutdown in a Flint factory or a Los Angeles assembly plant. The snow removal plans of the nation's meropolis are imperilled by the failure to arrive of auto trucks on which the mobility of millions may depend.

A lumber company in Memphis lays off workers because plants in other states ca nno longer absorb the product of the Southern mills, and steel furnaces in Youngstown are dropped from the active list as the paralysis spreads through the body of steel's No. One customer.

And out on a desert road somewhere a little garageman feels his small busness slipping because of the trouble hundreds of miles back East.

The ramifications when a basic industry is stricken are too many for any human imagination to encompass. But true it is that the material welfare of every person in the nation is directly involved.

And so the questions again arise:

How long will the public stand for the recurrence of such costly warfare? The public which in a political democracy is the source of all power but which in an economic conflict always occupies the unenviable and dangerous position of innocent bystander. When will that political power be used to bring about a just and permanent prevention of such wasteful and misery breeding business?

———:o:———

Facts are not always the easiest things in the world to face.

Communities prosper through unselfish service of citizens.

Mankind is divided into two classes, the getters and the givers.

As 1937 gets under way let's make us our minds tha twe will do the same.

Young men seldom realize the advantage of having time running with them.

"Flying as Simple as Driving" says a headline. Maybe so, bue we're perfectly willing to stick to our driving.

Poor New Year's Resolutions. How soon they are forgotten. Only a few days have passed since January 1st but the resolutions are long dead.

Nebraska Plan May Help John Taxpayer

During the last presidential campaign there was a lot o ftalk about hight taxes. The majority of the talkers, to say nothing of their innocent listeners, assumed that high taxes are mostly the federal government's fault.

Which leads us, in a roundabout way, to remark that Nebraska has at last got into action with its new one chamber legislature.

The connection between these two topics is closer than you might think. For the tax burden that rides the neck of the average citizen is something he can blame very largely on his state legislature rather than on the national Congress; and Nebraska is simply trying to find a way to make the state legislature a more efficient, orderly, and representative body.

If we want lower taxes, we must aim at the state capitol.

It is the state government that levies real property taxes. It is the state that helps boost the gasoline taxes, the state that levies sales taxes, the state that taxes personal property.

On top of that, the fact that most state governments have had to go to Uncle Sam for help, to the tune of some billions of dollars, in the last few years has helped to send federal expenses soaring.

So if you can make your state government more efficient, you take the biggest single step toward a lighter tax burden.

But how close is the ordinary mortal to his state legislature? Ha can name the governor of his state —but can he name as many as 10 of his state legislators?

I fhe can name the representative from his own district without stopping to reflect, he is a wonder. His legislature might almost as well be functioning on another planet.

He knows little or nothing about it. When he votes on it, he votes in a vacuum. The endless political jockeying and whipsawing in which it indulges—its subservience to lobbyists, its filibusters, its petty chicanceries, the way it tosses hot legislation back and forth between the two chambers—these things go on out of his reach, to all intentsand purposes.

The Nebraska experiment is an attempt to put the whole business back within the voter's reach and understanding.

To begin with, it offers a single chamber which cannot use the old hidden-ball trick by which bills get lost between the two chambers, with no one to take the blame. Responsibility is definitely centered.

Beyond that, the body is small and compact enough that he can keep informed about who is doing what, and why, without devoting his life to abstruse research When he goes to the polls, he can know what he is doing; between polling times, he can know what his legislator is doing.

Now this Nebraska experiment may be far from perfect. It ma turn out to be much less valuable than its sponsors hope. But the point is that it is an honest for reaching effort to do something about an extremely important problem. For that reason it is worth careful study.

Another Challenge

The finding of the body of little body of Charles Mattson near his home at Everett, Wash.,, shocks America as at no time since the Lindbergh tragedy.

Like the Lindbergh case here was wanton slaughter of an innocent, unexplained by even the sordid motive of gain.

The Lindbergh case was a challange. America met the challenge the only way it could. Congress forgot about state lines, and passed the Lindbergh law The G-men set to work co-operating with local authorities to stamp out this most revolting of crimes. They all but succeeded. Since then there have been 75 kidnappings, an devery case has been solved except this Mattson case. A total of 173 kidnappers have been caught, of whom four have gone to their legal deaths, two were lynched and three ended thei rlives as suicides. The rest are serving a total of 2244 years in prison.

For a time it seemed America had crushed kidnapping. In 1936 however, there were 14 cases, capped by the worst one since 1932.

This was not an interstate crime. Both the kidnapping and murder occurred inside the State of Washington. Notwithstanding, America will cheer the strong, quick arm of Uncle Sam no matter where it reaches to clutch the doers of this awful deed.

MRS. SIMON BLACKERBY ENTERTAINED

Mrs. Simon Blackerby was the recipitent of a lovely miscellaneous shower Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Flora Spearman.

The bride, Mrs Spearman, and Mrs J F Helms received the guests in the hallway, then Miss Ida Edwards led them to the bride's book where the guests registered

Mrs. C. T. Weldon and Mrs. H. T. Dickens served coffee, small sandwiches and nuts and mints in the dining room.

The colonades from the reception hall into the living room were decorated with white and yellow festoons.

The brides book carried out the white and yellow color scheme, and a vase of Primulinum Jasmine was set in a white and yellow center piece

The dining table bore a vase of Narcissus and Jasmine and white tapers burned at each end.

All the gifts were displayed in a room near the reception hall.

When she received the bride wore a dress of sheer brown wool with matching accessories.

Among the out of town guests were: Mrs. Era Pitts of Columbiana Mrs. E. G. Breedlove, Gants Quarry, and Mrs. Greer Smith of Sylacauga.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackerby were married at the Baptist Parsonage, December 24, with Rev. B. F. Hixon officiating.

The bride and groom are at home at Four Mile.

MRS. LENA HINTON DIES AT HOME IN BROWN STATION

Funeral services for Mrs. Lena Hinton, who passed away at her home in Brown Station after a lengthy illness were held in Dargin Baptist Church Thursday, December 24th by the Rev. L. O. Fitts, burial following in the adjoining cemetery.

Mrs Hinton had been a member of Dargin Baptist Church since early childhood. A devoted wife and mother and bore her long suffering as only a Christian could.

Besides her husband, E. B. Hinton, she is survived by two sons, Hobert and Royce two daughters, Anno Sue and Dorothy Nell, Father and Step-Mother, Mr. and Mrs. W S. Stonecypher, two brothers Walter and Otis Stonecypher of Dargin, two sisters, Mrs. R. B. Busby and Mrs Walter Robertson of Bessemer. The House of Quality--Service--Value

The minute you step aboard, you have a feeling that this is home. There's something of "home" in the cheerful atmosphere—in the roomy, inviting seats—the softly shaded lights.

There's something of "home" in the tempting way the food is prepared—the quiet, courteous way it is served.

There's something of "home" in the way the covers are turned back and the pillows plumped up . . . and even in the porter's quiet query, "What time do you want to be called?"

But it's "like home" in many more ways than these: Because, just as in your own home, we must see that the coal bin is full, the worn furniture replaced. We must employ help, shop for food, buy new dishes—and pay taxes. Yes, about 7% of our revenues goes for taxes to help support your government, your cities, your schools, your highways.

So you see, we're just home-folks like you...sharing your problems and pleasures, contributing to your community. We hope you will think of us that way.

The New Year Baby For 1937

Vieing for honors to represent the Democrat for 1937 are several newly arrived citizens. Last week as far as our reports in the office were concerned, a young gentleman by the name of Yeager Howell Horn, stood in the front ranks from "Blessed Event" Land—this week, however, we are in receipt of an announcement from Vincent, Alabama, and a lovely little lady by the name of Sarah Ruth Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Harris of Vincent, was born on January 3, 1937. But, as we go to press we get another announcement stating that Dorothy May Isbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lige Castleberry Isbell of Vandiver, was born on January 1st, 1937. So, unless Dr. Stork has preceeded his visit to this home, we happily present Little Miss Dorothy May Isbell—the Democrat representative from Babyland for 1937—and when she makes her initial appearance in Columbiana, we hope to have the pleasure of personally extending our greetings and all good wishes for her future happiness.

Charles Swann Jr., of Pell City, Master of Ceremonies and first little DEMOCRAT mascot will no doubt have a special message for this young lady. Watch for it.

INAUGURATIONS PAST AND PRESENT

Thirty four times the martial tread of thousands of natives and visitors to the Nation's Capitol have marked the inaugural ceremonies incident to the President's oath of office. On Wednesday, January 20th Franklin Delano Roosevelt in a most impressive ceremony swore to defend the constitution, etc., of these United States.

A few historical facts as a matter of interesting comparison might not be amiss to chronicle here, for, it is a long trek back thru the years since George Washington devised the inaugural program; about a century and a half to be exact, but the form remains the same with elaborate additions to suit the trend of the times.

Washington was inaugurated in New York in 1789 for his first term and travelled from Mt. Vernon by horseback. He crossed streams on eight ored barges. Congress was late in arriving and the inauguration was not held until April 30. Chancellor Livingston administered the oath of office. "I swear it, so help me God," responded Washington.

For Washington's second term he was inaugurated in Philadelphia in 1793.

John Adams was inaugurated for his one term in Philadelphia. Then the District of Columbia was created, the capitol named for Washington, and Thomas Jefferson elected. On inauguration day Jefferson walked from his boarding house to the capitol. Adams, embittered had already left the City.

President Monroe was the first to take the oath of office out of doors. One historian states American eagles flew over the dome of the capitol while Monroe was lifting his hand for the oath.

John Quincy Adams was not inaugurated on March 4, because of the electon contest between himself and Jackson.

Van Buren came next in line with 20,000 people witnessing the ceremony.

The first record of citizen soldiery taking part in an inauguration was that of William Henry Harrison, when the inaugural procession took the form of a pageant.

President Polk was inaugurated in an out door ceremony during a whistling Spring blizzard.

President Taylor was accorded military honors.

Lincoln's inauguration was notable in many respects. The country was trembling on the verge of War between the States. His friends feared for his safety, and soldiers were stationed atop all the buildings on Pennsylvania Avenue. Stephen A. Douglas stood close by holding Lincoln's hat.

Grant came to office with a great military parade, but Johnson, the outgoing president, refused to ride with him.

Next in order were Presidents Hayes, Cleveland, McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson and yesterday—January 20—Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Actually 27 men have gone thru the elaborate ceremonies of 37 inaugurations. Four men never went thru the inaugural ceremonies: Tyler Fillmore, Johnson and Arthur, who were elevated to the office on account of deaths of their chiefs. Mr. Roosevelt is the 11th President to be elected to a second term. The others were: Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Lincoln, Grant Cleveland McKinley and Wilson.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS

The home of the Rev. and Mrs. T. K. Roberts the past week end has harbored within its hospitable portals distinguished guests, whom Columbiana citizens were privileged to meet The Rev. A. C. Bowen, former Missionary to China, now residing in Dothan, Alabama, and his sister Mrs Carmichael, who is also the mother of Attorney General Carmichael.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts entertained with a lovely six o'clock dinner on Saturday night and the invited guests included the Stewards of the Methodist Church and their wives. The Rev. Bowen preached in Shelby on Sunday morning, while Rev. Roberts filled the puipit in the Columbiana Methodist for the pastor, Rev. Hope.

MRS. T. H. KIRBY

Friends of Mrs. T. H. Kirby, former resident of Columbiana, were delighted to note in the Birmingham News that an orchid had been awarded her for her outstanding work in the cultural development of Lanette, Alabama, where she is now residing. Mrs. Kirby, the article states is interested in cultural development for her family and community, being herself a lover of music and art, finding pleasure in flowers and great joy in her privileges as wife and mother. She is a champion of good literature not only for her own enjoyment, but in her club work and community contacts does much to bring others to a keener appreciation of the great literary productions.

MISS MARY PETERS HONORED

At a banquet held at the Tutwiler Hotel on Saturday night, Miss Mary Peters was initiated into the Gamma Chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society which is a woman's national honor fraternity. Other members of this fraternity from Shelby County are Mrs. Homer Walton, Columbiana, Mrs. Charlotte Peterson, Misses Lela Wade Rice, Rizpah Dudlev. Agnes Tutwiler, Sadie Weir from Montevallo. Mrs. Mary B. Napier of Montevallo is an Honorary Member.

RECENT BRIDES HONORED AT MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Entertaining at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. LaFayette Armstrong (Agnes Wingard) and Mrs. G. R. McNeill (Vivian Turner) Mrs. I. H. Curlee Mrs. L. B. Riddle and Mrs. J. H. Crawford were hostesses on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Curlee.

The rooms were decorated with pink and white carnations and candles. Miss Mary Woolley greeted the guests at the door.

The hostesses and honorees were assisted in the receiving line by Mrs. J. B. Turner, mother of Mrs. McNeill Misses Idell and Odell Turner and Mrs. A. D Harris, Mrs Will Finley and Mrs Andy Crumpton. Miss Ethel Walton presided over the brides book. Mrs. Homer Walton and Miss Elizabeth Bell greeted the guests in the dining room, where a color scheme of pink and white was carried out. The table was covered with a lace cloth over pink and was centered with a bowl of pink carnations. Pink candles burned in silver candlesticks at either end. At one end of the table was placed the coffee service over which Miss Mildred Maroney presided and opposite was the tea service presided over by Mrs. E. B. Turner. Others assisting in serving were Misses Vivian Nix, Evie Woodham, Hermoine Woolley and Mrs. W. T. Taylor. Those assisting the hostesses in displaying the lovely gifts were Mrs. Dixie Shealey, Misses Ella Walton, Dolly Jones and Mrs. J. C. Hartley. Mrs. Loren Carter and Miss Florence McGiboney, Billie Riddle, Wales Wallace Jr., and L. B Riddle, Jr., furnished the music. Around 100 guests called during the evening, several of wrom were out of town.

ALICE ROBERTS

Alice Roberts, talented daughter of Mrs. Edna Roberts, is enrolled at Howard College for the second semester where she is taking a post graduate course. Miss Robert's brilliant work in Alabama College was outstanding in 1934, and since that time she has been one of the most efficient teachers on the Shelby County educational roll. The many wishes for continued success from her many friends follow her to the Magic City, where for the next few months she will make her home.

The many friends of Gordon Allen popular salesman for Estes Lumber Company, will regret to learn of the passing of his mother on Wednesday January 20, 1937 at his home in Birmingham.

BUD NORWOOD

Bud Norwood has been named as Chairman fo rthe Roosevelt Ball to be given in the Masonic Hall on January 30th. The music for the occasion will be furnished by the popular Danche orchestra, the Rhythm Ristocrats. Alarge coterie of dancers are expected to attend this patriotic occasion, and many novelty numbers will be rendered on the musical program offered

HARRY MIMS ROBERTS

We were happily surprised with a visit from Little Harry Mims Roberts, age 5 months, on Wednesday morning, who with his pretty mater Fay Benton Roberts of Birmingham, is visiting Mrs. Fay Miles Benton in Columbiana. This young gentleman was rakishly attired in a flesh colored sweater sut, with a tam set at just the right angle to enhance his masculine charms. Non-challant as could be, he took in the office from the "HEAD" man on down—and with a happy smile o fapproval, of the entire works, he completey won us over! A peacherino—and we understand that his Dad—Mims Roberts, has already purchased a fly rod to start him on his fishing career.

UP AND DOWN MAIN

The many friends of little Peggy Jean Johnson, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Turner, will regret to learn of her serious illness in Birmingham.

Playmates and friends of Oliver Head are rejoicing over his return from the hospital in Bessemer this week. Oliver is at home rapidly recuperating and will soon be able to rejoin his classmates at the Grammar School.

Mr. Jesse Weldon spent last week in Birmingham with his Uncle, Mr. Sam Cook.

Mrs W. M. Veasey and daughter, Earnestine, of Monroeville, were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Niven.

Miss Sallie Smoke spent Sunday in Sheffield with friends.

Miss Mary Evelyn Ellls has returned to her home in Talladeka after several months work here.

Mrs. Gray Goodwin and Mrs. Elmer McGiboney spent Wednesday and Thursday in Birmingham, the guests of their sister, Mrs. Horace Holmes. Mrs. Holmes returned with them.

INGERSOLL RAND HAS BEEN SERVING THE SOUTH FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

For over twenty-five years the well known firm of Ingersoll Rand has been serving the people not only of this section but the entire country.

They stand ready and willing to co-operate at all times with Shelby County in any project or movement that will be of benefit to our county and they are unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

Featuring a complete line of Ingersoll Rand Air Compressors, Rock Drills, Jack Bits, Water Pumps and other items and on every road or construction job you will see some of Ingersoll Rand's equipment on the job.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having such a progressive firm as ngersoll Rand to serve them.

THE GALION IRON WORKS HAVE BEEN IN BUSINESS FOR 17 YEARS

The Galion Iron Works and Manufacturing Company of Galion, Ohio with Warehouses and Offices in Birmingham, have been in business seventeen years. During these years they have made hosts of friends throughout Shelby County by their fair and square dealings.

They manufacture Road Rollers, Road Graders, Motor Graders, both hand and hydraulic operated.

There are two hydraulic operated motor graders at work now in Shelby County and have been doing good work for some time.

Mr. Ed J. Saxton, district manager of the Galion Iron Works and Manufacturng Company is always willing to co-operate in any project that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County and they are unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

BUCK CREEK COTTON MILLS ARE BOASTERS OF SHELBY COUNTY

An industry like the Buck Creek Cotton Mill means much to any section and this is especially true in the case of the Buck Creek Cotton Mills.

Organized in 1905 they have operated continously since then furnishing steady employment to scores of local people. Their manufactured products are shipped all over the country.

Judge J. T. Stokely, the general manager stands ready an dwilling at all times to cooperate with Shelby County in any project or movement that will help to develop our County and section.

There are few counties that can boast of an industry like the Buck Creek Cotton Mills and this writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having them located in Shelby County.

RED CROSS ASKING AID OF CITIZENS IN HELP TO REFUGEES

Never in the history of the United States has there been a more universal appeal for humanity than the pleas you have been listening to over your radio sets from Louisville, Kentucky in the heart of the Flood District.

The Red Cross Director of Shelby County, Mis Myrtle Brooke of Montevallo, and Mayor Harry Gordon of Columbiana, are the official representatives of this organization, and send an urgent call to citizens of Shelby County for clothes, quilts, comforts, food and cash donations. All contributions must be sent to the Department of Public Welfare in Columbiana, and from this point, will be shipped to the Flood area by bus or train free of transportation charges.

This is URGENT, The co-operation and material response from every citizen in the County is necessary to fill the quota of supplies assigned to Shelby County.

WORKS PROGRESS ADMINISTRATION

MONTGOMERY, January 28.—Persons an dfirms in need of help today were urged by A. P. Morgan, Jr., acting state administrator, to make full use of the Works Progress Administration reservoir of the unemployed, which includes labor of various skills.

While only a few farm families, and relatively few highly skilled persons remain on the rolls, a considerable quantity of common labor and em ployes of the "white collar" group are readly available, he aid.

The method of obtaining labor from the Works Progress Administration is through use of the facilities of the State and National Reemployment Offces, where not only relief labor, but unemployed persons who have never been on relief, are registered and awaiting a call to work. The Reemployment offices are units of the U. S. Department of Labor.

Any qualified employee requisitioned through the Reemployment office who does not accept the job offered him will be immediately discharged by the WPA if the wages offered are in line with those paid in that county for the type of work, Mr. Morgan said.

The Reemployment Services have representatives in almost all of the counties and a complete record of each unemployed person is available for the prospective employer. Assignment of the unemployed is a responsibility of the Reemployment Service.

Farmers probably will have to pay somewhat higher prices for fertilizers this year than last, reports the Bureau of Agricultural Economics

SHELBY COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Doris Bender, Director

It has often occurred to us that the spirit of helpfulness and generosity which is prevalent at Christmas time might well be carried over to every day living There is certainly much need of such a spirit every day for discouragement, unhappiness, and insecurity are with us not only at Christmas but every day.

Sometimes we wonder if our rather spasmodic giving does not increase the very insecurity which we are trying to decrease. We do not know, but we wonder! And now that Christmas of 1936 is past and January—the month of resolutions—is with us for a few days yet it might be well to give thought to this matter.

There is no doubt but that the gifts brought by generous groups gave a thrill to those who received as well as to those who gave. But who was thrilled the more? This question involves another question. Do we give for selfish or for unselfish pleasure? It seems to us that these are questions which each person must answer for himself, or herself, and we trust that the answers may receive their due consideration.

We are sure that you will remember tha tthere are many instances of dire distress in our county. In some cases the need cannot wait until another Christmas.

PRUNE AND SPRAY

A. A. Lauderdale, County Agent

An abundance of home grown fruit is a necessary part of every good farming program, and to have this supply of fruit requires good healthy trees. Proper pruning and then spraying t odestroy disease and insects must be done at the right time.

Peach trees require heavy pruning each year to stimulate new growth and to maintain an open-top, low spreading tree.

Pears and apples should be pruned to keep limbs fro mrubbing or crowding.

After the trees are pruned, a winter or dormant spray should be applied; this spray should be a concentrated lime sulphur or oil emulsion spray The directions given by the manufacturer of the spray used should be followed carefully.

If I can be of help to you in pruning, spraying and fertilizing your orchard, call on me.

SHELBY COUNTY IS SHIPPING CENTER

Shelby County is a distributing center for a large territory, rich in agricultural products, coal, lime and manufactured products and amply able to create a large supply of products of many varieties. The income as well as the out go is considerably increased by the rural district where farming and lumber operations are carried on an extensive scale. Much produce originates here which finds its way into the other center of business activity.

With the paving of Shelby County highway from the Bibb County line to the St. Clair County line will mean much to Shelby County. Nothing proclaims the progressiveness of any community as does its highways and Shelby County is to be congratulated on the proposed paving of this highway.

HIGH PRODUCING HERD GOT BALANCED RATION

AUBURN—Alabama's highest producing dairy herd in December was fed "a grain mixture of 200 pounds of ground corn, 200 pounds of ground oats, 200 pounds of cottonseed meal, 200 pounds of Brewers grains, 100 pounds of ground velvet beans, 100 pounds of soybean meal, and 400 pounds of 20 per cent commercial dairy feed." In addition it was fed silage and lespedza hay for roughage

The herd belongs to R B. Kent of Birmingham. It average 568 pounds of milk and 28.3 pounds of butterfat per cow for the month and had 20 quality cows that produced over 800 pounds of milk and 40 pounds of butterfat each during the month.

VINCENT BETTER HOMES CLUB MET ON JANUARY 21

The Vincent Better Homes Club held ts regular meeting January 21st at the home of Mrs. J. W .Wade, the meeting was opened by singing song "Alabama," Eleven members and three visitors were present. The visitors were Miss Haselet of Atlanta, Ga, Mrs Beal of Georgia and Miss Falkner of Columbiana. Resolution by all present. After old and new business, meeting was turned over to Miss Nolen. She first had a very interesting contest. Then a beautiful song "Open Country," was sung She gave helpful hints on the dairy cow, also an interesting story of the Indians. After this the meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. Frank Bates on February 18th. We were served delicious ice cream and cakes, a drink also and parch peanuts Everyone seemed t oenjoy it very much.

THE COLUMBIANA BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. J. W. Jones, Pastor

Dr Fred B. Pearson will preach at the Baptist Church next Sunday. January 31st at 11:00 A. M. The pastor will preach at 7:00 P M.

Read the following and attend services with a view of worshipping.

"BUT YOU DON'T"

Tell me where you worship God on Sunday, and I will tell you the kind of a Christian you are.

You can worship God in your home Sunday. But you don't.

You can worship God in the woods and in the fields. But you don't.

You can worship God on the lakes and on the rivers. But you don't.

You can worship God on the road in the automobile or in the buggy. But you don't.

You can worship God in a different church each Sunday morning. But you don't.

You can worship God in your lodge or club and neglect your church. But you don't.

You can worship God by sending the children to Sunday School and staying at home. But you don't.

You can worship God by going to church and taking the children with you. But do you?

"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord. Ps. 122:1.

Are you glad to have an invitation to attend church next Sunday?

POWELL BLAIR MADE NEW MANAGER OF ADVERTISING

The Democrat announces that Powell W. Blair, who has been with this organization for the past two years, was made Advertising Manager on January 1st, 1937, and will call on the merchants and business firms of the County each week for advertising material and all kinds of Job Printing.

Mr. Blair is universally popular with our patrons and is an outstanding young business man, thoroughly equipped in every way to meet the requirements of this important position.

The official staff of the Democrat extends to our many friends and customers sincere thanks for their splen did co-operation in the past, and we are happily looking forward toward 1937 as the banner year for the Shelby County Democrat.

We are here to serve you and your community interests. Call us, Phone No. 2751.

DEMONSTRATION CLUB ACTIVITIES

The Helena 4-H Club meeting was held on Monday, January 18th at the school building with 52 present. The demonstration was given with the assistance of the club leader who gave the questions and answers on the demonstration n dialogue form. We are always glad to have with us the local leader, Miss Elizabeth May, a member of the Helena faculty.

The Wilsonville 4-H Club met at the Wilsonvill eschool on Wednesday, January 20th with 22 present. A very nic eprogram was rendered including a playlet entitled, "Trouble Between Two Sisters," those taking part were, Maudine Helms, Elmire Ingram, and Edna Chappell. Poems were recited by Adell Vaughn and Elmire Ingram. After the program the Home Agent gave a demonstration in "Beds and Bedding" and also the correct making of the bed. After a short recreational period which was greatly enjoyed by the club adjourned by repeating the club pledge which is, "I pledge my head for clearer thinking, my heart for greater loyalty, my hands for larger service and my health for better living to my club, my community and my country.

The Camp Branch Club held its regular meetng on January 19th with 34 members present. A very nice program was prepared by the program chairman, Frances Nash. The meeting was presided over by Floyce Meek, President, and Louene Carden, Secretary. Each member responded to roll call by telling something they had done or planned to do to make her bedroom more attractive.

I wish to take this opportunity to than kall local leaders and all school principals for their co-operation in putting over the 4-H Club Program and may this year be the most successful ever for 4-H Club work in Shelby County.

By The Home Agent.

EXAMINATIONS FOR CIVIL SERVICE OPEN

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

Junior paten examiner, $2,000 a year, Patent Office, Department of Commerce.

Elevator mechanician, $1,680 a year, Branch of Buildings Management, National Park Service, for appointment in Washington, D. C. only Junior observer in meteorology $1,440 a year, Weather Bureau.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office or custom house in any city which has a post office of the first or second class or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C

Employment of more men in factories and other lines of industry is leaving fewer workers available as farm labor. Reports indicate a shortage of farm labor in some sections of Alabama.

AUSTIN MUSIC COMPANY ONE OF LEADING MUSIC HOUSES IN SOUTH

Although the Austin Music Company has been in business five years here in Birmingham, they have under Mr. George M. Austin, president, become recognized as one of the leading concerns of its kind in the South. Mr. Austin was formerly service manager for C. G. Conn, makers of band instruments.

A feature about the Austin Music Company that impressed this writer was their interest in all the public and high schools in the smaller cities and counties. Music directors in these schools are invited to avail themselves of the services of the Austin Music Company who will gladly assist them or any organization of any school bands anywhere.

At the Austin Music Company, "everything musical" is no idle boast. New and used band instruments, supplies and accessories, sheet music, orchestrations, instruction books, Baldwin pianos, etc.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having the Austin Music Company to serve them Located at 1907-09 Fourth Avenue, Telephone 3-7762. Mail orders filled the same day they are received.

A. and A. ASH, JEWELERS, HAVE BEEN IN BUSINESS OVER THIRTY YEARS

A. & A. Ash, Jewelers, Inc., leading Jewelers of Birmingham, have been in business in Birmingham over thirty years and in the same location twenty-five years, at 1921 Second Avenue, North.

They have made hosts of friends in Shelby County by their fair and square business dealings. Being ınd owners in Shelby County, naturlly they are interested in the growth nd development of this County and hey are unselfishly taking part in this edition.

For anything in the jewelry line this paper recommends A. & A. Ash Jewelers at 1921 Second Avenue, N.

BROWN- SERVICE FUNERAL CO. THE LARGEST COMPANY OF ITS KIND

The ten years that have passed since Brown Service came to be a house hold word in Alabama have been climaxed by the recent opening of the new home located at 811 South 20th Street.

A magnificent new building as modern and impressive in design as the service its company renders. Here the Brown Service conducts the business of the largest concern of its kind in the world.

Brown Service now has in force in Alabama in excess of 200,000 policies and to date the company has rendered burial services to more than 32,000 policy holders. They maintain 105 Funeral Homes in Alabama to render quick and efficient service to their policy holders. There is no truer saying than that they are bringing helpfulness to thousands.

In Shelby County, Brown Service is represented by John Curlee of Columbiana; J. W. LeCroy of Calera, and A. M. Stinson of Montevallo.

Think what a felling of security you have when you have a Brown Service policy and only a few cents each week will give you this feeling.

DRENNEN MOTOR COMPANY LARGEST AUTO DEALER IN THE ENTIRE SOUTH

Established in 1908, the Drennen Motor Company is probably the most outstanding automobile dealer in the entire South.

Last vear the Drennen Motor Company sold 9,847 automobiles which speaks for itself. They are dealers for the Cadillac, La Salle, Buick, Pontiac, Chevrolet and G M C trucks.

They have made hosts of friends all over Shelby County by their fair and square dealings with everyone and when you buy a used car or truck with the tag (R. T. D. W.) which means Reconditioned The Drennen Way means the car or truck is unconditionally guaranteed.

The Drennen Motor Company is always willing to co-operate with Shelby County in any project or movement that will be of benefit to our County.

This newspaper congratulates the people of this County on having the Drennen Motor Company to serve them.

ZAC SMITH STATIONERY COMPANY ONE OF LARGEST IN THE SOUTH

The Zac Smith Stationery Company located at 2014 First Avenue in Birmingham have been in business 55 years. During this time they have made many friends in Shelby County by their fair treatment to everyone.

Their main store and plant covers 17,500 square feet of floor space and ther warehouse covers 17,000 square feet of floor space.

Specializing in office supplies, stenographer supplies, steel and wood modern office furniture, school supplies, they also manufacture filing supplies, such as folders, guides, etc. Zac Smith is recognized as the leading office outfitters in Birmingham.

Engraved wedding and engraved school invitations are also made a specialty of as well as embossed letter heads and envelopes and other high grade printing of all kinds.

This newspaper has no hesitiancy in recommending the Zac Smith Stationery Company to its many readers and this writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having such a firm as Zac Smith Stationery Company to serve them. They are truly the South's leading stationers.

G. C. PHILLIPS TRACTOR COMPANY IN MAGIC CITY CO-OPERATES IN COUNTY

Mr. G. C. Phllips of the G. C. Phillips Tractor Company in Birmingham has been in business since 1924. During that same year he sold Shelby County the first Tractor they owned.

He stands ready to cooperate at all times in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County and he is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat. Mr. Phillips has made hosts of friends throughout Shelby County by his fair and square treatment to everyone.

While Mr Phillips handles many lines of road machinery and contractor's equipment the main things they feature are the Byers Shovels and Master Concrete Mixers

The Byers Shovel manufacture all sizes of shovels but their Bearcat Jr. Shovel, is in this writer's opinion the best and most practical shovel for any county to own. There are several reasons for this but most outstanding is the low cost, as it is five hundred dollars lower than any shovel or crane of the same size and capacity. The saving on the initial cost pays for operating costs for months to come. One of the reasons why the Bearcat Jr. is sold lower than others is mass production; they are manufactured thirty at the time which means low manufacturing cost and low material cost.

The U. S. Army has already bought a large number of these Bearcat Shovels which shows what they think of them. These shovels will operate and cross light bridges where a larger shovel will not. Mounted on a trailer makes moving easier as they can be hauled at a speed of 30 to 35 miles per hour.

Mr. Phillips line of Master concrete mixers are husky and compact, they're built to "take it" and many other outstanding features.

Contractors, road builders and construction men would do well to investigate this Bearcat Jr. Shovel and Master Mixers before they buy any other.

Jones and Hernandez Machine asd Foundry Have Been In Business Twenty-Five Years

A complete machine shop in every detail is the Jones and Hernandez Machine and Foundry Company of which Mr. R. M. Rernandez and I. W. Jones are owners, located at 212 So. 21st Street.

They have been in business over twenty-four years and during this time they have made hosts of friends not only in Birmingham and Shelby County but the surrounding counties as well as they do work in a large radius.

Regrinding of cylinders and crank shafts, pistons, pins and rings, steel starter gears, welding, in fact any thing to be repaired in the machinery line, Jones and Hernandez are prepared to do it. Their shop is equipped with modern machinery throughout and their workmen are men who have had years of experience.

This newspaper has no hesitiancy in recommending Jones and Hernandez to its many readers. Their work is guaranteed and their prices are fair and reasonable. Telephone No. 7-4262.

Dr. Pepper Is Truly A Food In Liquid Form

In a pound of broiled chicken there are 289. calories; in a pound of fish (bass) there are 255 calores. In a pound of Dr. Pepper there are 223 calories. But in Dr Pepper, this Nourishment is in liquid form; partially pre-digested. The body absorbs and uses this new energy quickly and consumes it completely. That's why we say three-a day keeps energy UP. Most active people need a little nourishment between meals, to keep them at their best. That's why we say Drink-a-bite-to eat at 10, 2 and 4 o'clock. Why don't YOU test it out?

WARRIOR WATER COMPANY IS DECIDED ASSET TO SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, the Warrior Water Company which serve the communities of Columbiana and Montevallo are unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads Edition of the Democrat.

They have been serving these two progressive cities since 1927 and in 1928 a completely new plant was built so as to assure the people of the best and purest water possible and today our water ranks among the top yith the passing of the State Board of Health.

Shelby County is fortunate in having the Warroir Water ompany to serve them, headed by such public spirited men as Mr. R. A. Polglaze, president and Mr. F .C Basenberg, vice president. Mr. T. T. Tinney is superintendent in Columbiana and Mr. R. P. Holcombe superintendent in Montevallo.

A good water company in this writer's opinion is about the most important factor in any community and we congratulate the people of Columbiana and Montevallo on having the Warrior Water Company in thier midst.

Laney Paint and Hardware Company Has Many Customers In Shelby County

The Laney Paint and Hardware Company located at 2018 First Avenue North have been in business in Birmingham since 1920. Mr. L. S. Laney the owner, has made many friends throughout the county by his fair and square business dealings. They are both wholesale and retail.

Carry a complete line of hardware, paints, oils, brushes, glass, in fact anything in a modern and up to date hardware store will be found here. They are distributors for the well known line of DeSoto 100 per cent pure paints.

They also feature the world famous Barrett guaranteed roofing and roofing paints and before you buy roofing of any kind be sure to come by Laney Paint & Hardware and see their line of Barrett roofing.

The newspaper congratulates the people of Shelby County on having such a concern like the Laney Paint & Hardware Company to serve them.

Dr. E. M. Klein At Pizitz Has Largest Optical Department In Birmingham

Dr. E. M. Klein, Optometrist, in charge of the Optical Department at Pizitz has the largest staff of registered optometrists and assistants in Alabama. He has been in business here in Birmingham since 1925 and he has made hosts of friends throughout not only Shelby County but throughout Alabama and the South.

Dr. Klein is always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County and he is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

"MY CHURCH FIRST"

J. W. Jones, Pastor, Columbiana Baptist Church

Dr. M. E. Dodd, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Shreveport, La., gives to the religious press the following:

"Seek ye first", said Jesus (first in time and first in importance), "the kingdom of God." Christ meant for us to put first things first. And that means that we put God above gold, Christ above coin, the church above the club, the Bible above other books.

The most difficult choice which Christians have to make is not between what is good or bad, but between what is good or better, or best. Good is often the enemy of the best. For example, the church is the best institution on earth. The church had a divine origin, has a divine life, and enjoys divine promises of power, perpetuity and His presence. There are other institutions which are good. They and the church call for our time, our talents, and our money. Sometimes these calls conflict and force us to make a choice. With a born-again, redeemed Christian there can never be any hesitation or equivocation on which to choose.

"MY CHURCH FIRST"

WHY EDGAR GUEST ATTENDS CHURCH

"I attend church when I can, and do for the church what I can, because I believe in it. I have found nothing in my religion that has interfered with my progress for a single minute. The church has never held me back from a single opportunity. It has been my source of inspiration and comfort, and I shall be an ingrate and a fool to desert it now. Criticized, derided, belittled, ridiculed and mocked as it is, the church stands for all that is finest in our thoughts. It is still the mother of our greatest sons and daughters."

Attend church for your own sake and for the sake of others. Above all for Christ's sake.

How Well Do You Know Your State?

The See Alabama First department of this newspaper has been troubled of late because so many persons around Birmingham seem to be uninformed of the interest and beauty to be found at Moundville and nearby Mound Park, where lie the ruins of one of the largest cities built by pre-Columbian Indians in this section.

Mound Park has few counterparts in the nation. Those 30-odd mounds there represent a savage metropolis with few parallels. From over the nation come archeologists and students of early American life to study the mounds and to speculate upon the life that once flourished there. For its time, it was not a primitive village that existed on the bank of the Warrior River in Hale County; it was a large city. And to see the ruins of that city come persons from many states.

But Alabamians are inclined to take the mounds for granted. Oh, yes, we have heard of Indian Mounds down there. But who wants to see some piles of dirt? Besides, there are mounds all over Alabama. Why, there are some right here in Jefferson County.

It is all a matter of degree. There are mounds within a few miles of Birmingham. So also are there caves close to Birmingham. But still we go to see Mammoth Cave and the Carlsbad Caverns. There are waterfalls near Birmingham and big trees, but we go to Niagara and Yosemite.

There are mounds around Birmingham, but they are small and insignificant compared to those at Moundville, only 70 miles away. Nowhere in this part of America is there a mound city of the size and extent of that near Moundville.

A trip to Moundville is a stimulus to the imagination. What kind of people built these mounds, and why? They were not Indians of the type that were here when DeSoto became the first white man to tread these parts of Alabama. But who were they? And what relation did they hold to the post-Columbian Indians? What became of them and their civilization? Did some epidemic or plaque wipe them out? Or were they conquered by indians who had no use for these mounds as dwelling places or temples?

One cannot stand upon the highest of these mounds, which is as high as a four story building, and not wonder what powerful impulse moved its builders. It was not little labor to pile up this huge mound with dirt carried in baskets from some distance away. And there is another mound as high as a single story building but two acres in area. Upon it, perhaps, were held the dance rituals of worshippers long ago. Years upon years of labor were represented in the building of these mounds.

It is a good lesson in humility to visit Mound Park. No doubt the mound city flourished through many times the years of Birmingham's history. That city was founded; chieftains succeeded chieftains; mound was added to mound; generations were buried in that helter-skelter way of theirs. And out of it all, today there are only some strange and interesting piles of dirt, some pottery and beads and many skeletons. We are not so apt to be conceited about our own civilization when we realize that long ago near by there was another civilization and a proud race that may have thought it was building for eternity.

The Power Company's Expenditures In 1937

Contributing greatly to the cheering news of business and industrial revival and new capital investments is the announcement that the Alabama Power Company will spend more than $3,700,000 during 1937 for additions and improvements. This is indeed a large amount, and the influence of the expenditure will be felt in many ways throughout the state, especially since President Thomas W. Martin says Alabama men and women will be employed almost exclusively in the company's program.

Of the expenditure, $2,500,000 will go for extension and improvement of the company's distribution systems over the state. It is planned to add more than 1,000 miles of new rural lines to serve approximately 4,500 additional customers. This extension of rural electrification is especially gratifying. Alabama has been one of the most progressive states in rural electrification.

Power consumption has been on the increase in Alabama, and the upward trend is expected to continue. With consumption going up, rates are going down, which in turn is promoting still greater consumption.

The Alabama Power Company, always a constructive force for Alabama, continues with this new building program to do its part in the development of the state.

The Important Thing

The important thing in the Alabama situation just now is not precisely how liquor reform shall be achieved, but that in disputing over the method we do not divide forces so as to delay reform itself.

Frankly, The Age-Herald has no doubt that the majority of the people of Alabama are for repeal and the legalized sales of liquors. It has no doubt of that despite the referendum of February, 1935, when the drys won by a narrow margin.

Its conviction is based on its strong belief that the drys went to the polls in greater relative strength than the wets; that with the drys voted a large number of those who do not morally believe in it as a means of tax-free profit; that the inadequate framing of the questions put to the voters in the last referendum lost many votes for repeal; that since the 1935 referendum there has been a continuation of the steady growth of public opinion against the irrational and disastrous scheme of prohibition and that the lineup among the legislators at Montgomery, themselves closely in touch with the feelings of their constituents, shows very clearly that majority sentiment is now for repeal.

Whether the legislators are nevertheless morally debarred from now voting repeal directly, simply because of the result of the last referendum, is a question upon which a good argument undoubtedly can be raised, but w esuspect that argument would have more to do with technicalities than realities.

That is to say, there is nothing in the law or the theory of the law to forbid the representatives of the people from acting for the people in matters of this kind; that is what they are for.

Moreover, many are persuaded that the genuine sentiment of the majority is so strongly for repeal and reform, on a statewide basis, as to be obvious.

So then The Age-Herald could not grow very indignant over any slighting of the prerogatives of the people that might be said to be involved in direct repeal.

And we therefore hope that the House will decide to send the bill as passed by the Senate to conference and that it will emerge without any referendum provision.

This we regard as exceedingly important: If there is a referendum, the drys will want a provision that those counties that vote dry, or have voted dry, may remain dry even if the state as a whole votes for repeal. That is entirely all right with us.

But in fairness, we ask that such a proposition be made to work both ways if there is a referendum. That is, if any county votes wet, or voted wet in 1935, let it be provided that it shall be wet, even though the state as a whole votes dry.

What could be fairer than that?

And what could be more sensible than that?

Of course, it will be said by uncompromising drys that dry counties could not be protected from wet ties. But neither are they now protected from bootleggers.

And neither would wet counties, if they are not allowed to be honestly and legally as well as openly wet, be protected from the will of the dry counties and the shameful system they would continue to impose on all Alabama.

—The Birmingham Age-Herald

Kudzu crowns—3,455,000 of them—have been allotted for erosion control plantings in demonstrations and camp areas in Alabama. These crowns will be set by cooperating farmers working with the Soil Conservation Service and Extension Service.

The Farm Credit Administration of New Orleans is holding a number of farm meetings in every Alabama county during the latter part of January and the first of February. At these meetings farm credit officials will explain how loans are being made to farmers to assist them in their farming operations.

It is especially wise for farmers to keep lice off their brood sows during the winter months, advise livestock specialists of the Bureau of Animal Industry in recommending that farmers apply crude petroleum or used crankcase oil to kill the lice on the cows.

THE COLUMBIANA BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. J. W. Jones, Pastor

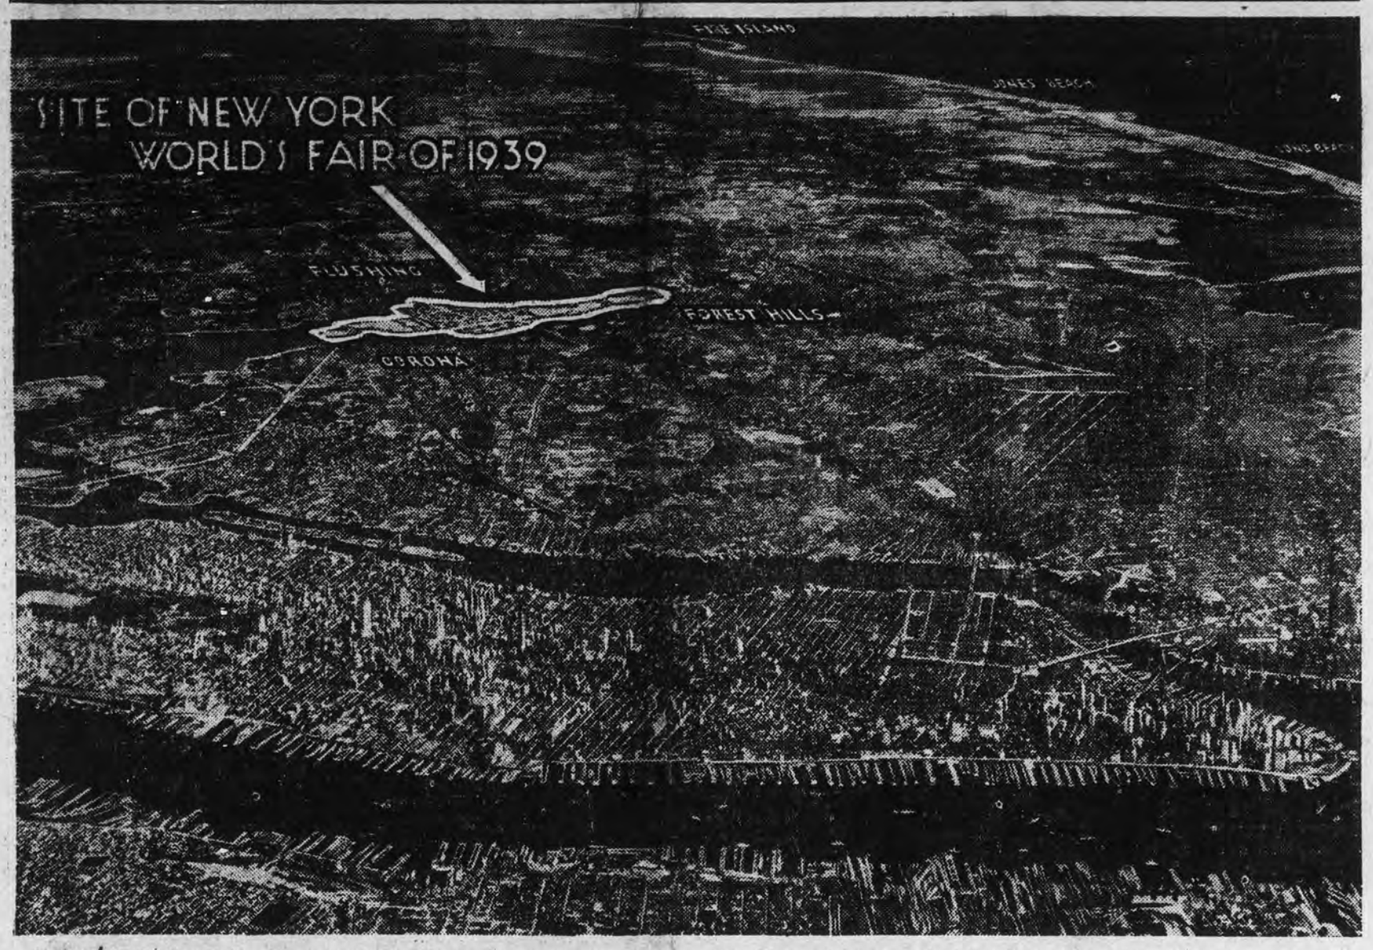
Services, Sunday, February 6, 1937 will be as follows:

9:45 A. M.: Sunday School.
11:00 A. M.: Preaching.
6:00 P. M.: Baptist Training Union
7:00 P. M.: Preaching.

A cordial invitation is extended to everyone who can to attend these services.

"WHY GO TO CHURCH?"

1. I would not live in a town where there is no church.
2. I had rather have church goers for neighbors.
3. Because I believe in it and I believe in the message the church has for me.
4. I want my children to go and I don't believe in sending them but in going and leading them in the right direction.
5. I need the guidance and comfort the church has for me. When our loved ones are sick or die we call for the church to minister. I don't believe that we should wait until then but begin now.
6. Because of the high purpose of the church. It's purpose is a life saving mission to prepare people not only for heaven but to live here and now.



If the church was depending upon you would it continue to exist?

WE NEED YOU AND YOU NEED US. SO COME ON AND SEE WHAT CAN BE DONE.

The gross income form agricultural production for 1936 will be approximately $9,530,000,000, compared with $5,337,000,000 in 1932, the low point of the depression.

New York World's Fair Site From 9,000 Feet Up

NEW YORK, (Special).—Photography and ingenuity combine to show about how the New York Fair will appear in 1939 to visitors arriving from the west in planes flying at an altitude of one and three-quarters miles. Cameraman made this "shot" from a plane over the New Jersey meadows. Shown in the foreground is the shipping along the Hudson—Manhattan with its towers grouped about the Empire State building (center) which houses present headquarters of the Fair—and in the middle distance the 1,216½ acre site of the 1939 international exposition. To the right lies Brooklyn and, beyond, the hinterland of Long Island. At the extreme left, spanning the East river, is the new Triborough bridge over which many of the 50,000,000 visitors expected at the Fair will motor to the convenient parking lots. A photograph of the table model of the Fair has been superimposed on the negative of the air view to show the grid of the central exhibit zone, the boat basin being constructed on Flushing Bay and the lagoons that will feature the exposition's amusement zone.

SAVING FARM MEATS

Farmers in the South often experience difficulty in curing meats under natural conditions This year has been an extremely bad year and this makes it impossible to cure meat and maintain a satisfactory flavor without using an artificial method of curing.

The dry cure method has some advantages over the Brine cure method The Dry cure method lessens the water content of the meat which is essential to proper curing.

As soon as the hog is killed and dressed divide the carcass in its usual cuts and rub each piece with salt. Place the meat in a packing box. The box floor must be covered with ice and a layer of ice should be between each layer of meat. The ice will remove the animal heat and bacteria will not be able to destroy the meat after the temperature is lowered. It will require about one pound of ice to each pound of meat.

The ice will melt in 12 to 24 hours. At this time remove the meat and repack it in curing mixture.

This curing mixture consists of 10 pounds of salt, 3 pounds of sugar and 3 ounces of saltpeter. The amount should pack away 100 pounds of meat. Rub this mixture over all parts of the meat, being sure that all cracks and the exposed ends of the bone are filled with the mixture. Let your meat stay packed in this mixture for four or five days, remove the meat and repack. When you repack add more of the mixture to th eparts of the meat that needs it. In repacking be sure that you pour all the water out of the packing box and rinse the box with hot water Repeat this operation in about seven days.

In 28 days from the time the meat is packed, remove it and rinse it off with water.

The meat is then ready for smoking Hang the meat in a room and smoke it with oak, or hickory wood smoke. This gives a rich flavor and a good taste.

Some farmers make it a practice to remove the bones from the meat. This is a very good practice, however the meat will have a ragged appearance. This method is sometimes necessary to save the meat from large hogs.

For additional information see your County agent.

LEADERSHIP SCHOOL HELD ON FRIDAY

The fifteen Women's Home Demonstration Clubs of Shelby County held their first Leadership School for 1937 at the Courthouse at Columbiana on Friday, January 29th. 50 leaders and Club Presidents attended. The clubs represented were, Camp Branch Chelsea, Dargin, Harpersville, Klein Midway, Shelby, Spring Creek, Vincent and Wright.

Miss Meroney's Home Economic Class of Columbiana High School also sat in on the morning demonstration.

We were pleased to have with us several Local leaders from Columbiana including Mrs. Lynn Walker, Mrs. Knox Wooley, Mrs. Pinky Jordan and Miss Era Pitts and others.

The meeting was called to order at 9:30 and the program included a song "Alabama" to the new tune, a most interesting devotional by Mrs. W. A. Greene, President of the Shelby Club Welcome and announcements by the Home Agent. Song, "The Song Of The Open Country." The demonstration in the morning on Refinishing Furniture, was given by Miss Nell Pickens, Home Management Specialist of Auburn.

At 12:00 a delicious lunch brought by the women was served by the N. Y. A. Girls. Hot coffee was also passed.

The afternoon demonstration given by Miss Pickens was on "Upholstering" after which the meeting adjourned. We were also fortunate enough to have with us Miss Ruth Dobyne, District Home Demonstration Agent from Auburn, Alabama.

THOMPSON STUDENT IS COUNTY WINNER

Miss Vivian Broome of Thompson High School, Siluria, was winner in the D. A. R. cnotest in Shelby County Other high schools represented were Columbiana, Montevallo and Vincent.

Miss Broome's name with the names of other county representatives, wll be sent to Montgomery, the winner there will be given a trip to Washington, W. C., by the State D. A. R. with expenses free.

Well, boys and girls, it looks like Europe has managed to end 1936 without a serious war.

FARMERS CO-OPERATING IN CONTROLLING EROSION

AUBURN—Farmers in demonstration projects and camp areas of the Soil onservation and Extension Service in Alabama have signed co-operative agreements to put into effect erosion-control practices on a total of 307,118 acres, according to O. C. Medlock, acting State coordinator.

The purpose of these demonstration areas, Medlock explained, is to give farmers in the entire section represented by each area an opportunity to see these methods in actual operation on the farms of cooperators under conditions similar to those found on their own farms.

BOWDON'S STATION ONE OF THE BEST

We call your attention to the advertisements of Bowdon's Service Station, located in Calera, Alabama. This auto service station is one of the best equipped stations in the County, and has merited the success the owners are now enjoying.

Their modern equipment and satisfactory mechanical department has played a large part in the satisfactory service they guarantee. The acquisition of A. E. Baumgardner, formerly of Montevallo, is a decided advantage. Mr. Baumgardner needs no introduction to Shelby County, for he has been serving their automobile needs for a number of years, and is one of the highest rated mechanics in the State.

Mr. Bowdon is a progressive and wide awake young business man and has recently enlarged his building to more efficiently serve his many pleased patrons. He handles all auto accessories and sells the nationally known gas and oil products.

Drive by when you are in Calera and give them a chance to demonstrate their claim for the best and most modernly furnished Garage in Shelby County.

HELENA NEWS

Miss Mary Bonino spent the week end at Pelham with the Bridgewaters.

Mrs. J. W. Snow and James are moving to Birmingham this week. It is with regret that their Helena friends see them go but they carry with them the best wishes o feveryone.

Miss Sybil Langston spent the week end at her home in Jemison.

Mr. ob Tucker came by home for afew days on his way to the Veteran's Hospital in Atlanta. It is hoped he will soon be back and much improved.

Miss Margaret Louise Nash spent the week end in Clanton visiting her friend Mrs. Heflin.

The friends of Mr. Marshall Lambert were glad to see him able to be out and in town last Saturday.

Mr. Tom Nash and Reg Lowery attended the Pittman Tractor in Birmingham last week.

UNDER THE COURTHOUSE DOME

M. W. W.

The Board of Revenue held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday and transacted pending business matters for the County. All members reported present—and those we saw, were still recounting happy incidences which occurred when the Board of Commissioners from each County in Alabama, were entertained in Birmingham by Pittman Tractor and other firms who do business with these officials.

State Examiners Lee from Montgomery and Henry from Monroeville have begun their activities in the Courthouse and join Jones and Lacey making a quartette of "Examiners" whom Columbiana citizens are welcoming for a few months sojourn.

The American Red Cross drive directed by Mayor Harry Gordon during last week, when funds were raised for the Flood sufferers, chalked up the neat sum from Columbiana: $259.25. Welfare Department of Buck Creek Cotton Mills contributed $100.00; Wilsonville $60.25; Vincent $50.00; M. E. Sunday School Class of Montevallo $5.00; Peoples Friendly Organization for colored people $5.00 and many others. Shelby County went over the top with over $1200.00 to its credit.

Any County in the State tired of the Prohibition Laws will now have an opportunity to vote itself under the control of the proposed State liquor stores law on March 10th, 1937. Prohibition has been enforced for the past 22 years. In the last election held 15 counties voted "wet". The decks are now cleared for another vote on this question to determine which Counties will be "wet" legally—or "wet" illegally!

L. C. Abbott, popular Tax Collector of Shelby County, states about 1300 poll tax receipts were issued from his office.

F. H. A. CLUB

The F. H. A. Club met January 7, 1937, to plan its study for the second semester. The members decided to continue the study of "Vocations for Girls."

The following members were given the second degree initiation: Mary L. Bates, Frances Clark, Fannie Mae Collum, Margie Crowson, Mary Godwin, Paula Hays, Hazel Pearson and Ruby Upshaw. The club will meet the first and third Thursdays in each month.

At the last meeting Miss Bell, the History teacher, made a very interesting talk to the club about the preparation needed for a history teacher.

International Harvester Company Always Co-operates With Shelby County Firms

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, the International Harvester Company is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

This well known firm is over one hundred years old and are the pioneers in farm machinery. They are the originators and designers of the famous Farmall Tractors and every successful farmer you see has at least one of theseFarmalls on his farm. A complete line of "quick attachable" implements which require only a few minutes to put on or take off are also available.

They are also manufacturers of a line of stationary power units from twelve to over one hundred horsepower; to burn Diesel, gasoline, kerosene, natural gas or distillate fuel.

Their crawler type Tractors fully meets the needs of road contractors dirt movers and builders and their Wheel Type Tractor is ideal for the farm, industrial use and state or county road work.

A complete line of motor trucks, from ½ ton to large six wheel dual drive—a total of 31 models to choose from—91 wheel base length.

The Birmingham branch house is fully stocked and equipped to give instant service on any International Harvester machine—and there are over 150 authorized dealers to serve Alabama. Here in Shelby County G. V. Poole and Son at Columbiana are authorized dealers and are ready to serve you at any time.

A complete line of farm machinery and implements for any size farm can be seen at any dealer.

Birmingham Electric and Manufacturing Company Has Been In Business 13 Years

The Birmingham Electric and Manufacturing Company located at 109 North 11th Street in Birmingham, have been in business over 13 years.

They sell motors of all kinds, transformers and carbon brushes, almost any kind of new or used equipment can be found here and at prices that will be found fair and reasonable.

Their brushes are sold under the name of Southern Carbon Brush Co., s they manufacture these brushes n this same shop.

Mr. M. M. Argo, manager, is always willing to co-operate in any movement that will be of help to Shelby County and he is unselfishly taking part in this edition.

When in need of any repair work in this line or in need of any equipment it will pay you to see them before you buy. Their telephone number is 3-5239.

BIRMINGHAM FLOUR COMPANY CO-OPERATES WITH SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, the Birmingham Flour Co. is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

The Birmingham Flour Company has been in business in Birmingham since 1921 and during these years they have made hosts of friends throughout Shelby County by their fair and square business dealings, and they serve all of Shelby County.

This progressive concern is a decided asset to this entire section, as they employ local people and money spent with them stays in this community to further build and develop it.

Besides these features, there is another distinct advantage in buying from them and that is, by being in Birmingham they can render a faster service to the merchant than can other firms and manufacturers in distant cities.

This newspaper congratulates the merchants and people of Shelby County on their having the Birmingham Flour Company in their midst.

Cleveland Manufacturing Company Co-operates With Shelby County

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. H. F. Cleveland of the Cleveland Manufacturing Company, is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition.

This concern has been in business since 1919 and they have made hosts of friends in Shelby County by their fair and square business dealings.

The Cleveland Manufacturing Co. is the largest commercial body builders in the South. Including truck and trailer bodies—auto and truck painting—general black smithing and forgings. They also are distributors for Kingham's trailers and winders Vacuum power brakes Galion dump bodies and hoists, Reeves' frame extusions and their special and custom built truck bodies are recognized as the best that can be made.

There are many bodies for individual truck owners, etc., in Shelby County that they built.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having the Cleveland Manufacturing Company in their midst.

CHANNELL - FLORIST, HAS BEEN IN BUSIENSS OVER SEVENTEEN YEARS

One of the oldest and most reliable florists in Birmingham is Channell's, who has been in business over 17 years. They are located at 1729 Second Avenue, near the Ritz theatre.

Mrs. L. Channell is always willing to co-operate with Shelby County in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to our County.

No matter what your wants may be in flowers, you will find flowers for every occasion here at Channells also funeral wreaths, wedding flowers, blooming plants, fresh cut flowers will be found here.

Mail or telephone orders sent in are filled the same day they are received.

A complete line of baskets and pottery, also hand painted placques, are also featured here.

Their telephone number is 3-4889 and night telephone is 6-5735. Channell's render special attention to out of town orders.

SOUTHERN DISINFECTANT COMPANY IS GROWING, PROGRESSIVE CONCERN

The Southern Disinfectant Company in Birmingham has made rapid growth since it began business. Mr. Bill Herriche, manager of this firm has many friends all over Shelby County and recently he bought a farm in Shelby County so he can be called a Shelby Countian himself and naturally he is interested in the growth and development of our County. There is no project that will be of benefit to Shelby County, but finds Mr. Herriche doing his full part.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having such a progressive firm in their midst.

The Starr Company Has Been Doing Business in Alabama Over Sixty Years

While The Starr Company has been in business over sixty years, they were established in 1872.

During these years they have made hosts of friends throughout Shelby County by their fair and square business dealings.

Miss J. M. Foley, the manager, has been associated with The Starr Company for twenty years. They are always willing to co-operate with Shelby County in any project or movement that will be of benefit to our County.

Space doesn't permit us to dwell on the many superior qualities of Starr pianos—suffice it to say they win the first awards wherever they are shown. They take pride in their product and in this writer's opinion Starr Pianos are among the leaders in the world.

In addition they also manufacture the New Starr Freeze—a double duty display case with balanced refrigeration.

Call by The Starr Company located at 2025 First Avenue or call 7-7275 and see their line of pianos and display cases.

Grayson's The Smart Style Shop For Women In Business Here Two Years

Located at 1902 Second Avenue North, in Birmingham is Grayson's who have been serving the people of this section for over two years and during this time they have made hosts of friends throughout Shelby County by their fair and square business dealings.

This progressive firm is always willing to co-operate in any movement or project that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County and they are unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

Here at Grayson's, one will find a most up to date, complete line of ladies coats, suits, dresses and hosiery, lingerie, in fact anything in ladies' ready to wear or accessories will be found here—the very newest and up to date styles and at fair and reasonable prices.

This newspaper has no hesitiancy in recommending Grayson's to the ladies of Shelby County and suggests that you pay them a visit the next time you are in Birmingham.

Entire Stock Of Southern Hardware and Seed Stores of Birmingham to be Sold at Sacrifice

Mr. B. H. Berman of the Crescent 5 & 10c Store and Mr. Jack Siegel of the Alabama Mercantile Company who recently bought the stock of the Southern Hardware and Seed Stores in Birmingham are selling this stock at sacrifice prices. Large stock of seeds, hardware, roofing, paints, guns and ammunition, houseware, china ware, farming implements, etc. everything will be sold regardless of price—and they are making special prices to merchants.

The Southern Hardware and Seed Store carried one of the largest, if not the largest and most complete line of field and garden seed in this entire section and Messrs Berman and Siegel told this writer that they were closing out this seed stock and regardless of what you have been paying for seed before, they can save you money.

They cordially invite the people of Shelby County to come by and see what low prices they can buy seed and other items.

They are located at 2313-15 Second Avenue North.

HANNA MOTOR COMPANY HAS BEEN IN BUSINESS OVER SIXTEEN YEARS

One of the oldest automobile dearers anywhere in this section is the firm of Hanna Motor Company, who have been in business in the same block for over sixteen years and during this time they have made hosts of friends throughout Shelby County by thier fair and square business dealings.

They are always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County and they are unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

Have you driven or ridden in the new 1937 Ford V-8 or the new Lincoln Zephyr? If not, take this writer's advice and call by Hanna Motor Company and see these master pieces on the show room floor. Or if you want a used car we recommend those at Hanna Motor Company. Every one of these have been thoroughly reconditioned and are in excellent shape. Truly they have some real values in used cars.

Hanna Motor Company is also parts distributors for Shelby County their truck coming here once a week and of course only genuine Ford parts are they dealers for.

Mr. Clyde Cosper is local salesman for Hanna Motor Compony in Shelby County.

SHELBY COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Doris Bender, Director

"The good which a man does for himself dies with him, that which he does for his community lives long after he is gone."

Community work has become a definite part of the Public Welfare program in our county; therefore, we believe that you will be interested in knowing more about this work.

Social workers have long believed that a number of the problems of delinquency, dependency and neglect which come to their attention might be prevented if communities gave more thought to the welfare of their citizenship. They have also believed that communities would be more active in the prevention of these problems if they knew more about them. Social workers have long belived that these things are true and yet because of the lack o fworkers very little has been done to awaken communities to their responsibilities or to help them in planning to meet their problems.

Through the program of Special Child Welfare Services (Title V—Part 3, Social Security Act), Sixteen counties in the State are benefitting from the services of a Community Worker. Shelby County is included in the area with Bibb, Chilton, and Coosa Counties, in which area Mrs. Margaret Hodo Walburn serves as Community Worker. Mrs. Walburn has been in the area since March, 1936, and during this time she has been in Shelby County, on the average, for at least one week out of each month

There are many responsibilities which communities need to be awakened to and there are many problems out of the question for a lone worker which are theirs to meet, but it is to help in the solution of all the problems of all the communities in four counties. It has been necessary, therefore, to select certain problems t oattack and to work in only a few communities.

At the present time the program of Community work is proceeding along two lines. First, the worker is attempting to tell people about the Public Welfare program so that there might be better understanding and greater interest on the part of communities. The worker has talked with P. T A's, with Women's Clubs, with Church societies, with individuals, and with school groups as a means of telling people about the Public Welfare Program In the second place the worker is trying to interest communities in providing planned and directed recreation for their people, especially young people. A boy's club has recently been started in Calera, while clubs for older young people in Maylene and in Dogwood have been functioning for several months. A club in Siluria is in process of organization.

As the work develops Mrs. Walburns services will be extended to other communities in the county.

More general purpose tractors and other farm machinery were sold during the past year than any year since 1930. Indications are that even more farm machinery will be sold this year.

GROUND HOG DAY

On Tuesday, the little ground piggy—that furry prognosticator of the weather SAW his shadow—hence another 6 weeks, or rather the first six weeks of winter may be expected Might as well prepare to "Button up your Overcoat" and take it!

ROOSEVELT BALL

The Masonic Hall, under the artistic directorship of talented Mildred Curlee, presented a lovely interior setting for the Roosevelt Ball on Saturday night. Softly shaded lights, and cut flowers formed a varied color scheme. Behind the elevated platform on which were seated the Rhymthm Ristocrats-those peppy exponents of melodic hits of the day, wa sdraped a huge United States Flag, over which hung a life sized portrait of President Roosevelt. During his address, a spotlight was flashed on his likeness, and, after his address, to the tune of Happy Days Are Here Again—the dance was resumed. Over 100 guests were present to pay homage to the patriotic occasion.

MISS MARY LOKEY IS LOVELY BRIDE OF NORBERT REVIS

A marriage of interest throughout the state and Indiana was that of Miss Mary Lokey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Lokey of Wilsonville, Alabama, and Norbert E. Revis, of Frankfort Ind., the ceremony having been performed on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the brides uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Lokey, on Cliff Road .

The Rev. B. F. Hixon of Wilsonville Baptist Church, officiated, the vows being repeated before the improvised altar which stood in front of the mantel in the living room. The altar, formed of smilax and other greenery, was enhanced by floor candelabra holding white cathedral tapers and candelabra at either end of the mirrored mantel. The candles were lighted by the bride's sister, Frances Helen who wore a tea gown of brown net with sprigs of candytuft in her hair.

Large standards, on either side of the altar, held a profusion of creme gladioli.

Mrs. E. B. Johnson played the wedding march.

The groom was attended by Wilson Revis, his uncle, of Frankfort, Ind., as best man.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made an effective picture in her wedding gown of white hammered satin, topped with a short jacket of white velvet which flared in the back. The long sleeves, full at the shoulder, buttoned from the elbow to the wrist. The fingertip veil was fastened to the hair with orange blossoms. She carried a bridal bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies tied with white satin ribbon.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Bernice Lokey, as maid of honor. Her gown was of aqua blue moire taffeta and she carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses.

The flower girl was another cousin Miss Ann Lokey, attired in a short frock of aqua blue crepe. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pink sweet peas.

The decorations for the reception, which followed the ceremony, were in white and green. The dining table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a ring cake, the center of which was filled with candytuft. White candles stood in silver holders and the ice cream was in white and green, Mrs. Frank Lokey presided over the tea table and was assisted in serving by Miss Virginia Lokey.

Mrs. C. W. Lokey received the guests wearing a gown of black lace.

The bride wore agoing-away suit of black velvet, the coat of which was made three-quarter length, princess style. Her blouse of white lace wa sone that her mother wore on her wedding day. She wore a black felt hat and carried black accessories.

Mrs. Revis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Lokey of Wilsonville, Ala., and was formerly a director of amateur theatricals of an Atlanta Company.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Revis and attended Purdue University, where he was a member of Phi Delta Kappa. He is now manager of the procurement department of the Sherman-White Company in LaFayette, Ind., where the couple will make their home.

RUTH SPARKS

Ruth Sparks, charming little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sparks, has just returned from Louisville, Ky., in the heart of the Flood District—but, try and get Midge to tell of her experiences during this disaster. Like a Legionaire with World War Memories, she does not want to talk about it. We think she could tell us an interesting story having been marooned with her Mother in one of the down town hotels for over a week—but so far, she does not "Choose to talk" for the press.

ROXY THEATRE

The Roxy Theatre, Columbiana's popular Cinema playhouse, is now open every night in the week with a complete program of first run pictures offered for the approval of its many picture fans. Mr. Couch, manager, has just returned from Atlanta where he has booked your favorite stars of the silver screen. Watch fo his program each week.

B. W. C. MEETING HELD ON MONDAY AFTERNOON

The Business Women's Circle met with Miss Mary Elizabeth Nolen in the Woolley apartments on Monday afternoon for a business session. The circle was delighted to have Clotyle Smith as a new member making a total of 22 present for this meeting.

The meeting wa sopened by singing the W. M. U. Song, "Christ For The World We Sing" followed by an inspiring Devotional by Miss Evie Woodham.

The minutes of the previous business meeting were read and approved Reports were then made by the chairmen of the different committees as follows:

Enlistment ..... Mary Woolley
Personal Service .... Mildred Meroney
Literature .... Miss Gertrude Bishop
Stewardship..Mrs. Agnes Armstrong

Mrs. Curlee made an earnest plea for all members to be systematic givers and contribute to missions and also insisted thatthey attend church.

The Circle voted to sponsor the Sunbeams fo rthis year.

The next meeting will be held on Monday afternoon, February 15th with Jane Paulger, Miss Gertrude Bishop will have charge of the program.

Delicious refreshments were served by the Hostess.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The Methodist Missionary Society held a delightful Social meeting on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. B. Lyon, with Mrs. J. L. Davis, as joint hostess. Mrs. W. B. Hope, in a very earnest and impressive way, conducted the Worship and Meditations, using the topic, "The One Clear Call—The New Testament a Missionary Book."

Th eMissionary topic, "Our Dollars at Work," was of an informative nature, showing how the Council, through appropriations, is investing our Missionary dollars in the home and foreign fields. This program was presented by Mrs. T. K. Roberts Mrs. Essie Christian and Mrs. Luther Fowler. The Pledge Service followed, when the members designated their gifts for the Missionary Society for 1937.

Mrs. Fowler, the president, appointed Mrs. Tlmer Davis, Mrs. L. C. Walker, Mrs Lida Wood and Mrs. Knox Woolley as Committee for the Alabama Christian Advocate. As the program concluded, an unusual song was heard ringing out in the hall, and Aunt Dinah, a typical washer woman, worn and weary with hard work, walked into the living room with a basket of clothes, in search of the lady to whom they belonged. The basket was filled with Love gifts for Mrs. A. C. Carter, one of our most faithful members who is soon to move away The Carter family has endeared itself to the hearts of Columbiana families and we regret their departure from us. Ws recommend Mrs. Pinky Pordan as Aunt Dinah!

Delicious refreshments were served to twenty members and three visitors: Mrs. Pauline Bird, Mrs. Looney and Mrs. Simmons.

CONTESTS vs. CATALOGUES

Everyone we see is fully confident they will win the $100,000 prize offered by Old Gold Cigarette Company and when not discussing their wealth to be, are busily engaged in perusing Sears & Roebuck's new volume. Here's hoping none of your dreams go "up in smoke."

DR. W. C. EVERSOLE

We had the pleasure of meeting Dr. Eversole of Vincent at the Roosevelt Ball on last Saturday night. We had heard much about the new professional addition to the medical circles of Shelby County, but had not had the happy privilege of personally extendnig our sincere greetings from Columbiana to the distinguished physician. We are going to Wilsonville in the near future and tell you about the Hospital recently established there by Drs. Gould and Eversole—and Shelby Count yis to be congratulated upon this progressive move for a long needed Hospital in our own County. If Dr. Eversole is as successful with the surgical implements as he was successful in winning new friends at the gay and patriotic terpsichorean festivity——we shall predict he won't lose a single "case." And here's wishing for him continued success and happiness in his chosen field of endeavor in our midst.

ELIZABETH MERRELL

Miss Elizabeth Merrell, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Hugh Merrell of Anniston has moved to Columbiana where she will have charge of the recreation program outlined for Shelby County, succeeding Miss June Hamilton. Miss Merrell has taken an apartment in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Christian.

UP AND DOWN MAIN

Alice Roberts is now a full fledged student in Howard College—and we are watching with eager pride her future career. A brilliant student who possesses a sweet and gracious personality which will carry her fatoward any goal she may seek.

Mrs. Myra Hamner Miles of Camp Hill in her own charming and sweet manner received the hearty welcome accorded her by her many friends in Columbiana, when she returned for a brief visit on Wednesday.

Kiddies' Kolumn

Eden, Alabama
February 1st, 1937

Dear Mildred White Wallace:-

Mother read the Democrat to me last week and told me that I must write you a letter, but I have been so busy playing and helping mother I just haven't had time to write.

I sure was surprised to see my picture in the paper. I surely do enjoy my paper. It won't be long until I will be going to school like Hazel Ruth and then I can read it myself.

You know, I'm a great big boy now. I can help mother do a lot of things. I help her dry the dishes almost every day and don't drop any of them either.

As Master of Ceremonies, I want to welcome Little Miss Dorothy Mae Isbell in our circle. I hope the future holds a lot of nice things for her. Don't you know she is glad that she is not a quin. She wouldn't get near as much loving.

With love,
Charles Swann, Jr.,
Democrat Mascot.

Harpersville, Alabama
January 19, 1937

Dear Mildred White Wallace:-

I had not forgot to write to the Democrat. My Mother has just been too busy to act as my secretary. You see I have a baby brother just three and one-half months old and he takes up all of our spare time. He's a fine boy I think. His name is William Archie, but we call him Bill.

I'm the only girl in our family. I have a brother older than I and one younger. I do hope a girl gets to be Mascot of the Democrat soon, because I'd like to have some help in case the boys ever begin to get rough.

Christmas was a happy time for me. I got lots of things I wanted.

I've grown lots in the past year. I'm not quite such a blonde as I was to begin with. My hair is trying to turn brown.

I do hope the other baby Mascots write to you. I think we younger children will have to keep the "Kiddies Kolumn" going as the bigger children seem to forget to write.

I wish you much continued success with the Democrat. I want it to continue to be "Alabama's Most Distinctive Weekly."

Very sincerely yours,
Helen Ruth Wyatt.

Our Trip To See The Train

We went to see the train Wednesday morning. The sun was shining Mrs. Taylor sent two boys over to the depot to ask Mr. Davis if we could come. He said we may come. When we got there the freight train was coming in. Some of the boys went up in the engine. One of the cars was from Central of Georgia. We saw the baggage car.

We saw the mail train unload the mail. One package was for Mr. Max Lefkovits. Some chairs for some other store. We saw the driving wheels ,two truck wheels. Mrs. Christian gave us two time tables. We saw the conductor and fireman. When the fireman pulled a string the train started. It just stayed a few minutes. Then we came back to the school house. We got back at 10 minutes until 12.

"Vandlane"

Our Trip To See The Train

This morning the Fourth Grade went to the Southern depot. We all walked but Warren. He had a sore foot and Clyde pulled him on his bicycle. We let the girls go ahead because we thought that was the nicest.

When we arrived, there was a freight train switching. The boys got in the engine. The fireman showed us all about the engine. The train's number was 638 and it was the Central of Georgia. We learned that trains are operated by number.

Billy Stinson was leaning up against the caboose when the train started. Billy liked to have fallen, but Mary Ella caught him. When we got back to town Mrs. Taylor said that I may stop and eat dinner.

Don Messer.

Our Trip To See The Train

We went to see the train at the Southern depot. We saw a passenger and a freight train. The engine number was 638. It was 125 pounds of steam on the boiler. One length of a box car was 98 feet. The train had automatic couples. We saw the engine of the train. It had on one box car to send home very soon. We had a good time. They were unloading a flat car. Solon stepped on a button that opened the fire box. He did not know that he stepped on it until he got off and it made him jump. He wanted to get out and then we came to school.

"Harry"

Our Trip To See The Train

We walked over to see the train and the Depot. When we got there the train had just pulled in. The boys asked if they could climb into the engine. We went in where the men sat, and saw the bell rope. We stepped on a lever and the fire door opened. We saw how the engineer started the train. We saw the steam register. We also saw the bells The fireman told us to get out, he had to do some switching we got off He did some switching and left. We went back to school.

A NIGGER MUST SHOUT

By MILTON BIRD

The old church nestled behind large oak trees, at the end of a cinder walk which led up to it from the street. The few windows, through which the light penetrated, were wooden, swiniging things that squeaked screamingly when the wind blew against them. The roof was crumbly and patched with long strips of slab lumber, with here and there a piece of old roofing streaked across the slabs.

Inside, shut off from the noise of the street, the high walls ostentatiously lined with faded biblical scenes, were filled with tiny cracks through which the wind whistled and the bright sunrays poured. The floor was rough, patched, and sloping gradually upward from the front door.

From the pulpit, a sort of haphazard box like platform, with a straight chair on either end and a table in the center on which was a bible, a pitcher of water, and a vase of red flowers, the old, wrinkled, gray thatched parson warned his flock . . . ". . . an' God'll git all skeered niggers in de end."

"Amen," a brother shouted, looking up toward the ceiling and opening his mouth wide. "Yas, sah, I says Amen!"

The parson blinked his eyes, staring at the touched brother, and pointing his finger in his direction as he continued his speech: "God knows eve'ything and eve'body."

At the back of the room two very dark women arose and made their way to the pulpit. The happy parson grinned broadly. "Yo is God-skeered," he said. "His blessin' on yo' souls." Smiling happily, they went back to their seats, staring their accusations at their friends as they passed.

"Sweet God," the parson shouted, "stir up sum mo' niggers!"

In a few moments the entire congregation had filed by, ringing the parson's hand passinoately, falling down on their knees, getting unsteadily to their feet and staggering back to their seats.

One old nigger, known for miles around for his careless treatment of the Lord's name, and looked on by the congregation accordingly with a feeling of disgust and silent accusation, got up in his seat and cried out despairingly: "Oh, Lawdy, cum git m'!"

He was pulled down by a strong arm and forced back into his seat.

In a moment he was up again, screaming passionately, his voice ringing through the room. Again the strong arm forced him down.

"I's happy man," the excited one shouted.

"W'en yo' shout, nigger," the man with the strong arm said, "yo' goes crazy."

"I's a good nigger w'en I shout."

"Yo' is a bad nigger anytime."

The excited one attempted to rise again but was forced down by the other.

"Yo' an' yo' whole outfit is no 'count. If I can't git happy here an' shout yo' kin take th' whole thing an' jump in th' river wif it.'

And mumbling to himself, the old fellow passed through the door and out into the bright morning sunshine. At the far end of the street, he turned and looked back. "I ain't got no time fer no religion nohow," he murmured. He walked on still mumbling to himself, stopping now and then to glance back at the little church. Then an old pain, that had bothered him for many months, throbbed in his breast. It awakened an old fear in his mind, and brought back to him the words of the parson about skeered niggers, an' God a-knowing about it all. He turned back toward the house of worship. "Maybe I'll jest find time fer it," he whispered, and his voice had a peculiar, muffled sound as he talked.

Census report shows that there were 6,368 bales of cotton ginned in Shelby County from the crop of 1936 prior to January 16, 1937, as compared with 5,662 bales ginned to January 16, 1936, crop of 1935.

Good grazing crops during the gestation period require the sow to exercise and provide the vitamins needed for the proper development of the unborn pigs Fall planted rye or oats is excellent for the purpose during the winter months.

In 1934 Alabama farmers repaid 100 per cent of the money they borrowed from the eight productioncredit associations in the state; in 1935 they repaid 99.99 per cent and it now appears that they will repay 100 per cent this year.

ANNOUNCES THE AFFILIATION OF

A. E. Baumgardner

Fully equipped to serve you. Mr. Baumgardner needs no introduction to his many customers whom he has formerly served in Shelby County. He cordially invites his friends to call on him for all auto repairs and acetylene welding, at his new location.

WHY ELSE ARE THEY THERE?

THE main purpose of any large dam, in which is installed generating equipment in keeping with the size of the dam, is to generate electricity. Incidental results can be lessening the effects of floods.

No dam can completely eliminate floods, because if there's more than enough rain to fill the lake behind the dam, the surplus water must run over the dam. But by releasing water from the lake during dry weather, and storing water during rainy weather, the devastation of floods can be lessened; and when they do occur, they come so gradually that persons in lowlands will not be suddenly trapped.

The chief purpose of any hydro-electric development is the generation of electricity. We have six large hydro-electric generating plants in Alabama—on the Coosa and Tallapoosa Rivers. We operate them so as to not only produce an abundance of cheap electricity, but also coordinate their operation in such manner that effects of floods on these rivers, and the Alabama River, which these rivers form, are less than they would be if the dams were not in place.

THIS company engages in, and encourages its employees to engage in, activities beneficial to the area in which it does business. Many of these activities are only incidentally essential or desirable in the conduct of its business. Merely supplying electricity AT REASONABLE RATES is not considered by Alabama Power Company to be its sole duty to the community. This advertisement tells you about one service "not written in the bond."

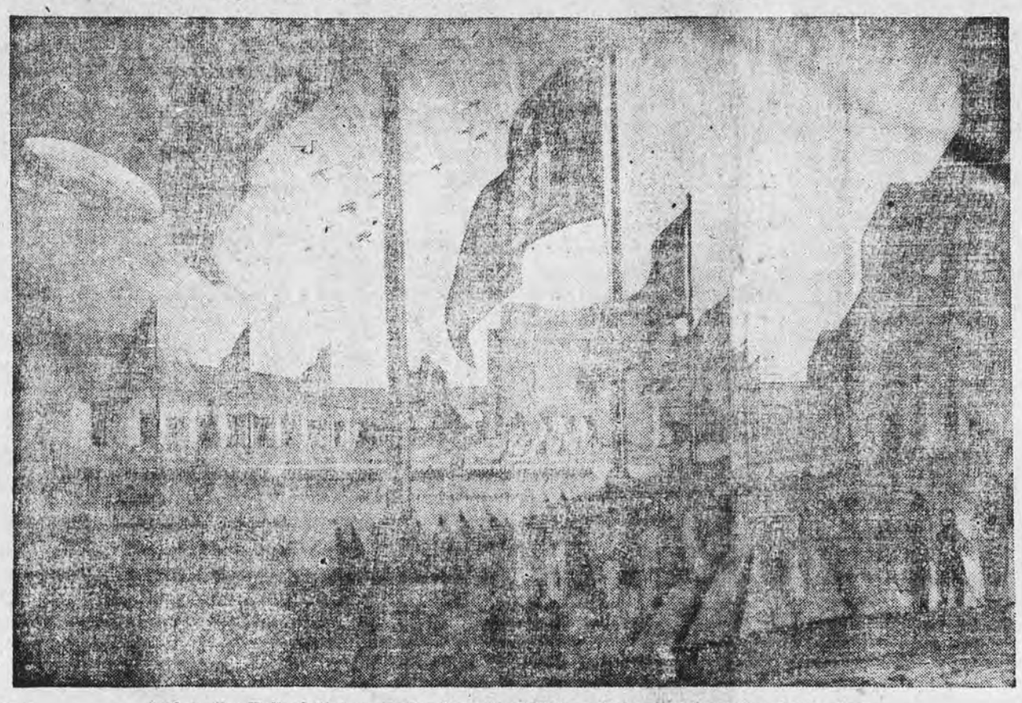
STATES HAVE OPPORTUNITY TO SHOW WARES IN HUGE BUILDING AT NEW YORK FAIR

NEW YORK, (Special).—Included in the limited edition book of unusual size and beauty which the New York World's Fair 1939 Incorporated has sent to state governors and, through diplomatic channels, to foreign governments, is the following text devoted to.



The Sovereign States of the Federal Union

George Washington, in declaring that the public felicity and prosperity of America depend upon the firm union and the unceasing cooperation of the sovereign American States, divined the future. The prosperity and the greatness of these United States have arisen from the free and unimpeded circulation of ideas and products in the world's greatest consumer market.

The Fair gives to each State the appropriate setting and opportunity to announce to the world its unique and indispensable contribution to America's rich and colorful civilization. The Fair contemplates a Hall of States, in the imposing Government group and flanking the structure which the Fair looks to the United States to build, to house the exhibits of the forty-eight States, and the Territories. Those wishing to participate more extensively will, in addition to their exhibits in the Hall of States, either erect their own buildings or obtain space to display their products and attractions in one or more of the exhibit zones.

The State of New York has naturally taken the leadership in the participation of the sovereign St tes of the Federal Union. Its total appropriations for Fair purposes may exceed $5,600,000; and the New York State World's Fair Commission, appointed by the Governor, has been active for some time. Other States already are beginning to express enthusiastic interest in participating more extensively than at previous world's fairs.

The many visitors will find a fresh cause for pride and enthusiasm in the revealing exhibits of their respective States. But beyond this, the exhibits will enable the States to make a persuasive presentation to all visitors of what they have to offer to the consumer and t the tourist.

INTER-HIGH SCHOOL MEET IS SCHEDULED AT MONTEVALLO

MONTEVALLO—Plans for the fourteenth annual Alabama Inter-High School Meet to be held at Alabama College March 26, 27 are announced by W. J. Kennerly of the College faculty, general chairman for the meet.

The bulletin on contest, schedules and requirement was mailed recently to the principals, and to teachers of physical education, music, speech and home economics in every Alabama high school.

Last 75 Alabama high schools participated in the meet. With the yearly increase in attendance of students, Mr. Kennerly expects far more than 1,000 girls to participate in the Montevallo contest this March. The committee on arrangements is working on plans for providing the board and lodging of contestants and their official chaperons. The meet will coincide in time with the Spring holidays at Alabama College, thus allowing visitors use of the dormitories and other campus facilities.

Final date for the fining of entries is March 19. All athletic contest are included in the official Play Day program under regulation of the Alabama High School Athletic Association. The home economics division is offering 11 contests, which will include competition in food preparation, sewing exhibits, and home management. Musicians will compete in piano, voice, violin and organ. The speech division offers contests in poetry, prose, debate, story-telling, and play production.

Dr. M. L. Orr, head of the department of education, is assistant general chairman. Heading the divisions are Miss Alfreda Mosecrop, athletics, assisted by Miss Elsa Schneider; Dr. Lois Ackerly, home economics; Prof. H. D. LeBaron, Music; and Miss Ellen-Haven Gould, speech and debate.

DEMONSTRATION CLUB MEETING

The New Hope Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Cecil Shaw on Wednesday, January 6th, for a spend-the-day meeting. Each member brought some article of which sh esewed to be donated to the Flood Sufferers. 17 women enjoyed the delicious dinner at the lunch hour. The regular demonstration was held in the afternoon at 1:30 at which time several other members came in. The meeting also celebrated the birthday anniversary of one of its most active club members, Mrs. J. M. Denson. The celebration was in the form of a Handkerchief Shower. She was also presented with a lovely birthday cake.

The handkerchiefs were presented in a most novel way. Two members including Mrs. Denson were asked to take part in a sack blowing contest. They were instructed to empty the contents of the sack that were given them upon a signal and then instructed to blow the sack and the first one bursting his sack was to be given a prize. Mrs. Denson's sack contained the novelty handkerchiefs which were given by the other members of the club and upon pouring them out in her lap and after blowing up the sack she discovered that the contents of her sack were different to the other contestants.

A recreational period was also enjoyed and the Home Agent gave the demonstration on "Refinishing Floors and Furniture." Plans were made for carrying out a birthday remembrance idea. Each member having drawn a person's name and his birth date and was asked to remember that person in some way, either with a card or a gift.

The meeting adjourned to meet in March at the home of Mrs. A. B Davis. The following contribution was given by the home demonstration club of New Hope to the Flood Sufferers.

1 pair ladies bloomers, 1 child petticoat, 1 flannel childs kimona, 1 childs bodice, 1 towel, 1 pair pillow cases, 1 pair childs pants, 2 pillow cases, 1 towel, 1 childs fleece night gown, 1 sack apron, 1 boys suit, 1 boys suit.

Mrs. C. W. Bradley spent Saturday in Montgomery.

Woodrow and Owen Parker, David Harris and Carter Bynum spent the week end with their families at Onconta.

WILSONVILLE P. T. A. TO MEET NEXT TUESDAY AT 7:30

The Parent-Teacher Association of Wilsonville will hold a regular meeting in the school auditorium next Tuesday evening, February 16th at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. G. H. Stewart is to present perhaps the most interesting program of the year "Going To School With Your Child." This is a program no parent should miss for there are always daily problems to meet when a child reaches school age and needs more than ever the moral support of his parents.

Miss Ida Edwards has planned a lot of fun for you in her recreational period following the program. And you may be sure the "eats" will be fine, for the hostesses are Mrs. Paul Smith, Mrs. Tom Reinhardt and Mrs. Young Johnson.

Our January meeting had to be held in the afternoon on account of the rain or threatened rain and many of the fathers were unable to attend. So let's make this meeting our very best with every member present. And be sure to bring those friends and parents who should be mmebers.

CENTRAL ALABAMA DISTRICT OF F. F. A

The Central Alabama District of the Future Farmers of America held its regular monthly meeting at Clanton last Monday night, February 1st.

An oratorical contest was the opening feature of the meeting and was entered by contestants from Billitgsley, Jemison and Columbiana Chapters and won by Arnold White of Jemison, whose subject was "Home Beautification."

Representatives from Columbiana, Clanton, Isabella, Billingsley and Centerville entered the essay contest which was held next, and was won by Albert Lokey of Columbiana, who wrote on 'Horse Power for the Farm' Prizes of five dollars were awarded to each of the two winners.

Postponement of the previously planned district rally for February 28th, moving the date to March 6th was decided upon at the meeting.

The Columbiana Chapter would like to announce that fruit trees are for sale by all members of the club and any business will be appreciated; so patronize the F. F. A. boys and get best quality trees at moderate prices.

An old fashioned fiddler's convention will be held at the High School Auditorium on Friday night, February 19th, which is being sponsored by The F. F. A. Club of Columbiana and all string bands, quartettes, and those who play fiddles, guitars, or banjos are invited to participate and help in advertising the entertainment

Get busy and let's see what we can do with the "powers that be" in Washington. This hospital location would be ideal it seems to us—and would mean a great deal to the County.

HOMES BOUGHT BACK ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

Alabamians whose homes or other real estate were sold for State taxes prior to January 1st, 1935, may redeem the property between now and January 1, 1938, in quarterly installment without having to pay interest or penalties.

This bill was passed by the present Legislature and signed by the Governor.

BIRMINGHAM SLAG COMPANY CO-OPERATES WITH SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement tha tis calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, The Birmingham Slag Company is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

The Birmingham Slag Company started in business in 1910 in a small way selling nothing but an un-crushed and un-screened pit run blast furnace slag most of which was used as track ballast by several railroads. In 1912 a small crushing and screening plant was built, having a capacity of five hundred tons per day. In 1916 Mr. C. L. Ireland and his three sons of Ohio bought the company and began to enlarge operations and increase production—and in 1918 a modern crushing and screening plant was built with a capacity of four thousand tons a day. A modified pit system, to handle the daily make of hot slag was also installed and from 1918. this company (the largest slag plant in the United States) was in continous operation and produced over a million tons of sized "Ensley Basic Slag" during 1926.

In 1920 a second plant was built at Alabama City to handle the production of the two blast furnaces of the Guft States Steel Company, this plant having a capacity of one thousand tons a day.

Two small plants were competed in 1926, one with a capacity of one thousand tons daily at Bessemer and one at Alice Furnace, Birmingham, with a 300 ton daily capacity. The last and most modern plant was built in 1928 at Fairfield. This plant included modified slag pits and the most modern equipment, electrically operated for the crushing, washing and accurate sizing of various sizes. It has a capacity of three thousand tons daily.

Crushed and screened Ensley Basic Slag has been used successfully in thousands of miles of surface treatment in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, and North and South Carolina and Tennessee and other states and for these reasons—Slag's cubical shape produces a non-skid surface. It bonds better because of its rough surface and angular fracture. It is free from all foreign materials. It's toughness withstands the wear of traffic. Lighter in weight, less freight, and greater economy, Crush-"Ensley Basic Slag" has been used in all types of concrete buildings, bridges, roads and in all types of butuminous pavements.

The company has been manufacturing for years at Fairfield a bituminous cold mixed paving material known to the trade as "Ensley Colmix."

The Alabama Highway Department is using some 25.000 tons of this splendid material in widening and surfacing of the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway in Shelby County north of Calera.

"Ensley Colmix" meets the specifications of U. S. Bureau of Public Roads for "cold laid bituminous concrete." It is shipped in open top cars as trucks for repair and surfacing of new and old highways, streets and bridge floors.

It is skid proof and their especially trained men will be glad to discuss your construction and maintenance problems with you.

The South should indeed be proud of having the Birmingham Slag Co. located here.

Lefty Cook's Cafe In Birmingham Serves Good Food At Fair Prices

When the question is asked in Shelby County, "Where is a good place to eat in Birmingham?", the answer comes back in a hurry — "Lefty Cook's Cafe at 2217 5th Avenue, North."

Mr. J. A. (Lefty) Cook is no stranger to the people of Shelby County as he was reared at Plantersville and has played baseball all over this entire section and it was beginning there that he made hosts of friends here and he has continued to make them. He has been in business five years and has built up an enviable volume of business during these years.

Only the best the market affords is served here and prepared in a sanitary kitchen where everything is kept spotless and cleanliness is the watchword. Fried chicken dinners are served every day — in fact any thing you may want, you can rest assured you can get it here.

This writer congratulates the people of this section on having Lefty Cook's Cafe in Birmingham to go to. Meet your friends here.

NEHI BOTTLING COMPANY ALWAYS CO-OPERATES WITH SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to us the Nehi Bottling Company of Birmingham is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

The Nehi Company was established in Birmingham years ago and their products right from the start has been making hosts of friends through out this entire section.

Their latest and one of the most popular drinks on the market is the Royal Crown Cola. It is a delicious beverage and once you drink an R C Cola you become a "regular" R C Cola drinker.

It is concerns like the Nehi Company and men like Mr. Walter King Hatcher that want to see their smaller neighbors grow and develop that make us progress and this writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having them in our midst.

THE BIRMINGHAM OIL MILL ALWAYS CO-OPERATES WITH SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. R. E. Binion, general manager of the Birmingham Oil Mill, is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

The Southern Cotton Oil Company who bought the Birmingham Oil Mill in 1926 have been manufacturing fertilizers over forty years and they have made hosts of friends and customers throughout this entire section by their fair and square business dealings.

Space doesn't permit us to dwell on the superior qualities of SCOCO fertilizers but in this writer's opinion, it is one of the best fertilizers on the market. It is to their own advantage to give the farmers the highest quality fertilizer as they are dependent upon the return he gets from his crop. So, naturally, they are putting out the best fertilizer they know how.

Their Red Tag Banner Brand Cotton Seed Meal is also a specialty with them. It is specially ground and blended in color and has been used extensively in this section.

This newspaper has no hesitaincy in recommending the Birmingham Oil Mill to the farmers of this section

Daniel's Marinello Beauty Salon at Caheen's .. Has Been In Business There Over 20 Years

Located on the third floor of Caheen's is Daniel's Marinello Beauty Salon which is owned and operated by Mr. J. D. Daniel. Mr. Daniel has made hosts of friends in Shelby County by his fair treatment to everyone and the quality of beauty culture received at his beauty salon.

The staff consisting of twelve are all experienced operators and have had years of beauty shop experience. Of course, all phases of beauty culture are taken care of and at fair and reasonable prices. All equipment throughout is the most modern and up to date on the market and to sum it all up, Daniel's Marinella Beauty Salon is recognized as one of the leading beauty salons in the entire South.

Mr. Daniel appreciates the patranage of Shelby County people and this paper has no hesitaincy in recommending his shop to the ladies of Shelby County.

COSBY HODGES MILLING COMPANY CO-OPERATES WITH SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, the Cosby Hodges Milling Company is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads Edition of the Democrat.

This progressive firm has been in business, serving the people of this section for fifty years and during these years they have made hosts of friends by their fair and square business dealings. Mr. J. C. Hodges, president, has long been identified with the merchants of Alabama and he has given full efforts in all Anti-Sales tax measures of the State.

Their line of Jazz poultry, dairy and stock feed needs no introductionin their midst. as it is recognized all over the South as the South's best feed. Right at this time they are featuring Jazz all Mash Starter Feed, a life saver for baby chicks. This mash starter is a balanced ration for baby chicks, to insure quicker growth, build bone, flesh and feathers.

Their line of flour—White Tulip and Mo-Biscuit flour, is also well known and one will find these flours at practically all leading grocery stores, not only in Shelby County but in the entire South.

Cosby Hodges Milling Company is southern owned and operated and this writer congratulates the people of this section that they are located

"Birmingham Nurseries" Is The Oldest Established Nursery In Jefferson County

Established in 1910, the Birmingham Nurseries is the oldest established nursery in Jefferson County. Mr. H. C. Wood, the proprietor is always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County.

A full line of ornamental shrubbery, broad leaf and Corniferous ever greens, flowering shrubs, roses, bulbs of all kinds and shade trees, and fresh cut flowers for every occasion will all be found here and at fair and reasonable prices.

Orders are shipped the same day they are received and special attention is given to out of town orders. There are five modern green houses and fifteen acres in nursery stock at the Birmingham Nurseries. Their telephone number is 7-5507.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having this progressive nursery to serve them. This newspaper has no hesitaincy in recommending the Birmingham Nurseries to its readers. They are located at 300 South Sixth Avenue.

THE BUFFALO ROCK COMPANY HAS BEEN IN BUSINESS SEVERAL YEARS

Buffalo Rock Company

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. Sidney Word Lee, president of the Buffalo Rock Company is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

Mr. Lee is no stranger to the people of Shelby County, as he has owned property here for over 25 years and during this time he has made hosts of friends by his fair treatment to everyone.

Mr. Sid Lee came to Birmingham February 1st, 1888, and entered the wholesale grocery business, remaining in this business until 1917 and it was during the tme he was in this business that he began the manufacture of Buffalo Rock Ginger Ale.

The present modern plant was built in 1922. This same year, Mr. Lee was elected president of the National Bottlers Association, being re-elected in 1923.

Buffalo Rock Ginger Ale is a delightful and healthful beverage and is prescribed by physicians everywhere in cases of nausea and fever and a delicious drink to serve with meals or parties or otherwise.

It was Mr. Sid Lee who really built the present road between Vincent and Leeds as he secured donations from several of his friends and a fitting tribute to him is a memorial on top of the mountain.

This writer and newspaper both congratulate the people of Shelby County on having a citizen like Mr. Sid Lee in their midst.

DIXIE CULVERT AND METAL CO. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. Z. O. Riddle of the Dixie Culvert and Metal Company is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads Edition of the Shelby County Democrat.

The Dixie Culvert and Metal Company and Mr. Riddle have been doing business with Shelby County for 29 years and they have made hosts of friends throughout this entire section by their fair and square business dealings.

This progressive concern is one of the nation's largest manufacturers of bridges, culvert pipe, sold under the trade name of ARMCO, and tanks of all kinds and practically highway (that has been improved) that you travel on will find some of Dixie Culvert and Metal Company's material has been used on this road.

Mr. Riddle is a native of Alabama and naturally he is interested in any project that will tend to put forward the growth and development of this County and he can be counted on at all times to do his full part.

The Dixie Culvert and Metal Company maintain plants and branch offices in every southern city and they are prepared at all times to render the quickest possible service on any of their products.

This writer congratulates the people of this section in having such a firm located in their midst and feels like when the County officials specify Dixie bridges, culverts, etc., that they are putting the best products of its kind in the building of Shelby County Roads.

$300. In Cash Prizes Awarded Young Farmers In Cotton Growing Contest

The prize winners of Parker's Acre Contest, the officials of the Sylacauga Fertilizer Company, and many of the prominent agricultural leaders in the state, among whom were Mr. J. C. Lowery, of the Extension Service at Auburn; Mr. Alexander Nunn, editor of the Progressive Farmer; Mr A. A. Lauderdale, county agent of Shelby County and many others were the guests of the Sylacauga Fertilizer Company and the Avondale Mills at a luncheon given at the Avondale Mills Tea Room. The luncheon was given for the boys who won the prizes, their fathers being invited also. The total number present was 43, and a delightful plate containing turkey and all that goes with it was served.

After the luncheon, Mr. H. A. Parker, of the Sylacauga Fertilizer Co., mad ea short talk: "After my father died six years ago I came back to Sylacauga. The cotton seed situation in this section was in very bad shape. We began to see immediately if we could do something to better the situation. The Avondale Mills had to ship in the long staple cotton they used from long distances and were eager to take a hand to help. Mr. Donald Comer and Mr. Craig Smith immediately co-operated with the Sylacauga Fertilizer Company. After talking with Mr. Lowery about this, we shipped in some Delto and Pine Land Seed then called 4-8. The next year we shipped in a ton of D. P. L. No. 11 and they turned out so well that the following year we shipped in a car We all know how well these turned out in the three counties of Talladega, Shelby and Coosa. We have gotten to the place where we are going to have to raise the yield per acre if we expect to stay in the cotton business. After talking to Mr. Brown, who approved a Boy's Acre Contest, we decided to put it on in these counties. The purpose of this contest was to show that with the proper fertilization and cotton seed the yield per acre could be greatly increased.

Mr. J. W. Brown then was introduced and was very optimistic in his views of what we could do in this section, stressing the point that "we have got to talk of two bales of cotton instead of one to the acre. You can raise two instead of one if you prepare for it.

Mr. A. A. Lauderdale then spoke a minute, stressing the fact that these boys made one and one-half bales o fcotton to the acre by using the proper analysis of fertilizer and good seed. Mr. Lauderdale said that their fathers and the farmers should be able to do the same thing.

Mr. Alexander Nunn, of the Pro gressive Farmer, made a remarkable speech on the importance of agriculture going hand in hand with other important factors in the cotton business. He stressed the same thing that Mr. Donald Comer has for the past several years—that agriculture and industry go hand in hand.

After these fine speeches Mr. Parker introduced the prize winners in each County, congratulating them on the splendid manner in which they co-operated in making the contest a tremendous success.

Mr. J. C. Lowery made a wonderful speech, emphasizing the farmers of Alabama must continue to raise a higher grade of cotton. Mr. Lowery stated that a cotton buyer for one of the biggest concerns outside of the state said that their concern had rather use Alabama cotton where a good quality was raised than any other kind. He said that last year we had 35 per cent short staple cotton and this year only 5 per cent, and that we must do even better than this. We must not let a high pressure salesman sell us a short staple seed but strive to grow a better quality cotton.

Get behind the fine work that has been started and carry the program on because you have made a fine start. We could have some of the best cotton in the South if we could eliminate short staple cotton. We have got to make a higher yield use the best quality cotton that is possible for us to. The way to do this is by the proper soil conservation and the proper fertilizer with good seed. The thing we should strive for is to make the most and the best cotton we can to th eacre. I hope that the good work that has been started will be carried on.

Several others spoke briefly, and among them was Mr T B Russell, who paid a high tribute to Mr Parker. Quote Mr. Russell: "I want to say that I think Mr. Parker is the most progressive man in the county as far as helping the farmer is concerned."

After the dinner the party went to Sylacauga, where Mr. Parker presented the boys with their prizes, after making another remarkable speech.

"BE YE PERFECT"

W. B. Hope, Pastor Columbiana Methodist Church

"The Church is of God, and will be preserved to the end of time, for the promotion of His worship and the due administration of His word and ordinances, the maintenance of Christian fellowship and discipline, the edification of believers, and the conversion of the world. All, of every age and station, stand in need of the means of grace which it alone supplies; and it invites all alike to become fellow citizens with the saints and of the household of God." - - Methodist Discipline, Page 361. The Church is defined as a congregation of faithful persons, in which the pure word of God is preached, the sacrements duly administered according to Christ's ordinance, in all those things that of necessity are requisite to the same. The Church does not exist for itself. Being composed of men and women of human frailties it is imperfect. There has never been a congregation of perfect people; there never will be here on earth. But perfection is our ideal the goal toward which we are pressing, and the Church helps us in our efforts to attain that which Christ commended: "Be ye perfect, as four Father in heaven is perfect."

There is no other institution under heaven that is doing the work of the Church, or that proposes to do the work of the Church. Our Master said for us to first seek the Kingdom, and taught us to pray 'Thy Kingdom Come'. It is our task to preach teach, pray and labor until the kingdom of this world becomes the kingdom of our Lord; until the earth is as full of the knowledge and gory of God as the seas are of water.

Is this a worthy ideal? Is not this a noble task? Then why not help? There are two churches in Columbiana for white people, and at either you will be given a hearty welcome. Come, thou, and go with us and we will do thee good; and thou mayest be a blessing to us. Attend Church next Sunday.

Labor Troubles A Test Of American Democracy

"You make me impatient when you talk of democracy," said Italy's dictator, Mussolini, pounding on the table to stress his points to an American correspondent. Democracy doesn't exist, and can't exist today, he insisted.

"If by democracy you mean government for and in the interests of the people," he went on "then our system and ours alone is truly democratic."

Ah, but we don't, Signor Mussolini. One of our own leaders, and a greater than you, Signor, called it "government of the people, by the people, and for the people." Note the first two phrases, Signor. Not only "for the people," as you claim your government is, but actually "of the people and by the people."

Italy sees no such imbroglios as now holds the American motor industry in its grip. Not Mussolini but other partisans of his regime, have already pointed this out. Strikes are out.

But why? Is it to be supposed that there is in Italy, or Germany, or Russia, no dissatisfaction whatever with labor conditions which have been laid down by the government, and imposed on both employer and worker?

Only the very simple would suppose so. But in such countries, where a tightly organized group seizes sole power with the announced purpose of weilding it "for the people," remember that there is no labor organization in the American sense at all. Such unions as existed before their respective revolutions were either smashed or concerted into more government agencies.

It is not too much to suggest that, in the labor difficulties coming to a head in the United States this year, America faces a test of her democracy. Will American workers, labor organizers, managers, and capitalists have the good sense to get together and solve their problems to their mutual benefit, with good will and open decency?

Or will dependence on the government to settle individual disputes grow and spread into what gradually tecome a system of government-directed labor and industrial relations?

No country can permit continual paralysis of its key industries. That is why all lovers of democracy and freedom hope that reason and sanity will prevail in the auto and other disputes.

For when the reasonable composition of these quarrels fails to be achieved directly between labor and capital, tnen both labor and capital stand in danger of losing part of their freedom when government sets its hand on the controls.

America can afford to suffer much to keep these freedoms alive. Let those who still have it use it well and wisely.—Selma Times Journal.

Back To The Governor

Refusal of the special Henry County Grand Jury to return an indictment in the lynching at Tumbleton a week ago will lend additional strength to the demand upon Congress for a national law to prevent lynchings.

It is evident that the Henry County jury was looking for an out when it passed the buck and attempted to hang its refusal to act on the fact that the governor has instituted impeachment proceedings against the sheriff.

It was within the jurisdiction and duty of the jury to indict, censure or clear the sheriff for his part in the lynching but, regardless of that phase of its investigation, it was the sworn and solemn duty of the jury to indict and bring to trial every member of the mob.

Alabamians, especially many South Alabamians, lament loudly against anything which hints of an infringement upon state's rights. Southern senators and representatives have stood stanchly against enactment of Federal laws to end lynching yet time and again we in the South have winked officially at mob murders.

It is the duty of the governor and within his power to see the Henry County case is not treated lightly. The lyncher has no place in civilized society except behind prison bars. At large he is a threat t othe safety of all.—Birmingham Post.

Journalistic Accuracy

Newspapers cannot expect to be infallible. They all make mistakes.

When a newspaper makes a statement upon its authority the public may properly hold it responsible for the accuracy of that statement.

When, however, a newspaper quotes someone else and has used reasonable diligence in checking the reliability of the party quoted, then the responsibility for misstatement should not be attributed to the newspaper, but to the party quoted.

Weather reports when they go awry cause people to exclaim that "you can't believe anything the paper says." We know of no newspaper in this country which maintains a weather forecasting service.

Weather reports and prophecies are published as they are received from official weather bureaus, whose presonnel are dealing with uncertain and temperament elements, an dsometimes are mistaken.

A newspaper does not go out and hold up a bank or crash a car into the side of a railway train just to get a "story."

When such unfortunate happenings occur, a reporter is sent to interview eye-witnesses of the police and it is upon what he is told that the story which appears in the paper is largely based.

Careful as a newspaper may be in checking and double checking its information and sources of information, errors of statement will creep into its colums.

A newspaper thrives or decays upon its reputation for accuracy or lack of accuracy, but no newspaper can be more accurate than those members of a critical public whom it quotes or upon whose statements it bases the articles it publishes.—Dertoit Free Press.

Fraught With Danger

No person in Alabama is in better position to appreciate the significance of the proposed anti sit-down strike bill than Governor Graves. Since assuming office he has had occasion many times to serve as mediator in labor-employer disputes and has heard both sides of the controversies. On the proposed anti-sit-down strike measure he says:

"This is no time for passage of legislation that would disturb relatoins between employer and employe. What we need most right now is a better understanding and not legislation that would merely array one group against another."

Laws already on the statute book are adequate to deal with the illegal sitdown strike. The proposed anti-sit-down measure is fraught with danger of abuse and should be killed.

Dangerous Age

In a midwestern city, a survey has been made of its first sixteen traffic deaths in 1937, and some odd facts were discovered. None of these victims was killed by a drunken driver; none died as a result of excessive speed; and none was a child.

However, study of these cases uncovered the significant fact that 12 of the 16 unfortunates were pedestrians, and that the average age of these 12 was 61.

The survey, of course, covered but a half month's fatalities; but the result emphasize that aged pedestrians are "marked for death" unless they use eytra caution in crossing streets.

Whether it is defective vision, inabliity to judge auto speeds, or the inclination to save steps by jaywalking, that is responsible for this high mortality among the aged, is hard to determine. Whatever the cause, neices, nephews, sons and daughters may save some loved ones if they will assume the task of educating their elders to street dangers.—Times Journal.

———:o:——— —

When Mr. Roosevelt begins his search for six eminent judges to add to his New Tribunal, making it 15, he will hardly overlook Senator Hugo Black of Alabama, one of the most ardent and orthodox New Dealers in public life. If the Senator should experience any twinges of independence in his thinking, it would be a freakish turn of the mind that could be easily corrected. The Senator would assasy 18 karat in political purity. He has never at any time spoken disrespectfully of the equator, as Mark Twain would say.

Senator Robinson and Representative Bankhead pliantly promise they will support the 15 member Supreme Court proposal. Not if they consult their constituents.

WHAT IS MAN?

Man is a two-legged animal that chews tobacco and walks on the forked end.

Most men were born. We never heard of but on ethat wasn't and he was made of mud—just for example.

Man is found in most parts of the world. He roams at will, feeds in the day time—some nights.

He is very tame. You can go up to and put your hand on him anywhere so you don't put it on his pocketbook; he has under such conditions been known to kick.

Man's life is full of appointments, prunes and cob pipes.

He goeth forth like a lion in the morning and leaves the wood for his wife to chop. In the evening he sneaks home with his pants ripped, raises cain about hard times.

Like the elephant he has a trunk but he don't always take it with him—but the elephant does.

Men are like nails in one respect; in nine cases out of ten when either of them are crooked they have been driven to it by a woman.

Men are like chickens—they always want to get on the highest roost.

No man will swear before a lady, he always lets her swear.

Little things sometimes worry man most—twins for instance.

Man may enjoy taking his sweetheart upon his knee but after marron."

Man flourishes like a ragweed today and to-morrow the undertaker has him salted away in his ice box.

Now, as to what man is really good for, anthropology is still in the dark. Being strong he is used to drawing pictures, carry news and pull revolvers. Properly trained, man can jump higher than any known animal. He has even been known to jump a mountain resort board bill.

Although in many ways man is like other animals, in this respect he differs from all. He lies while standing up.—Selected.

Setting out black walnut seedlings, or planting the nuts in fertile spots about over the farm, is a profitable investment, reports Lyle Brown, extension forester, in pointing out that there is always a strong demand for black walnut timber and the nuts are valuable for home use and for sale.

Every sheep brought into the flock should be inspected for scabies and certified by a competent inspector, warns the Bureau of Animal Husbandry in advising that "sheep scab mites are usually brought into a healthy flock on community bucks, feeder sheep, and othe rnew animals.'

WANTS A A A PROGRAMS TO REMAIN NATIONAL

AUBURN—Secreary Wallace believes that the provision requiring that administration of the Agricultural Conservation program be transferred to the States by January 1st, 1938, should be postponed or repealed.

People interested in the present and future success of the AAA program "believe that both national and local welfare call for its continued administration as a federal program with farmers, farm leaders and state college representatives participating directly in planning and operation," he says.

It now seems possible that cattle tuberculosis—which once cost farmers millions of dollars a year—will eventually disappear from all dairy and beef cattle herds in the United States.

Eighteen farm leaders of the Alabama Experiment Station and Extension Service are scheduled to appear on the program of the 38th annual convention of the Association of Agricultural Workers in Nashville Tenn., February 3 to 5 to discuss various agricultural subjects and problems.

Rural fires in recent years have taken annually an average toll of 3,500 lives and piled up a property loss estimated at $100,000,000.

Alabama's eight production credit associations loaned farmers of the state over $2,500,000 in 1936. The amount of loans by associations follow: Auburn, $237,000; Anniston, $168,000; Bay Minette, $146,000; Demopolis $430,000; Huntsville, $348,000 Montgomery, $850,000; Ozark, $178,000; and Russellville, $186,000.

NUMBER TWO OF A SERIES

A Tale of Opportunity In Alabama

"BURIED" outside of Alabama and the South are billions of dollars—dollars that might be working in the South, and particularly in Alabama, if, in past years "outside money," had been more fully acquainted with the opportunities for development in the South.

Other "buried" treasure is the money earned and spent and inherited by 3½ millions of Southern people who have gone elsewhere to live and prosper within the past 30 years—money amounting to 15 to 20 billions of dollars that would have been spent in the South, had the natural resources of the South been developed to the point where these Southerners could have remained at home and prospered—money that would have helped give the South better schools, and roads, and other institutions.

Some Of That Buried Treasure Can Be Brought To Alabama

Of course this treasure is not truly buried. But it might just as well be buried so far as the South is concerned.

This treasure need not be lost to the South forever. During the past 14 years, this Company, working with other far-seeing Alabama citizens, has been successful in bringing some of this treasure into Alabama—treasure in the form of new industrial plants—treasure that has helped bring about a more even balance between agricultural and other activities—treasure that has made opportunities for many of the fine girls and boys graduating from Alabama's schools.

Our Industrial Development Department is busier than ever before seeking this "buried treasure" to bring into Alabama for the benefit of ALL of her citizens.

THIS company engages in, and encourages its employees to engage in, activities beneficial to the area in which it does business. Many of these activities are only incidentally essential or desirable in the conduct of its business.

Merely supplying electricity AT REASONABLE RATES is not considered by Alabama Power Company to be its sole duty to the community. This advertisement tells you about one service "not written in the bond."

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

Tenderly enshrined in the hearts of most of us who have lived long enough, to own a garden, lies a Garden of Remembrance. Far removed from this old orange ball—called the world—is this enchanted spot. Many of our treasured dreams lie buried there. Happy memories too, lie slumbering—to be re-awakened by souvenirs symbolic of various occasions. In this instance, we are speaking of good old St. Valentine's Day. Hearts and Flower Day—and who doesn't remember those "three little words said with "flowers" or on a deep crimson heart or with a corsage of purple violets . . . . ?

Allowing Memory to roam the sunny track back to a golden yesteryear, we browsed thru some of our treasured possessions last night—while the soothing raindrops sang a lullaby on the roof. The night was made for DREAMING. This is one of the relics from the land of yesteryear:

"I found them in a book last night
These withered violets;
A token of that early love
That no one ever forgets.
Pressed carefully between the leaves
They keep their color still,
I cannot look at them today
Without an old time thrill.

Ah, me, what tricks does memory play
For passing years have fled
And hopes that lived in vigor once
Alas! Have long been dead—
And this is all that I can say
When all is done and said
These flowers remind me of some boy
I wish I knew which one."

P. T. A. ENTERTAINS

The P. T. A. members of the Columbiana Chapter will entertain their friends at the High School Auditorium on next Friday night at 7:30 o'clock, with a Valentine Party. Everyone is cordially urged to be present. A carefully planned program will furnish varied entertainment and both old and young will be extended a cordial welcome.

THOMASINE PULLEN

Friends are sincerely extending sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Embrey Perry, grand parents of little Thomasine Pullen of Vicksburg, Miss., who was burned to death on February 1st She was a versatile and talented singer and dancer and a much sought after entertainer in Vicksburg. Although only 8 years old, a brilliant future had been predicted for this charming little personality. Thomasine was the daughter of Mrs. Pullen (Dora Perry) whom many will remember as an honor graduate of Shelby High School several years ago, and a niece of Leon and Ted Perry who were also outstanding student of this school.

A CORRECTION

We are happy to correct figures given us last week regarding the contribution from Vincent to the sufferers which should have been $74.00, according to a letter received from Mrs. Dick McGraw this morning. Thanks Mrs. McGraw for calling our attention to this discrepancy.

BENTON LETSON

High in the circles of Shelby County celebrities stands Benton Letson, youthful radio operator and son of Mrs. J. W. Letson of Columbiana, who, after graduating from Shelby County High School, accepted a position in Florida as radio engineer. Several weeks ago, his big chance came and he was ordered to Briston, England, sailing as a radio expert on the Ship LeHigh. While abroad Mr. Letson will tour all European ports, spanning the "Big Pond" speed our good wishes to this splendid young fellow whose future success is already assured.

MRS. PURNIE HENDRICKS

Mrs. Purnie Hendricks, former resident of Columbiana, who left recently to accept a teaching position in Talladega School for the Blind, is the charming house guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Ellis. Mrs. Hendricks endeared herself to Columbiana civic, social and religious circles where for a number of years, she graciously gave of her musical talent Many programs are happily remembered when Mrs. Hendricks played the Marimba accompanied by Mrs. L. E. Christian, painist, especially de we recall the lovely rendition of one of our favorites—Roses of Picardy.

JAMES R. WHITE

Friends of James R. White are delighted to see his familiar figure on Main Street, as he jauntily saunters down the boulevard with the ever smoking cigarette, set at just the right angle in that new Ivory holder which Lord Mayor Gordon gave him and declares it came from CHINA. Wotta a Harry!

C. E. NIVEN

A happy note is heard around the postoffice where the many friends of Charlie Niven, popular postmaster, learned of his return to Columbiana after a serious spell of illness in Birmingham. No one has been more sincerely missed by EVERYBODY than just "Mr. Charlie."

RHYTHM RISTOCRATS

The Rhythm Ristocrats will entertain their friends and devotees of terpsichore on next Frday night at 9 o'clock with a Valentine Dance in the Masonic Hall. Over 100 guests were present on the occasion of the Roosevelt Ball and a large crowd is expected on the gay holiday mentioned above.

GROUND PIGGY

That little weather prophet known as the Ground Hig had more sense than we gave him credit for possessing, when he saw his shadow and returned to his lair until further and more favorable conditions were presented for his approval. It is bitterly cold today—and the new Spring coat we have been wishing for is a thing of the past. We are now wishing for something "warm and comfortable" looking—although the new Spring colors, especially that new "crushed cherry" shade appeals to us strongly, as a "thing of beauty and a joy forever.

MR. and MRS. BYRD CURRY

We are joining a host of friends in Shelby County in just "being glad" to report that both our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Byrd Curry of Wilton, Alabama, are well on the highway to recovery after a long seige of illness. Mrs. Curry has returned from Selma, having undergone an operation, and Mr. Curry has recently returned from a visit across the continent to California in an endeavor to regain his health. Happily do we greet them back "home" again.

DEMOCRAT'S ANNIVERSARY

During the month of April the Democrat will celebrate its 6th birthday anniversary. We are planning an extra large edition, and request that those of you who have so loyally supported this enterprise now come forward with that SUBSCRIPTION which is past due. We again express our keen appreciation to you for your valuable support. Now, we are "waiting to hear you say it with an American Eaglet." Columbiana will also be 100 years old, and the Edition will be in honor of both the Town and the County's most widely read paper, and Alabama's most distinctive weekly.

MR. AND MRS. MAX LEFKOVITS ENTERTAIN

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Lefkovits is always a perfect setting for one of those famous "Miss Dottie Dinners." On Tuesday night, these popular hosts entertained Mr. Hutchins, President of the T. C. I. Company, Mr. Simpson, an official of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, Mr. Levy of the Alabama Power Co., and Mr. Phillips, member of a large Manufacturing Company, with a Turkey and Game feast. Following the delicious meal, a few close friends were invited in for Bridge which concluded the nights entertainment offered.

COLUMBIANA LEADER

Want a New Fur Coat? Now is your chance to get it! Max Lefkovits, ever on the alert for bargains, has purchased a collection of fine fur coats, guaranteed by the Montreal Fur Company for three years and storage will be offered free, with a liberal allowance made you on your old fur coat.

An expert furrier will be in charge of this sale which will begin and end on Tuesday, February 16th—one day only—to help you select the type coat you need.

Visit the Columbiana Leader on next Tuesday, and purchase one of these outstanding bargains.

The Leader has, in this issue, presented a new feature called "THE HOT SPOT." This ad will appear every week within the columns of the Democrat with a new red hot special listed each week. Watch for this space this week and every week in the future.

Read the Leader advertisements found elsewhere in this issue of the Democrat.

FRANK HEAD

Frank Head, popular Editor, Attorney, and Sportsman, is being sincerely missed by his many friends this week, he having fallen a victim to the much dreaded company of King Influenza.

AZALEA TRAIL

The Azalea Trail, Mobile's famous beauty spot, will be officially opened on Sunday, February 14th instead of the March date previously set. Spring weather prevailing bringing these colorful blooms earlier than usual. Each year thousands of tourists visit this historic city to ride along the radiantly beautiful trail and view Bellingrath Gardens.

COLUMBIANA GRADUATES

The Alabama College Senior Class will be enhanced by both beauty and brains this year when Jane Fowler, Charlie Verne Tinney and Margaret Ellis grace the "cap and gown" parade.

CULTURE CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. KNOX WOOLLEY

Mrs. Knox Woolley was hostess to the Columbiana Culture Club on last Thursday, February 4th. Yellow jonquils were attractively arranged throughout the rooms.

Mrs. Homer Walton president, presided over the meeting. The program was opened by all singing our club song led by Mrs. W. L. Christian

The Finance Committee is planning to sponsor a picture show in the near future.

The Civic Committee was thanked for the improvement on the court house lawn. Thanks for this work is due Mr. J. W. Stone and his class of high school boys.

Mrs. H. C Nickson was program leader and gave a most interesting paper on "The Rising Tide of Divorce."

A delicious salad plate with coffee was served by the hostess to nine members and Messrs. W. F. Davis J. B. Parham, W. H. Jones, Loren Carter and H. Cole as guests. Mrs E B Cooper and Mrs Cecil Duke resignations were accepted with regrets.

Mrs. W. F. Davis and Mrs. Ed Lovelady were welcomed as new members.

The book "White Banners" by Floyd C. Douglas was presented to the club by the hostess.

NOTICE

On, to-wit: the 30th day of August, 1932, J. R. Hunter and wife, Esther P. Hunter, executed to National Coal & Coke Company, a corporation, a certain mortgage to secure an indebtedness therein recited, and which said mortgage is recorded in the Probate Office of Shelby County, Alabama, in Mortgage Book 164 at page 331, and in said mortgage there is described and conveyed the following property, viz:

The south east quarter of the north east quarter, the north half of the south east quarter, the south west quarter of the south east quarter, and west half of south west quarter of Section 1, and the south east quarter of the south west quarter of Section 1, the north half of the north west quarter and the north west quarter of the north east quarter, except ten acres in the north east corner, Section 12; all in Township 21, Range 5 West, Huntsville Meridian, situated in Shelby County, Alabama.

The indebtedness secured by the aforementioned mortgage is past due and unpaid, and said mortgage together with the indebtedness secured and evidenced thereby were heretofore transferred by said National Coal & Coke Company, a corporation to M. W. Kimbrel by written transfer dated February 1, 1937, and which is recorded in the Probate Office of Shelby County, Alabama, in deed book 102 at page 29. Said mortgage together with the indebtedness secured thereby was by said M. W. Kimbrel transferred and assigned to Esther P. Hunter by written transfer executed on the 6th day of February, 1937, and which transfer or assignment is recorded in the Probate Office of Shelby County, Alabama, in deed book 102 at page 30.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given that the undersigned, Esther P. Hunter, as assignee of said mortgage and the indebtedness evidenced and secured thereby, will, on March the 6th, 1937, within the legal hours of sale, at the front steps of the court house of Shelby County, Alabama, at Columbiana, sell, at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, the property in said mortgage described and conveyed and the proceeds of said sale will be applied as follows: First, to the expense of advertising, selling and conveying said property, including a reasonable attorney's fee; second, the payment of any amounts that have been expended or that may be necessary to expend, in paying insurance, taxes, assessments or other incumbrances, with interest thereon; third, to the payment of the indebtedness secured and evidenced by said mortgage; and fourth, the balance, if any, shall be paid to the mortgagors.

This the 8th day of February, 1937.

ESTHER P. HUNTER,
As assignee of said mortgage.
L. H. ELLIS,
Attorney for Esther P. Hunter,
as Assignee of said mortgage.
Feb. 11, 18, 25.

PAROLE NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that Charlie Norris, colored, convicted in Shelby County on a charge of Assault with Intent to Murder, and sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of seven to ten years, will make application to the Governor and Board of Pardons for a permanent parole. Sentence began November 26, 1930.

Heart Drifts

FRUSTRATION

Out of the tumult in my heart I sought
To weave a song in pattern intricate
Of whirling, wind-blown leaves all deftly wrought
Across a warp of wing irradiate.

But when I tried to put my thoughts in words
They scattered, as do leaves on Fall winds tossed—
Escaped in sudden flight, like flocks of birds.
And in the tumult of my heart were lost.

F. L. M

REBUTTAL

You say that I shoul dlearn to stand alone,
To walk ungirded by the prop of praise,
And by a self willed mastery disown
The staff that love provides for all my days.
You cite the eagle's solitary flight
Beyond the mountain's pinnacle of rocks,
Remarking that so emminent a height
Is not attained by birds who move in flocks.

Perhaps you have not noticed that this bird
Who proves his pinions paramountly strong,
And flies alone, has never yet been heard
To triumph in an ecstasy of song,
While thrush and bobolink and tiny wren
Have naught to prove, yet sing and sing again!

NOT VERY WISE

"Not anything you do can change my love"
I spoke in truth by what small light
I knew
So sure that always I would find the flame
In me rekindled, when I turned to you
But you, whose wisdom was no more than mine,
Put to me all the tests of hand and heart,
Believing—for had I not told you so—
There was no fear that true love could depart

And so today I who once thought that I Should love regardless what the winds might bring,
Can watch thesun, the sea, the hills'
white road,
And never care if you should weep or sing.

—H. W.

CONCEALMENT

I've learned to do my tasks quite well,
At least the people say
My gingerbread is fairly light,
My music, sweet and gay.

I call on shut-ins and I go
To dinner an dto shows;
I laugh—oh, much more frequently—
I'm sure nobody knows

That now and then at people's teas
I almost drop my cup,
Because I a mafraid I'll see
Your face when I look up.

Miss Necie Vann of Lineville, was in the city this week, the guest of Mrs Henry Milner.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lapsley of Selma, were guests of Mrs. J. W. Brooks at the White House this week.

The Jury Term of the County Court is in session. Judge Lyman rendered an able charge to the Grand Jury. J. W. Johnston was made Foreman.

J. F. Pope of Wilsonville was a visitor in Columbiana, Wednesday.

Rev. W. D. Hubbard of Montevallo spent the first part of the week in the city.

Mr. J. H Lane of Sylacauga was in the city this week.

BEG PARDON!

Recently we made a personal mention of the quartette of State Auditors who were spending a few weeks with us—"checking and double checking" our officials—but, it seems in our welcome to these gentlemen, we did not get their "appellations" correct. That is we missed three "names" and hit one—the ONE being the rare name of JONES—which is batting pretty good for "yours truly" We present the following gentlemen of the penpoint industry—human add ing machines—and scrutinizers of public records: Bill Lee of Montgomery; E. B. Hendricks of Monroeville; P. S. Macy, and last but by no means the least of our worries—that blonde exponent of "facts and figures" Mr. Jones, who was a former member of the newspaper craft—and the one who called out attention to our typographical error—for which we tender thanks.

SHELBY TEACHERS CONTINUE STUDY OF CURRICULUM

The Shelby County Teachers Association held its regular monthly meeting in the Shelby County High School Auditorium, Saturday, February 6th. Group singing preceded the devotional which was conducted by Miss Eleanor Atchison. Mr. J. L. Appleton gave the announcements A demonstration was given by the coral club of the Vincent High School that was directed by Miss Katherine Reeves, accompanied by Miss Carleen Embry. Madamoiselle Monique Baillet, an exchange student at Montevallo, from Nimes, France, gave an interesting talk on The Educational System of France. Mrs. Margaret Hodo Walburn, Area Community Worker of the Department of Public Welfare, explained the functions of a County Department of Public Welfare and the mnaner in which a community worker helps to carry out the functions. In the departmental meetings the teachers continued their study, demonstrations, and discussions of the new curriculum.

ALABAMA WRITERS CONCLAVE WILL BE IN MONTEVALLO

Plans for the 1937 Alabama Writers' Conclave which will be held in Montevallo June 15-18, were launched at a meeting of the executive board, the departmental deans, and the committee heads a tthe Tutwiler Hotel recently.

After the business meeting, the Conclave president, Mr. George Lang was host at luncheon to these officers and several distinguished visitors—including three past presidents Martha Lyman Shillito, Mittie Owen McDavid, and Leila Fearne Lusk.

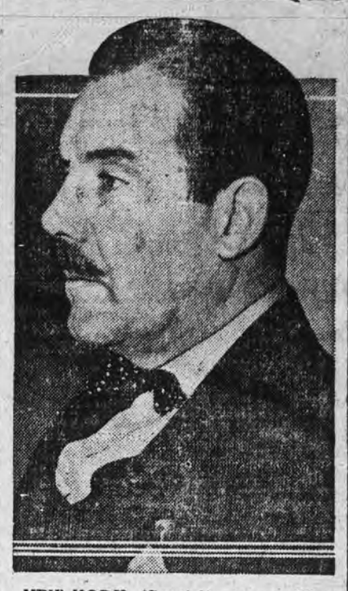
Arrangements for the luncheon were in charge of Dirmie Daniel Terry and Mary B. Ward.

Dr. Arthur F. Harman, president of Alabama College and official host to the Conclave, was one of the speakers; another was Scottie McKenzie Frasier, who came from Atlanta to be present. Mittie Owen McDavid came from Fairhope.

William Huie, one of the editors of "Alabama", the News Magazine of the Deep South, spoke of the plans and purposes of this new publication which is definitely. a regional one.

Scottie Frasier talked of some fam oue personages she met on her recent world travels.

The Conclave will begin with a reception at the home of Dr. Harman on the evening of June 15 and will en dwith a luncheon on the 18th,



The official roster this year is: Dr. George Lang, University of Alabama, president; Margaret Gillie Figh, Huntingdon College, Montgomery, vice president; Leila May Smith, Birmingham, recording secretary: Conrad H. Ohme, Birmingham, treasurer; Mrs. Zebulon Judd, Auburn, historian; Cranford Hirkle, LaFayette, parliamentarian.

Membership is the Conclavé is not confined to writers; all who are interested in literature and its development is Alabama are welcome.

SOME DON'TS FOR CHURCH GOERS

Don't visit. Worship.
Don't hurry away. Speak and be spoken to.
Don't stop in the end of the pew. Move over.
Don't monopolize your hymn book. Be neighborly.
Don't wait for introductions. Introduce yourself.
Don't choose the back seat. Leave it for late comers.
Don't dodge the collection plate. Pay what you are able.
Don't criticize. Remember, and think of your own frailities.
Don't stare blankly while others sing, read and pray. Join in.
Don't leave without praying God's blessings upon all present.
Don't sit with your hands to your head as if worshipping hurts you.
Don't dodge the preacher. Show yourself friendly.

'Everyman's Fair,' Says Whalen

NEW YORK, (Special).—Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, announces that official support and foreign participation in the New York World's Fair of 1939 are reaching new "highs", and that here is an already obvious opportunity for every state to display advantageously its accomplishments and future possibilities and to join in making it one hundred percent "Everyman's Fair."

STATE TO HAVE A VIGOROUS FIGHT OVER REFERENDUM

The Wets and Drys forces of Alabama are girding for battle throughout the state. The drys under the leadership of Harry Dennam and the Alabama Temperance Alliance have organized already. They plan to use the same campaign as that used in 1935. The dry hopes rest on the returns of the last election, a record of 52 out of the 67 counties voting dry. They count on pulling some of the 15 wet counties of the last election over to their side this time.

Although the wets have made very few plans so far their hopes are high for they remember the very close margins on which the drys are basing their claim for a 52 out of the 67 counties win. They feel sure that many of the people who voted against repeal will turn wet.

Altogether it promises to be a very warm nad entertaining battle through out the state.

SHELBY COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARF

Doris Bender, Director

Miss Elizabeth Sessoms, who has served as special Children's Case worker in Shelby County since March 1936, has resigned to take a position with the Crippled Children's Service. The vacancy made by Miss Sessom's leaving will not be filled, due to the fact that the county is not able to give financial support to the Public Welfare Program.

The loss of the Children's Case Worker is indeed a great loss for much of the good work which has been carried on with delinquent, dependent, and neglected children cannot be continued. Only those cases which are very urgent and demand immediate attention can be handled.

It is a great pity that work with children must be so limited, for children's work offers the greatest possibilities for constructive social work, for the prevention of delinquency, dependency, and neglect. Many of the problems with which we are faced today might have been prevented had work with children received more attention in former years.

The only way in which we can hope to fill the gap caused by the loss of this special worker is to rely on "Human-Minded" citizens and community groups to take a larger part in meeting the problems in their communities. We feel that the number of children's problems might be reduced if there were more children in school. if there were opportunities for wholesome and satisfying recreation available to more children and if there were greater economic and social security for the larger percentage of our people. "Human-Minded" citizens working individually and collectively can certainly aid the Public Welfare Department in meeting the needs of our children.

PRESIDENT CHOSEN BEST DRESSED MAN

President Roosevelt was nominated as America's best dressed man by the Merchant Tailors Designers Association in annual convention at Washington last week. The president was placed at the head of a list of 16 "twentieth century beau brummels."

The following note was appended: "The only president in the past 20 years who could be intelligently termed a well dressed man, and hte only one in years whose formal clothes have not looked moth eaten."

TOURNAMENT OF BASKET BALL TO BE HELD-CALERA

The second annual basket ball tournament for the colored schools of Shelby County will be held at the Calera School on Saturday, February 20, 1937. Participants in the tournament will come from within the County and from adjoining counties. The 'Bama State Orchestra will furnish music after the final game. The public is invited to witness the same.

"THE 18 CARAT BOOB" TO BE GIVEN AT WILSONVILLE

A play, "The 18 Carat Boob" will be presented by the Junior 3 Class of Wilsonville School on Friday night February 19th, 1937.

This is a three act comedy. Don't miss it!

The Boob, Buddy Pluff, Charles and Cora will keep you laughing throughout the play.

O. K. CLEANERS NOW OPEN FOR BUSINESS

I tis with pleasure that the Democrat carries the announcement this week of the acquisition by Leon Dorough and "Squatty" Martin of the Tinney Dry Cleaning Company, which is now owned and operated by them under the name of O. K. Cleaners.

This popular firm has modernized and remodeled their shop, and the ned facilities for dry cleaning guarantees you 24 hour srevice with satisfaction assured you on every garment.

The firm of Dorough and Martin enjoy wide popularity as tonsorial artists, and their shop carries a bath with the modern conveniences of both hot and cold water.

When in need of a shave or hair cut, or any dry cleaning or laundry service we recommend that you give this firm a call. They call for and deliver promptly.

CARD OF THANKS

May I take this opportunity to offer my sincere appreciation to the Teachers, Parents, Patrons and Friends of the Columbiana Schools who so cooperatively worked with us and were responsible for the successful Valentine arty on Friday night? I am grateful to each of you for your loyalty and helpful suggestions in carrying out the program arranged in an endeavor to defray some outstanding indebtedness which was an emergency measure and which you have enabled us to mark PAID.

Gratefully yours,

INDUSTRIES SEEK FIND LOCATIONS WITHIN STATE

LaFayette, Ala.,—From opinions expressed through letters to committee members since the meeting of the Industrial Committee of the Alabama Press Association January 29th at the Whitley Hotel in Montgomery, there is every evidence that leaders in education, industry, agriculture and civic bodies have accepted the invitation of the Association to form an Alabama Development Council or some similar body to work in co-operation with the Industrial Committee and members of the Alabama Press Association in carrying out their plans to promote the interests and welfare of Alabama generally through the acquisition of new industries and the promotion and protection of those already existent, declared C. L. Walton, chairman of the Committee.

"Matters of vital interest to our program are beginnig to show up and are piling high on the committee as details of the program begin to manifest themselves," Mr. Walton stated. "It is most interesting to learn that already throughout the state interest in the program o four association is increasing, with letters reaching me daily requesting aid for various communities in the location of an industry which is investigating the possibilities of these communties," he added.

"While making a survey of the state recently it was learned that Selma has already secured a small factory and that within a very short time another would announce its location in Dallas County. In one of the southeastern counties of Alabama a garment mill has been located and within a very few days official announcement will be made to that effect. In many other counties of the state industrial leaders are investigating the possibilities of certain kinds of industries while news comes from South Alabama that one of the large packing houses may seek location of a branch factory in that section," Mr. Walton continued, as he pointed to numerous instances wherein industrialists ar elooking with favor at this time on what Alabama has to offer.

"A letter last week from Dean C. L. Hare of the A. P. I., Auburn, informs me that considerable interest is being manifested in the location of a $500,000.00 starch mill and its various features are being studied by nationally recognized engineers. The research department of the A. P. I. as well as investigations by the National and State governments substantiate the opinion that starch can be made from the 'Alabama Yam' and it is hoped at some future date some definite announcement can be made of the location within our state of such a plant," Mr. Walton stated.

Several members of the W. M. S. entertained the Y. W A's with a progressive dinner Friday night. Y. W .A. members partcipating were: Misses Mary Nell, Johnnie, Louise Sanders, Ruth Latham, Lucille Beatty, Louise Gregg, Sadie Ward, Frances Bassett and Eula Mae Franks.

The Girl Scouts enjoyed a hike to Cedar Crest Saturday morning.

UNDER THE COURTHOUSE DOME

M. W. W.

We happily begin the ramble UNDER THE COURTHOUSE DOME with a worthy tribute to our representative L. H. Ellis, written by our contemporary writer and friend, Atticus Mullin who brilliantly presents each day the column — THE PASSING THRONG — in the Montgomery Advertiser.

In the below printed article will be noted what Mr. Mullins has to say regarding tossing a few bouquets to one who deserves them while yet alive to enjoy them.

L. H. ELLIS

Representative Handy Ellis, of Shelby County, is a veteran of the Legislature and while he came into the present administration picture late, having been chosen to succeed a resigned member from his county, he has been the same sort of hard worker that he was when he was in the Senate in the former Graves administration. Mr. Ellis goes at things in a frontal attack. He does not approach legislative matters in a devious way. He is always fair and frank with his colleagues and is one of the few members of the Legislature the writer has ever known who would stand upon the floor and admit he was wrong when convinced he was wrong.

Mr. Ellis piloted the Ellis gross receipts sales tax bill through the House and made friends of the other side while he was doing it in an open and above board manner. He piloted the Chichester two per cent compulsory consumers sales tax bill through the House. Representative Chichester of Jefferson turned the reins over to Mr. Ellis and the bill went through

Mr. Ellis was a valiant leader and fighter for the measure making local option on the liquor question the law in Alabama after nearly twenty-two years of statewide prohibition. We confess a fondness for the representative from Shelby because of his forthrightness and honesty of purpose. We have differed with Representative Ellis on many occasions, both in the Legislature and in the political field, but friendships are not disturbed by such trivial matters.

We just thought we would say these things about Mr. Ellis while he was alive to hear them. What they say about people in an obituary does the person about whom the fine words are said little good. A few roses and lilies and violets in life are worth a million dollars worth of the same flowers scattered over ones grave.

Chairman John M. Lyon and Cecil Duke, Clerk of the Board of Revenue spent Tuesday in Montgomery Mr. Lyon is very optimistic over the out look for the road thru Shelby County.

LESPEDEZA

A. A. Lauderdale, County Agent

Q. What is the value of lespedeza?

A. Lespedeza is the most generally grown pasture plant in Alabama. It is valuable for soil improvement particularly on valleys of North Alabama. On badly eroded Piedmont and mountain soils that have been abandoned for cultivation, lespedeza frequently comes in and if allowed to grow a few years, restores the fertility of the soil. On fertilized moist soils lespedeza makes large yields of excellent hay.

Q. Where will lespedeza grow?

A. Lespedeza will grow on all of the soils of Alabama, except the lime soils of the Black Belt. On moderately fertile soils it makes good grazing but seldom grows large enough to be cut for hay. On poor sandy uplands it makes little growth and sometimes dies during dry weather in late spring or early summer.

Q. What fertilizers should be applied to lespedeza?

A. At least 600 pounds of basic slag should be applied broadcast when the soil is prepared. If lespedeza is occupying the land for several years, an application of 1,000 pounds per acre of basic slag would probably be profitable.

Q. When should lespedeza be sown?

A. Sow lespedeza the last of February of first of March.

Q. How is lespedez agrown for pasture?

A. Sow 25 to 30 pounds of seed per acre on pasture land; dish to scarify the surface of the ground. It furnishes little grazing before the first of June, but after that date it gives abundant grazing. On upland soils the growth is usually small but produces good grazing during part of the season.

Q. What variety of lespedeza should be grown?

A. For pasture, grow common lespedeza. It always matures enough seed to re-seed the land.

For hay, sow Kobe or Tennessee 76. When cut for hay, Kobe doe not usually re-seed. If this variety is grown for hay it should be sown each year. On moist fertile soil common lespedeza makes good yields of hay.

Q. How do you obtain seed?

A. Farmers interested in lespedeza are urged to grow a few acres of this crop for saving a home supply of seed. Seed has been scarce and expensive during the last few years. Th eseed can be easily harvested and instructions for saving them will be furnished all farmers who desire to produce their own seed.

Nations of World Allot Year 1939 To New York Fair

World Exposition Already Growing Up; Seeks Active Participation of State

NEW YORK, (Special).—The New York World's Fair, in which every state in the nation must inevitably take small or prominent part, is out of its infancy.

Preparatory construction goes on night and day at the Flushing Meadow Site of 1216½ acres at the geographical centre of New York City A steady flow of activities and announcements emanates from the Fair Corporation headquarters on four floors of the Empire State building. Judging from all of these, the Fair is a lusty, growing institution that will reach full maturity—no question about it—by the scheduled opening day, April 30, 1939.

The task of grading the site is about half completed. Battalions of men with trucks have already moved over 3,000,000 cubic yards of dry fill in the process of turning the waste marsh land: of the Flushing River basin into park ground. Other battalions are scooping out "meadow mat" for use as fertile top soil for the made lands, and in so doing excavate the beds for the two large lagoons featured in plans for the Fair.

The first of the 300 structures which, according to estimates, will house the 1939 Fair, has been completed and is ready for occupancy. This is the headquarters building for the field forces of today and the employment department of the exposition period.

Scheduled for early in the new year is the start of actual construction of the $900,000 Administration building. The designs for this structure, let under architectural contract a few weeks ago, are nearing the day of their approval in the Corporation's offices. Upon completion of this building, late in August, 1937, the Fair headquarters, bag, baggage and sales offices, moves to the exposition site.

"The most splendid and significant edifice projected for the 1939 international exposition," the Theme building, as described at Fair headquarters, is also well along in its contractual period. The estimated cost of this great building for the "Thematic Centre" of the exposition is set at $1,200,000. The preliminary designs are to be finished in about eight weeks and the final plans submitted within four weeks thereafter. Construction is scheduled to start immediately the designs are completed.

From this Theme centre will radiate all that is to be the 1939 Fair as conceived by its founders and rendered into concrete terminology and model by the Fair's Board of Design.

"Our job from now on is to give physical expression to the plan and theme of the Fair as announced and as set down on paper in our headquarters," says Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation.

"Starting next April 1, we plan to complete the design of one major building every ten days for a period of seven months. In all, we expect to design no less than 30 major buildings to house the exhibits from every part of the world. Some 300 structures, in all, are planned for the Flushing Meadow site, within a few minutes' ride from Manhattan."

Without solicitation on the part of the Fair, more than 250 American business house and instituttions have begun preliminary conversations regarding their participation and are already planning exhibits. Five of the great nations of the world have already assured the Corporation that they would erect their own buildings, while no less than 32 other nations have informally indicated their desire to participate.

And then, on top of all this display of keen interest, comes the announcement that the International Convention Bureau, meeting in Paris, has allocated the year 1939 to the New York Fair. This means that the New York Fair has exclusive ranking as the "one international exposition" of 1939, and assures it of the active support of the 21 nations signing the agreement.

President Roosevelt has just extended official invitation to the nations of the world. Governor Herbert H. Lehman, of the host State of New York, has extended invitation to the governors and residents of 47 states. Grover Whalen, likewise, has invited the governors in a letter pointing out that "the commercial consequences of the New York World's Fair are so great and important that they alone would justify the active participation of every state."

Fair Commissioners are already in South America and Europe. Still others are on their way to the Far East and other foreign shores Major Dennis E. Nolan, retired, as head of the Department of Foreign, State and Municipal Participation, will himself make representation to the governors and legislatures of the various states.

Meanwhile, under the direction of Harvey D. Gibson, President of the Manufacturers Trust Company, and Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange, the prominent figures in the financial capital conducted a 28-day campaign to sell $27,829,500 in debenture bonds of the Fair to finance the construction period.

Every confidence is being expressed that the Fair not only will "pay its way," but that it will bring a billion dollars more of revenue into Greater New York and stimulate American industry in general to an extent many fold that amount.

The total cost of producing New York's Fair, including collateral improvements, is set at $125,000,000. Statisticians estimate that the attendance will total more than 50,000,000 persons.

The City of New York, the State of New York, and the Government of the United States, according to expectations, will account for $35,000,000 of the total expenditures and thus lend an official backing never before achieved.

Alabama has 44 United States Certified and Approved Pullorum Tested Hatcheries, reports R. J. Goode, state commissioner of agriculture, in advsing farmers that they may obtain a list of these hatcheries by writing R B Jones, state poultry specialist, Montgomery, or John E Ivey, extension poultryman, Auburn.

At home aboard the RAILROAD of FRIENDLY SERVICE

The minute you step aboard, you have a feeling that this is home. There's something of "home" in the cheerful atmosphere—in the roomy, inviting seats—the softly shaded lights.

There's something of "home" in the tempting way the food is prepared—the quiet, courteous way it is served.

There's something of "home" in the way the covers are turned back and the pillows plumped up . . . and even in the porter's quiet query, "What time do you want to be called?"

But it's "like home" in many more ways than these: Because, just as in your own home, we must see that the coal bin is full, the worn furniture replaced. We must employ help, shop for food, buy new dishes—and pay taxes. Yes, about 7% of our revenues goes for taxes to help support your government, your cities, your schools, your highways.

So you see, we're just home-folks like you... sharing your problems and pleasures, contributing to your community. We hope you will think of us that way.

The Repeal Question: A Choice Of Methods.

Three weeks from yesterday the people of Alabama will again vote on the question of legalizing and taxing the liquor business in this state. The election on Wednesday, March 10, will not be like the referendum of two years ago. But it will be a referendum, and it will be fairer than the one two years ago in that each County will decide for itself what it wants to do about the liquor question, instead of letting a statewide vote determine whether the entire state should continue under a prohibition system that does not work and has never worked, or whether the liquor business should be legalized and taxed in those counties favoring repeal.

In the last election the vote was too close to be really decisive. It could not therefore be generally satisfactory. It will be much better and more satisfactory, even as it will be much fairer, to let each county decide for itself. This is the only way to satisfy public sentiment in each locality, and to give the law, as it is determined by the wishes of the people, whether it be prohibition or state control of the liquor business ,the force of dominant public opinion in each county to uphold it.

The News has no doubt that every county in the state would be better off in every respect if it voted to legalize and tax liquor under the state store system provided for by the Legislature. But if the people of any county wish to retain prohibition, they should not have repeal thrust upon them. Likewise the people of so-called wet counties should not have prohibition thrust upon them when their majority opinion favors repeal. Let the people decide for themselves what they want to do about this matter in their own counties! That is the purpose of the county option elections on March 10, and it represents the application to this problem of the soundest principles of democracy and of good common sense.

The question involved in the March 10 county option elections is simply a choice between methods of dealing with the liquor traffic. The question is not whether the state shall have liquor or not. There is already, there has always been, no lack of liquor in Alabama. Prohibition was never effectively enforced even when the greatest efforts were put forth and the largest sums of money were spent for enforcement. Now there is hardly a pretense of enforcement in the state. In many places, the sale of liquor is notoriously wide open. In all the others, the illicit liquor business goes on just about as freely, even though less openly, as in the places where its sale is wide open.

There are thousands of moonshiners in Alabama. There are thousands of bootleggers. There are thousands of places, operating as business establishments, which have obtained federal licenses to sell liquor and beer, either wholesale or retail, and which pay federal taxes, but no state taxes or local taxes to state and local governments which are sorely in need of this escaped revenue.

Look at the reports on the number of moonshine stills captured each year in Alabama; they mount into the thousands. And it is obvious that new stills are set up by moonshiners whenever old stills are captured else the state and federal officers could not go on year after year seizing thousands of stills.

Look at the federal reports on establishments in Alabama licensed to sell liquor and beer. Then run into four figures.

So it is not a question of whether or not we shall have liquor in Alabama. We already have plenty of it, untaxed, unregulated and uncontrolled.

The question before the people of each county is simply whether they shall let the present liquor business go on untaxed and uncontrolled, or whether they shall put it under taxation and regulation, and a system where it would be handled by state stores, under strict supervision, rather than by bootleggers.

Stated another way, the question it whether or not the liquor business shall be made to pay taxes, and be brought under the effective control of the law.

Alabama's answer should be a decisive repudiation of prohibition with its unlicensed, untaxed, uncontrolled and unhampered bootlegging, in every county where this intolerable situation prevails. B'ham News.

Debating The Price And Not The Object

A lot of confused thinking is going on about the president's judiciary proposal. There is a tendency in the mind of many to link the proposed changes with the Roosevelt New Deal as if the defeat of the one meant the defeat of the other.

In substance the Supreme Court aspect of the president's message is an attempt to speed up those social and economic reforms which Mr. Roosevelt thinks he has a mandate from the people to accomplish. Undoubtedly Mr. Roosevelt has considered the other means for accomplishing that end; a constitutional amendment, legislation curtailing the power of the Supreme Court to declare a law unconstitutional, and waiting for the Supreme Court through slow change to come closer in line with what appears to be a popular sentiment. But he has cast them aside ,apparently, for this method of suddenly enlarging the Supreme Court by a maximum of six men.

In making this choice however, Mr. Roosevelt has aroused a great debate whether the choice is a wise one. He has said to the nation that he prefers this means of reaching the goal toward which he thinks the nation hasset its path. "Through electing me," he is saying in substance to the nation, "you have designated the goal toward which you want me to lead you. I think this path is best." But now it is appearing that many who agree with the president on the end to be obtained are at odds with him over the route he has selected.

It is as if the nation were considering the purchase of a great pearl. There is no question about the pearl's value. It would be a fine thing to own. But how much shall be paid for it? And, since a whole people reckon not in money, but in other values what shall we pay for it? What shall we give up, or surrender, in order that we may obtain this pearl?

The president's answer to these questions can only be interpreted as meaning that the people should pay for an early purchase of the pearl with a risk of permanent injury to our constitutional form of government. To his way of thinking, and the way of those who approve of his judiciary proposals in entirety, this is cheaper payment than the more tedious method of constiuttional amendment, or gradual change of the complexion of the court, or any of the other prices proposed for this pearl of social and economic reform.

On the other side (and the side where this paper may be found) are those who think that the damage arising from this method of influencing the Supreme Court's decisions is too great a price to pay for what we want. To do what the president wants would be, to this group, buying a pearl at the risk of freedom, at the cost of impairment to our national democracy.

And this group says that it is better to delay for a time the acquisition of what we desire than permanently to bankrupt our nation's ideals. The end does not justify one means alone when several are available. An object worthy of attainment does not require that we pay any price for it.

A large part of the nation is rising up today to tell the president that the price he wants them to pay is too great. They want what he wants, they are saying, but not at the price he is asking them to pay. And that is the basi of what is coming to be known as the debate of the century.—Birmingham News.

Food Prices And Prosperity

There is, we hear, some weeping and gnashing of teeth over the fact that the price of retail food is advancing, having reached a six-year high as the New Year began.

While the general level was higher than at any time since March, 1931, it was only 84.6 per cent of the 1923-25 level. Encouraging, however, is the report that there has been a sustained increase in farm prices and that farmers in Shelby County and elswhere, are actually receiving prices for what they sell that are above the level of prices for the things they buy.

What we don't know about economics will fill many large volumes but we are intensely interested in seeing farm prices go up, because of our conviction that, in the long run, the prosperity of the people of the United States depends primarily upon the prosperity of the nation's farmers.

Meanwhile, what about advancing food prices? Well, that will have to be met by advancing wages to people who work, by increased salaries to people supposed to work and, perhaps by eating less food on the part of those who neither work nor are supposed to work.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS TO P. T. A.

This month marks the 40th birthday anniversary of the Parent Teacher Association. A record of excellent service lies behind its activities in the past, and its future is brilliant with unlimited possibilities.

In 1855 the kindergarten movement began in the United States and our present Parent Teachers Organization slowly emerged from this idea. In 1894 a teacher in Chicago, whose very name seems to have been forgotten called a conference to discuss the problems of the pre-school age and three years later a National Congress of Mothers met in Washington to consider the relationships between the home, the school and community. It was then that the permanent organization was perfected, receiving its charter in 1900. At the present time, the membership includes a roster of 2,000,000 mothers.

The heart of the organization centers around the home, the child and its development—hence the project is assured of a brilliant success for no closer interest could so universally appeal to parents and teachers, and the duty of the leaders is to make the citizens of the community conscious of their responsibility to the school.

We join a host of friends in sending congratulations to Mildred Curlee, President of the Columbiana Chapter of P. T. A., and her co-workers who made such an outstanding success of the Valentine Party staged at the High School Audtiorium on last Friday night when $236.00 was turned into th eschool treasury.

RHYTHM 'RISTOCRATS

The Rhythm 'Ristocrats, popular dance orchestra, scored another hit on Friday night when they entertained their friends with a Valentine Party in the Masonic Hall. The gay crowd enjoyed dancing to melodies symbolic of the occasion, and "HEARTS" were trumps, The waltz feature numbers won an unusual response from the dancing contingent. Many new numbers have been added to their offering of musical hits and there are melodies for all tempos desired. The next dance will be given in two weeks at the Masonic Hall, possibly carrying out the St. Patrick idea when Irish melodies will be featured as specialty numbers.

JANE FOWLER

Honor to whom honor is due—and this week we pay our verbal tribute of praise and offer sincere congratulations to Jane Fowler, brilliant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Fowler of Columbiana, who holds the distinction, with one other student in Alabama College in making the unequalled record of an "ALL A" report. Miss Fowler has legions of friends in the County who will be delighted to hear of this further recognition of her unusual ability which has been frequently recognized and commented upon since she entered Alabama Colloge four years ago. As President of the Senior Class, and a member of other honorary societies on the campus. Miss Fowler has distinguished herself as a student, a leader and a musician of note, and her many friends in Columbiana wish for her continued success. She richly deserves it.

THE KING AND QUEEN OF HEARTS

New Orleans may have her Mardi Gras—and Mobile may enjoy the same festivity and crown her chosen son and daughter with all the pomp and ceremony incident to these gala occasoins, but Columbiana citizens have paid their loyal homage to their chosen King: Wayne Lauderdale, handsome son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Lauderdale, and Betty Jo Black, petite and lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bearden, when they were crowned King and Queen of Hearts on St. Valentine's even in the High School Auditorium on last Friday night.

The popularity contest was sponsored by the P. T. A. organization of Columbiana, an unanimous praise has been showered upon the officers teachers, parents and patrons over the successful entertainment offered on this gala occasion.

Preceeding the announcement of the chosen royalty, Larl Martin, as the Herald, impressively introduced CUPID—the inimitable personable Carolyn Nickson! Her entrance was followed by King Wayne Lauderdale and his lovely queen, etty Jo Black, who was beautifully gowned in a white taffeta gown with matching accessories and presented to the audience by Myra Stinson representing the Sprit of Shelby High School. Immediately after the royal couple were seated on their throne, the Grammar School children presented a program of entertainment for their "Majesties." The feature number consisting of a Tay Dance rhythmically executed by June Fore, talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Fore.

We personally join a host of devoted subjects and extend our sincere greetings to our little friends who so dignifiedly walked off with the royal honors—and say in closing—LONG LIVE THE KING AND QUEEN OF HEARTS. MAY YOUR REIGN BE A LONG AND HAPPY ONE.

Sam A. Lokey, Frank Head, Walter Chancellor and Tom Reinhart are among the Legionaires who attended the meeting held in Montgomery on Sunday. For further details regarding the interesting trip, we refer you to Walter Chancellor and Sam Lokey—we understand that 'Tomato Juice' was the most popular cmomodity offered at the Luncheon—as far as the Shelby County lads were concerned.

E. B. TURNER, JR.

The newest little "Blessed Event" namely E. B. Turner, Jr., is commanding the sincere interest of Columbiana citizens as they extend to this manikin, greetings and a hearty welcome from the many friends of his pretty mother, and his popular dad, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Turner. Mrs. Turner and E B Jr,, have returned from Birmingham to Columbiana, and the spotlight of favorable comment is turned on the most interesting member of the Turner family. Personal Mention joins a host of friends in extending a cordial "How-do--you-do"—and if this young hopeful is as charming in manner and gracious in personality as his Mother as energetic as his Dad, and as handsome as his Grand Dad—we can't figure that he has very much to worry about—HERL or HEREAFTER.

CARL CANNON

Carl Cannon, since moving to Columbiana and becoming Manager of the Farmers Seed & Supply Company, has made many friends in Columbiana ,as well as meriting the trade from Farmers all over Shelby County—because he sells "seeds with a future." Mr. Cannon, as far as we are concerned, holds the distinction of one business man in this town who HAS the time and TAKES the time to help a fellow along the way—between customers. We are deeply grateful to this young fellow who possesses the keenest sense of humor we know anything about—for helping us wrangle with a recalcitrant and "cantankerous" oil stove one fine cold day this week—and had he not happened along—we probably would have frozen at our post of duty—and demolished the stove just for the contrary disposition it manifested Come back Carl when you have some "Pennies from Heaven" to match with the WITS in the shop. Win or lose we are still for you.

BELLANGRATH GARDENS

Many flower enthusiasts and lovers of the beautiful are motoring along the Azalea Trail down Mobile way during March, making an annual pilgrimage to the loveliest gardens in the world—Bellangrath Gardens—internationally famous. There is a continuous parade of changing colors to enchant the visitors to this historic and romantic spot. The scenic beauty defies description. The Camelia begins to blossom in November then come the azaleas in a glory of color and profusion—then follows the delicate pastel shades of mountain laurel, hydrangea, and fragrant gardenia that make Bellangrath Gardens a dream of loveliness at all seasons.

We are indebted to John Thompson Alabama Power Company's representative, for avery beautiful descriptive booklet on this "Charm Spot of the Deep South," and only "WISH we might join the motor calvacade and spend a while—just dreaming along the Azalea Trail."

METHODIST W. M. S.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church met in business session at the Church Monday afternoon, Mrs. Luther Fowler, the president, presiding. Mrs. Fowler used for the devotional and worship I John 4:7-16. Mrs. Hope led the prayer.

Reports from committees were encouraging and evidenced enthusiastic work being done. Plans were made for the Bible Study "Stewardship of Life," with Mrs. Hope as Leader. The Society will begin this Study on Monday afternoon, February 22nd. The Mission Study work will begin early in March with Mrs. E. H. Childs as Leader. "Out of Affica" will be the Study Book Used.

The Local Committee presented many interesting projects for work, and announced the hostesses for the Social meetings of the year, which are always held Monday after the fourth Sunday in each month.

Two new members were added to the roll, Mrs. Alvin Bird and Mrs. Parham. The meeting closed with a prayer song.

SILURIA NEWS

By Nell Hughy and Nelle Walton

Good Old Sain tValentine! He brought a shower of lovely gifts on Saturday afternoon, February 13 to Mrs. Earl Smith, a bride of December. It was a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Margie Hughey at the home of Mrs. Mark Blankenship, Hearts galore were used in the decorations as well as on the gift wrappings.

The bride's chair was decorated with white crepe paper and red hearts. Over head a red umbrella dripped silver teaspoons. Cupid held a conspicuous position with a dart pierced heart in his hands. A miniature tree held red hearts, numbered consecutively, on which the prophecy of the young couple was written. After these were read by Miss Nell Hughey the bride was given slips of paper on which was written, poem form, directions for finding gifts hidden in various places. After capturing a number of gifts in this fashion, little Endora Blankenship, dressed as Cupid pulled in a red wagon filled with gifts.

A delicious course of salad and cake was served. About forty guests called between the hours of 2:30 nad 5:00 o'clock.

Blue Nelson, one of our home town boys, has taken a position with the T. C. I. in Bessemer. We regret the loss of Blue and we wish him luck in his new work which reminds us that Oscar Blankenship, another of our boys, wh orecently deserted his home town for a position in Bessemer, blowed into town Saturday strutting a brand new mustache which gave him that man-about-town look. Quite becoming Oscar.

That ever busy little fellow, Cupid has been at it again, Ruby Jewel Yon and Doyle Cofer fell victims to his darts recently. They were married Saturday, February 6th. Here's luck to them.

From all reports the barn dance given by the club girls at the "Y" Friday night was a phenomenal suvcess. Get Lexie to show you the real barn dance.

Mable Black, a popular subdeb, had the misfortune recently of falling off a bicycle and breaking her leg. We miss you Mable and wish for you a speedy recovery.

Our handsome Willie Thomason was seen walking down Main Street with a jaunty air and knowing smile. Why so gay Willie? What's it all about?

Saturday afternoon, the happiest girl on Main Street was Nelle Walton who walked with the help of her ever ready crutches, to the shower at Mrs. Mark Blankenship's this being her first venture out since her accident in August.

Miss Vivian Broome is receiving congratulations from all her friends upon her appointment by the D. A. R. as their representative to Washington, D. C., Miss Broome will leave some time in April with all expenses paid for a week. She was chosen from sixty-four representatives and that's what we call luck.

A bevy of valentines, lacy ones, frilly ones, snappy ones, and what have you, flew back and forth in our town this week, carrying messages of love and sentiment from lad to lassi eand vice versa, wtih which thought we close hoping you all will be our valentines.

Mrs. Nannie Smitherman of Maplesville, visited Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Waldrop over the week end.

"Nation's Fair" Their Objective

Mrs. Vincent Astor
Winthrop W. Aldrich

NEW YORK (Special).—Mrs. Vincent Astor, society leader and civic worker, has been appointed Chairman of a National Women's Advisory Committee for the New York World's Fair of 1939. Winthrop W. Aldrich, Chairman of the Chase National Bank, is heading the men's National Committee. Together they will enlist more than 10,000 committee workers in a nationwide campaign to arouse interest in and create support for the New York Fair. Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, has announced that State Chairmen will be named later and that every state will be brought into active participation in the New York Fair, making it truly national.

1939 World's Fair Has New Ideas About Amusement Features

NEW YORK, (Special).—"Only seeing will be believing," says President Grover Whalen of the New York World's Fair 1939 Corporation, as he tries to envision what the Fair is planning, more than two years in advance, in the way of facilities for recreation, entertainment and amusement.

Every man, woman and child in the United States, he says, has an interest in the 1939 Fair and to some degree or other has a part in the building of that Fair. The exposition, therefore, will surpass all previous fairs, not only in the demonstration of the wonders of the world or present-day life and in the projection of the World of Tomorrow, but also in providing the utmost variety of entertainment and amusement for every man, woman and child.

The entire world will be tapped for every amusement possibility. The tiresome mediocrity of stunts and side shows—the stock-in-trade relics of the amusement world of yesterday—will give way to a new and modern standard of excellence The plan of the New York World's Fair has anticipated the requirements for entertainment and is making them a part of the general scheme of the Fair, rather than allowing them to spring up as an appendage or an afterthought. Even the tiny children will have a playground reserved exclusively for their own use.

Outlook Justifies State Participation In New York Fair

Whalen Voices Opinion in Inviting Governor and People to the 1939 Exposition

NEW YORK, (Special).—In a letter of invitation to the governors of 47 states, Grover Whalen, President of the New York World's Fair 1939 Corporation, points out that the commercial consequences of the international exposition under construction in New York City are so great and important that they alone would justify the active participation of every state in the nation.

"Fifty million persons from every walk in life, from every state in the United States, from every country in the world, are expected to attend the Fair," writes Mr. Whalen. "The great American market with its tremendous consumer purchasing power will be represented by these visitors. They will comprise a true cross-section of America."

The World's Fair, according to Mr. Whalen, will be a magnificent spectacle, entertaining and instructive. It will attempt to answer the questions: "What kind of a world have we built? What kind of a world are we building? What kind of a world can we build?" With collateral improvements, it will represent a total investment of more than $125,000,000 by the Fair Corporation and the governmental, industrial and other participants. The Fair site park is a tract of 1216½ acres, almost at the geographical and population centre of New York City.

Construction of buildings and roads, grading, dredging, planting and landscaping are already under way, based upon a schedule which calls for completion of all construction operations before January 1, 1939, to allow four months for final decorations and installation of exhibits preparatory to the opening of the Fair on April 30.

The opening date commemorates the inauguration, on April 30, 1789, of George Washington as the first President of the United States.

In the government area, and near an imposing federal hall to be erected by the United States Government, the Fair will provide a "Hall of States" in which the significant contributions of each state in laying the foundations for the better World of Tomorrow can be proudly displayed, says Mr. Whalen.

His letter supplements an invitation to participate in the Fair extended to the governors on November 30 by Governor Herbert H. Lehman of the host state of New York. Governor Lehman pointed out that the State of New York has already appropriated, to date, $2,130,000 for commencement of construction of boulevards, service roads, bridges, and certain other basic improvements the State will make at the exposition site or its approaches. The New York legislature, further, during 1936 passed an act creating the New York World's Fair Commission of 18 members and providing funds in aid of this body's preparation of plans for a state building and exhibit and for active state participation in the Fair.

ALABAMA Power Company employees aren't meteorologists, although some of them are of help to the weatherman in his work of weather prediction.

At selected points in the State, certain of our employees act as volunteer "weather watchers", along with other duties. Colder weather here—warmer weather there; a thunder-storm north—a cyclone south—all of these weather incidents interpreted by the experienced meteorologist enable him to predict with reasonable accuracy what the weather is likely to be a day or a week hence in broad areas, even though he may occasionally "miss it" for specific localities.

Our "weather watchers" report their observations of rainfall and river gauge readings to the Weather Bureau at Montgomery daily.

THIS company engages in, and encourages its employees to engage in, activities beneficial to the area in which it does business. Many of these activities are only incidentally essential or desirable in the conduct of its business.

Merely supplying electricity AT REASONABLE RATES is not considered by Alabama Power Company to be its sole duty to the community. This advertisement tells you about one service "not written in the bond."

RECEIPTS TAX WILL GO ON MARCH 1ST

MONTGOMERY—The gross receipts tax, which was held valid by the Alabama Supreme Court recently will yield $900,000 in the two months of its operation before its repeal on March 1st, it was estimated.

The sales tax is due to go into effect on March 1, thus repealing the gross receipts tax.

Estimates of the sales tax yield have varied, both below and above the gross receipts figure, which was estmiated at $5,400,000 annually. After deductions are made for homestead exemptions ,three-fourts fo the sales tax revenues will go to education and the remainder to the counties for public health, welfare and farm extension.

Some officials at the State Department of Education have made an estimate of $2,600,000 for the state's share after deductions and divisions.

WILSONVILLE P. T. A. HAS MEETING

The Parent Teacher Association of Wilsonville met in the school auditorium Tuesda yevening, February 16th, 1937.

Mrs. G. H. Stewart led the program Goin To School With Your Child. This interesting subject was introduced by Rev. T. A. McConathat who gave a brief talk on Down the Day with the Teacher.

Mrs. Young Johnson discussed How Much and How Well Does Your Child Study. Mrs. Woodrow Elliott gave a very practical and iformational talk on How Is Your Child Taught. She also gave new information on the value of the report card. Mrs. John Weldon presented some very vital problems in her talk on Why Children Fail In School.

Everyone enjoyed Mr. Woodrow Elliott's splendid account of How I Teach Citizenship in the School and his discussion on What Can the Community Do to Help Train Children in Citizenship.

The program was followed by a short but enjoyable recreational period led by Miss Ida Edwards. And everyone was delighted with the refreshments served by Mrs. Young Johnson, Mrs. Tom Reinhardt and Mrs. Paul Smith.

L. & N. PURCHASES STEEL HOPPER CARS

The Louisville & Nashville Rail Road Company announces the purchase on January 29 of 2700 all-steel hopper cars and 327 all-steel ballast cars at a cost of $6,600,000.

This equipment will be furnished by the Bethlehem Steel Company, the Pressed Steel Car Company, the Mt. Vernon Ca rManufacturing Company and the American Car and Faundry Company..

Work on a portion of the huge order will begin shortly and the cars will be placed in service as completed All of the cars will be of the standard design of the Association of American Railroads. The 2,700 hopper cars, which are of a 50 ton capacity, will be used in hauling coal. The 327 ballast cars will be used chiefly for hauling balast for the rail road's track, with occasional service n the transportation of ore and coal.

Increased carloading and the obsolescence of some cars of these types occasioned the purchase.

During the 12 months of the calendar year, 1936, a total of 667 persons were killed and 1,645 injured in 1,883 accidents that occurred on Alabama's highways, it is shown in a report issued recently by Chief Walter K. McAdory of the State Highway Patrol, covering that period.

Speeding, according to the report, was the most frequent cause of accidents. It was responsible for 530 wriecks, in which 212 persons were killed and 739 injured, more or less seriously. Reckless driving, a kindred offense, caused 392 wrecks that were responsible for the deaths of 136 persons and the injuring of 322. Driving while intoxicated was the cause of 217 accidents, which took a toll of 67 lives and hurt 207.

Of the total of 1,883 accidents that were recorded for the year, 735 occurred during the hours of daylight and 1,148 at night. In addition to the killing and maiming that resulted from these highway accidents, damage to property involved reached $178,956.50. This financial loss, Chief McAdory pointed out, did not include the cost of funerals for the killed, hospital and medical expenses for the injured, or the loss resulting from salaries and wages forfeited.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

We're at it again with a grim determination to conglomerate something of interest from here and there in our town. To our way of thinking the most interesting thing right now is the fact that Mr. G. T. Philips Superintendent of Buck Creek Cotton Mills, has returned from New York where he has made his home for the past year, and he intends to reside here for an indefinite legth of time. We, speaking for the citizens of Siluria collectively, take the privilege of extending to him a hearty welcome and we look forward to the time when Mrs. Philips will join him. A record crowd turned out to hear the beloved Brother J. A. Bryan ,who gave a lecture o nhis trip to the Holy Land at the Baptist Church last Monday night. . . . . Sad to relate on this same night burglars boldly forced an entrance into the Buck Creek Cash Store, taking with them all the cash left in the store and Mr. Denham's gun. . . . We wonder if Mr. Elvey Black, cantering up and down Main Street on that beautiful bay steed Saturday afternoon, was enjoying himself as much as he seemed to be. . . . Too, we're wondering something else—will sitting down next week be as much fun for Mr. Black as today's riding? . . . Mr. Walter Horton and little daughter, Vivian, took a trip to the Magic City Saturday. We understand business was the motive . . The ladies in our town have gone old fashioned—lavendar and old lace, bustles and hoop skirts were brought to our minds by the quilting given by Mrs. John Denham and Mrs. Adrin Busby last Tuesday. . . . We wonder what the attraction in Birmingham could be for a certain blonde and brunette, seen with week end bags going toward the bus station in a jovial mood. . . . It seems that all the girls in Siluria have gone to the dogs, wearing them in all shapes and forms pinned here and there on their coats and sweaters. Are we catty for mentioning it? . . . Mrs. Ida Maye Collins of Clanton, was visiting friends in Siluria on Wednesday of last week. We regret very much to hear that Mrs. Collins was in an automobile accident over the week end in which she received several minor injuries . . . Seen going places with his pretty mater Saturday afternoon was one of the cutest little bits of a manikin, Sandey Philip Howell, dressed in one o fthe sweetest red snow suits we've seen this year. . . . If you happen to hear music while passing the "Y", it's the new electric Victrola just installed Whether you do or don't indulge in dancing, come down. If you don't you can look on and see some of the young people having the time of their lives and dancing to to their hearts content. . . It is told that a promising young male in our villege unfortunately was forced to appear in Court Upon taking the stand ,he was asked by the Judge, "Have you ever appeared in Court before young man?" To which the young man replied, "Yes, your honor" "In what suit?" inquired the Judge. "My blue serge, sir, if I remember correctly," was the answer. . . Such is life. . . A certain little red head in Siluria issporting a very new and beautiful diamond. No, we dare not tell, just take a look around. . . .Four of our gayest young ladies were seen Saturday night romping about town having the jolliest time and were they doing justice to those all day suckers. They were none other than Flora and Hazel Howard, Ruby Robinson, ando Margaret Tilley. . . That much devoted young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brown, had as their guests on Saturday evening Miss Doris Brannon and Mr. A. B. Bradley. . . . The highest ambition of Mary Loyce Robinson is to skate down Shades mountain.

Intangible suggestions of spring are in the air. A spray of hycianth, a bird song, a balmy day, and certainly that new blue coat and hat which Reach had on Sunday morning. Thus we come to the end of an earnest endeavor to assemble a few interesting if not worthwhile facts.

Yours 'til next week,
Nell and Nelle.

Regardless of all laws the man who works will eventually have more than the man who loafs.

Do you "fly all to pieces" when the children are noisy, or when the vegetables burn, or when the jelly won't "jell?" Some mothers are just naturally cranky. Some mothers are cross and impatient because they are nervous.

If you are a natural crank, DR. MILES NERVINE won't do much for you. If you are irritable because your nerves are overtaxed, DR. MILES NERVINE will do a lot for you.

Do you suffer from Sleeplessness, Restlessness, Nervous Irritability, Nervous Headache, or Nervous Indigestion? Do you worry over trifles, start at sudden noises? Overtaxed nerves will cause all these troubles, and DR. MILES NERVINE will help you to relax those overtaxed nerves.

Why don't you give it a trial on our guarantee of satisfaction or your money back? Your druggist can tell you about DR. MILES NERVINE. He has been selling it ever since he started clerking in a drug store. Dr. Miles Nervine comes in two forms—Liquid and Effervescent Tablets. Both equally effective in quieting overtaxed nerves. Both sell for 25¢ and $1.00 depending on the size of the package.

MAKE LIQUOR PAY TAXES!

VOTE YES FOR REPEAL

On March 10th

ON MARCH 10th the Alabama Beverage Control Act, passed by the legislature, will be submitted to a vote of the citizens of Alabama.

The Alabama Beverage Control Act is patterned on the plan which has been so successful in solving the liquor problem in other progressive states. It sets up a constructive liquor control system to regulate the legalized sale of alcoholic beverages, promote temperance in their consumption, eliminate the illicit liquor traffic, and foster respect for and obedience to law.

The Alabama Beverage Control Act provides for the sale of alcoholic beverages through rigidly controlled state stores and in hotels and restaurants in Alabama counties which approve the Act. It forever bars the open saloon. It strictly prohibits the sale of alcoholic beverages to minors.

Based on the experience of other states, it is estimated that revenues which will be received by the State of Alabama, its counties and municipalities from the legalized sale of alcoholic beverages will be about $2,500,000 yearly—a sum which now goes into bootleggers' pockets.

These revenues will be distributed as follows:

- 50% to the General Fund of the State for the maintenance of public schools and other governmental functions.
- 10% to the State Treasury, ear marked for Old Age Pensions and Public Welfare.
- 10% to be evenly divided among Alabama counties for their General Fund.
- 10% to the counties, ear marked for Public Health, Old Age Pensions, and Public Welfare.
- 20% to cities in counties which approve the act, and where State stores are operated.

The real question to be voted on on March 10th by the citizens of your county is not whether to "stay dry" or "go wet" but whether municipalities within your county shall share in the revenues and business benefits which will accrue from legally controlled stores.

If you vote "no," liquor can be bought in state stores in your neighbor counties and freely brought into your own county.

If you vote "no," municipalities which have state stores in your neighbor counties will receive their share of the revenues from liquor sales not only to the people in your neighbor counties but also to the people of your own county.

If you vote "no," many of your citizens will drive into neighbor counties to buy liquor and spend their money with your neighbor county merchants.

If you vote "yes," your county will legalize and control something that already exists and derive from it revenue to keep your schools open and carry on the human welfare program instituted by our great President.

We've tried the path of prohibition in Alabama. It has not led us to true temperance, but instead to a $25,000,000 a year bootleg industry.

Let's give the new and open road of constructive liquor regulation a fair trial.

WORDS

Your little words
Are hard and cold
You try to use them in a sling
As David did
To slay the bold

Only sting.

SMILES

When I am interested in a person I await the opportunity when he opens his mouth and talks. That gives me my first cue as to what manner of human being he is. Then I watch for his smile. A smile is a great deal like the lifting of the shades in a room and letting in the light. A smile lets in the light and reveals character as few traits do.

I went into the office of one of my associates the other day and noted that he looked worried and worn. I told him that I wouldn't say a word t ohim until he smiled. Well, the sun streamed into that face and a transformation took place. The rest of the day for him, as well as for me, was happy.

So says one of our favorite columnists—George Adams.

He continues: "The most popular people I have ever known have been those noted for their smiles. The recent popular election of President Roosevelt, in a large measure, was the tribute to a smiling man who gave confidence to millions.

You can't defeat a SMILE. It has the heaviest artillery on its side.

Work is happier and certainly tasks grow lighter under the radiance of a smile. Try smiling your way thru the day—and see what happens!

ATTENTION SUBSCRIBERS

The cost of production, paper, labor and other necessary "evils" in printing a weekly newspaper is about to force us to raise the subscription price of the Democrat. If you want the paper at the extremely low price of $1.00 per year, kindly send in your renewal subscription before March 1 Many new and old subscribers have personally called to renew their loyalty to Shelby County's widest circulated weekly, since January 1st—but there are others who have failed to write or "pay up." Kindly let us hear from you as we shall be forced to strike your name from the list of paid subscribers after March 1st unless this little matter of vital importance to us is attended to a tonce.

MRS. H. J. WALTON ENTERTAINS CULTURE CLUB

The Columbiana Culture Club had the happy prvilege of meeting with Mrs. H. J. Walton in her lovely home last Thursday, February 18th.

Carnaiotns were artistically arranged throughout the rooms.

The meeting was opened by all singing our club song led by Mrs. J. W. Stone.

A nominating committee was appointed to select officers for the coming year: Chairman, Mrs. W. L. Christian, Mrs. L. H. Curlee and Mrs J. W. Stone

Mrs. J. W. Stone, in her usual charming manner, led the program of Guess Who! Stop! Look! Listen! First, she read a poem about each member and made us guess who it was about. Our own Milton Bird composed these poems (See Heart Drifts).

Other contests and stunts were enjoyed after which Mrs. H. J. Walton related a story and Mrs. T. K. Roberts told some jokes. The program closed by all singing Old Folk Songs.

I think all present agreed that this was one of the most enjoyable meetings we have had and the club is indebted to Mrs. Stone for the happy hour she arranged for us.

Visitors for the afternoon were Messrs J. R. White, L. C. Walker and J. W. Jones and Misses Sallie Smoke, Doris Bender, Mary George Burks, and Elizabeth Merrell.

The book "Due In April" by John Clayton was present to the club.

The hostess served a delicious plate of salad, toasted sandwiches, coffee and cakes iced in white with given names of each one present embossed in red on each one. A tiny U. S. Dog representing a George Washington built dog decorated each plate.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. A. N. Bird March 4th with Mrs. L. H. Curlee as program leader.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stone of Columbinia are happily receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter on January 20th, whom they have named Jane. We understand that this little one month old cherub is adorable and quite beautiful.

REV. AUGUSTUS J. COX

The personnel of the Democrat happily welcomed theRev. Augustus J. Cox, distinguished Presbyterian Minister of Montevallo, in our offices on Monday. Mr. Cox, for several months contributed some excellent "Sermonettes" to our weekly edition, and we are sincerely hoping these popular features may soon be resumed.

PURPLE MARTINS

Purple Martins and Spring weather are synonomous terms. Now that we hear these harbingers of the vernal season have made their appearance, we are eagerly accepting this prophecy and discarding the Ground Piggy's prognostigations that we must have 6 more weeks of Winter. We saw a red bird this morning flash his crimson wings as we swung along to work and we got in the "wish" before he flew away—hence, we belive it will come true. So, if Winter is here—Spring cannot be far behind.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Jones of Gadsden, and Mr. and Mrs. Alga Martin and Ira Jones of Calera, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jones.

Mrs. L. H. Ellis is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Harry Gilmore in Wetumpka.

EMALYN CROUCH

Friends of Miss Emalyn Crouch, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Crouch of Columbiana, will be delighted ot learn that this brilliant student of Huntingdon College, Montgomery, has made the first Honor Roll. Miss Crouch also holds the distinction of having scored highest of all students who have entered this College in an intelligence test for Freshmen. We join a host of her admirers in Columbiana in sending personal congratulations.

UP AND DOWN MAIN

Mr. W. T. Smith of Birmingham spent Sunday with his wife and children.

Miss Mary George Burks spent the week end in Langdale, the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Burks.

Heart Drifts

The feature "HEART DRIFTS" this week, instead of being clipped from my own Scrap Book, is written straight from the heart of our Town Poet and Short Story Writer—Milton Bird, who chose as his inspiration the members of the Culture Club who were uniquely entertained by Mrs. Zera Walton on last Thursday afternoon. A description of this lovely courtesy is found in Personal Mention columns. The "Ladies" tell me they felt terrifically flattered, but we also learned that only one or two failed to guess from the poetic effusion just WHO Mr. Bird had in mind from the descriptive poem—and thats something to be gay about! We happily reprint the poetic contest.

Mary Nell Whitaker

My vest, the buttons came off of,
Was white, the fellow said;
And so I went into the store
To buy some silk white thread;
But, gosh, I got another kind
Because her hair was red.

Lucille Crawford

A-getting well and out of bed
We might not want to do,
If medicine was brought to us
By someone just like you:
And, maybe we wouldn't anyhow,
Cause the doctor loves you too!

Inez Bird

'Tis not because you always are
So spotless and so neat
When you pass by my window
That looks out on the street:
I guess I like you most because
You cook good things to eat.

Mrs. Pearle Christian

Your dots and dashes o'e rthe wire
Relate strange things, I know;
That someone loves us still, and that
Another had to go:
But it's the friendliness you share
That makes us like you so!

Mrs. Sue Roberts

She was, I think, among the best
Of the folks I knew,
And you who share her presence here
Must know I mean it too:
Just add the last word to my rhyme
You'll find the name is———!

Fay Roberts

That little chap, before he's grown
A million things will do,
And everyone will make him mean
A little more to you:
And, also, we're all glad he's back
And his mom and papa too!

Virginia Nichols

I hear her playing as I pass
Her house each day;
Sometimes she sings in such a soft
And simple way:
That I could build my house outside
And stay and stay.

Mrs. Lightcap

I never see her but I think
Of flowers fair,
Like happy fairies dancing on
The heavy air . . . .
I guess because where flowers are
She will be there.

Mayme Horne

The newest thing has always been Lovelier than any other,
Since Adam and Eve shared their home
In Eden with each other:
But nothing can more lovely be
Than you, our newest mother!

Kathreen Curlee

I like to stop in at a church,
I don't know why,
Unless it is that every church
I wander by,
Has some fine lady, busy there,
Better than I.

Mrs. Nell Davis

I never see a lady's home
But what I see
A lot of happy hours spent
In ecstasy . . . .
Just fixing and refixing this
And that, you see!

Mrs. Ruby Lovelady

Sometimes I wonder what you'd do
If there were no one near
To share your happy chatter that
The folks so like to hear:
And say, we're mighty ,mighty glad
You're in our club this year!

Mrs. Claudie Wooley

I knew a man in business once
Whose work fell through
Because he had too many things
He tried to do . . . .
I bet be wishes now he had Consulted you!

Irene Stone

I've watched you on the stage in plays
And on the dance floor too;
And in the choir I heard a voice
I knew belonged to you:
Say, is there anything at all
A girl like you can't do!

Mildred Curlee

Your talents are as numerous
As leaves upon the trees;
You've got a husband and a son
To go along with these . . . .
But right now, lady, if you will:
One adults ticket, please!

Zera Walton

In your new car I always wish
I was just where you're at,
To sit a moment with you there
And talk of this and that . . ..
And say, please tell me where you got Another lovely hat!

Mrs. Miriam Childs

You always are superbly dressed
From feet to head,
And very beautiful, indeed,
We all have said . . .
But more than this, I think, it that
You are well read!

Mrs. Gertrude Taylor

Of all the people that I pass
Upon the street,
No other has the ways you have,
So fine, so sweet . . . .
As though one passed a first May flower
Upon the street.

Mrs. Carolyn Nickerson

"If I were wed," a fellow said,
To me the other day,
"I'd want my wife to be with me
When I went out to play—"
I guess there never was a man
Who didn' tfeel that way.

Mrs. Byrd Curry and mother, Mrs. Campbell, of Wilton, are guests of Judge and Mrs. Cage Head.

"Hop" Cole, popular salesman, was a distinguished guest in the Democrat office on Saturday, and if you want a real good "cock and bull" story—get "Hop" to relate the Pan American race staged with a celebrated member of the bovine species near Huntsville. An interesting incident which brought forth much merriment with vistors who were making a morning pop call. Story telling is an art—HOP has it!

E. H. Templin of Calera, was a guest in Columbiana on Saturday, and while in town, called by the office to renew his allegiance to the Democrat. He states that this paper is the best medium he knows for keeping abreast of the news in his native county. We are delighted to pull up the old arm chair for him in the ever widening circle of weekly readers.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Roberts are being cordially greeted as residents of Columbiana again. This popular couple has, for the past few months, been hibernating in Birmingham, but have recently returned to Columbiana to reside. Mr. Roberts will continue his responsible position with the Oak Park project. Mrs. Roberts will resume her connection with the Health Department on March 1st. We predict the most interesting member of the Roberts' family—namely, Harry Jr., will keep both of them busy on the night shift.

Miss Elizabeth Merrill spent the week end in Anniston, the guest of her parents.

Miss Evelyn Vincent of Dargin, spent the week end with Miss Pellie John Barnett.

Mr. Gavin Minor and Miss Elvina Verchot spent Sunday in Birmingham with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Looney.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F Cox and daughter pent the week end in Wilsonville with Mr and Mrs. Grady McEwen.

Mr. H. Q. Smith of Birmingham, spent Saturday with Mrs. Blanche White.

Mr. and Mrs. G .R. McNeill, B J. Baldwin of Birmnigham and Miss Idell Turner of Columbiana, spent the week end at Blue Creek Camp on the Coosa River.

Francis Leonard spent the week end in Columbiana with his parents.

Mrs. L B Riddle spent the week end in Tuskegee with her aunt, Mrs. Dudley. Mrs. Dudley returned with Mrs. Riddle for a short visit.

Mrs. Sidney Bird of Decatur, spent the week end in Columbiana with her husband.

Dick Ozley of Siluria, spent Saturday in Columbiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Becker of East Orange, New Jersey, spent several days of this week with Mrs. Becker's sister, Mrs. J. H. Crawford and Dr. Crawford.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Young had as their guests Sunday, Mr and Mrs. R. R Roberson and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Reinhardt and son nad Mr. and Mrs. Tom Reinhardt and family of Wilsonville.

J. C. Reinhardt has moved to Birmingham, where he has accepted a position with the T. C. I.

Miss Evie Woodham spent the week end with her parents in Hartford.

Miss Elizabeth Bell spent the week end in Birmingham with friends.

Mrs. Alvin Stinson of Montevallo, was a visitor in Columbiana Monday.

"SORRY YOU WERE DELAYED, NEIGHBOR"

NOW

L & N TRAINS . . . PASSENGER, FREIGHT, MAIL, EXPRESS

Back in Service

Guess you know how it is, neighbor. Comes a bit of trouble, sickness or danger in your home and business just has to shift for itself. Well, it looked like a tough spot down here with the Ohio walking right in the front doors of all our families. But L & N, fortunately, has the equipment and men for just such an emergency. Our train service was donated to help flood sufferers to safety . . . food and other supplies were transported free during the crisis; then, when the swirling water slunk back to its bed, our forces whipped into action to restore service.

Now, the L & N, "Your Home Sweet Home On Rails," is back on the job . . . as strong and well equipped as ever . . . grateful for the privilege of having served in some measure our neighbors and friends. Today, safe, comfortable passenger trains are rolling again. Speedy freight cars are again carrying the nation's goods. And the L & N, which never bowed a head or bent a shoulder in adversity in all its eighty-seven years, thanks you for your consideration during our time of trouble.

WOFFORD OIL, DIVISION OF PURE OIL CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. D. L. Gilland of the Wofford Oil Division of The Pure Oil Co., is unselfishly taking part in this GoodRoads edition of the Democrat.

The Wofford Oil Company was first started in 1903 by Mr. George T. Wofford on a small scale only serving this immediate section. In 1916, they started the sale of gasoline and in 1918, Woco-Pep, which owes its success, of course, to Mr. George T. Wofford, and too, Benzol was introduced and which at that time had only been used in high explosives during the war and when Mr. Wofford begun combining benzol with gasoline, Woco-Pep was born. Since that time this Alabama firm has paid in several million dollars to the Benzol producers in the Birmingham district. This organization furnishes employment to approximately twenty-five hundred people and today they have thirty-seven wholesale distributing plants ni Alabama alone and seven hundred and fifty retail outlets.

In 1925 The Pure Oil Co., became financially interested with Mr. Wofford and for many years this organization has handled the quality products of The Pure Oil Co. in addition to Woco-Pep. Some of these well known products, such as Tiolene Motor Oils, Purol Motor Oils, Tiolene Extreme Pressure Greases, Tiolene Hand Soap and many others are household words.

They specialize in fuel and lubricants for Diesel Engines.

Woco-Pep Super Solvenized is an extra value feature. When you use this fuel you are assured of a cleaner motor—full power—smooth operation and greater economy.

Tiolene Motor Oil is 100 per cent pure super Pennsylvania Motor Oil which costs less in the long run. Their other motor oils are Purol and Guardian and all Woco-Pep Stations sell all three.

In addition all dealers also handle Yale tires and tubes, Pure batteries and other automobile accessories all at fair and reasonable prices.

This writer congratulates the people of this section that they have such a progrssive firm in their midst and when you buy their products you are helping to build up your own section.

THE INGALLS IRON WORKS COMPANY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, The Ingalls Iron Works are unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

This progressive organization has meant much to the people of this section as they furnish employment to scores of people and they bring money into this section from other sections and they are one of the largest companies of its kind in the United States. They maintain five plants with executive offices in Birmingham; other plants and offices are located at Atlanta, New York, New Orleans, Verona, Pa., San Francisco and Tampa.

Manufacturers of structural steel, bridges, steel tanks, standard steel buildings, ship building, etc., their products have been used the world over. Thousands of tons of Ingalls steel were used in the construction of Boulder Dam and thousands of tons were used in electrifying the Pennsylvania Rail Road between Washington and New York.

Being located in Birmingham they are naturally interested in the growth and development of their neighboring County, Shelby.

This writer congratulates the people of this section on having the Ingalls Iron Works Company located in their midst.

Mr. Z. O. Riddle, who is well known in Shelby County, is their representative in Shelby County and he has made hosts of friends for the company by his fair and square business dealings.

A COMPLETE LINE OF EQUIPMENT FOUND AT LANCASTER EQUIPMENT CO.

Carrying a most complete line of grocery, market, restaurant, hotel and dairy equipment, the Lancaster Equipment Company has built up an enviable volume of business. They have been in business since 1923 and they have made hosts of friends throughout this entire section by their fair and square business dealings and Mr. C. L. Lancaster. the owner and manager, is always willing to co-operate with Shelby County in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to our County.

They are direct representatives for McCray Refrigerator Company who is the largest manufacturers of refrigerators for all purposes. They are also dealers for the Stimpson Scale Company and meat grinders, coffee mills and meat slicers. In fact, if it is equipment or supplies for grocery, market, dairy, restaurant, hotel, florist, drug stores, hospitals, clubs, etc. it will be found here at Lancaster Equipment Company.

They also maintain prompt service by factory trained men on all electrical refrigerators and store equipment. They are located at 420 South 20th Street and their telephone number is 3-5635. They invite the merchants of Shelby County to call or visit them when in Birmingham.

BIRMINGHAM SASH AND DOOR CO. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

The Birmingham Sash and Door Company was established in August, 1919 by the present president Mr. J. F. Watson at 10th Avenue and 16th Street, where they operated until 1926, but due to increase in the volume of business, it was necessary for them to build a new plant at 9th Avenue and 28th Street, North, the same covering over an acre of ground

Feeling there was a splendid opportunity to serve the Retail Lumber Building Material and Hardware dealers throughout the Southeast on White Pine, Fir and also Yellow Pine products and for that reason they carry the largest and best assorted line with which to serve their dealers. They sell only to dealers or to friends of the dealers through the dealers.

They are very much interested in the progress which Shelby County is making and have many friends located in the towns in Shelby and they appreciate the confidence and co-operation during the past year from their dealer-friends.

They handle everything in the building material line with the exception of lumber, lime, cement and paint.

They are always glad to see the friends of their dealers and are always glad to have them call at the office or handle a call through the dealers or any materials that they may need and give them information which they may want regarding the building of a new home or improvements thereto.

The Birmingham Sash and Door has been unusually active in co-operating with the Federal Governments program through the F. H. A., Title 1 and Title 2, and they are making many lonas to the various dealers which they have they can make these loans on Title 1 as long as 5 years and on Title 2 from 15 to 19 years and 6 months. The cost of financing the Title I loan does not cost the dealer anything whereas on Title 2, there is a small charge as outlined by the Federal Government.

They have representatives traveling the territory at all times and they will be glad to assist the Dealer in any way they can towards helping him sell a consumer or contractor.

The Birmingham Sash and Door Company is the home of Quality Products and their Radio Service guarantees shipment on stock items within 24 hours after th reeceipt of the order.

ORANGE CRUSH BOTTLING COMPANY MAKES NEW ADDITION TO PLANT

Mr. Raymond Rochell, president and sole owner of the Orange Crush Bottling Company, started in Ensley in 1908 as the Jefferson County Bottling Company, then a few years later he began the Grapico Bottling Company and in 1924, he moved to Birmingham and started the present Orange Crush Bottling Company and now bottlers of Seven-Up, the drink that has become the favorite drink of thousands.

Mr. Rochell is always willing to co-operate with Shelby County in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to our County and he is unselfishly taking part in this edition.

Since 7-up was introduced it has increased in popularity so rapidly that it was necessary to enlarge their present plant and they are now installing the most modern equipment so as to meet the ever-increasing popular demand of the public. They are now bottling six cases of 7-up a minute during operation time and when the new addition is completed they will be in position to better serve the people of this section.

You often hear the question asked "What is 7-up?" 7-up is a lithiated water-white visibly pure drink bottled for purity's sake. A softly acid drink that does not irritate the most delicate stomach. Lemons and limes are used to flavor and make palatable and these two flavors are the best possible boosters for other flavors used as a mixer. Every bottle of 7-up is sterilized by sterile machinery. 7-up is pleaant to drink it settles the stomach, purifies,, energizes and alkalizes.

This writer congratulates the people of Alabama and especially this section on having 7-up and its home in their midst.

W. F. GREEN MOTOR CO. ALWAYS CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County Mr. W. F. Green of W. F. Green Motors, is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads Edition of the Democrat.

Mr. Green has been in business in Birmingham three years and during this time he has made hosts of friends in Shelby County by his fair and square business dealings.

W. F. Green Motors, as almost everyone knows in Shelby County, are dealers for Dodge and Plymouth automobiles and Dodge Trucks and Commercial cars.

As to Dodge; when it is mentioned, the word Dependability arises in ones mind as it was Dodge who first coined this word and it is a well known fact that Dodge throughout the years has expressed in their product the true meaning of Dependability.

The Dodge Trucks are truly America's most astonishing truck value and thousands of truck buyers have checked "all three" lowest priced 1½ ton trucks for money saving features--and have switched to Dodge

Dodge commercial cars are also amazing values. It is "America's most beautiful commercial car." More economy and safety steel cab and body and many other features too numerous to mention.

Plymouth, in this writer's opinion, has the biggest value in Plymouth history. Plymouth is larger and when they say safety steel they mean steel overhead and all around you. New achievements in silence engineering and ease of operation. New Steering ease for roughest roads, floating power and high compression give you the biggest value in economy

But to really appreciate these cars and trucks, we suggest you visit W. F. Green Motors when in Birmingham.

ALABAMA FIXTURE COMPANY ALWAYS CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

One of the most well known concerns of its kind in this entire section is the Alabama Fixture Company located at 2013 5th Avenue, North, next to the Tutwiler Hotel.

This firm under the management of Mr. J. E. Popwell has made rapid growth during the nine years they have been in business. They are exclusive factory representatives for the Viking Commercial Refrigerators Display Cases, Coolers, Vegetable Cases, Florists Refrigerators, etc.

They are also dealers for the well known line of Standard Scales and Globe Slicing Machines, meat grinders, in fact anything in store or market fixtures or equipment will be found here at fair and reasonable prices.

The Alabama Fixture Company also have a complete line of restaurant hotel equipment and supplies as well as office furniture, safes, files, type writers, adding machines, etc., and they maintain a 24 hour service department for their customers convenience.

This progressive firm is always willing to co-operate with Shelby County and they are unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition. Their telephone number it 3-1902.

MARTIN-FLOWERS AT FIVE POINTS CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. V. E. Martin of Martin--Flowers, is unselfishly taking part in this Edition.

This Florist is located at 1919 Eleventh Avenue South "in the heart of Five Points" and their telephone number is 7-3103. Martin Flowers is the only Florist located at Five Points, with a large Neon sign.

A large selection of cut flowers, plants, novelties, corsages, bouquets in fact anything in the florist line will be found here and at fair and reasonable prices.

They also specialize in funeral designs, weddings, etc., and Mr. Martin cordially invite the people of Shelby County when coming to Birmingham to look for the sign 'Martin-Flowers' and pay them a visit.

This newspaper has no hesitaincy in recommending Martin-Flowers to its many readers.

COSCO PRODUCTS COMPANY ALWAYS CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby Count, Mr. B. F. King, president of the Cosco Products Company, is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

Cosco Products Company have been in business since March, 1936, and during this time they have made hosts of friends throughout this section by their fair and square business dealings. Mr. King was formerly associated with the Conners Steel Company before going into business for himself.

Cosco Products are manufacturers of Reinforcing bars and steel and allied products that go into the construction of buildings and highways.

They are located in the Empire Building and their telephone number is 3-0884.

PERPLEXING

"Some persons are hard to figure out. One cannot tell whether their behavior is due to thoughlessness or to meaness. The effects are the same. Whether a workman drops a brick on the head of a passerby thru carelessness or vindictiveness, the crack in the skull is the same."

PERSONAL MENTION

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

When you first began to read the English language you will recall a little story that began "The Little Red Hen Laid an Egg." Well, this is the story from the Poultry Depart ment of Sam Lovett who lives in the Kingdom community, and Mr. Lovett brought the "evidence" along with him in the office today in the form of the biggest EGG we have ever seen. Mr. Lovett states he has a prize White Leghorn hen and the egg which he brought us which this little White Hen" laid—measures 7 1-8 in. in circumference and 8 1-4 inches up and around." Believe it or not—we have the EGG—and you may verify the statement by coming by the office and taking a look at it. This is one "old hen" who really has something to "cackle" over.

MR. C. E. NIVEN

When we swing along Main Street on Monday morning ,our first destination is the Village Post Office—and on Monday morning we joined the throng of Uncle Sam's patrons in happily greeting Mr. C. E. Niven who has been absent from his postal duties for the past few weeks on account of illness.No one has been accorded so universal a welcome, nor was e'er a "native" more sincerely missed than was "Mr. Charlie during his stay in the Magic City hospital. He states he is feeling fine now and he is busily engaged in dealing our messages of "joy and sorrow" which only the postman can deal. Happy Landing Mr .Charlie. You have long had our stamp of approval.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

We thought Spring was here, but alas, alack, that's where we made one sad mistake. King Winter is a tenacious old fellow, fickle too, like a girl with a new beau every Saturday night. We had practically stored our winter jackets away and here we've had to drag them out again. Drat that ground piggy! His prophecy is coming true with a bang! Oh well, "It's always darkets just before the dawn." Right here we're pausing to say htanks to all those who have passed complimentary remarks about our humble attempts at journalism. We are very proud to repeat that Natan Maudling has been released from Gorgas hospital where he underwent an appendix operation. Nathan has been greatly missed and the whole town is anxiously awaiting his return home. . . . A number of our girls have contracted the bicycle fever. Those who ahve reached the buying stage are Margaret, Hazel Nora, and Mary Loyce. Careful is the word girls. . . . We gather that a letter (very special) from the One and Only has set on elittle brunette's heart all aflutter. Could it contain a delicious secret? . . . If you haven't had the pleasure of meetng that cunning little fellow, Larry Nobles, you are being cheated. He is just too sweet for words and those golde curls are beautiful. . . . Speaking of golden curls, th ehighes tambition of one of our prettiest brunettes one of our prettiest brownettes is to become a blond. We wonder wny" . . .Are we tempted or are we tempted to call on Mr. and Mrs. Mark Blankenship in the hopes that they will invite us for a spin in their swell new car which they have just purchased? . . . There was to have been a lovely B. Y. P. U. social Saturday night at the Baptist Church, but it rained and rained so what?—There was no social—never mind though we'll ge taround to it again soon.—Maybe . . . . We hear that Mrs. Phillips and son, Fred, came over from Atlanta, Georga, to be with Mr. Phillips during the week end—according to all reports they were both looking swell . . . . We've had the pleasure of an old time chat with our good friend O. B. Mathis. We seldom see O. B. now days as he is attendinf Alverson Business College in the mornings and working in the afternoon. We enjoyed this littl evisit with O. B. tremendously. . . . You were lucky if you had the pleasure of meeting Miss Annie Ruth Brandon of Pratt City who was the charming guest of her sister, Doris, over the week end. . . . These two with Margie Reach were seen dining at Chuck's Place Sunday noon. . . We hear that Fletcher Payne was the spend the day guest of Vivian Broome Saturday . . . . Saturday's rani revealed the weakness of Doris and Elzabeth. It is told that they enjoyed sitting under an open umbrella in the bus, on their way home from a shopping spree in town. . . . Having drained our think tanks of all we know of interest, we will bid you adieu.

'til next week,

Nelle and Nell.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Young and Seale Reinhardt spent Sunday afternoon in Thorsby the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Reinhardt.

The Alabama Beverage Control Act

By L. H. ELLIS

Many inquiries have been made of me as to the provisions of the Alabama Beverage Control Act to be voted upon in the County Referendum on March 10, with a request that I announce through the press some of the pertinent provisions thereof, and a frank statement of my views in reference thereto, and I make the following statement, not for the purpose of unduly influencing any voter but as a contribution to the study of the important subject.

Under the act referred to, commonly called the "Liquor Law", it is provided as follows:

'. That liquor and wines or vinous beverages can be sold only in State owned and State operated liquor stores.

2. These liquor stores can be located only in an incorporated town.

3. Beer can be sold by reputable persons at any place by persons to whom the Alabama Beverage Control Board issues a license.

4. Liquor and wine cannot be sold in restaurants and hotels in any town or city of less than 4500 inhabitants.

5. Liquor and wine cannot be sold n any road houses anywhere.

6. In Shelby county, under the present law, liquor stores can be established only in the town of Vincent, Columbiana, Wilsonville, Calera, Wilton and Helena, but other places having the necessary population could incorporate and then a liquor store could there be located.

7. The entire control of all matters pertaining to the sale of liquor, the supervision and issuance of license and the sale of beer is lodged in the Alabama Beverage Control Board composed of three reputable citizens who have already been appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate, and who will operate through an Administrator who shall serve at the pleasure of the Control Board.

8. The Control Board will purchase all liquors and wines to be sold through the State stores and the revenues derived therefrom will be divided fifty per cent to the State for general purposes, ten per cent to the State, ear marked for Old Age Pensions and other public welfare work, twenty per cent to the Counties and twenty per cent to the municipalities.

9. Of the County's part of the proceeds, ten per cent is ear marked and set aside as a special fund to be used exclusively for the purpose of Public Health, Old Age Pensions and County Public Welfare, and the other ten per cent will go into the general revenue of the County.

10. The ten per cent of the State Funds ear marked for Old Age Pensions and Public Welfare Work will be used to match the County's ten per cent dedicated to a like purpose and the two together will be used to match Federal Funds.

These provisions are designed especially to bring relief to the Old Age Pension Fund. At present the Counties are unable to match State money and consequently Federal money for Old Age Pensions is not available.

11. No liquor store can be operated within one mile of an institution of higher learning.

12. As there is no incorporated town in Shelby county of the population of 4500, no liquor or wine can be sold in any Hotel, Restaurant or Club within the confines of the County but, as stated they can be sold only in the State Stores.

13. In counties having no incorporated town, a State Store can be located only at the County site, but this provision is not applicable to Shelby County, which has the municipalities above named.

14. I call especial attention to the place where liquor stores can be located in Shelby County as the impression has gone out that in the event the County votes in favor of the Beverage Control Act a liquor store could be located only at Columbiana.

15. Ample provision is made in the Act for enforcement and for the prevention of the sale of illegal liquors. All liquors and wines in the State stores will bear the State stamp and the sale of any other liquor is made illegal and subject to heavy penalties.

16. In counties voting dry the present prohibition laws are retained except as to possession of liquors legally bought from the State Stores in other counties.

17. It is estimated that the revenue derived from the liquor bill will be from four to six million dollars annually and the revenues ear marked and set aside to each county for Old Age Pension and other Public Welfare Work will enable the Counties to match State and Federal Funds, so that a considerable fund will be available for these worthy purposes.

18. Like provision is made in the Sales Tax Law whereby one fourth of the net revenue of the Sales Tax is ear marked and set aside for Public Health, Public Welfare, which includes Old Age Pensions and Farm Demonstration Work, and neither this fund nor the fund provided for under the Beverage Control Act can be used for any other purpose.

19. None of the liquor money is ear marked or set aside for educational purposes but the needs of education are taken care of in the Sales Tax Law. The liquor revenue and Sales Tax revenue dedicated and set aside to Old Age Pension and other Public Welfare Work will take care of the immediate needs of those entitled to Old Age Pensions. If the funds thus ear marked for this worthy cause are found to be insufficient it will be left to another Legislature to devise means to increase the funds to the point where these needs will be cared for.

I might further state that the illicit liquor traffic in Alabama today, a supposedly dry State, amounts to the staggering sum of $25,000,000.00, per annum, and over, and this stupendous traffic pays not one penny of revenue into the State Treasury.

I also remind our people that there has been a complete break-down in the Prohibition Law throughout the State and Shelby County is no exception, and, while I have been a staunch prohibitionist all my life, yet I have come to the mature, quiet and calm judgment that it is an utter failure, and that it is time for all sincere, sober-minded and thoughtful men and women to pause and consider this important question and to determine whether or not it is best to continue in the present state of lawlessness and disregard for law or whether it is wise to regulate the traffic in liquor and let it bear its part of the burden of taxation.

These are the questions which confront the people of Shelby county when we go to the polls on March 10. In my judgment, it is not a question of liquor or no liquor, because we have it already in its most insiduous form, but the question is whether or not the State operated stores, with the revenues flowing into the general treasury of the State as well as into the municipalities and counties with a good portion of it ear marked and held in trust for Old Age Pensions, and other forms of Public Welfare, is a better solution of the problem.

So clearly have I been convinced that the State Liquor Stores plan, with strict enforcement of the laws relative to liquors, wines and beer, is the best solution under all the circumstances, that I, as Representative from the County, voted for the Act and it is now submitted to the voters of the county for their approval or disapproval.

In my judgment, when the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution was repealed, this meant death to the Prohibition Laws of the State, and Alabama has been one of the last to realize this. Liquor Law violators feared the harsh and heavy hand of the Federal Government, but consider only lightly the State penalties and enforcement.

TRICO COFFEE COMPANY, INC. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate n any project or movement tha tis calculated to be o fbenefit to Shelby County Mr. J. L. Creamer of the Trico Coffee Company is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

The Trico Coffee Company have been in business in Birmingham for 20 years and they have made hosts of friends by their fair and square dealings in Shelby County.

When you buy Trico Coffee, you buy Fresh Coffee as it is brought to your home from 24 to 48 hours after it has been roasted and ground and freshness is the secret of good coffee.

It is also a matter of choice because when you buy Trico Coffee you receive a beautiful premium and you don't have to save coupons—they advance you a useful premium with your first purchase and the more you buy of Trico products—the more you save. Where you buy other kinds of coffee you are helping to pay for that brand of coffee's advertising.

All Trico coffees are highland grown. Trico coffee is cup tested and most important of all Trico Coffee is roasted and delivreed daily.

Next time for coffee perfectrion try the "Trico Way."

CHENEY LIME WORKS IS BIG ASSET TO SHELBY COUNTY AND STATE

Always wishing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, The Cheney Lime and Cement Company are unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads Booster edition of the Democrat.

That this progressive organization is one of Shelby County's most decided assets is a foregone conclusion in that they furnish employment to scores of local people and their product which is shipped to all parts of the country, brings money into Shelby County from other sections and is spent here for labor, equipment, etc. They pay taxes in Shelby County and naturally they are vitally interested in the growth and development of our county.

Their plant is one of the most modern and up to date of its kind in the entire South and recently new equipment has been installed so as to place it at the top of the lime and cement manufacturers.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having The Cheney Lime & Cement Company located in their midst.

GULF REFINING COMPANY HAS MANY STATIONS IN SHELBY COUNTY

The Gulf Refining Company have been doing business in Shelby County for many years and naturally they have made many friends for their products due to the many outstanding features about their products.

One has only to use Gulf products once to notice the difference in the performance o fyour car. Good Gulf gasoline gives more power, better pick-up, and more mileage and especially in cold weather you get quicker starting with Good Gulf gasoline.

Mr. Tom Stinson of Columbiana, has part of Shelby County and Mr. J. A. Brown of Montevallo has part as authorized dealers.

In this writer's opinion, Gulf Lube and Gulf Pride Motor Oil is what has made so many friends for them because these two motor oils are made the right way—to give the utmost in lubrication during all kinds of weather.

If you haven't been using Gulf products, next time drive in a Gulf Station—fill your tank with Good Gulf Gasoline and watch your car take a new lease on life.

THE TUTWILER - IN BIRMINGHAM CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County Mr. Burt Orndoff, vice president and manager of the Tutwiler Hotel is unselfishly taking part in htis Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

The Tutwiler has long been recognized os the leading hotel in Birmingham and is the lragest hotel in Alabama and the expression "Meet Me At The Tutwiler" is a familiar saying among Shelby County and other natives of Alabama.

The Tutwiler is a Dinkler operated hotel, who also operate the Andrew Jackson in Nashville; the Ansley in Atlanta; the Savannah in Savannah; the St. Charles in New Orleans; the Jefferson Davis in Montgomery and the O'Henry in Greensboro, N. C.

When you stop at the Tutwiler in Birmingham, everything possible is done for your comfort and to make your visit a pleasant one and one that will make you want to come back—and the service that they render here is one of the reasons that the Tutwiler has become the leading hotel in Alabama.

Mr. Orndoff is progressive and public spirited and interested in the growth and development of Shelby County as well as the State of Alabama. He is also president of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce.

This writer congratulates the people of this section on having the Tutwiler in their midst.

WALLWORK FOUNDRY COMPANY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County Mr. S. C. Hane of Wallwork Foundry Company is unselfishly taking part in this edition. Mr. Hane has been in business in Birmingham since 1907 and he has made hosts of friends throughout this section by his fair and square business dealings.

This is one of the largest foundries in this entire section and they are equipped to take care of any work and the service and workmanship they render make them rank foremost among the industries of this section. They employ only skilled workmen who understand their trade and they can be depended on to turn out superior work.

Whether it is just a broken piece or a large quantity of castings needed in the manufacture of large machinery you will find this company will take care of you satisfactorily. If you are on a farm and have broken some part of your machinery, you will save time and effort by coming to this well known firm and having them to do your work and you will be more than satisfied with their service workmanship and price.

The Wallwork Foundry Company have been making the drain casters for Alabama College in Montevallo for the past several years.

This writer and newspaper has no hesitancy in recommending the Wall work Foundry Company to its readers and suggests that you call on them when in need of any repair work in thei rline. They are located at 2 West 15th Street.

ALABAMA FLORAL CO. ALWAYS CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Mrs. F. M. Roegner, owner of the Alabama Flora' Company stands ready to cooperate with Shelby County at all times in any project that will benefit our county. She has been in business in the same location sixteen years at 1004 South 20th Street at "Five Points" and the Alabama Floral Company is one of the oldest established florists in Birmingham.

They operate their own greenhouses and trucks and they specialize in funeral designs, wedding parties, in fact they have flowers for every occasion, cut flowers, novelties, etc.

Mrs. Roegner especially appreciates out of town business and orders are filled the same day they are received. Their telephone number is 7-7294.

This newspaper has no hesitiancy in recommending the Alabama Floral Company to its readers and suggests that you stop there on your way to Birmingham or coming back to Shelby County.

DR. D. E. SNEAD, CHIROPRACTOR IS WELL KNOWN IN SHELBY COUNTY

Dr. D. E. Snead, located at 506 Lyric Building, Birmingham, is a native of Bibb County and he has made hosts of friends throughout this entire section by his fair and square dealings with everyone. He is recognized today as one of the most successful chiropractors in Birmingham, and having had years of actual experience there is no phase of chiropractory that Dr. Snead is not thoroughly conversant with.

The human body is so constructed that it is unnatural for disease to creep in without cause. The nerve system is designed so as to give health to all organs and keep them in condition. If through abnormal curvature, jolts, strains, falls, or wrenches at some time in life the movable bones o fthe spine are displaced ever slightly, they press on these nerves and obstruct the flow of life energy. Weakness and disease result in the organs that these nerves supply.

Information and analysis will cost you nothing and this writer has no hesitiancy in recommending Dr. D. E. Snead to the people of this section.

BIRMINGHAM SPRING SERVICE HAS BEEN IN BUSINESS FOR TEN YEARS

Under the direction of Mr. Louis Miklic manager, the Birmingham Spring Service, located at 2017 Avenue B, has built up oan enviable volume of business and they have made hosts of friends in Shelby County by their fair and square business dealings. They are always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County and they are unselfishly taking part in this good roads edition of the Democrat.

Carrying a most complete line of springs, leafs,, busings, axle clips and a stock of fenders for Chevrolets and Fords. The Brmingham Spring Service is recognized all over the state as the most complete of its kind. They also straighten frames and axles and all work is done by factory trained mechanics who have had years of experience in this line of work.

This writer congratulates the people of this section on having the Birmingham Spring Service, where you "limp in—leap out" in their midst. Their telephone number is 3-3229.

WORLD-WIDE KITCHEN PROOF!
823 SCIENTIFIC TESTS...IN 89 HOME PROVING KITCHENS...CONFIRM SPECTACULAR LABORATORY RECORDS

Now, thanks to certified tests, conducted in 89 HOME Proving Kitchens throughout the U. S. and foreign countries, you can be sure of getting a refrigerator that will do more things better and at less cost. Not laboratory performance! Not showroom performance! But IN YOUR KITCHEN, under YOUR conditions of daily use!

BETTER FOOD PROTECTION... kitchen-proved
Special tests on milk, meat, and left-overs convinced the most skeptical that Westinghouse protects food for days beyond any average requirements. For assured protection... the "Built-in Watchman" and also Built-in thermometer always in plain sight.

GREATER CONVENIENCE... kitchen-proved
Marketing and storage tests showed conclusive savings in time, trouble, and money through use of Triple Food Saver, Triple Storage Compartment and Adjusto-shelf.

FULL POWER... kitchen-proved
With door openings as frequent as 62 times a day, the efficient Economizer Unit operates less than 15 minutes out of every hour... a real money-saving feature.

FASTER FREEZING... kitchen-proved
Certified tests prove that you get more ice faster from the oversize fast-freezing Sanalloy Froster... a feature exclusive with Westinghouse Refrigerators.

GREATER ECONOMY... kitchen-proved
Scientific meter readings prove that electricity for the 1937 Westinghouse costs only slightly more per day than a postage stamp; even on hottest days.

LOW-COST OPERATION WINS U.S. PUBLIC WORKS ADMINISTRATION ORDER FOR 16,697 REFRIGERATORS
Competitive bids based on unit price plus ten-year current consumption bring to Westinghouse the largest refrigerator order ever placed... 16,697 new refrigerators for the slum clearance and low-rent housing projects of the U. S. Public Works Administration. Although four other manufacturers underbid on price, the lower current consumption of Westinghouse brought 10-year cost below all others... It's ten-year economy that counts.

A NIGGER WUS SKEERED

BY MILTON BIRD

"Dey ain't nothin'," Uncle Gus Sampson said to me one day, "dat will skeer a nigger much 'cept death. But dat'll skeer 'im, 'specially if y' sort o' sweeten it up wif God an' 'ligion."

We were sitting in Uncle Gus' back yard. On the pine hills beyond his two sooner dogs were chasing a rabbit. They came out of a sage patch and passed directly in front of us, their noses to the ground, their bushy tails sticking straight out.

"Dat rabbit is jes' lak some skeered nigger, an' dem dogs is lak death an' 'ligion; fer dat is de way dey chase a nigger till dey ketch 'im, an' 'is friends cover 'im up wif dirt, out o' sight of 'em both ferever."

He crammed his mouth full of snuff and went on. "I knowed a fellow twenty years ago who wus just de sort o' nigger I'se talking 'bout. If y' doesn't mind I'll tell y' his history an' y'll know whut I means."

I assured him I had time, adding, between long puffs on my pipe, that there would be six cans of snuff for him if his story was good.

He smile dhappily. He was terribly proud of himself; and it showed in his pale, blinking eyes, and his big, toothless mouth.

"His name wus Josh Williams, an' he cum in here frum somewheres in South Georgia jest 'bout de time mos' o' de niggers wus coming back frum de North, half friz, and their stomachs bellowing fer grub. He started a sort o' church house lodge, catering 'specially t' th' new-comers, an' taking in all th' old settlers who could git 'im us one dollar down an' promise 'im as much as one dollar every week fer a year.

"Well, you'd be s'prised at th' nigger's who flocked t' 'is meeting. He wus so much smarter dan dem an' had seen so much mo, dat dey jest nat'rally stumbled over deyselves getting t' where he talked y' couldn't hear 'im much fer his puffing an' blowing. But it all mus' o' suited 'it lodge-brothers fine fer dey kept piling in de dollars, an' ol' Josh kept getting fatter an' dey built 'im a new meeting house, an' started having 'special nights fer de women, an', early in de third year, dey raised money enough t' git a big person out o' Birmingham t' come down an' lead a 'special two-weeks meeting fer de purpose, Josh said, t' clean de place out fer de coming o' God.

"De meeting started de first Sunday in August. All de niggers fer miles about wus dere, an' sum who didn't live nowhere near, an, a few de city person had brung along t' help wif de singing an' de' taking up o' de money. By six o'clock de house wus full an' running over. Dem dat couldn't find seats stood outside under de trees an' set in dey buggies.

Ol' Josh wus on de rostrum in de tiptop of a 'cimmon tree. After de choir wus finished wif dey first song, an' wus a-getting ready fer another, he got up an' said this t' de people.

"I's got fer y' all de biggest person in de land, fer t' lead our meeting, an' I's show glad he is here. Y'all will love 'im, jest lak I does, fer he's filled wif de spirit, an' kin show y' all what mus' be done t' git God in y' turrible lives.

"Ol' Josh sot down den an' after three mo songs de city person got up an' started 'is sermon. He talked so loud de walls shook an' when he would stop a' git some water fer 'is hot lips, de niggers, skeered 'most t' death, would start t' yelling amen an' hallalulah loud enough fer y' t' hear 'im ten miles.

"Den he got strung off on de core o' 'is massage an' 'is words jest flooped out o' 'is mouf. He talked 'bout niggers det had died out o' de church an' went straight t' hell, an' other niggers dat wus in de church a little but not all de way an' how dey wus sizzling now er not gitting all de way in.

After a little ne started t' walking up an' down in front o' de rostrum, waving 'is hands in de air, an' sort o' crying to 'isself. Den he come t' a halt, and, looking up at de ceiling, said dis: 'You ain't skeered cause you is getting t' de end o' you earthly road; it's cause you is coming face wid dat soul you is refused t, own. Death itself ain't bad; naw suh: but you is bad an' y' try t' lay it off on death. Death is jest a quiet going frum a low life t' a high one an' dem dat has lived right will be happy an' dem who ain't will be skeered.

"Well de meeting broke up den an' I didn't see no more o' ole Josh till late de next day. He had sort o' got in de way of sum man's car an' wus bunged up mightily by de wreck. His wifes net word t' me t' cum out an' see 'im an' when I got dere he wus a-taking on something awful an' a praying as loud as he could hollow.

"I sot down by de side o' 'is bed an' asked 'im how he wus feeling.

"He didn't answer but jest kept right on praying an' grunting an' moaning. Den we heard 'is wife talking outside on de porch an' Josh, figgering it wus de doctor I reckon, got quiet t' hear whut wus gonna be said.

"Mornin', Brother Stillman,' we hearh Liza Williams saying.

"Mornin', sister Williams,' de city person said. 'How is Brother Josh?'

"Den Liza started t' crying an' we couldn't hear no more Josh got awful pale den an' reached out an' grabbing m' by de arm. His finger nails stuck in m' like thorns an' I tried t' get loose but he deld on, an' den he cried

"Don't let 'im in, Uncle Gus. Please I's skeered:'

Uncle Gus Sampson looked over his hills wistfully. "Yep," ahe said, 'a nigger is jest nat'rally skeered o' death."

END THE BOOTLEGGER'S REIGN IN ALABAMA!

Restore Respect for Law

Prohibition has failed in Alabama.

Unless we shut our eyes to the overwhelming evidence available on every hand we must admit the fact that an intolerable condition now exists in our state with respect to the illicit sale of alcoholic beverages.

Throughout our state bootleggers ply their illegal trade. Caravans of cars bring liquor daily into Alabama from Florida and other nearby states, which have legalized its sale. Roadhouses sell it by the drink or the bottle. In many of our cities, stores are actually advertising "beer for sale" with flaunting signs and displaying rows of bottles in their windows. Juries are refusing to convict for liquor violations. In fact it has been estimated that the bootleg business in Alabama has grown to the proportions of a $25,000,000 industry!

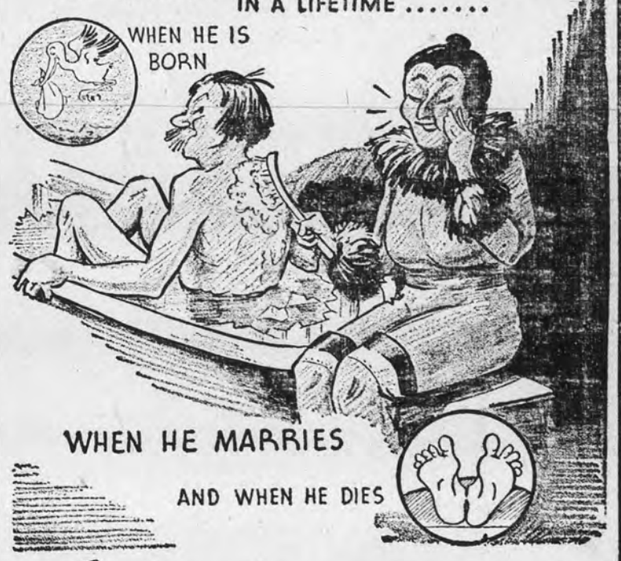
This is an appalling situation whose greatest menace is the disrespect it breeds for all our laws.

Alabama is today the only state which still fosters the bootleg racket. It is the only state which has not legalized the sale of alcoholic beverages in some form. It is the only state which lets the sale of alcoholic beverages go tax-free.

Prohibition has failed in Alabama—not because of lack of diligence on the part of our law enforcement officers—not because of lack of law to restrain its sale, for Alabama has long had the strictest laws of any state upon its statute books—but because it is impossible to control the sale of liquor in Alabama unless a system of control shall be established to achieve that end.

The Alabama Beverage Control Act provides that system—a system which has been proved sane and sound in many other states and Canada, where crime is at a minimum and there is real respect for government and law.

Prohibition has failed in Alabama. Let's now try constructive control of the liquor question—the new way and modern way which has contributed so much to the solution of this age-old problem.



Vote March 10th to end the bootlegger's reign in Alabama and to restore respect for law. Vote for constructive control!

Brown-Service

the Symbol of Security

DURING 1936

• Brown-Service made a larger increase than in any previous year.

• Brown-Service established a "Reserve Fund For Epidemics" of One Hundred Thousand Dollars.

• Brown-Service rendered funeral benefits to more than Five Thousand deceased policyholders.

• Brown-Service gave full time employment to more than 500 employees.

• Brown-Service passed the million dollar mark in assets for the protection of policyholders.

During the past 12 months Brown-Service paid a total in licenses and taxes of

MARCH

True to March traditions, she came in like a Lion! We thought February was about the windiest month we had every known—but on Monday morning, March 1st—there were many skirts blowing around wind-whipped mortals treading along Main Street—and several masculne chapeaux were non-challantly spinning along the boulevards, while terrified owners raced their pedal extremeties in an unusually speedy search for their capture. Whimsical old March—had 'em all on the run—and they were "Gone With the Wind"—and furnishing plenty of amusement for less brave souls who preferred viewing the sights from a window ledge—AND—did we get an eyeful?

About the only historic dates of interest pertinent to March are the birthdays of Alexander Graham Bell inventor of that little tinkling dingus known as your "PHONE" and 'MINE'—that little Hello and Goodbye instrument that costs about a million dollars per month—belying all the theories that "talk is cheap."— Well, this gentleman would have been 100 years old today (March 3rd) had he lived to celebrate the century mark. The next date of importance to claim our attention is St. Patrick's Day on March 17th—when this Old Saint chased the snakes from Ireland. And the old aphorism "Wild as a March Hare" might still be applicable or pertinent to the changeable third month on our little desk calendar. Here's hoping she goes out like a lamb. We are not at all "Wild as a March Hare" about this blustery business.

NELLE AND NELL

To Nelle and Nell of Siluria, brilliant and breezy journalistic lassies who have entertained our readers with Village Chatter from Siluria, we send our greetings and gratitude for their contributions each week, and want to state that their "humanly original" comments about Silurians are causing plenty of commendations from other points in the County. One "gentleman" tells us—he does not live in Siluria, but he usually reads this column first, for he knows many of the people there—and it is an interesting sketch—whether you are a native or not.

MILTON BIRD

The Columbiana Leader's newest acquisition to its excellent array of co-workers is Milton Bird, who this week accepted the responsible position as Bookkeeper for this largest and oldest Department Store in Shelby County, succeeding Gavin Minor who resigned to accept a position in Birmingham as Assistant Credit Manager for the Sherwin-Williams Paint Co. We congratulate the Leader on their wise choice in Mr. Bird, but we hope his new duties will not interfere with his literary activities—for he certainly has a distinct flair for short story writing. Many of which we have had the privilege of presenting thru the columns of the Democrat. We do not want him to allow this talent to become dormant; but we join many friends of this popular young fellow in wishing him further success in commercial circles.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

At the lovely home of Mrs. Lena Merrell, the Missionary Society was graciously entertained Monday afternoon by Mrs. Pinky Jordan and Mrs. L. C. Walker. Spring flowers and warmth of rooms created a delightful atmosphere for an interesting meeting, led by Mrs. L. E. Christian.

Mrs. T. K. Roebrts conducted the Worship and Meditation, using as topis 'The Power of the Written Gospel' The First Readers of the New Testament." References from New Testament, Authors concerning their writings ,and words of Jesus concerning their writings and words of Jesus concerning His estimtae of the scriptures, wereread by Mrs. Mae Gilmore.

Mrs. Alvin Bird very beautifully read "Testimonials of Appriciation of our Scripture."

Mrs. E. H. Childs introduced the Missionary Program with a helpful, interesting and informative presentation of Christian Missions and World Health.

Mrs. J. R. White brought an inspiring message out of her own experience as worker in the Bethlehem House, dealing particularly with the work and opportunities of the Baby Clinic. Many interesting first hand experiences were related. Other health agencies were also discussed.

The Mission Study Class will begin work Monday, March 8th at the Church, 2:30 P. M. Mrs. Childs leading the Study "Ou tof Africa."

Plans were made for "The T. P. Roberts Zone" Meeting, March 5th Mignon, 10 A. M. Mrs. T. K. Roberts, Leader.

A delicious salad plate with coffee was served by the hostess.

MRS. J. J. HAYNES HONORED

One of the loveliest courtesies extended in March which Columbiana friends shared was the open house for Mrs Haynes, former resident, elaborately staged by her daughter, Mrs. Lois Jeffers (Minnie B. Haynes) in her beautiful home in Birmingham on Tuesday, March 2nd. A coterie of former friends of the honoree, who now live in Birmingham with Columbiana friends gathered in this hospitable home to pay their loyal tribute of friendship to Mrs. Haynes. The day was spent in reliving joyous days in Columbiana where Mrs. Haynes as neighbor and friend is still so happily remembered.

We, personally, deeply regret we could not leave this busy shop on this particularly gala occasion and join Mrs. W. F. Davis, Mrs. Rosa Teague and others wh ohave related to us just what we missed. The loss is ours! And, we are among many here, who have never ceased to miss Mr. and Mrs. Haynes since they moved to Montgomery, and who selfishly daily, wish them back "home" for keeps.

THE POSTMAN RINGS THE BELL

No happier message has winged its way into this journalistic retreat than a letter which we had the pleasure of receiving from Arthur L. Armstrong, former resident of Columbiana, who was a school mate of "Yours truly" and whom we happily remember as one who never murmured in the "negative" when we wanted our books carted home in the "pig tails-swinging-down my back days" Yes, m' dears that was a long time ago, but we often recall those old days—Old Playmates, etc.— and we gratefully acknowledge the remembrance from Mr. Armstrong, who is also a fellow craftsman in the newspaper game, located in Maplewood, Missouri. Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong and their son contemplate a journey back to Alabama next summer—and in the meantime, we shall greet them thru the columns of the Democrat and attempt to keep them posted on friends "back home", who happily await their "personal appearance" on Main Street.

CHARLES OAKLEY

The many friends of Mr. Charley Oakley in Shelby County regretted to learn of his passing last week. Although a native of Bibb County, Mr. Oakley belonged to Alabama. No more beautiful tribute has been paid this distinguished gentleman than the one which fell from the pen of Atticus Mullin, a personal friend of the deceased. We reprint it as a worthy epitaph to a most worthy and beloved gentleman:

"Bibb County has never produced a finer citizen than Charley Oakley. He was true to his friends, true to every private trust imposed in him and true to every public trust.

To the relatives of Charley Oakley we make public our regret at his death as we make public, equally, the fine qualities of the man who has passed to other fields of action. Rest the soul of our beloved friend, is our prayer."

"GRANDPAPPY" PAGE

"Your friend and mine" Will Page, was stepping around the boulevards with a more important air than usual on Monday morning, for in his pocket was the happy news tha tMr. and Mrs. J. Ray Wamack, (Willie Lee Page) who reside in Cookeville, Tenn., were celebrating a "'blessed event" and had telegraphed the good news on to Grand Dad Page. We have not learned the name of the young hopeful—but we join a host of friends in extendisg heartiest congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Wamack—and we have already personally extended our best wishes to the proud Grandfather.

GAYLE ELIZABETH GILMORE

We happily present to the many friends in Shelby County of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gilmore, the young daughter of this popular young couple, former residents of Columbiana, who now make their home in Wetumpka, Alabama, who was born on Sunday, February 21, 1937. We are eagerly awaiting the appearance of this little "Queen of Hearts" in Columbiana. And, by the way, we have often had the pleasure of writing sketches about Little Gayle's illustrious ancestor, Attorney-Statesman-Legislator L. H. Ellis—but we can truthfully state to you, no honor reposing in the "laurel wreath of fame" which he merited along his colorful and distinguished career, lies closer to his heart nor is more important than this last "sweetest l'il fellow" wh ohas joined his family circle.

Is he stepping HIGH, WIDE and HANDSOME, you ask? Try and get within "Congratulating" distance.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Wednesday morning, March 3rd. Journalistic duties are at an end. The press is about ready to turn, and we are off to celebrate another happy Wedding Anniversary with "His Honor." Thanks to those of you who remembered this morning many years ago when we said those little words "I do—I will" We deeply appreciate your continued good wishes for our personal happiness. Especially do we send our greetings to the Rev. T. K. Roberts who most securely and permanently "tied the nuptial knot."

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County Mr. Fred L. Horst, who owns Horst's Flowers in Birmingham is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

Mr. Horst has been in the flower business for over 25 years and there is no phase of the business that he is not familiar with—and nomatter what your taste may be in flowers, you can res assured you will find what you want at Horst's. He is located at 2427 Avenue G, South and the telephone number is 3-3644 and the Greenhouse telephone number is 9-0376.

Mr. Horst is a progressive and public spirited citizen and it is with pleasure that this writer learned that he was a tax payer of Shelby County. He ewants ot see Shelby County go forward and progress and we congratulate the people o fthis county on having such a man as Fred L. Horst in their midst.

E. B. Van Keuren Inc., Architects And Engineers Well Known In This Section

Mr. E. B. Van Keuren has been in business in Birmingham for the past 25 years and he has made hosts of friends throughout Shelby County and the State of Alabama by his fair and square business dealings. He is always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County and he is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

During the past ten years Mr. Ven Keuren has built over 200 school buildings in Alabama and is probably the best known architect in Alabama He is also County Architect for the Jefferson County Board of Education.

E. B. Van Keurne, Inc., can draw plans for any kind of building one may want but he specializes in drawing plans, specifications and supervising the work for school buildings, hospitals, clinics, theatres, business buildings, etc., As there is much engineering connected with architecture, Mr. Van Keuren is also an experienced engineer.

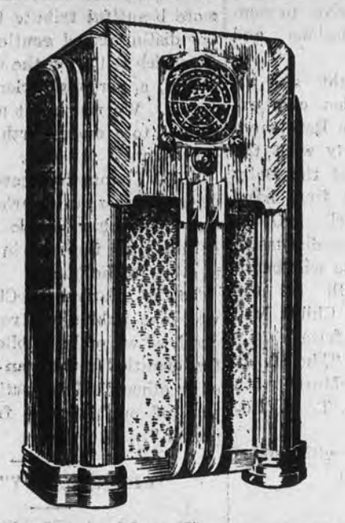
This newspaper congratulates the people of this section on having such an efficient and progressive firm of Architects and Engineers as E. B. Van Keuren, Inc., in their midst. They are located at 510 Farley Building and their telephone number is 3-2336.

Pan-American Petroleum Company's Products Are Well Known In County

In the first place, Pan-Am products need no introduction to the people of Shelby County as their gasoline, motor oils and lubricants are well known here as they have been serving Shelby Counyt for several years and they have made loyal friends by the superior qualities of these same products.

Mr. Frank Ellis, a native of this section, is authorized dealer and neither does he need any introduction as he has made hosts of frineds by his "likable personality" and his fair treatment to everyone.

At present the Pan-American Petroleum Company are running a contest and to the persons writing in fifty words why they like Pan-Am products will be awarded cash prizes and all Pan Am stations are holding Open House, so drive in a Pan-Am Station today and ask your dealer about the details. He has entry blanks e,tc.



Pan-Am gasoline has been on the American markets for years and is recognized as one of the superior gasolines as well as Panoco and Pan-Am Motor Oils—and when you have your car "greased" using Pan-Am lubricants you can rest assured your car has been lubricated with the best greases that can be had and yet they cost no more than the others.

EDNA ROBERTS

Mrs. Edna Roberts, Chief Clerk in Judge Len C. Walker's office, has been sincerely missed this week from her official duties, having been confined to her home with that most disagreable of all companions — INFLUENZA.

CECIL DUKE

Cecil Duke, popular Clerk of the Board of Revenue, will probably not advocate taking his afternoon siesta in an automobile anytime soon, for on Sunday afternoon when he tried this method of reposing, after a luncheon engagement in Birmingham he was rudely awakened, after making a bang-bang connection with his automobile and the cement curbing on the highway. The "shake-up" and "smash up" of the fenders, etc., was of sufficient importance to warrant his wide-awake-ness on the home stretch.

L. C. ABBOTT

Have you seen that new Spring suit and that new chapeau that Tax Collector L. C. Abbott, most beloved Bachelor in Shelby County is sporting? Speaking of CHIC—He is IT.

LUCILE BRISTOW BLACKBURN

The many friends of Lucile Blackburn regret that she will permanently reside in Birmingham. Mrs. Blackburn made many friends while rendering efficient services as Assistant Tax Assessor to Luther Fowler while in Columbiana. She possesses a gracious personality, coupled with keen business ability and was regarded as one of the most popular members of the Courthouse family.

CIRCUIT COURT CALLED

A special term of the Shelby County Circuit Court has been set by Judge Wales W. Wallace for March 15th, 1937. The first week will be devoted to the trial of Civil Jury cases, and the second week to the trial of Criminal Jury cases. The Non jury docket will be set for a later date. The Grand Jury has been drawn and will convene on Monday, March 15th, Hon. A. L. Hardegree in charge.

Hon. L. H. Ellis Makes Address In Courthouse On Monday Night

In an address at the court house at Columbiana on Monday night of this week Representative L. H. Ellis outlined the program put over by the recent Legislature in behalf of Education, Public Health, Farm Demonstration Work, Child Welfare Work and Old Age Pensions. He called attention to the fact that when the recent session of the Legislature met there was a threatened break down in the educational system, from the highest to the lowest branches, that Public Health Work was starved out and practically at a stand still and without funds to proceed further, and the same thing prevailed as to Public Welfare in all of its forms, and Farm Demonstration Work. He called attention to the fact that while the Legislature was in session and before it finally enacted into law any remedial legislation,Auburn and the four State Teachers Colleges, Florence, Troy, Livingston and Jacksonville, were out on probation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for subnormal salaries and subnormal equipment, and that these institutions were placed in that situation due to the fact that during the Miller administration their pay had been reduced to forty seven per cent of their appropriation.

Alabama College and the University of Alabama, as pointed out by Mr. Ellis,would also very likely, within a year, have been placed on probation and in the same class with the other institutions named. These institutions named, were given one year to raise their standard as to equipment and salaries, otherwise they would be suspended from the Association entirely, and this would have closed their doors, as no student would attend them because if the college or institution was not a member of the Association they could not get credit in other schools and colleges where they might go for higher degrees or technical degrees in their several fields of activity.

Mr. Ellis pointed out that it was a recognized fact by all people, who were properly informed, that the public schools would have had to close with January of this year and the High Schools would have been forced to close a month or two later, and thus the entire educational structure of Alabama would have been destroyed if some financial arrangement had not been made for their benefit, and that Public Health, Pulic Welfare, and other forms of service enjoyed by the people of the State, would have been completely disrupted

He explained the Sales tax, Homestead Exemption Law and the Prohibition Repeal ,and the high spots in his address were an explanation of these measures as respects the Counties. Out of the Sales Tax, as explained by Mr. Ellis, something like one and a half million dollars is set aside to exempt homesteads of every home owner in Alabama from State taxation. The taxes thus eliminated consist of a one mill Soldier's tax. Under the Homestead Exemption Law passed by the recent Legislature, homesteads of two thousand dollars in value are exempt from this State tax, thus saving each homeowner whose homestead is worth two thousand dollars, the sum of $13.50 per annum. He illustrated by showing that if a farmer should buy seven hundred dollars worth of taxable articles during the year the total tax on it would amount to only $13.50, or approximately that, so that even though the average farmer pays the tax yet he wll in nine cases out of ten pay less tax than his homestead exemptions amount to. He explained that after homestead exemptions are taken out of the Sales Tax law three fourths of the balance is placed in an educational trust fund for the purpose of running the schools of the State from the highest to the lowest, and Farm Demonstration Work. One fourth of the proceeds of the Sales Tax is paid over to the several counties of the State in equal proportion, earmarked for Public Welfare, Public Health, Farm Demonstration Work would probably meet all their needs, thus leaving the entire amount ear marked into the County Treasury to be used for Public Welfare, including Old Age Pension and Child Welfare preservation, and that the County's portion would be matched by State Funds and then both would be matched by Federal funds, giving a sizable amount in each County for Old Age Pension and Public Welfare Work in its various forms.

In reference to the Prohibition Repeal Law he called attention to the fact that in Shelby County, liquors andwines could be sold only in State Stores and not at any restaurant or hotel, and that these State Stores could be located only in incorporated towns or municipalities, and that in State Stores liquor could be sold only in unbroken packages and could not be consumed on the premises and could not be sold to minors, drunkards or persons under the influence of liquor, and that the State would have charge of the selling of the liquors through reputable citizens chosen for that purpose and that Tax Agents would not permit boot-legging operations in competition to the State. He explained that sixtey per cent of the revenue derived from the liquor would go to the State, twenty per cent to the County and twenty per cent to the municipality where the State Store is located, and that o fthe State's sixty per cent the Legislature ear marked ten per cent for Public Welfare, including Old Age Pension and the same amount of the County's fund was ear marked for the same purpose, and he explained that the Countq could use its ten per cent and then the Federal Government would double that amount, giving another sizable amount available to the County for Old Age Pensions and Public Welfare.

Mr. Ellis' judgment was that with these two laws in effect Public Welfare, Public Health and other service enjoyed by the County would be amply taken care of ,and that the Poor House could be eliminated with sufficient funds to take care of the old and aged and those in need.

FROZEN FEET IN THIS MILD WEATHER IS A REAL PUZZLE

Puzzled Hillman Hospital attaches Tuesday were working to save the frozen feet of Alf Lee, about 40, of Chelsea, from being amputated.

How the man could have gotten his feet frozen in this kind of weather is what puzzled the attaches. The man was brought in Monday night.

Attaches said he was in a semi-conscious condition and could not give a satisfactory explanation as to how his feet had become frozen.

TACKY PARTY

The Methodist Missionary Society of Calera will stage a tacky party Friday night, March 12, at the Jr. High Auditorium. Every one is cordially invited to attend and wear costumes.

WEST CALERA NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Beecher Findley and baby, spent Sunday with her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hayes of Shelby Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Argo and children spent the week end in Pine Hill Alabama, with relatives.

Mrs. George Lehman was in Columbiana Saturday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Simpson and children spent the week end with Mr. Simpson's mother, Mrs. S. D. Simpson of Arab, Ala. Friends and relatives were present Sunday for a big surprise birthday dinner in honor of our own Mr. Simpson.

Miss Dorothus Anderson entertained her many friends with a party Saturdoy night. A big crowd attended and a good time was had by everyone.

WALTER CHRISTIAN FORMER RESIDENT DIED ON MARCH 3RD

Columbiana friends were grieved to hear the sad news on Wednesday night, March 3rd, of the tragic death of Walter Christian, former resident, who with his family made his home in Spartanburg, S. C.

Mr. Christian spent practically all of his boyhood days in Columbiana, and after graduatng from the Shelby County Hgh School, took his degree at Auburn. Immediately after finishing his collegiate course, he was married to Vinn Pitts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs J. S. Pitts of Columbiana, and the young couple moved to the Carolinas to make their future home.

Mr. Christian was returning from his duties with the Georgia Electric Company, where he held a responsible position, when a tire on his automobile blew out, and he was thrown out suffering a broken neck. Death was instantaneous.

Funeral services were conducted from the home of Mrs. Christian's brother, Jack Pitts in Sylacauga on March 5th, with interment in Sylacauga Cemetery.

Mr. Christian is survived by his widow and three sons. Two brothers Mr. Levert Christian of Columbiana, Roy Christian of Birmingham and one sister, Mrs. Gilbert RRitchie of Birmingham.

The Democrat joins a host of friends in Shelby Cuonty in extending sincere sympathy to the bereaved ones.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heart felt thanks to our friends and relatives for the beautiful flowers and kind expressions of sympathy in the death of our beloved husband and father.

Mrs. W. P. Christian and Sons.

WILSONVILLE P. T. A. WILL MEET ON TUES., MARCH 16

Everyone is looking forward to the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of Wilsonville, which will be held in the school auditorium March 16th at 7:30 P. M., because Mrs. Forrest Helms promises us such an interesting program presented by some of our county's best known leaders in education.

Mr. J. L. Appleton our county superintendent of education, will speak on Why Schools and School Books Change. Dr. Kenneth Gould of Wilsonville will discuss how the schools insure healthful living. Miss Mary Peters of Columbiana will present a most interesting subject, The Place of the Three "R's" in the Modern School. She will also tell us what the schools are attempting in learning to live and to work together through the social sciences. Rev. B. F. Hixon, pastor of the Wilsonville Baptist Church, will discuss the training of the home makers of tomorrow. And Mrs. Charlotte Peterson of Montevallo whose admirable work has received state wide applause, will conclude the program with a tlk you will be sure to enjoy and profit by.

The recreational period following the program is sure to be fun for Miss Ida Edwards always has something new and entertaining for us.

The members and visitors will be served by the hostesses of the evening: Mrs. R. R. Roberson, Mrs. Mack Jackson, Mrs. Olie Smith and Mrs Lucien Vanzant.

Surely this is one program you can not afford to miss. Come and bring all of your friends.

As a general rule in life, one gets about what one pays for.

Borrow from your friend today and your enemy will force you to pay tomorrow.

EASTER SEAL SALE BEGAN MARCH 10 IN SHELBY COUNTY

Organization plans are now in progress for the annual Easter Seal Sale which began March 10th and will close Easter Sunday, March 28. The Alabama Society for Crippled Children ,assisted by staff members of the State Crippled Children's Service of the State Department of Education, is conducting the campaign. It is state wide in scope and is being carried on simultaneously with similar sales in many othe rstates.

The purpose of the campaign is to help finance state and federal activities for crippled children. This year special emphasis is being placed on membership in the Alabama Society for Crippled Children. The theme of the campaign is "Joyous Life For Crippled Children."

After all, farmers are important and their families ought to live as well as the families of other workers.

SHELBY COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARF

In August and September, 1936 the Director of Public Welfare and Dr. Nickson, the County Health Doctor, made an analysis of the Health and Housing conditions in the Aid to Dependent Children Families in Shelby County. At the same time similar analysis were being made in seven other counties.

Aid to Dependent Children, which has been mentioned several times in this column, is one of the forms of assistance made possible by the Social Security Act and administered by the Department of Public Welfare It is given for children under the age of 16, who are in need and have been deprived of parental support by reason of the death, or absence from home, or physical or mentail incapacity of a parent, and who are living with a near relative. At the time of the survey 58 families, in which there were 181 children, were receiving Aid to Dependent Children. The Average monthly amount received per child for the month of August was $1.47; for the month of September the average monthly amount per child was $1.52.

From the analysis it was learned that 116 of the 181 children examined had one or more physical defects—such as tuberculosis, venereal disease hookworm, cardiac conditions, and nutritional diseases. When such a large per cent of the children living on low income levels have physical defects or diseases, there is reason for grave concern; for bad health conditions not only affect the individuals who actually suffer themselves but also make a breeding place for more disease, anti-social conduct and low standards of living.

"There is no more serious child welfare problem in Alabama today than child health in dependent family groups."—(Alabama Social Welfare)

BUSSEY TIN SHOP OF BIRMINGHAM CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be o fbenefit to Shelby County, Mr. C. F. Bussey of Bussey Tin Shop is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition o fthe Democrat.

Mr. Bussey has been in business seven years although he has had over 16 years experience and there is no phase of metal and gutter work that he is not familiar with. He has done lots of work in Columbiana and Shelby County and his customers satisfaction is his best advertisement. He installed the furnaces in the home of Mr. Davis and Mr. Christian.

No matter what kind of furnace you want installed ,or what kind of tin work or gutters you want, the Bussey Tin Shop is ably prepared to do the work and their prices are fair and reasonable.

The Bussey Tin Shop is located at 2200 Sixth Avenue, South and their telephone number is 7-6389.

THE KOPPERS COMPANY OF CITY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County Mr. F. G. Owen ,District Manager of The Koppers Company is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads Edition o fthe Democrat.

The Koppers Company have been in business here in this section since 1915 and has proven to be a decided asset to this section.

A very large per cent of all the Alabama highways have used Koppers products and in so doing are helping Alabama industries as theirs is a hunderd per cent Alabama product and naturally this benefits every native of Alabama.

They also furnish employment to local people and their Southern district office is located at Woodward, Alabama, where they operate and maintain a large plant.

This progressive industry is always interested in the growth and development of Alabama and their counties and their district manager. Mr. Owen, was recently elected vice president of the Alabama Road Builders Association.

This writer congratulates the people of this section that the Koppers Company, Tar and Chemical Division is located n our mdst.

Gulf States Steel Company Offer New Beauty In Metal Shingles

The new Gulfsteel Super X Shingles has found an enthusiastic response from both roofing contractors and home owners. From roofers, because it can be laid in practically the same time as an ordinary composition roof, and much quicker than other types of steel shingles or metal roofs with no waste of material and from home owners, because these very reasons enable them to buy a superior roof at lower cost.

For many years, metal roofing has been accepted as the most protective and permanent type of roof, it is possible to buy.

The permanence and safety of steel plus the beauty of a shingled roof are now available in the new Gulfsteel "Super X" Shingle. No exposed nail holes as the shingles overlap and interlock, giving an absolutely water proof roof. Low in price as a roof of Super X Shingles will cost no more than an ordinary roof and actual time tests prove that it can be laid quicker than other types of roofing. Super X Shingles are reversible, eliminating any waste of material and they are self-aligning. Start the first shingle right and the whole roof is kept automatically in line.

Gulfsteel "Super X" Shingles have recently been used in covering the office and general store of the Longview-Saginaw Lime Works in Shelby County.

Before you have any kind of roof installed, this writer suggests you investigate the new Gulfsteel "Super X Shingles.

.DRILLER COMPANY INTRODUCES NEW ONE YARD EXCAVATOR

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that will benefit Shelby County ,the Keystone Driller Company are unselfishly taking partin this edition.

This firm was established in 1882 and are manufacturers of power shovels and well drilling machinery. Their new Keystone 1 Yard Excavator was on display at the Road Show recently in New Orleans and there are several outstanding features which make it an outstanding Excavator.

Accuracy of control which is so important when loads must be spotted exactly or when digging must be done to exact levels is an outstanding feature of the new Keystone Model 18-A one yard excavator, according to J. W. Harradine, sales official of this concern.

The use of planetary drives and over size clutches, designed for efficient operation in service necessitating constant slippage of the clutch for long periods of time, plus easy smooth control with the same system which has always been so desirable in steam-powered machines, are largely responsible for the greater accuracy with which the machine can be operated. Mr. Harradine also states that it is the only full revolving one yard excavator with planetary swing mechanism on the market.

The machine is built for a large variety of digging and is available with a boom for drag line, clam shell and crane. By means of the oversize clutches and planetary drives for both boom swing and line movement it is possible to ease loads into position with precision. Model 18-A is powered by Buda engines, either gaso line or Diesel; or of desired, by any standard make electric motor. Keystone is said to be one of the first to adopt an all metal stream-lined cab with a paint job to enhance this effect.

ARMSTRONG BODY SHOP AMONG THE BEST EQUIPPED SHOPS IN THE CITY

The Armstrong Body Shop located at the Piersol Motor Company at 1912 Avenue B, is one of the best equipped body and fender shops in this entire section.

Mr. J. E. Armstrong, proprietor, has been at this same location for over three years although he has had over fifteen years experience in this line of work and there is no phase of body and fender repair work and automobile and truck painting that he is not thoroughly familiar with and when you have and work done here you can rest assured that you are getting the highest class of workmanship, the best of materials and a fair and square price.

This writer has had work done here and we say in all sincerity we have never seen a better job on a smashed fender and the price was more than reasonable, so next time drive by Armstrong Body Shop and if you want any fender, body or painting job to be done.

Their shop phone number is 3-4546 and residence phone 9-4651.

TO TAKE MYSTERY OUT OF BANKING

By ROBERT V. FLEMING,
President American Bankers Association

The American Bankers Association has cooperated wherever it could properly do so in every measure for national recovery. It has offered constructive recommendations for such changes in banking laws as we recognized were necessary, and we now have a better law under which to operate. The Banking Act of 1935 affords us opportunities for broader service and, at the same time, retains the fundamentals which we believe are so vital to our national welfare and which have played a large part in bringing our country, in a comparatively short space of time, to the position of the greatest industrial nation on the earth.

R. V. FLEMING

The Public and Banking

It is necessary that the public have a thorough understanding of the functions of banks, what they can do and what they cannot do, for it must be recognized that to many people the business of banking is still somewhat of a mystery.

We should frankly explain these functions to the public, acquaint them with the laws under which we operate and emphasize the vital part which banks play in the economic life of the Nation. Therefore, in order that there may be the fullest cooperation and understanding between the bank and the people of the country, it will also be one of our objectives to take the mystery out of banking wherever it exists in the public mind.

Banking Conferences

A series of Regional Conferences on Banking Service will be held in strategic sections of the country, embracing all types of banking. The new banking laws and the regulations issued thereunder will be carefully analyzed so that our bankers will have a thorough understanding of the broadened services now made possible.

The question of public relations and how we can best serve the people of our communities will be another topic of discussion. Clinics or forums on specific questions of interest to bankers and the problems confronting them in their particular localities will also be included in these conferences.

PUBLIC ATTITUDE HELPS THE BANKS

Annual Bankers Convention Says People Have Had Confidence Restored—Recommends Changed Government Policy

The restoration of public confidence in banking has put it in the position where it can function fully and vigorously in playing its full economic part in the progress of recovery, said the American Bankers Association in its annual convention resolutions.

"The passage of a generally constructive banking law in the Banking Act of 1935 has stabilized the banking situation and enabled bankers to devote undivided attention to the normal administration of their institutions in promoting the business and public welfare of their communities," the resolutions said.

"We feel that it is a particularly important feature of this law that it aims to create through the revision of the Federal Reserve Board a Supreme Court of Finance which, with the nonpolitical appointment of exceptionally competent men, should constitute one of the greatest forward steps in building a sound banking and credit system for this country."

The Government in Banking

Another resolution said:

"We particularly emphasize the desirability of the retirement of government from those fields of extending credits of various types which can be adequately served by privately owned institutions. We recognize that the exigencies of the now passing depression made necessary a large participation by government for a time in the task of meeting the public's emergency financial needs.

"Those conditions have been largely remedied and the obligation now rests upon the banks and other financial agencies to demonstrate to the people of this country that they are fully able and willing to meet all demands upon them for sound credit cooperation. It is our duty as bankers to facilitate in every effective way the retirement of government agencies from credit activities by promoting public understanding of the proper function of privately owned banking."

ACCURATE RECORDS

The keeping of accurate records constitutes an essential part of any successful business management, whether manufacturing, merchandising or farming. It is quite generally conceded that any good business concern keeps adequate records, and this procedure is equally important in the business of farming, declares the Bulletin of the American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission.

NO GOOD REASON FOR PESSIMISM

F. M. Law, President American Bankers Association, Sees Improving Conditions and a Changing Future

WASHINGTON. D. C.—There is no good reason for pessimism today, for though the "depression is not by any means over we are coming out of it," F. M. Law, President of the American Bankers Association told the American Institute of Banking convention here recently.

"Banking is a necessary business and will endure," Mr. Law said. "In order to endure. it must be the right sort of banking, under the right sort of management.

"The American Institute of Banking commands and is entitled to great respect because its major objective is to teach and promote the right kind of banking. One of the chief reasons for my faith in the future of banking is that this organization has 219 active chapters, with over 50,000 members, and with 33,000 students enrolled, and it is doing a good job in teaching these thousands of bank employees what good banking is, and what it is not."

Business Men Should Recognize New Conditions

Business men everywhere, and especially bankers, he said, will do well to recognize and to understand the many changes that are occurring, for "it is fatal to be obsessed with the belief that any and all change from the existing order is heresy."

Banking is a serious business, he said and "I know not one single man or woman who has made a success of it who has not been over a long period of years a hard worker." He added:

"Take for your motto the old German phrase 'Ich Dien.' (I serve). Meaning what? Serve your depositors, your stockholders and society.

"Let no man tell you that private initiative is dead. On the contrary, it commands a greater premium today than ever before. If you and others like you have courage enough, if you possess patience, if you have a passion for hard work, and if, with an open mind, you look to and prepare for the future and the opportunities which are sure to come, you cannot be denied. Your generation will add prestige to the honorable calling that we know as banking."

Banks Repay R. F. C. Loans

Banks and trust companies on May 31 had repaid 61 per cent, or $967,959,623.08 of the $1,581,357,085.08 in cash which they had received from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation since its establishment on February 2, 1932.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD FINDS BANKING BETTER

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A review by the Federal Reserve Board indicates that the condition of operating banks, particularly in country districts, has improved in recent months, as shown by the fact that these banks have been able to reduce their indebtedness to the reserve banks, to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and to others.

The July bulletin of the board in discussing these findings says:

"At the same time progress has been made in making available to depositors funds that had been tied up in closed banks.

"Banks in financial centres have been out of debt to the Federal Reserve Banks for a long time and in addition have had a large volume of excess reserves. At the beginning of the year there were still many small banks throughout the country, however, that carried a considerable load of indebtedness.

Country Banks Reflect Improvement

"The liquidation of indebtedness by these banks reflects in part improvement in business condition and the consequent ability of customers to repay bank loans which long had been frozen It constitutes a strengthening of the banking position."

The board pointed out that the reduction of member bank indebtedness has been continuous since the beginning of 1932 except for a brief period during the banking crisis in the Spring of 1933. The review continued:

"In 1932 liquidation of indebtedness of member banks to the reserve banks was accompanied by an increase of their borrowings from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. In the past year and a half, however, indebtedness of member banks to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has also been reduced."

SEES TURNING POINT IN BANKING HISTORY

NEW YORK. — The American Bankers Association Journal in its July issue presents the following review of banking and business conditions:

"It is an almost universal opinion among bankers that June has been the turning point in banking history in the matter of recovery. Reasons for the optimism are twofold—the condition of the banks and the prospects of better banking business.

"The reorganization of the banking system after the holiday of sixteen months ago is now practically complete. The comparatively few banks yet to be reorganized and reopened are no longer a serious factor in the situation. The year's preparatory period for the enforcement of major provisions of the Banking Act of 1933 has passed, and banks now have a definite idea of where they stand."

Outlook Report To Help Farmers Plan For 1937

The outlook is for further improvement in the economic position of American agriculture for 1937.

This is the first statement in the annual farm outlook report an ecomic analysis of prospects for the coming crop and livestock producing season, which has been prepared by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of extension workers from nearly every state.

Outlook meetings are now being held with farmers in most farm communities. The outlook report from which radiates information concerning the prospective situation affecting the supply, demand, and price of farm products—is available without charge from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Washington, D. C.

The purpose of the forecast is to assist farmers in planning their production and marketing programs for 1937. Farmers always have to make forecasts. No matter how inadequate the information available to them, farmers must take the future into account in planning their crop and livestock programs. The outlook report is an attempt to help them make better forecasts by providing them with more adequate information.

Low Interest Helped England

A British economist ,visiting in this country, calls attention to the fact that low interest rates on real estate mortgages contributed materially to lifting England out of the depression, which was "very much worse than the one in the United States."

The visitor, Sir Charles Morgan-Webb, says that a four and a half per cent interest rate on mortgages has been the cause of great housing activity in England, where more than 300,000 houses are being built annually. He says the low interest rate brought about a reduction in unemployment, increased the activities of manufacturing plants and produced a sharp upward surge of purchasing power.

The observation may be worth something to the people in this country who, in many sections, have been accustomed to rates as high as seven and eight per cent. It may even be interesting to bankers in some areas who, even now, are withholding loans largely because they still hope for the return of the high interest rates prevalent some years ago.

Giant Of Destruction

Every day, somewhere, newspapers carry headlines of disasters, such as these: Exploding Kerosene Stove Wipes Out Family; Man Killed Pouring Oil On Fire; Smoker Dies in Gasoline Explosion.

Apparently the common use of petroleum products in motor cars and stoves has lulled people into a false sense of security while using these fluids. It has caused them to become careless. The record indicates that a warning must be given if lives and property are to be spared.

Here are recommendations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters:

Don't attempt to start fires in stoves or furnaces with gasoline or kerosene.

When using a kerosene or gasoline stove, always follow directions of the manufacturer. Keep the stove clean, extinguish flame after use and allow to cool before filling. Store the supply can outside the house.

Don't smoke whle filling the stove.

In order to be sure your stove is safe, buy only those listed as "standard" by the Underwriters' Laboratories.

Don't clean clothes with gasoline, naptha or benzine.

Human life is our most precious possession; guard your own and that of your dear ones from this giant of destruction.

Pertoleum, properly handled, is one of man's most useful servants. Improperly handled it can become a giant of destruction. Remember that—it may save your life.

Have No Mercy On The Drunken Drivers

Here is an excellent thought from the Port Umpque, Oregon, Courier: "If the Courier man were a judge in courts dispensing sentence upon drunken drivers, there would only be first offenders. Regardless of race, color, creed, or alleviating circumstances, the person who has so little consideration for the lives of innocent people as to drink intoxicants before or after placing himself behind the steering wheel of an automobile should never be allowed to repeat the performance. Revocation of licenses would be fatal and final. Driving a car is a privilege—not a right."

It is impossible to prove exactly what percentage of automobile accidents are caused by drunken driving, for the reason that in many cases where liquor plays a part, arresting officers and prosecutors are unable afterwards to produce sufficient evidence for a conviction. But all the best estimates say that alcohol is a definite factor in a much higher proportion of mishaps than is generally realized. Furthermore, an accident in which a drunk is involved is more likely to be serious than one involving sober drivers.

Drunke ndrivers are often released after paying relatively small fines. Some juries are notoriously derelict in their duty in bringing in convictions.

The drunken driver should never be allowed to pay a fine and he should be denied the right to use the public streets and highways. If such a program were carried out throughout the country, one of the gravest menaces to life would be greatly minimized.

The Nonsense Hour

Where can a man buy a cap for his knee,
Or a key to the lock of his hair?
Can his eyes be called an academy
Because there are pupils there?
In the crown of his head what gems can be found,
Who travels across the bridge of his nose?
Can he use when shingling the roof of his house,
The nails on the end of his toes?
Can the crook of his elbow be sent to jail,
If so, what did it do?
How does he sharpen his shoulder blades?
I'll be hanged if I know—do you?

Our National Shrines

Throngs o fvisitors at the monument to the Father of His Country, not only on Washington's Birthday but throughout the year, prove that sentiment still reigns in the American heart. Since this great obelisk was first opened to the public in 1888, nearly 12,000,000 patriots have climbed to its top, and millions more have viewed it from the ground.

The controversy raging in Washington over the nature of a proposed memorial to Thomas Jefferson has its smaller counterpart in almost every city and town that seeks to honor distinguished residents. Realists write to the paper protesting against spending the people's money for "useless" memorials; but the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial close by serenely deny the contention that museums and stadiums and colleges and other "utilitarian" monuments are the most appropriate reminders of our great men.

Here's A Balance

Old age pensions have some people worried. They wonder who is going to pay them. They tell you that with our national birth rate declining, more than one third of our population will be over fifty years of age in less than fifty years.

It seems toguh but, then there are other statistics. One says that the population of the United States will begin to decline in the next fifteen years. Fifty years from now, says he, we will have only one third as many children in the nation as now.

So what? Merely, that if we have fewer children to support the nation may be able to care for its old people.

Young men who have been told that there's nothing new under the sun are none the less convinced, in the spring, that there's something new under the moon.

LOVE IS LIKE THAT

BY MILTON BIRD

Jim Andrews sat on a park bench and looked up at the sky. It was an April sky. Tattered, bustly clouds, like old fashioned dresses, bulged up in places. They came together with a dull, thundering sound; the air turned suddenly icy; then drops of rain pattered on the book he was reading.

"Damn," he mumbled, "and another damn!" The rain got harder and beat down monotonously on his hat, running in little streams down his pants legs. Across the street people were hurrying to shelter, screaming excitedly as they ran.

Jim cursed again, a fraction louder than before. Funny he thought, that he wasn't scurrying out of the shower, into a dry room with a chair and a table and a pipe full of fragrant tobacco. But he wasn't. In fact, he hadn't during the whole month of April. He had lost his job March 31, and since then he had spent most of his time in the park with other unfortunate fellows, who tramped the streets during the day, only to crouch back into the shadows of the park late in the afternoon, waiting for darkness to come on that they might go to their respective places of hidding for snatches of fatigued sleep.

He reached in his pocket to make sure his half filled sack of grain tobacco was safe from the water. The warm pocket felt good to his hand and he settled himself more comfortably on the hard bench. Life he reflected, was just one big disarranged jigsaw puzzle. And the pieces were so intricate that a guy couldn't make them out half the time. That was why a fellow got knocked down so often, even when he was really on the way up. He was remembering the last short stories he had sent to a critic on Tenth Avenue, and the thought added to his discomfort. What did the man mean by working his stuff over? He had worked it over a dozen times, but it hadn't done any good. And, he was remembering something else too. A certain afternoon four months ago when Sue Freeman came through the park, fleeing from the cares of her schoolroom ,and stumbled over his long legs that were stretched across the path. "Do you mind if I trespass?" she had said. He hadn't answered. For several moments he couldn't. She was standing between him and the setting sun and something about the way the light flickered on her hair took his breath away Finally he'd managed: "I'm sorry. But they are long aren't they?"

She'd looked at his legs then. "I thought they were trees," she'd said.

"And you were chasing lizards, I suppose?"

"No," she'd answered him, wincing slightly, "I was merely trying to get by. But I didn't make it."

"The legs are sorry they interfered with a lady."

"The lady will forget it."

From that moment everything in his life had taken on a new meaning. There had been four shows the first week, and five the next, and after that something every night. One rainy afternoon they had tramped through the park, going on until they got to the bank of a river where they ate cold food Sue had brought from her room. Then they had discovered an old music house, where forgotten artists lived over the scenes of their fame, and ectastically happy, they had cuddled together in the dark of the balcony ,nibbling peanuts and listening rapturously to the music below.

Days passed, and weeks. March ran her days out and he lost his job. For a while things had gone on the same as before. Then Sue had gone from her schoolroom into the office of Arthur Salters, a famous artist. And he had gone to a small cafe where, with money he had borrowed on his typewriter, his watch and most of his clothes, he got a small room and two meals a day for three weeks. A meal ticket for three weeks and a room, and life had gone on, a slife will, regardless . . .

Jim sat up on the park bench with a jerk. "Jim." a soft voice called through the dusk. He rubbed his eyes wistfully. A figure was coming toward him, wrapped in a tight fitting cape, beating through the rain.

As she came up to his bench he said "Sue!" He wanted to laugh but a strange sensation choked his laughter in his throat. Then she was in his arms, clinging around his neck, her tiny feet dangling in the air.

"Jim" she whispered, breathing audibly, "I've wanted to come every night. I knew you would be here, but I couldn't get away."

He glanced at her quickly. "Have you been happy, Sue?"

Her arms tightened around his neck. For a moment he thought she was frightened at something in the shadows, but presently she was crying, and he realized that her fear was from her heart, tearing its way out of her breast in these despairing sobs that shook her being.

"Darling," she whispered, raising her eyes and looking at the top of his head where large drops of water trickled slowly off onto his shoulders "darling, I-I . . . "

She tore herself away and ran off through the shadows, disappearing out of sight down the street. Jim remained motionless, watching her wantng to call after her, but saying nothing. Dazed, he made his way gropingly back to the cafe.

"Steak with onions," the waiter said. This was the last punch in the ticket and he always served the unfortunates steak with onions for their last meal.

Jim looked up wearily. "Uh-huh," he said. But it didn't matter. Nothing mattered right now. Not even food, although it was the last punch on his ticket.

The man behind the counter smiled "A friend of yours was by a little while ago. Said to give you this letter when you came in for supper."

Taking the letter, he went back to a table near a window, out of reach of the music that drifted in from the balcony above. He opened the envelope and stared at the hurriedly written words:

"Jim: Arthur has asked me to marry him and I can't refuse. I love you, but I can't be poor again. Forgive me if you can. Sue."

The waiter brought his food and he ate it deliberately, forcing it into his mouth with a terrible effort. "Did you ever get slapped in the kisser by somebody you liked a whole lot," he said to the cashier, watching him crumble his worn out meal ticket up in his fist.

"A dozen times," the other answered. "But there's always another slap in the deck, no matter how you feel at the moment."

Jim smiled disconsolately. "Maybe," he said.

"Maybe this is it," the man behind the counter said. "It's from that guy on the avenue. Maybe its good news.

Jim glared at the fellow without answering. He wanted to knock his fat face in, crowd his words back down his sarcastic throat. Instead he said evenly: "I hope so. I can use it."

Amazed, he stared for several moments at the letters that flickered before his eyes. What was this the man on the avenue had written! This couldn't happen now. Not just when he had lost Sue. The whole thing, from beginning to end, was unconscionable. Just plain madness. He felt dizzy, and, dropping the letter, stumbled out into the night to get some air.

Perplexed, the man behind the counter picked up the discarded letter and read:

Dear Mr. Andrews:-

I have sold six of your stories to True Life Magazine for three hundred dollars. If you will come by my office Tuesday morning . . . .

A fat man at the far end of the counter called out for coffee, but the waiter, still staring through the open door, didn't hear. "That guy is buggy," h emumbled. "Just when good luck finds his address he stumbles out into th edark like a fellow who has just seen twenty million ghosts. Yep that guy is buggy."

In his hand was a worn out meal ticket; he tore it into tiny pieces and let them drift slowly to the floor.

EVOLUTION IS THE WORD

Old Darwin in his wisdom rare
Conceived a wondrous plan
By which, you know, long years ago
The monkeys turned to man.

His theory may be all right
(Believe it if you will)
But some old brute failed to evolute
And lives, a monkey still.

Another writer has well said:
"We live in a hazardous time,
Driftin' along thru space—
Nobody knows just when we began
Or how fur we've gone in the race.'
We have the above quartrain demonstrated every day—and we are still WONDERING!

WONDERING WHY?

Funny about little old well beloved Columbiana—says a visitor in our office this morning. Just let a feller be "down and out," and the whole town is there to help him up again. BUT, let a feller get his head above water—and there are many oars lifted to knock him under. Now, what do you think about that? We are still "WONDERING". But lest we spend the entire day "WONDERING" or "LOST IN A FOG" when we attempt to understand "some folk" in this man's town—we had better get on our job of ringing a few door bells and finding out something that we do not have to WONDER about! Let's get going. Forget the unpleasant things that bob up on Main Street—and remember only the very lovely things that happen along the way, and the very worth while people whom we know still live and are thoughtfully tolerant and kind. However, before doing this we heartily join our friend who sauntered by our office in detesting self appointed arbiters of another's right as an INDIVIDUAL, a VOTER and a CITIZEN with ordinary intelligence and a fair conception of right and wrong.

REV. J. W. JONES

Columbiana citizenship has been greatly enriched by the acquisition to the Rev. J. W. Jones Pastor of the Baptist Church. The more we hear and are with this Minister, the more we respect him as a Pastor, a Citizen and as a Friend. We are constantly hearing favorable comments on his many excellent qualifications for the three requisites above mentioned. You know where he stands and respect his very conservative, fair, and righteous views.

LENA MERRELL

Across the miles that span the distance between Miami, Florida, and this little old burg, known as Columbiana—comes a friendly greeting card from our good friend, Lena Merrell, who is enjoying several weeks vacation in the Land of Flowers. We are delighted to realize that there remain friendly souls who ever in the midst of all their joys and happy past-times do not forget to remember us. We were especially pleased with the above bit of thoughtfulness.

And speaking of Miami, we noted the headlines Sunday, in one of the popular Dailies that COLUMBIANA's flying footsteps had won the $50,000 Widener Challenge Cup race. We again began our "WONDERING" what if WE had been there and had wagered our new crop of "BIBBIES" — "HANDIES" — "TOKENS", on COLUMBIANA, what would have happened if we had "brought home the bacon." We are still WONDERING about this—and wishing WE HAD—Sure, you said it, just BEEN THERE. We KNOW what we would have done—IF, BUT, etc., YOU tell 'em.

MRS. J. J. HAYNES

The loveliest surprise we have had in many moons was a motor party composed of Mrs. J. J. Haynes and her two daughters, Mrs. Louis Jeffers of Birmingham and Mrs. Jasper Holcombe of Calera, when they honored us with a little wayside chat on Tuesday. What a joy to see old friends. Especially were we delighted to welcome "Miss Minnie" whom we so happily recall as a neighbor, and one of the kindest and most tolerant friends it has ever been our good fortune to own. The visit ended all too soon—and the curtain on the days that used to be—had to be dropped again—and paths divided. However, hearts remain eternally bound inthat unforgettable comradeship we all once knew when the Haynes family were such a vitally important part of little old Columbiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Daviston of Helena, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pitts in Columbiana.

DR. E. G. GIVHAN

We have not had the pleasure of entertaining a more distinguished guest in our jorunalistic emporium, than the well known Dr. E. G. Givhan, prominent physician of Montevallo, who thoughtfully came by our office for a friendly chat on Monday. We thoroughly enjoyed our talk with this well informed gentleman, and especially were we happy when he paid a charitable tribute to our efforts in the newspaper world, and renewed his allegiance to Shelby County's "most distinctive weekly." —that ever interesting paper which we happily represent and present for your approval each week. This "time out" from a very busy professional life, in some way, started off the week "just right."

REV. and MRS. WILDS S. DuBOSE

There is nothing which so happily breaks the monotony incident to a busy, noisy, newspaper office, like a visit from old friends. So, on Tuesday we were happily surprised when the Rev. and Mrs. Wilds S. DuBose of Birmingham motored by for a friendly visit with us. "Wilds" is now a "dignified and brilliant Reverend"—Pastor of Stockham Memorial Church in Woodlawn—but we knew him when he was not so dignified and when he was not the brilliant minister he is today. That is, we knew him—way back when—we were writing on "slates" and treking together to the Little Red School House, etc. Before leaving our office, Mr. DuBose promised he would return Monday, and at the request of Judge Wallace, be present to open his Court with fitting invocation. His many friends in Columbiana will welcome his appearance on Main.

L. E. SHAW

The constant round of applause that has gone up from the large circle of Democrat readers each week, since we sent out our S. O. S. for those little American Eaglets—was again resounding on Monday when L. E. Shaw of Wilsonville—came by to renew his subscription to the Democrat. We acknowledge many such thoughtful courtesies. Another just in, Mr. E. H. Templin of Calera, RFD and many more have written they will soon be by to see us. We appreciate this—for the quicker you "settle up"—the sooner we can "settle down."

MYRA CHANDLER

Mrs. Myra Chandler, and Miss Tate and Billie Chandler, have returned from a motor trip which included Gadsden, Sherwood, and Sewanee, Tennessee, in which College —the late Dr. Joel Chandler took his B. M. degree. Mrs. Chandler states they had a lovely trip, and were entertained by former friends all along the interesting route. Mr Dee Furris, brother of Mrs. Chandler returned with her for a visit in Columbiana.

LIPS—AN IDEX TO CHARACTER

We have always heard that "Eyes were the windows of the Soul"—But not until a masculine authority on LIPS spoke up and expressed himself did we know that it had been determined that a woman's mouth was an index to her nature. So says the following authority: Beware of a thin lipped woman—straight, thin lips indicate MEANESS, VINDICTIVENESS and DECEIT—and you can never hope to win an argument from this type. The rose bud mouth praised by poets, say plainly that you will never be allowed to have your own way. She will pout and in the long run, you will have to give in—for PEACE. Ful lrounded lips indicate liveliness, but do not forget that other men thing so too. If you are jealous, beware—SHE will deal you plenty of misery. Lips that curve down at the corners state plainly that "she" can't take a joke. So, this gent continues—he always looks first at mi-lady's lips and keeps the above "keys" to her nature in his mind. There you are girls!

JAMES CRAWFORD JR.

In the daily round of Newspaperdom, we meet many different types of folk. The PESSIMIST—we avoid —The OPTIMIST always claims our admiration, but the PEPTIMISTS have our seal of O. K.—for they are the group which are up and at it—early and late. We now refer to James Crawford Jr., youthful Americano only 8 years o fage, who bids fair to becoming a business man and is not going to be long about it. James often comes by the office and he always has that happy little way of greeting you, then he explans just what his business it—and we have not found a product which he advocates which is not worth every penny you pay. We just tip you off on the business acumen of this young gentleman—and watch out for him. He is one person—a PEPTIMIST— who is destined to get wherever he wants to go—commercially or otherwise. We are banking on him stout!

STATE HISTORICAL GUIDE COMPLETED

Everything pertaning to Alabama history, folk, lore, legends, maps, industries, tours, etc. has been compiled by Myrtle Miles and her co-workers working under the Federal Writers Project of WPA and is now nearing completion. These volumes will be included in the American Guide Series by writers in every State in the Union, and will contain about 220,000 words. The books will be priced as low as possible to enable one to be placed on every literary shelf in Alabama. The work has been sent to Washington for final criticism and approval.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED IN CULTURE CLUB

Mrs. A. N. Bird was hostess last Thursday to the Columbiana Culture Club in her lovely home on College Street.

Spring flowers of jonquils and flowering quince were beautiful in the rooms.

Mrs H. J. Walton presided over the meeting. The Civic Committee was asked to see about putting our shrubbery over the town. Mrs. A. N. Bird Parliamentarian, read some rules in Parliamentary Law. The following officers were elected for the coming year. President, Mrs. H. J. Walton; Vice President, Mrs. J. W. Stone; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. A. N. Bird These three officers were re-elected. The club is fortunate indeed to have these efficient and capable women for their leaders. We feel like we will do even greater things next year than we have this year.

A delightful program was presented by Mrs. L. H. Curlee and Miss Sallie Smoke. The subject of program was The Dependent, Deficient and Delinquent Child. Highlghts In Our Own County. You who know Mrs. Curlee know how capable she is of giving her programs and how interesting she makes them and so at ease while giving it. After Mrs. lee and Miss Smoke covered so well this subject I think all resolved to do all in their power to help Miss Doris Bender (Directo rof Welfare) to take care of these many families and children that need our help.

The book Vein of Iron by Ellen Glasgow was presented to the club.

The hostess served a delicious salad coffee and cake to twelve members and four visitors. The visitors were Mrs. Pinky Jordan, Mrs. J. W. Jones Miss Sallie Smoke and Miss Mildred Meroney.

The next meeting will be with Mrs L. H. Curlee March 18th with Mrs. A. N. Bird as program leader.

JOHN MILNER

The most ardent and loyal voter in Shelby County we have heard of is the Rev. John Milner, former pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Columbiana, now residing in the Magic City. Mr. Milner WALKED from Calera to Columbiana, the old home place, a distance of eleven miles, to cast his vote against REPEAL on Wednesday. During the time he spent in this interesting haven, he was busily engaged in greeting his old frends who so happily remember him.

ATTENTION LADIES!

If you want to complete your Easter costume, or if you have a freind to whom a dainty ,exquisitely hand made handkerchief will appeal

We acknowledge with a great deal that energetic "Buddy" who never loses a minute in idleness. We shall be glad to take your orders in the Democrat, and for color combinations lovely workmanship, and sheer beauty, you can't beat it! Her prices are 3 for 50 cents—and we frankly state to you—we do not understand how she does it, but we have seen the handiwork and we are convinced that the "hankies" are real.

We acknawledge with a great deal of pleasure a visit from Walter Chancellor of Harpersville, prominent Legionaire and one of the owners of the oldest Ferry in Alabama—who entertained us with his version of the new "Tokens"—He has had some experiences which are rich, rare and racy.

We happily welcome Mr. W. I. Merrell of Shelby to our large circle of readers of the Democrat each week We maintain we have the widest circulated weekly in Shelby County, and are gratified over having received many new and renewal subscriptions during the past week.

KYLE LYON

Kyle Lyon, age one year, interesting liitle daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Lyon, was about the "cutest" baby visitor we have entertained in our little work shop in many moons, when she walked in one afternoon last week, and "talked" for us — "Walked" for us—and then, with the friendliest little smile imaginable, threw us a kiss as she made her exit Just like a little ray of sunshine these babettes brighten the office ,and we are always delighted when they honor us with their presence. Had you ever stopped to think what a bleak old world we would have, without them?

Misses Lena Cox and Louise Thompson are being missed by their many friends in commercial circles on Main Street—both being victims of the ever prevalent Flu.

EASTER PARADE

Are you ready to join the Easter Parade—Sunday, March 28th? Never a more colorful array of dresses, hats and shoes, than those which we have seen displayed in the leading stores. So, from the top of your head to the tips of your dainty toes, mi-lady can go stepping along in almost any pastel or vivid shade her little heart desires. Watch next week's Democrat for advertisement from Shelby County Merchants. Shop The Home Stores First.

A. E. A.

The A. E. A. convenes in Birmingham on March 18th—and if you do not believe that Alabama has plenty of school teachers—just take a trip to the Magic City on one of these EDUCATIONAL occasions! Aside from the educational and informative speeches, you will find plenty of recreational activities which have been provided for their entertainment by generous old Birmingham.

FIRESIDE CHAT

It was "Throw another log on the fire" in our domicile on Tuesday night, as we settled comfortably in our arm chairs to hear the familiar and wonderfully human "MY FRIENDS," spoken as only that matchless leader known as Franklin Delano Roosevelt can speak it. We'll bet not many listeners were unconvinced after his wonderfully enlightening ad dress to "his" people on this night It takes COURAGE to lead a Nation forward, but his ringing challenge "If we would keep faith with those who had faith in us, if we would make DEMOCRACY succeed, I say we must act —NOW—is unanswerable! We believe his record has warranted continued universal FAITH and CONFIDENCE.

CUPID TAKES A STROLL

It is reported a la grape vine route that two of Columbiana's eligible young gents will soon take a hike down Hyman's Altar and enter the ranks of the benedicts. WHO? Ah, my dears, that would be telling what you, no doubt ere this, have heard already. Another evidence that "In the Spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

FOUR MILE HOME DEMONSTATION CLUB

The Four Mile Home Demonstration Club held its regular monthly meeting Monday, March 8th with a spend the day meeting with Miss Ina Farmer. There were 16 members present and several visitors.

After a delightful lunch which was enjoyed by all, the meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. Eula McEwen. The club members then sang "Dixie", and "Swing Low Sweet Chariot". The minutes were read by the secretary. Miss Ina Farmer. The roll call was answered with each member telling something with in her power to do to improve her kitchen during the year 1937. The meeting was than given to the Home Agent and she gave a worthwhile demonstration on upholstering. She also gave lots of valuable information on hanging curtains and draperies. She also had a display of crocheted and hooked rugs. The meeting then adjourned to meet the next month with Mrs. O. Moon for a spend the day meeting.

FORBES PIANO COMPANY

The Forbes Piano Company is enjoying wide popularity in Shelby County, as many pianos, radios and other musical instruments are being sold in this territory, since Jatie Lawrence Longshore became the State sales manager. Mrs. Longshore has legions of friends through out the County, where for a number of years she was closely identified with the schools and colleges of the County. She is now engaged in demonstrating the new Hammond Electric Organ, and with Mr. Flick, nationally recognized composer, was a distinguished visitor in Columbiana this week. We personally recommend any school or home which needs a musical instrument to write or call Mrs. Longhsore at Forbes Piano Co., Birmingham, before buying. Terms are most reasonable and the line of musical instruments carried by this oldest firm in Alabama is absolutely dependable.

Bill Lee, popular Auditor, came by the office for a breezy goodbye on Wednsday just before leaving for Montgomery to spend Thursday with his mother who will be 86 years young on this occasion.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

The day has been filled with chatter regarding the VOTE! Arguments pro and con have kept the office buzzing and we have enjoyed listening to all of it. We have now cast our little vote and have made up oud little mind to join the Sit Down Strikers for the day. We shall just socially entertain from now on. It is so much more fun to talk to friends than to write to please them.

So, until next week, Au Revoir and thanks again for following thru!

Shelby County Teachers Met In Regular Session On Saturday

The teachers of Shelby County met at the County High School Saturday morning to continue their study in curriculum work. We are very proud of the work being done in the County this year. Many interesting units have been studied, demonstrated and written up for further use, also contributions toward a permanent professional and circulating library.

The meeting Saturday was begun by Community singing led by Mrs. Walton and Miss Nix with Miss Rice at the piano. Devotional was read by Mrs. Mitchell, prayer by Miss Hermoine Woolley. Announcements were made by Mr. Appleton and Mrs. Walton. The group was then favored with a most inspirational address given by Mrs. McCoy from Montevallo. She spoke on some of the works of Morgan and Finley which left us thoughts that we shall long cherish.

Miss Mary Peters had charge of the teacher's organization, calling for reports from the Legislative committee given by Mr. Appleton and Mr. Tidwell. Library report given by Mr. Horton. Ethics by Mr. Collins. Report Card by Miss Gertrude Bishop. Publicity by Mrs. Price. Board of Directors by Fred Allen. Delegates and alternates to A. E. A. were elected as follows: Miss Mary Peters, A. L. Horton, D. B. Smith, Mrs. Mae Price, Miss Myrtle Brown, Miss Mamie Bishop, E. H. Childs, Mrs. Zera King Walton, Mark Simms Miss Elizabeth Mays, Miss Olivia Young, and Clark Watters.

Mr. Ozley and Mr. Kimbrough, Highway Patrolmen, met with the bus drivers to talk about safety on the highways. Mr. Kimbrough talked to the whole group on safety for a few minutes.

Departmental meetings were held fo rtwo hours on the study of Curriculum. Miss Wells gave the primary and intermediate departments some helps on writing up Units of Work, then Miss Martha Allen talked on the teaching of Art in Large Units of Work. In the High School group, Mr. Anderson distributed a number o fmimeographed sheets pertinent to the Curriculum. A practical demonstration was given by the members of the Junior II Class Section B, of the Shelby County High School.

The pupils gave a few of their own class activities. Note books in which they are keeping all their work and which were passed around amon gthe teachers received many comments of commendation.

The meeting adjourned to meet again on Saturday, March 27th, for the last meeting of the year.

In a conference with the school bus drivers of Shelby County, Sergeant Kimbrough and Patrolman Ozley of the State Highway Patrol stated that the law aganst passng school busses when the busses are takng on or deliverng passengers was one of the most frequently violated traffic laws. The patrolmen said that the violation of this law was a dangerous practice. They advised that bus drivers take down tag numbers of the violators and report them to the highway patrol. The Patrolmen expressed the belief, however, that most violators of this law did not know that there was such a regulation and recommended that great publicity be given to the law.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

We have been for a stroll. A lovely afternoon stroll. All the way to the "John Allen" bridge and back. Believe it or not, the brook rippled along with its same merry song. There was a bird singing too and unless our ears deceived us there was an unmistakable note of spring in that song. Over in the pasture we saw about a million tiny yellow flowers. Our fingers fairly ached to pluck them. But these delicate harbingers of spring looked so happy in their emerald bed we could not molest them.The balmy weather is bringing back to life Camp Okomo, the play ground of the Silurians. Last week end it welcomed Elizabeth Hughes Pope and three of her bosom pals, namely, Mary Huddleston, Marie and Modarette Langston. This foursome reported a swell time. We agree its an ideal place to relax and let yourself go. . . Ever hear of three shakes of a sheep's tail? That's about how long the excitement lasted when Mr. and Mrs. John L. Conners house caught on fire last Monday. Speed and water effectively extinguished the hungry flames before any serious damage was done . . . . We know who was tickled Saturday over a cake with five pink candles perched atop of it. It was none other than Sonny Horton ,that mischievous little fellow with the big blue eyes and the long curled lashes. Keep it up, Sonny, you'll soon be a man . . . . We don't like to give one away, but ask Mrs. Chris Peeples what kind of a feeling it gives one to start shopping, get nearly to town and suddenly discover that ones pocket book has been left behind . . . Whether you heard them or not, they rang out last week—wedding bells. we were surprised to hear that Ida Thomason had united with Barbra Holcombe in the holy bonds of matrimony! We extend congratulations and we sincerely regret the loss of this estimable couple but our loss is Columbiana's gain for they will make their home there . . . . These tokens have brought on a shower of comment. We have heard them called everything from "Bibbies" to washers. Slim Barnette says they are TAKENS. Some don't attach much value to them. Chester Jones says they sail very well, which reminds us, by the way, that we think Chester is very accomodating. Ask him why. . . . Could it be possible that we have a future song bird in our midst? We have our suspicions since hearing Dot Blankenship, aged three, sing out during a moments silence at church "Who dat comin' down de strweet? Good old O'gan Gwinda Pete." . . . The Gorgas hospital has claimed for its victim, Mrs. May Scott, who was rushed there Saturday, seriously ill. We wish for her a speedy recovery. . . Charlie Lee Mize, one of our most beloved matrons, was seen going places Saturday after a week's illness at her home. We hear that Bill Thomason and Allen Jackson are now frequent-visitors down on Ball Park Street. A new girl? Come on boys, how about an introduction? . . . Lloyd Thorpe is seen nowadays escorting a certain little red head about town . . . . Bernice Payne and Sarah Stewart were seen Saturday going places, looking very chic in their new spring outfits. . . . If you start any place you are likely to meet a snappy new coupe with out petite Madge Ward at the wheel. We understand she is mastering the art of driving and if you're asking us she seems to be getting some kick out of it. And what about Church Harris' good looking new "buggy". Howard Thompson and Jim Goff are also on wheels now Regular parade, eh? . . . . Speaking of parades, suppose all our cripples were to tap tap down Main Street on their crutches. They would have quite a showing. Let's see, there's Mable Black, Nelle Walton, Hugh Hodge, Coon Collins and Earl Payne. Here's hoping they'll soon be back on their feet again. . . . Hats off to Coach Ray Thornton and his basket ball boys! They brought home a trophy from the basket ball tournament which was staged at Mignon in Sylacauga. Forney (Red) Amos Ernest (Wop) Massey and Ray (Coach) Thornton, won medals for outstanding playing. Congratulations boys! We're awfully proud of you . . . Words fail us when we try to express our appreciation for the nice remarks about us in last week's paper. We are overwhelmed. Allow us to say "thanks a million" as we take off

'til another time,
Nell and Nelle.

The way to get something done right is to tell somebody else how to do it and then go ahead and do it yourself.

CIRCUIT COURT IN SESSION

A special term of the Circuit Court was called on Monday morning at ten o'clock, Judge Wales W. Wallace presiding. Columbiana citizens were especally happy to have the privilege of welcoming one of her distinguished sons, the Rev. Wilds S. DuBose, Pastor o fthe Stockham Memorial Church of Birmingham, who was presented by Judge Wallace. The Rev. DuBose offered the invocation, after which, the Grand Jury was drawn, charged and retired under the directorship of Arthur L. Hardegree, Circuit Solicitor, and Paul O. Luck, County Solicitor. E. S. Pearson of Shelby, Alabama ,was elected Foreman.

A series of cases of State wide interest will be tried this week involving the condemnation of the Montgomery-Birmingham Highway which were appealed from the decision of the appraisers. Next week will be devoted to the trial of Criminal cases.

Dr. J. A. Hines, prominent physician of Shelby County and distinguished member of the Board of Education, spent Tuesday in Columbiana.

The entire membership of the American Legion in Alabama will be called upon this week by Commander Taylor Boyd to throw its support behind the movement to erect an everlasting monument to President Franklin Delano Roosevelt in the form of a hospital for the treatment of crippled children to be erected on the site of old LaGrange College in Colbert County.

Census Report shows that there were 6,368 bales of cotton ginned in Shelby County from the crop of 1936 as compared with 5,662 bales ginned from the crop of 1935.

You can travel all over the world and come back to find the best people you know in Columbiana.

'LOVE IS NEWS' HIT STORY COMING TO STRAND SUNDAY

The romance of a thrilling threesome whose kisses crash the headlines and whose escapades sell extras with handsome Tyrone Power outromancing his "Lloyds of London," role, lovely Loretta Young bringing her fresh charm to a portrayal that is enchantingly different, and Don Ameche creating a dashing new screen characterization, provides hilarious excitement in the Twentieth-Century-Fox streamline hit, "Love Is News," opening Sunday at the Strand Theatre in Montevallo.

With Loretta in the role of a beautiful heiress heckled and pestered by sensation seeking newspapers, the enjoyable pace is set at once when she vows vengeance against Tyrone Power, ace newshawk who has just tricked her again into the headlines, without, however, reckoning with his dynamic, hard driving managing editor Don Ameche.

To give newsman Tyrone a dose of his own medicine, Loretta determines to make him a public figure, and not only announces her engagement to him but also states that she has presented him with a million dollars.

Besieged on every hand, Tyrone strives to expose the hoax but his efforts serve only to increase his notoriety, as well as his unpopularity with the managing editor. On a wild chase into the country, both the newshawk and his quarry are arrested for speeding and jailed by county Judge Slim Summerville, an incident which results in some of the most hilarious moments of the film.

Loretta's revenge works itself up to a bewildering and amusing climax in which the tables are suddenly turned and the pair find themselves, as the newspapers had so often repeated really "that way" about each other.

CRIPPLED CHILDRENS COMMITTEE MET IN COLUMBIANA

The County Committee for Crippled Children's Work was organized at a meeting held in the office of the Department of Education on Monday March 15, at 3:00 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by J. M. Lyon Chairman of the Committee for the Committee for the past year; and the following officers were elected to serve during the present campaign for membership in the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and in the Easter seal sale: Chairman, Mr. Appleton; Secretary, Miss Doris Bender; Treasurer Mr. A. A. Lauderdale; Publicity Chairmen, Mr. Luther Fowler, Mr. M. W. Wyatt and Mrs. Mildred White Wallace.

Chairmen in the different towns in the county are: Montevallo, Mrs. E. P. Hood, Mrs. Pete Givhan, Mrs. E. H. Wills, and Mrs. W. J Kennerley; Columbiana, Mrs Homer Walton, Mrs Sam Lokey; Siluria and Alabaster, Mrs. T. A. Farris; Calera, Miss Elizabeth Wallace; Shelby, Mrs. Wilbur Green, and Mr. John Mims; Vincent; Mr. Solon McGraw. In Wilsonville Helena, Boothton, and Aldrich, chairmen have been appointed but since these communities were not represented at the committee meeting, the appointments are not definite.

Th eEaster Seals will be distributed by the schools and Home Demonstration Clubs in the County.

The quota which has been set for Shelby County is $300.00 Last year Shelby County raised approximately $300. for Crippled Children, but children from the County received treatment and hospitalization amounting to $1,300 Treatment was secured for five new cases, treatment continued on three old cases, and one girl given vocational training

E. A. WHITTEMORE SELLS MEMORIALS

SPRING! This is the first month of it. With it comes a stimulated desire in every normal man's make up to clean up and beautify. It is but natural that folks should have this inclination. Mother Nature is assisting in this beautifying process by making to grow and blossom the green grass and lovely flowers.

When man is tending his lawn of grass, shrubbery and flowers, he certainly is not unmindful of that lonely unmarked mound wherein sleeps his loved one.

COUNTY AGENT TELLS WHEN TURN LEGUMES

Winter legumes should be turned when the green tops of hairy vetch will weigh 12 to 15 pounds or Austrian peas 15 to 20 pounds per 100 square feet in the aevrage growth in the feld, advises A. A. Lauderdale County Agent.

Growers who have never made measurements of the green growth should measure plots 10 by 10 feet at several points, cut or pull the green vines about even with the surface of the ground and weigh the green tops from each plot. Several such measurements over the field will give a good idea of stage of growth that will furnish sufficient growth to turn. The legumes can be turned with any good plow at this stage.

Turning shouldn't be delayed until the legumes have made extra big growth. The crop that is to follow may be delayed or drought may come After turning, delay at least two weeks before planting the crop that is to follow.

Corn following winter legumes needs no further fertilization. Cotton following these crops should receive 50 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent, 400 pouads superphosphate and 50 pounds murate of potash at planting with no additional fertilization.

Mr. Odell and Donald Milsstead of Ensley, spent the week end with their mother, Mrs. O. E. Milstead.

Many esteemed students of European affairs agree that war is inevitable on that continent.

STATE'S TEACHERS TO MEET IN MAGIC CITY THIS WEEK

The fifty-sixth annual convention of the Alabama Educational Association convenes in Birmingham March 18 through 20. Headlining the list of speakers for the three-day session are Paul McNutt, former Governor of Indiana, and recently appointed high commissioner to the Phillipines Stuart Chase, renowned economist and sociologist; Howard Odum, eminent student of the South and its problems; Carlton Palmer, apostle of art; and Dr. Belmont Farley, recognized authority on school publicity.

In addition to these figures of national importance, state school problems will be discussed by Gov. Bibb Graves, State Superintendent J. A. Keller, Garland S. Smith, President of the Alabama Education Association, and Mrs. James Fitts Hill, President, Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Four general sessions are scheduled on Thursday and Friday, March 18 and 19. The major part of one day will be devoted to meetings of specialized groups. Thirty or more such gatherings have been planned involving more than fifty individuals who will discuss classroom technique and such questions as curriculum revision improved methods of administration, and teacher welfare.

The social side of the convention will not be neglected. Beginning Wednesday, the day before the formal opening of the convention, a series of breakfasts, luncheons and dinners are listed to continue through Friday. Birmingham is expecting more than six thousand teachers and is making elaborate preparations or their enter tainment.

NEGRO FARMERS TO HOLD CONFERENCE MARCH 26-27

The Negro farmers and home makers of Shelby County will hold a conference here March 26-27. It is hoped by the leaders that this gathering will be of practical value to those attending. Most of the period will be given over to actual instruction in the better methods of farming and domestic service. There will be however, discussions and addresses on increasing the attractiveness of rural life. The rural ministers of the County will discuss how the church could be a vital force in rural reform.

Fred Douglass Andrews, who is calling the conference, states that the sessions will be held at the County Training School. Some of those who will make contributions are: H. Councill Trenholm, president of State Teachers College at Montgomery; Zelia V. Stephens, supervisor of Negro schools in Shelby County; J. H. Campbell, principal of Shelby Sounty Training School; J. R. Otis, head of the Agriculture Department, Tuskegee Institute; R. C. Mixon, Moderator of Shelby Springs Baptist Association.

There will also be contributions from Miss Mary Elizabeth Nolen Home Demonstration Agent, Shelby County; Mr. A. A. Lauderdale, Farm Agent, Shelby County; Miss Nell Davidson, County Health Nurse Shelby County; Dr. Hugh Nickson County Health Officer; Mr. J. L Appleton, County Superintendent of Education.

Shelby County SCHOOL NITE High School

On Monday and Tuesday nights, the fifth annual School Nights were creditably observed at the Shelby County High School

These programs represent the originality of the pupils, for the presentation is written entirely by the students. The student body is divided into two colors: The Reds, were led by Elizabeth Taylor, with Assistant Leader, Wales W. Wallec, Jr. the Whites were in charge of Squire Davis and Billie Rddle. The interest manifested in these occasions was attested by large and appreciative audiences.

The 5th School Night was dedicated to Principal E. H. Childs, and a fitting tribute paid this popular official. The Toast of the Reds, impressively presented by Elizabeth Taylor ,possibly tells the story of the students regard for Mr. Childs, and w equote a few lines which we remember: "The Reds, wish to dedicate this our fifth school night to one whose leadership, fidelity, comradeship, and understanding has played such a great part in making this year that we are spending together both pleasant and profitable. To this man with his fair and impartial decisions in school affairs, and with his sympathetic ear always inclined to hear each student's problems, has, in our miniature world, taught us the value of co-operation and the duties of each citizen to think of the welfare of the whole instead of that of a favored few, we offer this evidnece of our real gratitude and sincere respect."

The writer doubts that any tribute heretofore paid Mr. Childs struck so close to his heart as the tribute glowing paid him by the student body of the school he has so capably represented for the past two years.

After a conference of the Judges. chosen from Montevallo, the REDS were declared the winners.

The Whites, with true sportsmanlike spirit, offered congratulations and friendly rivalry was dissolved and the scholastic band of red and white continues to hold all in a united front for their Alma Mater.

EASTERN DIVISION OF POWER CO WINS SAFETY TROPHY

The Eastern Division of Alabama Power Company, comprising the counties of Calhoun, Cleburne, Randolph, dan Clay and parts of Cherekee, Etowah, St. Clair, Shelby, Talladega, Coosa, Elmore, Tallapoosa and Chambers last week was awarded the seventh annual safety trophy given by the Company in recognition of the best safety records by various groups of employees. During 1936 the 225 employees of the Eastern Division of the Company had only three lost time accidents in connection with their work or a record of only one accident fo revery half-million man hours worked.

Alabama Power Company has for many years held accident prevention courses for employees. Individual employees of the Company have participated in safety, first aid and resuscitation courses independently and in co-operation with the American Red Cross among civic and other groups.

And We Shall Have Music

BY MILTON BIRD

Sam Andrews was exceedingly popular with the ladies. And it was a strange thing, too, because at first, especially during the first date, he seldom found the situation one of mutual and omnipresent bliss. All his life, and he was almost twenty, his dates, regardless of everything else had turned up at the exact moment of divine intoxication with some sort of song issuing from their puckered wine-red mouths.

All this bothered Sam irrationally. He was sitting at his desk, in a little office two stories above the street, pondering over several tax blanks he must send to the government that day. Disgusted, he brushed the papers away with an oath and stared out the window at the tops of the buildings down the street.

"Song birds," he grunted, "smart, up-to-the-minute song birds." He was remembering his last three dates distastefully, and the thoughts irked him considerably. There had been Anne, he reflected, young and hilariously vivacious, who had received a canary on her last birthday and driven the poor songster to its death with her singing; and Emily, who wanted to sing but never could some how, regardless of four hours diligent practice every day for twenty years.

Outside the court house clock struck six. The thought of getting out into the open pepped him up and passing through the door he began to whistle unconsciously, the strains of two songs mingling in a crazy, curious discord.

On to the corner in front of the drug store he met Bill Stewart. "Want t' go spooning?" Bill said.

"Where and who and when?"

"Mary Aline's got a visitor. Tall and slim and quiet, like a sunflower.'

Sam's eyes flashed. "Reckon she's a songster?"

"I don't think so," Bill said, "or she wouldn't hang around Mary."

Sam liked Mary Aline. Because she didn't sing. Because she didn't play around with girls who did. "Might as well," he said, "But if she's a song bird I'm coming home by eleven."

Thus Agnes Wellington came into Sams life, silently at first, then with a sort of whispered warning of hilarity, and finally at twelve o'clock that evening, with a suddeness that took his breath away, leaving him dazed, remembering his bright, smiling face, and humming the strains of the latest song, without rhythm or tune, but s oenthusiastically that even Bill and Mary Aline joined in on the chorus.

"Didn't you say your name was Richmond?" Sam said at exactly four minutes past eight.

"No," the sunflower responded, "Why?"

"I think I'm gonna hang around like Grant did around Richmond, and my middle name's Grant, you know."

"Then you like a crowd."

Sam sat back with a perk, "Who said so?"

"There were a lot o' folks beside Grant hanging around Richmond."

They both laughed, then were silent, and came up for air five miles further on up the road only because the little lady who took their order at the roadhouse causually mentioned the fact that they had beer for those who cared to indulge in the manly art of gurgling.

Sam was terribly happy. He wiped at his lips with the back of his hand, looking sheepishly out of his eyes at the little lady. Agnes offered him her hanky, giggled, sat up with a tremendous jerk as the sound of music drifted through the roadhouse door.

Her movements startled Sam. He looked at her dubiously for a moment then asked: "Wanna put a nickle in it?"

"No," Agnes answered. But all the while she was beating the floor with her tiny feet, very much like a dog will wag his tail when a fellow comes up on the porch he doesn't exactly recognize but is afraid to distrust.

Bill, feeling the tension, leaned back and said: "let's go in and dance"

They did, and drank several bottles of beer around, and laughed hilariously at the very black negro who brought a bottle of Old Mr. Boston at eleven thirty. After her second drink of whiskey, Agnes got upon the table and pulled Sam up with her Bill and Mary Aline climbed up too, and the negro put a nickle in the piece. and the orchestra very dreamily began the strains of Sing Baby Sing.

At first nobody uttered a sound. Then Agnes, feeling the strong liquor in her veins began singing. Sam looked at her ,then at Bill and Mary Aline, then back at Agnes again, cleared his throat twice and joined in on the chorus. Bill and Mary followed. The music rang out. drifted over the dance floor and crept into a booth at the far end where two men and a woman were sipping wine.

"Hear that?" one of the men, drunker than the others, said.

"Sounds like a mill stream," the woman added.

"Only worse," said the third.

But the man with the most wine was most persistent. He got to his feet unsteadily and made his way back to the table where the singers were perched.

"Pardon my intrusion," he said, "but your music has attracted by artistic attention. I don't know you, but I do know that my company needs your music.

"Maybe," Sam answered, "your company is what our music needs. Have a seat and see how it sounds.

The man sat down proportionally. The singers continued, adding slight bits of intoxicated humor to the song as they went along. After a while the man with the company got up waving a piece of ;paper in his hand.

"You've got it," he chirped, smiling radiantly. "You've got it." He held out his hand, sticking the paper in Sams face. "Yep," he went on, "you've got it. I want the four of you. I'll give you sixty dollars a week for five months."

Sam staggered, and would have allen but Mary Aline held him up. "When do we start?" he asked.

"Next Monday," th eman answered "Just sign this paper and meet me at my office at ten o'clock Monday morning."

The alarm clock in the room of Samuel Andrews was ringing, ringing.A sleepy figure turned over and pushed down the button, shutting off the sound. Under the clock was a folded piece of white paper. That caused young Samuel to wonder. Half dazed, he slipped the paper out, opened it up, and read it:

"What in the hell!" he whispered. "A contract to sing, for five months, with a girl!" He turned back over, cursing silently. "The great Sam Andrews." he whispered sarcastically "has turned into a song bird. Yep, a song bird."

The minute you step aboard, you have a feeling that this is home. There's something of "home" in the cheerful atmosphere—in the roomy, inviting seats—the softly shaded lights.

There's something of "home" in the tempting way the food is prepared—the quiet, courteous way it is served.

There's something of "home" in the way the covers are turned back and the pillows plumped up . . . and even in the porter's quiet query, "What time do you want to be called?"

But it's "like home" in many more ways than these: Because, just as in your own home, we must see that the coal bin is full, the worn furniture replaced. We must employ help, shop for food, buy new dishes—and pay taxes. Yes, about 7% of our revenues goes for taxes to help support your government, your cities, your schools, your highways.

So you see, we're just home-folks like you...sharing your problems and pleasures, contributing to your community. We hope you will think of us that way.

A Most Important Issue

No issue since the World War has brought such a deluge of debate, argument and bitterly opposed controversy as the President's judicial reorganization proposal. Publicists have written article after article upon various phases of the question. Public men—save for that group which hesitates to say "yea" or "nay" to anything until it has decided which side has the tide of public sentiment in its favor—have come out with their opinions. The "letters from readers" sections of the big newspapers are crammed day after day with conflicting views of the "average citizen."

The President's action has brought into the limelight a many-faceted and very old question concerning fundamental governmental theory. There are two kinds of democracies in the world. One, such as the United States, has a written constitution by which the Legislative Branch must abide—or be reversed by the courts. The other kind of democracy is best exemplified by England which has no written constitution—it can be changed at will by Parliament. In England the courts simply interpret legislative acts—they cannot over-rule them.

Those who support the President's proposal, or some other plan which would substantially change the role of the Judiciary in our life, are of the opinion that the courts, and especially the Supreme Court, act as a barrier to progressive legislation.

Since 1789, Congress has enacted 24,902 laws. Of that number, 73 have been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. And of those 73, only 16 concerned bills of national economic or social significance.

First major decision of the court holding a Congressional act illegal was the famed Dred Scott decision in 1857. This decision said that a slave was property and that he could be brought back from a "free" state to the slave state from whic hhe had escaped. The slavery amendment following the Civil War represented ordered constitutional procedure to change a condition that was repugnant ot the people.

The next decision occurred in 1870, when the Court decided that greenbacks printed during the Civil War were not legal tender for debts contracted prior to their issuance. This decision was afterwards reversed by the Court itself when it was enlarged from seven to nine justices.

The Congress passed the first income tax law and the Court held it unconstitutional. Again the people adopted ordered constitutional methods to remedy matters and the 16th Amendment, specifically authorizing the income tax, resulted.

Thereafter, up until the present Administration, the Court held unconstitutional a few other important laws—one fixing the minimum wages for women employed in industry, two dealing with child labor, etc. In the first 144 years of the Republic eight such decisions were handed down.

Then came the New Deal—and the part played by the Court became suddenly more important. In the last four years, the Court has outlawed eight major acts of the Roosevelt stewardship—half of the major acts declared unconstitutional in the whole of its life. Among these acts are the railway persion bill, the Frazier-Lemke law, the AAA, the municipal bankruptcy act, the Guffey Coal Act—and, above all, the NRA.

Furthermore, the Court will pass on a number of other major New Deal laws during 1937, and legal opinion generally holds that the decisions will be mostly unfavorable.

Sources close to the White House say that the President has been sonsidering various measures for limiting the power of the Supreme Court or changing its membership ever since the NRA decision. The proposed bill is the upshot of his deliberations, and it came as a surprise to many of his associates and to most of the Democratic spokesman in Congress. Opinion tends to the belief that months of debate must ensue before the bill is either passed, defeated or revised. In the meantime ,the judicial issue will be thoroughly aired—and it is the considered feeling of observers representing all shades of opinion that it is as important an issue as has ever appeared in the history of the United States.

Driving A Privilege -- Not A Right

It is high time we realized that the operation of a motor vehicle on the public highways is a privilege—not a right.

Every automobile is a potentially lethal weapon. Properly used, it is one of man's most desirable mechanical servants. Improperly used, it is a terrible menace to the lives, health and property of everyone in the area it travels.

Rigid training is necessary to obtain a license to pilot an airplane—yet the plane travels empty airways where, generally speaking, it cannot endanger others. Locomotive engineers must likewise undergo years of arduous experience, and must prove their physical and mental competence and responsibility before being entrusted with a train—yet a train operates on tracks, and has no traffic congestion problems. Still, in most states, we allow anyone—whether he be competent or incompetent, careless or reckless, of good habits or bad—to drive a car on crowded arteries of travel, where the slightest error of judgement may cause a death!

It is an undeniable fact that a considerable percentage of the people now driving should either be denied that privilege or forced to undergo a period of training to make them abler, safer car operators. Some of these people are physically incapable or driving properly. Many more are mentally incapable, congenitally incompetent, or reckless. And the toll is 35,000 lives a year.

We will never solve the accident problem until we adopt driver's lecensing regulations that will keep the incompetent and reckless driver off the public roads. No man has a "right" to drive until he can show definitely that he is worthy of the "privilege" bestowed upon him.

Is Crop Control Necessary

Do farmers want crop control?

The question cannot be answered with any degree of assurance that the truth has been ascertained. It is far easier to assert that what the farmers really want is more money for themselves in order to get a fair share of the nation's income and thus lift the standard of living on American farms.

Can this goal be attained without crop control? We ask the qeustion without any intention of starting an argument between those who differ in opionion but merely in order that Shelby County farmers may think the thing out fo rthemselves.

We have given some thought to the welfare of agriculture, as it affects our people, and we have observed, over the course of years the rise and fall of farm prices that spell fortune or despair to growers. Is it necessary that agriculture should be a gamble for most of those engaged in tilling the soil and that the lives of millions of children should be in the crushing grip of surplus production?

From what we have thought the necessity of some form o fadequate crop control is clear. There may be many to differ and they may be entirely correct. However, the huge surpluses that doomed profitable agriculture are just as certain to come again without some form of control, as the day is to succeed the night. It may be, that was elsewhere in the world, will cause a temporary market for all that our farmers can produce but the prosperity that war begets is followed by a wallow of depression which wies out most of the profits. Again and again, the surpluses will pile up and again and again millions of farmers will go broke throughout hte nation.

President Roosevelt the other night said: "Une third of America is ill-fed, ill-clothed and ill-housed." We are sorry that he knew that. It happens to be all too true.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

Old man flu has been paying visits about and around in Siluria, "Loveliest Village of the Plains." He has had Elizabeth Maudling (Bibbie to her friends) abed most of a whole week. Mrs. Walt Jones is out again after an attack from the old villian. . . .Begone! We say, Old Man, and leave our people be. . . We hear that Lady Luck is playing Ruby Robinson a hand. She is due to begin classes at Alverson Business College in the near uture. BRAVO, girl, that's the spirit that put Lincoln in the White House. . . . We couldn't very well do without our little kindergarten, so efficiently supervised by their sweet teacher, Miss Josephine Reed. How often are they seen starting out for a wee wee hike, with their innocent faces all aglow. . . And, are we looking forward to that Tom Thumb Wedding these tiny folks are going to stage for us! . . . To be perfectly frank, A. B., just why are you hanging your hat up at Mrs. Thorp's now? Isn't it true that a certain little girl being next door influenced your choice of a boarding place? A-ah, A. B.—we can't blame you though . . . "How does your garden grow? . . . Judging by the plow boys whoops and the energetic activities of some of our citizens Saturday, there ought to be a goodly number of gardens sprouting up soon. We noted several interesting facts, namely—Bill Blankenship and Chester Jones can handle a plow, and do they know their G's and haws! Upturned earth still has that clean smell and did you see Eva Henderson in those blue slacks and sun hat? . . . "The old order changeth yielding place to the new." This seems to be just about what is fixing to happen in the case of Troy Henderson and his present car—that is just as soon as he gets Miss "Evie" persuaded. . . . Having attained the ripe old age o fthree, Braxton Bradley celebrated by throwing a birthday party last Tuesday afternoon. What with such complicated games as 'Marching Around The Levee' and Hide and Seek and with such eats as chicken salad, graham crackers, peaches and orange juice, the party was altogether a success. At least this was the verdict of about fourteen little boys and girls. . . If you see Basil Lowery with a hat on that is about three sizes too small, just ask him where he got it . . . We also hear that Reese is good at swiping shoes. . . . Personally we don't know—but we know who does know how it feels to start to the river for a pleasant outing and have to spend the day three miles this side stuck in a mud hole. This foursome arrived home at the early hour of seven in a bedraggled condition . . . If, while passing the Adrin Busby's, you should chance to hear a tap-tap-tapping, be not alarmed for it is only that talented little Betty doing her daily dozens in tap dancing. We hear she is progressing rapidly and we're on our heads to see her at it. . . No doubt there are plenty of people among us who could be called sweet but we want to mention one person in particular whom we think merits this adjective. She has beautiful silvery hair, she has the kindest voice, she is completely sweet, and she is none other than Mrs. Virginia Murphy. . . . Did you know that there is a new "bit of heaven" in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomason? There is, and it is a boy, but not knowing, we can't say what his name is . . . Two of our very good pals, Bill Thomason and Farris Moore "teed" off Saturday on a long, long journey, their destination being somewhere in Texas. . . We know two certain young ladies who were all smiles last week over a visit from a couple of handsome army boys. . . Lexie, Clovis, O'Neal and Margie motored down to Montevallo Saturday night to see a show. . Speaking of motoring, Elaine Booker and Earl Duke were seen pleasure riding Sunday afternoon . . . . This being all we know this week we'll be obliged to quit. We'll be writing at you.

Yours 'til the tea spoons,

Nell and Nelle.

STOP IT WITH Alka-Seltzer

Does Headache "slow you down?" You are a rare exception it it does not.

One or two tablets of ALKA-SELTZER in a glass of water makes a pleasant alkalizing solution that usually brings relief in just a few minutes.

ALKA-SELTZER is also recommended for Gas on Stomach, "Morning After", Acid Indigestion, Colds, and Muscular Pains.

You will like the tangy flavor and the results when you take Alka-Seltzer. Alka-Seltzer, when dissolved in water, contains an analgesic, (Sodium Acetyl-Salicylate). In addition, the alkalizing agents in Alka-Seltzer help to relieve those everyday disorders associated with hyperacidity.

DO YOU KNOW

1. That there are approximately 8,000 crippled children in the State of Alabama?

2. That 2,500 of the above number have received treatment under Alabama's program for crippled children Four hundred of whom have been treated since February 1, 1936?

3. That one-third of all crippled children can be completely restored, that another one-third can be sufficiently restored to earn their own living and compete in industry with normal persons and that less than one-third of the crippled, of necessity become an economic liability?

4. That the possibilities of item 3 above depends almost altogether on a state program, to find, to hospitalize and to cure these children. The average parent does not know that his crippled child can be cured of his disability and too they are unfamiliar with modern skill in orthopedic surgery?

5. That there are 20 clinic centers in Alabama where crippled children are examined without cost? This means that no child in the State lives more htan fifty miles from a clinic center.

6. That almost 1,000 children been examined at clinics since February 1, 1936; of the number, 391 are recent victims of infantile paralysis?

7. That the infantile paralysis epidemic greatly increased the number of children needing service.

8. That 3 ou tof every 1,000 are crippled incident to birth, disease and accident?

9. That infantile paralysis is the major cause of crippling in Alabama and in the nation ?

10. That Alabama has a large number of crippled children needing treatment and funds hav ebeen inade quate to meet the needs of these children?

11. That the State has been able to get from hospitals special hospital rates, whic hare lower than regular rates?

12. That expert orthopedic surgeons have been appointed by the State Medical Board to examine and treat the crippled children of Alabama?

13. That the chances of good results from operations on crippled adults are almost negligible in comparison with good results from operations on crippled children?

14. That there are more than 500 urgent cases in the state files needing immediate treatment and hospitalization?

15. That there are 200 new cases of children suffering from handicapping conditions incident to disease, accident, and birth, handled each year by the State Crippled Children's Service?

16. That convalescent facilities are being provided in Alabama which will make Alabama's crippled children program more effective?

17. That State and County Welfare Departments and State and County Health Departments as well as school units cooperate in every way possible with the State Crippled Children's Service.

18. That the staff of orthopedic surgeons in the state give freely of their services in treatment of cases accepted through Crippled Children's Service?

19. That if you buy Easter Seals you are helping these crippled children to become well again?

Christian World Celebrates Easter

THE PLAZA GRILL IS NEW ADDITION TO MONTEVALLO

The Plaza Grill, is the newest addition to commercial circles in Montevallo, and Shelby County citizens who have long patronized the Jack Johnson Dining Room, will be delighted to know that Mr. and Mrs. (Mary Rogan) J. R. Simpson are now the owners and operators of this famous eating place.

Mr. Simpson comes to Montevallo with years of experience in the restaurant business, and under his supervision, the Grill has been completely renovated, remodeled, and most artistically decorated. Having made a success in Tuscaloosa, as the Manager of one of the largest Cafes in this town, he is prepared to serve the public with meals that please—be it a short order, or regular meals. Mr. and Mrs. Simpson are also prepared to give especial attention to menus for Banquets and Club luncheons.

The culinary department is under the supervision of Joe Prentiss, colored Chef, who has been identified with the Johnson's for 27 years—and whose excellently prepared cuisine needs no introduction to patrons in this section of the country. The waiters, George Wilson and Robert Rogers, have also been with this organization for a number of years, and quiet, efficient and courteous service is assured each person who visits this creditable addition to the business section in the cultural center of Alabama—Montevallo.

THE MAHAN BEAUTY SALON OLDEST IN SHELBY COUNTY

The Mahan Beauty Salon has been recognized as Shelby's Chancery 7-5-36 Register In and most dependable Beauty Shoppe. The newest acquisition to this modernly equipped Beauty Salon is the license to give the famous Zotos Permanent Wave which carries a guarantee of satisfaction with each wave. Only certain standard Beauty Shops are eligible to give these Machineless and Heatless waves which are such a vast improvement over the long and tedious electric waves. Mahan Beauty Shoppe is the only place you may obtain one of these waves in Shelby County.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mahan, owners and operators, cordially invite you to come by their Shoppe when you are in this vicinity and let them explain to you this new method of permanently waving your hair. The wave is soft and natural looking and patrons who have tried this new wave are the best advertisers for this improved method.

The standard price is $10.00, but there is also a special wave which can be obtained for as low as $6.50. Before getting your new spring permanent—consult Mrs. Mahan.

REPORT RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

The Grand Jury empanelled last week during the Special Term of the Circuit Court has made the following report, signed by Erman Pearson, Foreman.

There were 72 cases investigated and 61 indictments returned into open Court, of which number 57 were felonies and 4 are misdemeanors.

The report continues: "The most common violations of law in Shelby County, is violating the prohibition statutes, and the offense commonly known as stealing." "Of the indictments herein returned 46 of them are for making liquor and being in possession of a still for the purpose of manufacturing liquor."

After a personal investigation of the almshouse, jail, court house grounds, books nad records of officials, no criticism is given, other than some much needed improvements on the road leading to the almshouse. New locks and needed improvements at the almshouse and jail are now being installed. There were many sanitary suggestions made regarding the Court house.

A tribute of praise was paid the Sheriff and his forces for the faithful performance of thei rduties, and the assistance rendered during the session of Court, also thanks were extended to Judge W. W. Wallace for his lucid charge in the beginning of the Jury's deliberations aiding them in the performance of their obligations.

MRS. ROOSEVELT VISITS MAGIC CITY

Several thousand Alabamians extended a cordial welcome to Eleanor Roosevelt in Birmingham on Tuesday night when she delivered her lecture on "A Typical Day in the White House."

Mrs. Roosevelt was introduced by Mrs. Bibb Graves at the Municipal Auditorium, and in a most impressively human way, the audience was carried on an imaginary tour of the White House. Despite the importance of many of the happenings which the audience was privileged to witness in imagination, never once did Mrs. Roosevelt try to overawe her audience or allow them to think they were not just as important to the White House and its occupants as the President's family would be to them.

Mrs. Roosevelt described the new regulations and living conditions with which she said her own family was confronted when they moved to the White House. A verbal picture tour from the first floor on thru the entire White House was then impressively presented by the First Lady of the Land, who completely won her audience by her charming and gracious manner and interesting presentation of her most interesting subject.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

S-W-I-S-H-! (curtain going up.) Hello folks, here we are again all set to go. News is practically nil but some things are news when they aren't news, if you get what we mean For instance, there's Easter coming on. If every "man jack of you" don't build yourself a nest then it isn't our fault if the Bunnies pass you up on Easter Eve night. We take the liberty to predict that this place will blossom out on Easter morn like a rose garden in June what with all these new togs being purchased . . . Were you in the shower? What shower? The shower of invitations to the miscellaneous for Mrs. Doyle Cofer nee Ruby Yohn. Yes, its booked for next Saturday, so get out your "new gray bonnet with the blue ribbons on it" and we'll meet you there. . . . What if that naughty girl, Pandora hadn't opened the forbidden box and allowed all these ills to escape into a perfectly lovely world? Then Mrs. Duke and Mrs. Thorpe wouldn't be in Gorgas hospital where they underwent an operation last Wednesday neither would Doris Brandon have been laid up last week with flu. We thank our lucky stars though that so far our sick have come through with flying colors . . . We don't like to meddle, but, Margie Reach, who was the nice young man walking home with you from B. Y. P. U. Sunday night? . . . Friday's downpour inconvenienced lots of people. Madge and Frances seemed to be having quite an aggravating time in front of the post office trying to start their car whic hhad taken a sudden notion to drown out . . . Crowder Maxwell, card roo mforeman, was seen heading for work about six o'clock looking very much like a drowned rat . . . And doubtless, many of our inhabitants retired with an empty feeling in the pit of their stomachs due to the fact that our delivery boys just wouldn't budge into such a deluge. . . We're bound to have a fire yet. The Robert Gardner's and the Travis Yohn's houses both caught last week but the fire was hurriedly extinguished. . . Lexie was an eyeful in gray, with red accessories at Church Sunday . . We hear that Lloyd Thorpe contemplated securing the service of a tub to float his red headed girl home from work last Friday night due to the high waters — practical idea we think. . . A familiar figure in the person of Frances Armstrong was seen in Siluria over the week end. She was down from Jasper to visit her sister Gertrude . . . We know no happier note on which to close our little column than that of old friends. We did not have the pleasure of seeing them but we hear that Professor and Mrs. Harmon were in Siluria for the week end, being the dinner guests o fthe Broome's on Sunday. You'll be hearing from us next week.

Yours 'til Basil Lower grows a mustache,

Nell and Nelle.

WEST CALERA NEWS

Miss Frances and Brother Johnson spent several days of last week in Birmingham visiting friends and relatives.

Mrs. J. W. Simpson and children spent Friday in Birmingham seeing friends and the Colleen Moore Doll House.

Mrs. George Anderson and children of Tarrant City were the guests of her daughter, Mrs. Andis Lucas last week.

Mrs. T. H. Brantley of Maylene, Mr. and Mrs. Brady Underwood and son Jr. Lee of Dogwood spent Sunday with Mrs. C. H. Mallard and family.

We regret that Mr. and Mrs. Bill Johnson are moving to Calera and Mr. and Mrs. Crumpton to Dry Valley but hope that they may like their new homes.

Mrs. Will Anderson is recovering after being ill for several days.

Mrs. F. F. Cost (Granny) is visiting her sister, Mrs. Daisy Crim in Calera.

Mrs. Beecher Findley and son Alton returned home Sunday after spending several days with her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hayes in Shelby Springs.

STATE TO GET AID FOR SCHOOL RELIEF

National Capitol prognosticators foresee early passage of the Black-Harrison bill providing federal grants for public education in all states. Under terms of the bill, an annual appropriation of $100,000,000 would be made available to be increased by $50,000,000 annually until an annual appropriation of $300,000,000 is reached.

Out of the fund, Alabama is scheduled to receive $2,509,319 the first year, $3,763,978 the second year and $7,523,957 the fifth year. Superintendent J. A. Keller has strongly endorsed the bill and has made frequent visits to Washington in its behalf.

ATTENTION

All Farmers and Domestic Workers are urged to attend the Farmers and Domestic Worker's Conferences at the Shelby County Training School on Friday and Saturday, March 26th and 27th.

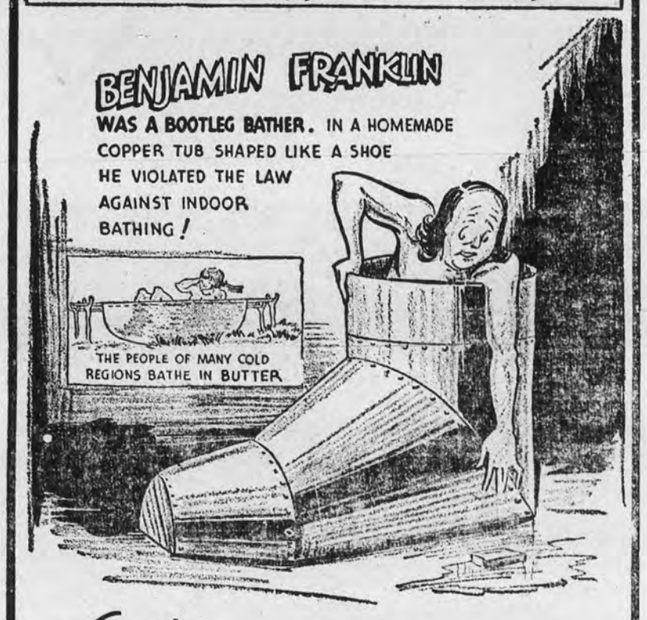
"and we averaged better than 25 MILES TO THE GALLON"

The new "60" Ford V-8 (illustrated) is the thriftiest car in all Ford history! Drive it all day on a tankful of gas—owners report 22 to 27 miles per gallon. And it carries the lowest Ford price in years.

Yet the new thrifty "60" V-8 is as big and roomy, as well engineered as the "85." You get the same all-steel body with safety glass throughout. The same new quietness and beauty. The same easy-acting, quick-stopping new Ford brakes. The same large luggage compartments.



And it's a real performer! Like most cars it bows a bit to the brilliant "85" Ford V-8 in pickup and top speed but you will be amazed at what it will do just the same. The thrifty "60" V-8 is a car you will own with pride and drive with pleasure. A car that will save you not just pennies but dollars! A car that's built so fine and priced so low you will have to drive it to believe it exists. Your Ford dealer invites you to drive this car yourself. Call him today.

Dietitian Offers Choice Menu for Easter Banquet

Aside from its religious significance, Easter Sunday has always marked actually as well as figuratively the end of a period of self-denial and fasting. Easter dinner, therefore, should usher back to the table some favorite foods that have been given up during lent.

One dietitian's idea of a perfect Easter Sunday dinner follows:

Chicken bouillion with sliced mushrooms, melba toast
Celery Olives Radish roses

Hind quarter of spring lamb
Potato balls
Broccoli with wine, butter sauce
Fresh lima beans, hot rolls

Molded cucumber salad
Toasted crackers
Fresh strawberry ice, served with or without whipped cream
Nut cake, demitasse

GASTON SCOTT AFTER U. S. ROAD MONEY

State Highway President Gaston Scott, who has been in Washington several weeks on state business feels confident that the bill now pending in Congress to appropriate $300,000,000 for road building to be distributed among the states during the next two years will pass. Alabama would receive $6,000,000 out of the fund.

Under the provisions of the proposed act, none of the money has to be matched by the states, and Alabama would receive $3,000,000 of the fund this year.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

April 1st may be APRIL FOOL'S DAY for some things but we are not fooling when we tell you that this is the date set for the County Wide 4-H Club Rally for boys and girls.

The Rally will be held at the Court House at Columbiana and will begin at 9:30 A. M.

The Program will include a devotional, songs, talks, stunts, a parade and possibly a free picture show. Every 4-H Club boy and girl of Shelby County is invited. Bring your lunch and be on time. We hope to make the program the most interesting ever in the hstory of 4-H Club Work.

CARD OF THANKS

Edward, Dr. and Mrs. Gould take this opportunity of expressing their heartfelt thanks to every single person who so quickly and unhesitatingly helped evacuate the burning building at the risk of injuring or burning themselves on the midday of March 16, when roaring flames razed the clinic in less than an hour.

Due to their fast work practically all of the costly equipment was saved with little or no injury or breakage.

Perhaps someday we shall be able to repay those whose generosity and hospitality were proffered again and again, making much easier the shock and confusion. Of such as these is the salt of the earth.

The Splendor of Lilies . . .

OH, rare as the splendor of lilies,
And sweet as the violet's breath,
Comes the jubilant morning of Easter,
The triumph of Life over Death;
And fresh from the earth's quickened bosom
Full baskets of flowers we bring,
And scatter their satin soft petals
To carpet a path for our King.

In the countless green blades of the meadow,
The sheen of the daffodil's gold,
In the tremulous blue on the mountains,
The opaline mist on the wold,
In the tinkle of brooks through the pasture,
The river's strong sweep to the sea,
Are signs of the day that is hasting
In gladness to you and to me!

Oh, dawn in thy splendor of lilies,
Thy fluttering violet breath,
Oh, jubilant morning of Easter,
Thou triumph of Life over Death!
Then fresh from the earth's quickened bosom
Full baskets of flowers we bring,
And scatter their satin soft petals
To carpet a path for our King!

EASTER - TIDE

A happy and a Joyous Easter to all of you! Again we approach the fact of the Ressurrection. Life triumphant over Death. We can no longer speak of a bourne from which no traveller e'er returns, but for forty centuries, in one unbroken column of years, the race of mankind marched hopelessly in the shadows. And of all the millions who had descended into the Valley of the Shadow, not one had returned. Not in the whole world's area lay an empty grave. No human heart believed. No human voice declared that there was such a grave. No one acknowledged a Victor more powerful than Death—until on one gloriously bright occasion, the Apostle communicated to the dying race of man these joyous words: "One human form has risen from the dead; one grave in earth is empty; the man Christ Jesus who was dead, is alive again". Thus, the Hopeful Dawn of a more resplendent life after death came to bless our pilgrimage. Had He not emerged from the depths of the tomb, all our hopes would be buried with him yea, even unto this day. The most glorious discovery of Christianity is—IMMORTALITY!

Tomb ,thou shalt not hold him longer;
Death is strong, but Life is stronger;
Stronger than the dark, the light;
Stronger than the wrong, the right;
Faith and Hope triumphant say,
"Christ will rise on Easter Day!"

May we wish for each of you a gloriously happy Easter—bright with the Faith and Hopefulness the season brings to all who BELIEVE in this historic Christian fact. It stands thru the ages on an impregnable foundation.

EASTER GREETINGS FROM "LADY"

To analyze a lovely flower or the heart of a friend, who is kind enough to remember us with them is much like attempting to explain Life, Love or Music. It is so much better to enjoy them than to attempt to under stand them. So, with a grateful heart we acknowledge a lovely floral gift from one with whom we always associate the beautiful things in life —Mrs. D. S. Lightcap, "Lady" to those who know her best and love her most. How radiant glows a vase of fragrant Spring cut flowers on our little work desk this morning! Another evidence of her kindness to us! The Easter Season becomes more beautiful on account of the generous spirit which prompted the lovely gift.

ODELL TURNER

Miss Odell Turner, popular teacher in Vincent, whom Columbiana happily claims as a resident, was receiving congratulations from her many friends on March 18th, as she chalked off another little milestone along her happy and useful pathway. We join a host of friends in wishing for her, all the happy and glorious things in life which she so richly deserves.

MRS. KENNETH GOULD

We had heard much about a certain little lady who, some months ago, came to reside in Alabama, and with her distinguished husband, Dr. Kenneth Gould, had won a wide circle of friends in Shelby County, but we had not had the good fortune to meet her until this past week, when Mrs. Gould and "Edward"—that adorable little "tyrant ruler" in their home, sauntered by the office for a friendly visit. We, delinquent though we may seem, are none the less sincere in extending our heartiest welcome to this most attractive trio of Goulds. We learn that Lady Gould is a finished Harpist—and as MUSIC lies closest to our hearts, we are eagerly anticipating an evening spent in Melody Land with the talented artist.

ZERA KING WALTON HONORED

One of the featured speakers at the recent meeting of the A. E. A. in Birmingham was our own Zera King Walton, Shelby County Supervisor of Schools, who addressed the State Supervisors and Teachers on last Thursday morning. The Educators of Alabama in appreciation and recognition of her ability and thorough knowledge of this phase of educational work, unanimously elected her President of the Group of Supervisors for the coming year. Miss Lela Wade Rice of Montevallo, was elected President of the Kindergarten Elementary group for 1937-38. Shelby County feels a keen pride in these two wise official elections.

Miss Mary Tom Goodwin and Mrs. Ed Lovelady spent Friday in Birmingham shopping.

JANE FOWLER

Many interested friends of Jane Fowler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Fowler of Columbiana, were delighted to read in the News Sunday further recognition of Miss Fowler's activities in Alabama College, where she holds such an enviable record both as a scholar and social leader. Miss Fowler is one of the two girls named, who hold the unparelleled record of making all "A's". She is also President of the Senior Class. Miss Fowler is, in addition to the above(unusually talented, having the rare gift accorded to a Piano-Accompanist—and also possesses a lovely Contralto Voice. Personal Mention joins the "folk back home" in wishing for her continued success and happiness.

GEORGE MASON

George Mason, former resident of Columbiana, now residing in Birmingham, was seen on Main Street Monday, in the midst of many old friends who so cordially welcomed him home again.

L. B. GREENE

A happily greeted guest in our office on Monday Morning, was Mr. L. B. Greene of Wilsonville, who renewed his allegiance to the Democrat and we are personally delighted to reserve his chair in the ever widening circle of readers of the Democrat each week.

FLOWERS.-MRS. BURL BRASHER

We are again indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Burl Brasher of Dunnavant, for a beautiful gift of Spring flowers which greeted us on our appearance in the newspaper office on Monday morning. Just how these golden blossoms brightened the day for us, only an adjective which we have never heard about could describe. We are so very grateful to these friends for their thoughtfulness of us. —Thanks a million!

MRS. L. H. CURLEE HOSTESS TO THE CULTURE CLUB

Mrs. L. H. Curlee was a charming hostess of the past week when she entertained the Columbiana Culture Club.

Easter flowers of yellow daffodils and white Iris were beautiful through the rooms.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. W. Stone, Vice-president, presided over the business meeting. The meeting was opened by all singing our club song, following this Mrs. Stone read the Collect For Womens Clubs by Mary Stewart.

Mrs. A. N. Bird gave a most interesting paper on Negro—Social and Economic Aspect. The absent members certainly missed a treat when they missed this program.

During the social hour the hostess served a delicious salad course and hot tea, on each plate was a tiny yellow biddie made of candy.

The club was glad to have Mrs. Mason Edward as a visitor.

The book "No Hero—This" by Deeping, was presented to the club.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. E. H. Childs April 1st. Mrs. E. W. Lovelady will give a review of the book "Gone With The Wind."

Heart Drifts

STEEPLY UP TOWARD CALVARY

Christ must have whistled in His younger days,
Sung to His favorite tools, and talked to them
Through happy hours when unborn dreams were like a haze
Across the hills beyond Jerusalem.
And, later, when the dreams were edged with flame
That crackled in the Temple, Christ must still Have loved returning roads that brought the same Old solid things to steady His young will.

For every dreamer challenges the dawn
With urgent faith to make an end of night;
Must find again, when night seems never gone,
New faith in patience, and a farther sight.
So Christ would touch remembered tools, and see
Days going steeply up toward Calvary.

COSMETIC INDEX

When my heart has met rebuff
I exercise a powder puff.
(Cream and rouge applied with art,
Can mask the cracks in any heart.)

But when you see my nose is shiny,
Then you know my cares are tiny.

I HAVE A FIRE

I have a fire, my songs and books ....
The wide wind and the sun,
And peace has come to me at last
Who thought that peace was done.
I have the sturdy hills to climb,
A ticking clock, a brook;
And dogwood's white along the paths
I used to overlook.

The armor of bright words, gay friends,
That were my shield so long
Against the dusk you didn't share
Are absent . . . I am strong.

Thus quietly I've come to feel
That few hearts break in two . . .
But what if I should see you smile
And find it isn't true?

PORTRAYAL

She wore a stunning gown of black,
A red hat tilted to the right;
A vision of young loveliness—
She dined and danced with him that night.

On leaving, as he placed her wrap
About her shoulders with great care,
His head bent till his lips caressed
A loosened wave of shining hair.

She did not know he visioned her
Clad in a morning frock of blue,
Where in a cozy breakfast nook,
They sat—while coffee perked for two!

The Spirit of Easter

Posed by Loretta Young.

In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

And behold, there was a great earthquake; for the angel of the Lord descended from Heaven and came and rolled back the stone from the door and sat upon it.

His countenance was like lightning and his raiment white as snow.

And for fear of him the keepers did shake and became as dead men.

And the angel answered and said unto the women: "Fear ye not; for I know ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.

"He is not here; for He is risen, as He said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay."—St. Matthew 28:1-6.

Pilgrimages Determined Easter Date

Easter was originally dated to suit the convenience of pilgrims who needed moonlight in their annual treks to Resurrection festivities.

Footsore and weary, they plodded both day and night to reach sacred shrines for this observance. Hence it was decided that Easter shall fall on the Sunday following the first Paschal full moon after March 21. The occasion may therefore vary over a period of 35 days—from March 22 to April 25.

Lent, great period of fasting in Christian churches, grew from a 40-hour to a 40-day ritual as it came down through the ages. While most Christians commemorate Good Friday as the day of the Crucifixion, Mohammedans also celebrate it as the day of Adam's creation. Among ancient Germans, this date was sacred to the goddess-mother, wife of Odin.

The association of Easter Sunday with the arrival of spring arises from a coincidence. The day occurs almost simultaneously with the ancient heathen Roman celebration of the vernal equinox.

Many customs have grown up around the Easter observance. In England, figs are always eaten on Palm Sunday to commemorate Zaccheus, the publican, who being "little of stature," climbed into a tree to see Jesus pass by the way through Jericho.

Easter eggs and "bunnies" are traditions among American children at this season of the year. In Germany, spring lambs are sold for the Easter feast.

At the Cross

Forty thousand persons annually climb to the summit of Mount Davidson in San Francisco to attend Easter sunrise service. Picture shows the crowd massed about the base of a huge cross atop the mountain.

Tradition Links Easter 'Bunny' With New Moon

Tradition abounds in the popular American customs that surround Easter eggs and "bunnies," familiar to every child who has been taught the occasion's significance.

The connection between Easter and the rabbit is said to come from the fact that the hare is a symbol for the moon, which determines the date of Easter. In Egyptian, the name of the hare also means "to open," hence the association of the hare with the opening of new life at spring festivals.

The egg is an obvious symbol of the spring awakening. The bright colors of painted eggs symbolize hues of the Easter sun and the joy which follows the whiteness of winter. In Germany, where both Easter rabbits and eggs originated, children are told that if they are good a white hare will steal down the chimney and hide brightly-colored eggs in the house. In many foreign places the Easter hare is as important a figure as Santa Claus at Christmas.

If young men in some English villages can catch a hare and present it to the parson before 10 a. m. on Easter Monday, the rector is bound by an old law to give them 100 eggs, a calf's head and a groat.

Egg rolling on the White House lawn, a popular Easter custom at Washington, began soon after the close of the Civil war. Originally the annual affair took place on the Capitol terrace. When authorities complained that children were harming the turf, President Hayes and his wife invited youngsters to do their egg-rolling on the White House lawn. The event has been annual ever since.

HERE'S a "Caterpillar" D4400 Diesel Engine powering a portable sawmill for P. W. Mulkey, near Roanoke, Ala. Estimated production 1000 bd. ft. per hour on 2 gallons of 10c fuel. This operator has ten million feet of timber in this tract.

Caterpillar Tractors are establishing new standards of efficiency in every step in the Logging Industry—building roads and firetrails, skidding, pan logging, powering sawmills and other equipment. Whether the operation is clean cutting or a judicious use of selective cutting or "high grading," "Caterpillar" Diesel Tractors are leading the way towards sustained yield operations—protecting the young growth by their ability to maneuver around these young stands —reducing fire hazards — reducing costs by their ability to operate on low price fuels. And these are just a few of the many uses of "Caterpillar" Tractors. On the farms, on the roads, in cotton gins and many other plants, and places you'll find the Caterpillar" saving money on the job.

Your "HOME SWEET HOME" on Rails...

How like home it is aboard the Railroad of Friendly Service!

Plump pillows. Soft, snow-white sheets. Cool, clean, fresh air. Your bedroom here is air-conditioned, of course—relax completely—let the smooth, gliding motion of the train lull you to sleep.

... and while you sleep, trained employees are alert to see that you will be carried comfortably and safely to your destination. Track workers, mechanics, dispatchers, trainmen—each of these has been selected because of his ability and experience—because of his special fitness for the task he has to do.

So you see, the L & N is much more than just a safe, comfortable means of transportation. It is an industry—giving employment to over 26,000 men and women and deserving the same consideration as other community-building industries.

PISTOLS SEIZED— RELICS OF CIVIL WAR

Rufus Simmons, grand son of the late Dr. Simmons, who practiced medicine for a number of years in the Harpersville vicinity, has been taken to task for carrying pistols without a permit. The two pistols which the writer viewed in the Sheriff's office on Monday, were the property of Dr. Simmons who was a member of the Calvary Division of Gen. Forrest of Civil War fame, and Mr. Simmons states he had them in his possession at the time of the arrest simply to exhibit them to some of his relatives. They are unique in design and are of the cap and ball variety.

C. M. T. C. TO BE HELD JULY 29TH 'TIL AUGUST 26

J. L. Appleton, County Superintendent of Education of Columbiana, heads this year's Shelby County Com mittee of public spirited residents who will assist young men to qualify for enrollment in the coming Citizens Military Training Camp to be held at Fort McClellan, Alabama, from July 29th to August 26th, 1937. Vacancies still exist in Shelby County.

Prompt action will be necessary to gain acceptance for the C. M. T. C, because of the large number of early applications being received by Army Headquarters at Fort McClellan. Young men of good character and sound physique, between 17 and 24 years o fage, who may be interested in attending this camp, should apply without delay to Mr. Appleton, or to the C. M. T. C. Officer, Fort McClellan, Ala.

All necessary expenses are paid by the Government ,including fare to camp and return, uniforms, wholesome food, athletic equipment, laundry service, and medical attention. One Scholarship will be awarded by the University of Alabama, with a possibility of one by Furman University, Greenville, South Carolina, to the boy or boys making the best showing while in attendance at this camp. No obligations for future military service is incurred by those attending these camps.

"BE A BOOSTER"

If you think your church the best,
Tell 'em so!
If you'd have it lead the rest,
Help it grow!
When there's anything to do,
Let them always count on you
You'll feel good when it is through,
Don't you know.

If you are used to giving knocks,
Change your style;
Throw bouquets instead of rocks
For awhile.
Boost your pastor and your church;
Knock the knocker off his perch;
Lift the stumbler from the lurch—
With a smile.

When a stranger from afar
Comes along,
Tell him who and what you are—
Make it strong.
Never flatter, never bluff,
Tell the truth, for that's enough.
Be a BOOSTER, that's the stuff,
Don't just belong.

WOMANLESS WEDDING BIG SUCCESS

The Womanless Wedding, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association of Wilsonville, proved the "hit of the season." The enthusiastic throng was literally packed into the auditorium with no more standing space available. Among the audience were prominent citizens from Columbiana, Harpersville, Chelsea, Childersburg, and all of the neighboring communities.

The applause was deafening as each character, in feminine apparel, made his appearance. And after the ceremony, when the entire cast was recalled to the stage, a popularity contest was conducted by L. B. Riddle of Columbiana. Each character was individually displayed and the applause, by which the most popular was to be determined, finally resulted in a tie for first place between Mr. R. R. Roberson, train bearer, in a charming frock of yellow and the "pep" of a sixteen year old flapper and the "petite" flower girls, Messrs W. H. Pope and C T. Weldon, who flaunted their charms and costumes before a wildly cheering audience.

The Parent Teacher Association wishes publicly t oexpress its appreciation and commendation to those who participated in making this entertainment the most successful of the season.

C. G. Sanderson and B. G. Rhodes of Tuskegee visited their families over the week end.

Crip McTyre's Easter Present

BY MILTON BIRD

Crip was a beggar on the corner of fifth street in Odeville. For forty years he had lived on this corner, selling his wares to the passersby, laughing with them, sharing at fleeting moments the joys and sorrows of their varied lives.

Toway was the Saturday before Easter, and out o fthe North the cold March wind whistled down the busy street, cutting through his clothes almost tempting him to seek refuge in his room two blocks away.

But still he waited, selling his trinkets, looking up and down the walk with a strange, expectant glow in his pale eyes: If the day were other than Saturday he might give in to the cold, sacrificing the few nickels and dimes he would lose by his absence, and leave; but not on this day. For, this was the day he looked forward to with the tiny bit of delight he got out o fhis whole existence. This was the day his star customer came to see him, buying some worthless object and leaving him a shiny new gold piece, sent, he believed by the gray haired man who waited at the curb in the back seat of a large black sedan.

While he waited, Crip began dreaming. Out of the past scenes of his youth tramped through his mind. Out there he could see a muddy battle field, and men charging, and he could hear the crys of the wounded and the roar of cannon. And then the cry of his comrade, with whom he had shared two years of war. And the rescue he had managed somehow, although the life of his friend had cost him his legs. And the hot room where they had taken him, giving him three weeks later a letter from the friend he had saved with an iron cross hung on the end of a tiny chain, that he was to wear throughout his life with the hope of someday meeting the giver again.

Idly he fumbled at the tiny cross, holding the chain in his fingers and then spinning it around his thumb. This unconscious act had come to be a habit with Crip, and his friends noticed it, saying among themselves that old Crip thought more of his iron cross than he did of theh nickels and dimes dropped into his lap each day by the passersby. But he paid no attention.

"Maybe if the yknew," he would whisper to himself, "what the cross meant the ywould understand." And he would go spinnig the chain around his thumb, glancing off into the distance with that far away look in his eyes.

Suddenly he looked up ,and across his face a light of supreme delight flashed triumphantly. A large black sedan had parked at the curb and a tiny girl was running to his corner, holding a package in her outstretched hand and laughing joyously.

"Annie," the old beggar cried, holding her close in his arms, and covering his wrinkled face with her long hair.

"Granddaddy says I can give you this for Easter," she said.

Crip accepted the package and reached through his bay o ftrinkets for a basket of tiny colored eggs. "And old bunny rabbit left these Easter eggs for you."

The girl laughed happily. Cuddled in his lap she began nibbling on the icing, "I like to come to see you." she said. "And granddaddy says I can come every day now. And that you can come out to our house to live maybe, if you want to."

The light in the beggar's eyes waned. "Would you like for me to,' he asked.

The soft little arms tightened around his neck. "Yes, very very much. And you will, wont you? 'Cause we want you to.'

"Maybe. After I have sold all the toys in my basket."

"You will, wont you?' she persisted. "Promise me you will or I wont go home."

"Yes, I will come next week, when I have sold my toys."

Happy, she kissed him goodbye. and disappeared out of sight inside the big sedan.

Crip held the tiny package in his hand for several minutes before he tore the wrapping off to see what was inside. When he did look inside the cover, he exhaled one long sigh of relief and crumpled up on the ground, unconscious of the strong arms that lifted hm into an ambulance that would take him to a nearby hospital. On the soft linen of the cot he seemed out of place, and looking at him, the attendant said to his helper, "What has he got in his hands?"

The helper seeing two tiny chains hanging from his closed hands forced his fingers apart and took the two articles fro mhis grip.

"What are they?" he asked, holding them up for the other to see.

"Just two ordinary iron crosses," the attendant said, "just alike, except one seems to be a lot older than the other."

SHELBY COUNTY TEACHERS MET IN LAST SESSION

Registered in Chancery 7-3-36

The last meeting of the Shelby County Teachers for the 1936-37 school term was held at the County High School Saturday morning. Supt. Appleton announced to the group that Governor Graves had promised to pay educational appropriations in full this year and in that event elementary schools would be operated for seven months and high schools for nine months by the County Board of Education.

Mrs. Walton, elementary supervisor, stated to the teachers that, in spite of the first month of the term being devoted to finishing last years work, the work of the year was of such quality that teachers could promote a large proportion of the pupils at the end of the term.

During the morning a meeting of the county teachers organization was also held. During this meeting, by unanimous vote, a committee was instructed to write a letter to Hon. L. H. Ellis, Shelby County Legislator, commending him for his work for education during the recent special session of the Legislature. Officers for the next year were also elected. These were Miss Mary Peters, Columbiana, President; Mr. Fred Allen, Calera, Vice President, and E. H. Childs, J. N Castleberry, Miss Lorraine McLaughlin, Mrs. Myrtle Johnson, and Miss Mildred Meroney, members of the Board of Directors.

Final meetings of the extension classes were also held. One feautre of these was a demonstration by pupils of the Thompson High School of Siluria. Other demonstrations, reports, and tests concluded the work of the year for these groups.

WILSONVILLLE P. T. A. HAS BIG YEAR

The most pleasant and successful year's work of the Parent Teacher Association of Wilsonville is terminating this week and at the final meeting new officers are to be elected.

The wonderful spirit of cooperation of both members and community are due largely to the fine leadership of our President, Mrs. Young Johnson. She has capably and tirelessly directed us toward our goals with the ease and determination of a true leader. Her aims have become realities and her efforts rewarded with an alive, wide-awake organization which has accomplished many concrete, lasting benefits to our school.—(Reporter.)

L. H. Ellis Prominently Mentioned For Governor

High in the hierarchy of the legal profession and in political circles L. H. Ellis of Columbiana, has long been recognized. In reading many State papers which come to our desk each week, we have read with a feeling of pride, the gratifying comments made by statesmen regarding the colorful career of Mr. Ellis, as Shelby County's able representative. The Alabama Journal of March 25th, carried a most interesting account of Shelby County's distinguished citizen, and the Democrat takes the liberty of reprinting the article realizing that it carries County wide interest to Mr. Ellis' many friends in this section of the State.

REPRESENTATIVE L. H. ELLIS

Rep. L. H. Ellis, of Shelby County, who earned the nickname, "pile driver," during the recent legislative session because of the successful way he put over the measures he sponsored, is a visitor to Montgomery this week. The "gentleman from Shelby", was the man of the hour in the house as far as the administration was concerned and friends credit his ability to keep a cool head with a great part of his success. He never let an opponent make him mad ,or raise his voice above the normal pitch, and if he ever made a dogmatic statement nobody ever noticed it. He would say, "Now that's the way I see this thing, I could be wrong about it, but I don't think so. If I'm wrong, I wish somebody would correct me." Of course everybody knew he probably had very, very deep convictions about the matter, and had given it a whole lot of study but his refusal to appear so sure of himself is believed to have won many a vote for his side.

Lighter Things

Now that the legislative session is over, however, and the outstanding Columbiana, Ala., attorney sometimes known as "Handy", has emerged with practically, if not actually, everything he wanted, his mind has turned to lighter things. The other night he revealed to friends that he had just been able to resume a pastime that appears to be just as close to his heart as a legislative bill. It's coon hunting. Across streams and over mountains he wandered Saturday night following his hounds in quest of game, and must have travelled sixty miles, all afoot, he says, before getting back the next day. Two creeks were crossed, and as he recounted the story, a friend interrupted, "You mean you swam them?" "Why sure, there was no other way to get acrosss." Mr. Ellis has 20 'coon hounds, and except on those occasions when business won't permit, he makes it a practice to take them out for a hunt every Saturday night.

Mentioned For Governor

The Shelby County representative has been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor and if he does others who are eyeing this place had better take a census of the 'coon hunting voters of Alabama before deciding to throw their hat in the ring, because, as the leading, if not the only real, 'coon hunter on the eligible list, he would be sure to get this vote in a block. Mr. Ellis never has acted like prospective candidates are supposed to act but perhaps the people would like to try a new type. He never votes against all tax bills and for all appropriation bills like most of them think they've got t odo to get elected to something else Most of them vote against the tax bills, but with an abiding faith and trust that they'll pass by "George's" help, then they can dive in and help spend the money raised. Shelby County folks came down to the capitol and said they'd have to work on the boys from other counties; that they threatened Mr. Ellis with defeat when he ran for something again, but that he told them he didn't want anything else.

This morning we awoke to find that the Madam had all our clothes neatly arranged in the wrong bureau drawers and closets—a sure sign that Spring is here at last.

It Might Have Happened Here

Enclosed by a heavy black border on the front page of the St. Clair Times is ane ditorial on a highway accident which claimed the lives of Charles Polk 13, and Charles Mitchell 12—St. Clair's first victims of "Sudden Death."

That editorial is a warming not only to the people of St. Clair County but t oevery parent and to everyone who drives a car. To get the full benefit of it,change the scene to Shelby County and substitute the names of two children you know in the following account of another horrible tragedy:

"The school mates of Charles Polk and Charles Mitchell this week stared pitifully at two vacant desks. Two chairs were empty at Sunday School. Two homes were saddened. Two lives have been snuffed out just as they were maturing into young manhood, filled with possibilities of great service.

Saturday afternoon these two lads were riding home on the rear ofa wagon, having just left Pell City. They were laughing, having fun, swinging their legs over the back board as boys are wont to do.

Suddenly they looked up and stark terror erased th esmiles from their faces. A heavy county school bus, loaded with negroes was almost on top of them. It smashed into the rear of the wagon with a grinding and snarling momentum which threw the braying mules, screaming children and stunned driver into a culvert. The boys' lifeless bodies, bloody, mutilated, torn and mangled almost beyond recognition, were picked up by the roadside.

Could this tragedy have been avoided? Were the brakes on this St. Clair County school bus in good condition? Is that bus (as well as all county school buses) inspected by trained mechanics at regular intervals? Was the driver of this bus a competent adult operator? Are all the county's bus drivers subjected to mental and physical examinations as well as driving tests? Is there any justification for these deaths? Is there going to be a full and thorough investigation

Bear in mind: Two saddened homes. Two empty school desks. Two vacant seats in Sunday School. Two freshly covered graves in the Freewell Cemetery.

Sudden Death! It has no favorites. Mr. School Patron, your child may be next.

Who knows?"—St. Clair Times.

"I Am The Farmer"

The farmer himself often does not stop to think just what an important part he plays in the life of the people about him, how essential his occupation really is. The urban dweller, however, isnot unmindful of his debt to the farmer, and often gives voice to his sentiments. The following by James P. McDonald, editor of the State Tribune at Waverly, Michigan, sums up the case pretty well in the following words:

"I am the provider for all mankind—upon me every human being constantly depends. A world itself it builded upon my toil, my products, my honesty.

"Because of my industry, my country, America, leads the world. Her prosperity is maintained by me; her great commerce is the work of my good hand; her balance of trade springs from the furrows of my farm.

"My reaper brings food for today; my plow holds promise for tomorrow.

"In war I am absolute; in peace I am indispensable—my country's surest defense and constant reliance

"I am the very soul of America, the hope of a race, the balance-wheel of civilization.

"When I prosper, men are happy; when I fail, all the world suffers.

"I live with Nature, walk in the green fields under the golden sunlight, out in the great alone where brains and brawn and toil supply mankind's primary need. And I try to do my part to carry out the great plan of God.

Even the birds are my companions; they greet me with a symphony at the new day's dawn and chum with me 'til evening prayer is said.

"If it were not for me the treasures of the earth would remain securely locked, the granaries would be doomed speedily to extinction or decay.

Through me is produced the energy that maintains the spark of life.

"I rise with the early dawn and retire when the 'chores' of the world are done.

"I am your friend.

"I am the farmer."—The Times Standard.

APRIL

April is a dainty maid;
She dances on her toes,
And scatters purple violets
On every path she goes.

We extend our heartiest greetings to April—which brings all the promises of a vernal Springtime redolent with new life—and we say goodbye to March—blustery old fellow, with no regrets! While April is generally conceded to be a spring like month, sinister historic facts prove April to be quite a martial month. For instance, April this year brings us the 20th Anniversary of the World War; The American Revolution began on April 19,1775, with the Battle of Lexington. The War with Mexico got under way on April 24, 1846. The first shot in the Civil War was fired on April 12th, 1861; Lee surrendered and Lincoln was shot almost exactly four years later in April 1865. The War with Sprain began on April 21, 1898 ,and we got into war wth Imperial Germany on April 6, 1917.

Let's hope the jinx that makes April so momentous in America's tale o fwars, passes us by in 1937!

CAPTAIN JIM OAKLEY

We had the delightful pleasure of welcoming Captain Jim Oakley, of Ashby, in the Democrat offices on Thursday, and rarely, if ever, have we enjoyed the visit of so a distinguished a guest. A much beloved southern gentleman, chivalrous, courteous, thoughtful, and one of the most brilliant conversationalists we have had the opportunity to meet in many moons. A coterie of friendly admirers followed the Captain in his all too brief, visit with us last week, and here's personally hoping, he won't wait so long between—visits in the future.

ACKER-MONCRIEF

Of interest to a wide circle of friends in Columbiana, comes the announcement of the engagement of Myra Acker to Festus Roland Moncrie, of Birmingham, which was made by her mother, Mrs. Minnie Acker in Sunday's Birmingham News. Miss Acker is a former resident of Columbiana and has many friends here where she often visits in the home of her sister, Mrs. John Curlee.

YOUNG AMERICA VISITS DEMOCRAT OFFICE

On Thursday morning, just after we had released the Easter edition of the Democrat, we were happily surprised by a visit from Miss Gertrude Bishop and 37 of her "child progidies" from the Grammar School. After a thorough inspection of the presses ,the linotype and other mechanical appliances, the entire group of interesting 6 and 7 year old guests lifted their lovely little voices in a beautiful song about Spring flowers, and in their own sweet manner sang their way right into the hearts of all of us who are submerged in this blue black sea of printers ink. How refreshing and lovely these "fragile beginnings of a mighty end" seemed in the prosaic setting—yet how much brighter the day grew after they had honored us with a visit. Hurry back Kiddies—none are more sincerely welcomed in this journalistic emporium than little refreshing Y-O-U-!

C. E. AND MARY T GOODWIN

About the only travelling we do is a la post card route! This week we were the happy recipients of a post card from St. Petersburg, Florida, where our good friends C .E. and Mary Tom Goodwin are spending a vacation The many friends of Mr. Goodwin will be delighted to learn he is rapidly recuperating under the rays of the Florida sun, and will return to Columbiana, possibly next week

WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FRIEND

Swinging into the office one cold morning last week, we found to our utter consternation—an empty Coal Bin. Raising just about as much Cain as concentrated T. N. T. could, our commercial neighbor, T. D. Edgeworth came by to inquire the trouble —and then—just like in a story book and before we could say Jack Rabbit the coal bin was magically re-filled—a cozy fire was puffing, and all was quiet and calm on Main Street again. We, who hibernate in this section, deeply appreciate this popular Manager of the Yellow Front, who has, since coming to Columbiana, won many friends. Perhaps his thoughtfulness plays a large factor in the success he has richly merited. He certainly has our O. K. as well as our gratitude, for the above mentioned kindness, even if there was a gleam of humor in his blue optics when we thanked him and he remarked—"Anything on earth for a little peace on Main"—and after this cryptic remark, he was back on his job greeting a store filled with customers who had driven in to take advantage of this dependable market for merchandise and groceries.

W. L. CHRISTIAN

Legions of friends of Mr. W. L. Christian regret to learn of his illness at his home in Columbiana. That most treacherous of all maladies—FLU, is holding many victims this week in his relentless grasp.

MILDRED CURLEE

When the Federation of Women's Clubs meets in the City of Five Flags —Mobile—in April, the personnel of this worth while organization will be greatly enriched by the presence of Mildred Curlee, who will represent the Culture Club, Columbiana's aldest Literary Club. Mrs. Curlee leads a very busy and a useful life. In addition to personally looking after her very lovely apartment, which is so hospitably thrown open and shared with her many friends, she is President of the P. T. A in Columbiana, a member o fthe Young Matrons Class of the Methodist Church, Assistant Manager of the popular Cinema play house—the Roxy, and an untiring worker with the young people in their various social activities. The Culture Club will be creditably and capably represented by this petite brunette whether it be literary, social or a business meeting. We offer personal congratulations upon their wise choice.

MRS. PERRY DAVIS

Friends of Mrs. Perry Davis, whom many recall as a charming visitor from Columbus, Ohio, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F Davis, will regret to learn of her passing on last Friday. Mrs Davis, was the Mother of Elizabeth Davis ,who was a student in Shelby County High School for a year, and who was quite a popular addition to the school during her stay in the Southland.

"LOUISE AND DELILAH"

Columbiana will be creditably represented at The Beauty Culture School now is session in Birmingham by the popular beauticians—"Louise and Delilah"—from the Louise Beauty Salon. Since it has been decided that Beauty is cultivated and not inherited, you who seek to keep a well groomed appearance and are yearning to improve on your natural charms, might interview these young ladies when they return, and allow them to "practice the art" and give you that new hair cut or permanent best suited to your general facial contour—or, iron out a few crow's feet, or prescribe for the crepy neck or eyelids which have been worrying you. Whether you are sweet sixteen or are in the flatterng forties or fascinating fifties—these girls will be prepared to help you "face it."

DAVID MacKNIGHT

David MacKnight, son of Mrs. Lillie Mae MacKnight has returned from an interesting four years spent in Uncle Sam's Naval Department. We shall attempt to get Mr. MacKnight to write for us some articles regarding his travels during his stay in Columbiana.

ATTENTION!

We have received a telephone bill for which we are not responsible! It seems that some people have taken advantage of our office phone and used it for personal long distance calls of which we know nothing. You who have been guilty of this PLEASE come by the office and settle the bill. We have received an itemized statement from the Company, and do not feel that we should be held liable for the amount. We are, o fcourse, always delighted to throw open our offices to you—but cannot pay for your private conversations.

L. H. ELLIS

L. H. Ellis ,the human dynamo, after spending a few hours at home on Sunday, returned to Montgomery to complete work on some legal matters claiming his personal attention.

COLLEGIATES

Harris Milton Gordon of the University, Saranel Carter, Jane Fowler Charlie Verne Tinney, Margaret Ellis Jeanette Niven and Jean Letson of Alaabma College, are livening up Main Street this week as they spend Spring Holidays wit hrelatives and friends.

UP AND DOWN MAIN

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Reinhardt of Thorsby, were the Sunday guests of Mrs. J. C. Reinhardt.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Duke and sons spent the week end in Munford, the guests of Mr Duke's parents.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Nolen spent the week end in Alexander City, the guest of her parents.

Miss Edna Monroe of Selma spent the week end with her parents, Mr and Mrs. George Monroe.

Mrs. Ab Walton spent Saturday in Alabaster, Alabama.

Mr and Mrs. G. R McNeil, of Birmingham, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs J. B. Turner

Mrs. Clark Sturdivant spent the week end in Birmingham.

Mrs. George Holcombe spent last Thursday in Shelby, the guest of her parents.

Miss Ruth Luck and Harris Milton Gordon spent Saturday in Brmingham.

Misses Louise Thompson and Delilah Curry spent the first part of the week in Birmingham attending a beauty show.

Mr. Whit Finley of Birmingham spent the week end here with relatives.

J. B. Baker of Birmingham is the victim of flu at the home of his parents in Columbiana this week.

Mr. and Mrs Clarence Seale of Louisville, Kentucky, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Seale.

Mrs. Sadie Perryman and sons, Charles and James of Montgomery, spent the week end with Mr. Jim Finley.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Young had as their guests Sunday, Mr and Mrs. Henry Young and Mrs W. H Young of Birmingham.

Miss Clarice Evans of Birmingham spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Taylor

Dick Ozley of Siluria, spent several days this week in Columbiana.

Francis Leonard of Anniston, was the guest of his parents in Columbiana the first part of the week.

Miss Idell Turner continues ill at the home of her parents in Columbiana.

Mrs. Howard Holcombe has returned after a week's visit in Selma.

Miss Flora McGiboney, who is attending school in Tennessee, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McGiboney

Mrs. Joe Stone is visiting her parents in Thomasville, Alabama

Mr. Sammie Pate, Pearson West, Jack McGhee and J. B Turner, Jr., of Auburn, spent the week end at home.

Mr. Hershell Campbell of Gadsden spent last week with Mr. and Mrs J. L. Brand.

Miss Mae Will Atchison of Howard College, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Atchison.

Miss Alice Roberts spent the week end in Columbiana, the guest of her mother, Mrs. Edna Roberts.

Norman Lefkovits spent the week end in Birmingham. On Monday morning when he was to return to Columbiana, he discovered that during the night someone had side-swipped his new Oldsmobile and damaged the left side.

MARENE EDMONDSON

Marene Edmondson is one of the most energetic, tireless and talented people we know. Immediately after finishing Shelby County High School Miss Edmondson found employment in some of the important offices in the County as Secretary. She also took a course in Beauty Culture, which has enabled her to become an A No. 1 Operator. During the absence of the personnel of the Louise Thompson Beauty Salon this week, Miss Edmondson has been in charge. Monday was a busy day and her expert fingers artistically manipulated the complicated machinery necessarily used in giving Permanent Waves and chalked up four curly tops to her credit before the day closed. She, however, found time to report the local happenings for the Democrat, and we think all these activities require plenty more than the usual "one track" mind—and herewith hand it to MARENE for putting everything she attempts "over the top."

DR. J. B. PARHAM

There are many reasons for feeling a great pride in Columbiana citizenship, composed of outstanding business and professional men, but we feel that we have been richly blessed recently by the addition to the medical profession of Dr. J. B. Parham who a few weeks ago moved from Calhoun, Ga., and located in our midst. Dr. Parham has met with County wide success in his special line of work. Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat and we have heard many comments on his thorough knowledge of his chosen profession and those who have patronized him are loud in their praise of his excellent service rendered. Dr. Parham's offices are located in the Mitchell Building and he is subject to calls or office engagements at all times.

HOWARD WHITAKER AND LLOYD COLE

You have often heard of associating ideas, musical or personal, with other people. In other words, sometimes a melody will bring back one with whom the song is closely related You have seen many people whose names are linked so closely together in an unbreakable bond of friendship that it is impossible to think of one without thinking of the other. So, do Howard Whitaker and Lloyd Cole compose the one perfect partnership, combining courtesy, and keen business judgment, thereby making of their Drug Business the success it now enjoys. We heartily welcomed "Happy" Whitaker back in to the Cole Drug Company this week, after a few weeks sojourn in other commercial circles. Like Amos and Andy—Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean— and other partners—there was a certain something lacking while Howard was away—and we personally are delighted that he is back "home" again—stirring up your little FIZZIES and mine—and cordially "yelling" the store's cordial slogan—COME BACK TO SEE US! And if there is anybody in this man's town who hasn't gone back, time and again—we do not know where to look for them.

STOP! LOOK! AND LISTEN!

Did you realize that more people were killed in grade crossing accidents last year than in any year since 1931? There were 1786 Grade Crossing Cacualties—which, it must be conceded were due to unadorned CARELESSNESS!

MAC MESSER

Mac Messer, prominently identified with the produce markets, both buying and selling, for a number of years has purchased the M. & W. Cash Market from Howard Whitaker, and is now the sole owner and manager. Mr. Messer has had wide experience in the grocery and meat market business and plans to enlarge the stock of goods now carried and modernize the store. Fresh vegetables, groceries o fall kinds, fruits and selected meats will be available for the trade which this Company has maintained. The M. & W. is noted for its sanitary market—and its daily truck service to Birmingham assures customers fresh vegetables at all times. Call on them today for your culinary needs. We call your attention to Mr. Messers ad in this weeks edition of the Democrat.

SWING CLUB ORGANIZED

We have long deplored the fact that Columbiana had no Recreation Hall where community social affairs might be staged each week. However, members o fthe High School set in Columbiana this week organized a social club called the SWING CLUB, and High School Students over Shelby County will be asked to join. The Masonic Hall will be the setting for their first social event on next Saturday night, and plans are now being formulated for an interesting program of entertainment and wholesome recreation properly supervised. We are still hopeful of turning the Air Port into a Gymnasium so that indoor basket ball and other sports may be enjoyed by these energetic, wide-a-wake youngsters It would not cost much to place a hard wood floor on this building formerly contemplated as an Air Port and this work would be worthy of the attention of P. T. A. or American Legion activities—Exchange Club or other Civic organizations.

TENNIS CLUB ORGANIZED

A Tennis Club is now being organized under the leadership of Harold Harlin and Karl Harrison—two more energetic boosters of "pepping up" the summer months. And both movements have our sincere O. K. Everyone wants to "go places"—especially during the hectic summer months, and we are strong for some diversion other than rocking miles on the front porch! Let's get behind these two social clubs and foster the spirit of "get together". What do you think?

Mr. and Mrs. Ronda Pitts and little daughter, Barbara Anne of Birmingham, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pitts in Columbiana.

FRANK NORRIS

Friends of Frank Norris have been missing this decidedly distinctive individual from Main Street during the past week, while he was confined to his home on account of illness. Frank is the "Early Bird" of Columbiana, and we, here in the Democrat, have missed his interest in 'seeing and hearing things' that speak as news items in this weekly edition of ours. Hence, we were happy to welcome him back in our office for a bit of social chatter Wednesday morning, are are grateful for his kind comments regarding last week's issue.

Mr. O. P. Head of Montevallo and A. E. Norwood of Calera, were distinguished visitors we were privileged to welcome in the office on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis (Mabel Seales) of Gadsden, were guests in the Democrat office Wednesday.

It must make a quarter mad to have a token snuggling up to it.

Well, Dizzy Dean has signed up after saying he wouldn't, as everybody believed he would when he first started his sit down strike.

American mothers don't go on sit down strikes. After standing an their feet all day, they sit down at night to rest and darn a while

LIVE AND LEARN

"Live and Learn" is a slogan easily adapted to a newspaper office. For instance, Horace Polk, chief of newspaper printers learned this week that pouring gasoline on red coals in an iron stove would cause a spontaneous combustion that would knock the stove down plus the pipe, plus the creation of a dynamic explosion that threw the official force into pandemonium until the fire was extinguished. Horace was a bit pale after the experience—but so were we! However, Horace, still insists he merely poured the gasoline—and that the brilliant beau brummel—Powell Blair whose only set schedule is up in time to get the mail from Vincent—lit the match. Ho-Hum! What a life!

DOGWOOD TREES

Did you know that the Dogwood is a flower with an Easter tradition? While filling a basket of these first Spring blooms this week, a friend dropped by who brought us the interesting legend: We reprint it:

"At the time of the Crucifixion the dogwood attained the size of of forest trees. So strong was its wood that it was chosen for the timber of the Cross. To be used for such a cruel purpose greatly distressed the tree and Jesus nailed upon it sensed this and in His gentle pity for all sorrow said to it, "Because of your regret and pity for my suffering, I make you this promise: Never again shall the dogwood tree grow large enough to be used for a cross. Henceforth it shall be slender and bent and twisted and its blossom shall be in the form of a cross, two long petals and short ones, and on the outer edge of each petal there shall be nail prints brown with rust and stained with blood. And in the center of the blossom shall be a crown of thorns so that all who see it shall remember it was upon a dogwood treee that I was crucified, and this tree shall not be mutilated or destroyed but cherished and protected as a reminder of my agony and death upon the Cross."

Heart Drifts

FOR A VERY SMALL SON

How excellent and full of fine surprise,
This world so newly fashioned to your eyes,
Wherein all things are fair;
Even the art of walking, if you please,
Although you bump your nose and scratch yuor knees—
Zestful beyond compare!

This was the step you struggled to attain,
And fell, and briefly wept, and tried again.
So, clinging to my hand,
With round, pursed mouth nad earnest eyes, you rose,
Teetered a moment on your heels and toes,
And did trumph stand!

Ah little son, when you are grown a man,
(But still a child in the Eternal Plan Wherein all things are new,)
Should you essay a reach beyond younr length
Quick to uphold your childish, valiant strength,
God lend His hand to you!

—S. H. H.

REFUGE

All day I go where people are
And there are tasks to do;
And watching me, the curious think,
I have forgotten you.

Dear One, if they could see my heart
So lonely and so wide,
They'd understand sometimes a crowd
May be a place to hide.

(H. W. in Good Housekeeping.)

POET'S PRAYER

A song in my heart,
And a hole in my purse
May be a blessing—
Not a curse.

But a hole in my heart
And a purse-kept song—
God same from them
All life long.

—E. L.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS .CO., BIRMINGHAM, CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. R A. Caroland, Manager of Sherwin-Williams Company in Birmingham, is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat. They are located at 2016 3rd Avenue North and their store has recently been renovated on the outside and inside.

Their wall paper department is what impressed this writer. Under the supervision of Mr. N. L Johnson who has had years of wall paper experience, they are now prepared to offer you any kind of wall paper you may desire. Their designs are created by America's foremost artists such as Nancy McLelland, Lurelle Guild, Walter Darwin Teague and many others.

The wall paper designs carried here are exclusive an doriginal and the quality is of the highest—it is also washable and light fast.

If you are thinking of redecorating the interior of your home, be sure you pay Sherwin-Williams wall paper department a visit—you may rest assured you will find what you want here.

TOWN TALK SERVICE STATION AT HOMEWOOD IS ONE STOP STATION

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. "Spud" Fowler of the Town Talk Service Station is taking part in this Good Roads Edition of the Democrat.

For prompt, efficient and courteous service, this writer suggests that next time you go to Birmingham to stop at the Town Talk Service Station in Homewood.

Dispensing Standard Oil products, Mr. Fowler has built up an enviable volume of business and he has made hosts of friends by his fair treatment to everyone.

For washing and greasing your car Town Talk has the latest and most modern equipment and expert attendants so as to assure you of a first class job.

Town Talk Service Station is the last station on your left going to Birmingham in Homewood, so you can't miss it and next time stop by and see what real service station service is.

GUARANTEE AWNING AND TENT CO. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Messrs C. B. Todd and Geo. W. Hunnicutt, owners of the Guarantee Awning & Tent Company, are taking part in this edition.

This awning and tent firm has been in business over 38 years and during this time they have made hosts of friends in their fair and square business dealings They have many friends and customers throughout Shelby County.

It doesn't matter what kind of awning you may desire, you will find it here and at fair and reasonable prices. They also feature Venetian blinds and truck covers of all kinds. As a matter of fact, to sum it all up, the Guarantee Awning and Tent Co. is the logical place to buy your awnings, Venetian blinds or truck covers.

They are located at 100 North 24th Street. Their telephone number is 3-9471. Trade with them.

Norwood Beauty Shop Of Birmingham Is A Modern And Well Equipped Shop

The Norwood Beauty Shop located at 1527 North 23rd Street, is always willing to co-operate with Shelby County in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to our County and Mrs. Edna Ennis, the owner, is unselfishly taking part in this issue of the Democrat.

All of the operators here at this shop have had years of experience and there is no phase of beauty culture that they are not familiar with and it is these expert operators plus the modern equipment one will find here that is your assurance of beauty culture work that can't be beat.

This writer suggests that next time you are in Birmingham to pay the Norwood Beauty Shop a visit.

Abercrombie Roofing Company Has Been Established In Birmingham Since 1900

The Abercrombie Roofing Company was established in 1900 by Mr. J. R. Abercrombie who has now retired, but his son, R. C. Abercrombie, who has been associated with him since the first, is ac wproprietor and manager.

This progressive firm stands ready to co-operate with Shelby County at all times as they have made hosts of friends here by their fair and square business dealings. They have done lots o fwork in Shelby County and recently they installed the roof on Mrs. Wooley's apartment.

They are authorized dealers for the well known Carey roofing, Johns Manville and Flintkote roofing are three of which they are recognized as the best on the market.

While the Abercrombie Roofing Company can install any kind of composition roofing, they do recommend Asbestos roofing because it lasts a life time. It is fire proof, it is beautiful and it is the most economical roof in the long run as these concerns have proofs that there are now buildings which had asbestos roofs put on over 50 and 60 years ago.

They also have asbestos siding which carries the same life time guarantee.

If you are thinking of building, repairing or remodeling your home—consult Mr. Abercrombie. They are located at 2222 7th Avenue, South

The Woodall Institute Of Hair And Beauty Culture Recognized As .One .Of .The Leading Beauty Schools In South

This beauty school located at 205 1-2 North 21st Street, has over 20 years experience behind it and their six instructors are recognized as the best.

Mr. and Mrs O. W. Woodall, the owners, are always willing to co-operate with Shelby County and they have many friends throughout this entire section.

The Woodall Institute offers two courses—the fundamental course for $65.00 at $15.00 down and $3.00 per week or $50.00 cash, and they also have the entire and complete course for $100.00 or $85.00 cash; on time it is $25.00 down and $5.00 per week.

A graduate of Woodall's has no trouble in getting a position as their graduates are recognized all over the South as capable and thoroughly conversant with every phase of beauty culture.

This writer knows of no better way to become independent than to take a course here at Woodall's—as they ecure positions for every graduate.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

After casting about for some time we have at length hit upon the one word; the only word that will describe the Tom Thumb Wedding—ADORABLE. To the soft strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, bride's maids, Bettye Jeffery and Betty Ruth Butler in crisp lavendar dresses were ushered in by groomsmen, James Thompson and Redus Gregg to take positions on the prettily decorated stage and we held our breath while Betty sang "I love you truly" followed by Betty Ruth's vocal interpretation of "At Dawning" next came the groomsmen, Thomas Maxwell, Donald Lowery, and Elwood Jones followed by the other bridesmaids, Vivian Horton and Sherry Edwards in yellow and Nellie Faye Lowery and Bettye Jefferson in green, marching sedately up the aisle. We'll never forget Robbie Jean Grey and Syderia Edwards, diminutive flower girls in pink nor ring bearer, Paul Hawkins, carrying the ring in the heart of a lily. Jean Blankenship, maid of honor, was a picture in blue and finally down the aisle came Allen Hawkins, the father, with the tiny bride, Edna Earle Denham, on his arm. Ah! Edna Earle, you were precious in that white taffeta dress with the train and unless we miss our guess you'll break some man's heart some day with that blond hair and those dark blue eyes. Buck Duke, best man took his position the groom, Sonny Horton, stepped forward with a nonchalant air and the father gave the bride away. The minister, Jerry Vandiver intoned the ceremony in a truly convincing manner and it was all over only we wish you could have seen Donald Lowery proffer his arm to Syderia Edwards as they left the stage in order. Take it from us, kiddies, you were grand and your teacher, Miss Josephine Reed, deserves praise aplenty. . . . We don't have such an ear for music but while stroll ing down Buck Creek Avenue last Wednesday afternoon we heard music issuing from a certain house and we're of the opinion that Ruby and Doyle Cofer were pretty well together with that piano and slide trombone. . . If perchance your dog should have a fit and you should wish to have him tied just ask "Wop" Nolan to do it for you. You'll be glad to do it, won't you "Wop"?. . . . The absent minded professor we hear so much about couldn't hold a candle to Mr Simms. We are informed that he left work the other night in that awful down pour, proceeded quite a distance on his way, and upon second thought, returned to the mill for his umbrella which he had forgotten. . . . "Fisherman's Luck" is the continued report of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Roper who are frequent visitors to Long Pond on fishing sprees. . . Elizabeth Pope's latest weakness is flirting with a certain bashful boy . . . This old man called WINTER, just won't leave us alone . . . He caused some of our prettiest Easter frocks to be covered with those old winter coats. . . .Mannish suits with red accessories headed the parade. . . . We have never seen so many in all our lives. . . Zola Moore was the last word in smartness in a beige frock with brown trimmings. . . We think Margie Reach's hat was too cute for words. . . And did you see little Peggy Nell Peeples in that darling pink dress. . . And we must say that poke bonnets look grand on Thomasine and Johnny May Blankenship. . .Carlie Weller was home from school spending the Easter holidays with his mother and grandmother. . . Mrs. Phillips and son Fred, spent the week end with Mr Phillips, Fred seemed to be having a swell time in that new car of his . . . Speaking of cars, Willis Blankenship is now the proud possessor of a Model T. . . Doris Brandon returned home Saturday night after spending last week with her brother in the Magic City. . . And was she glad to get back, Doris says, "There's No Place Like Home." . . . We hear that the miscellaneous shower given Mrs Doyle Cofer Saturday by Mrs. Alpha Goff, and Mrs. Charlie Lee Mize was a grand success . . . Ruby got such lovely gifts and every one had a grand time . , , Elizabeth and Margaret were looking pretty Sunday with a new permanent. . . We hear that Clovis and Lexie dined at "Chucks" Saturday. That means you will have to work every day this week Clovis. . . We think we've written enough for this week, so we'll hang our close on this line.

UNDER THE COURTHOUSE DOME

M. W. W.

W. T. Black, who was convicted during the past Special term of the Circuit Court for the murder of Rush Reynolds, and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary, died this week after completing only one week of his sentence.

Judge Wales W. Wallace and Harold Harlin have returned to Columbiana, after completing the Civil week of Circuit Court in Rockford.

Judge Len C. Walker held a one day session of the County Court on Monday.

The Shelby County Board of Revenue was in business session all day Monday. All members present, and chairman J. M. Lyon presided.

Residents of Alabama's 43 dry counties may possess as much liquor, wine or beer as they want so long as the beverages are purchased in one of the 24 wet counties, Atty-Gen. A. A Carmichael has ruled.

The ruling was made in answer to inquiries from Sheriff E. Dick Burrows of Walker County and other law enforcement officers over the state.

No liquor may be manufactured or sold in dry counties, however.

Protests against tax assessments for property owners must be filed with the Board of Review before the last Monday in April.

The Town of Columbiana will finance the last month of the school term for pupils in the Grammar School.

HIGHWAY PATROL BEARING DOWN ON DRUNKEN DRIVERS

MONTGOMERY—Under strict orders to "bear down" on drunken drivers, the Alabama highway patrol made 211 arrests for that offense during March, compared to 128 during February.

The March report of the department, released by Chief Walter K. McAdory, showed 1,938 arrests for various offenses, an increase of 412 over the February total.

The department investigated 67 motor accidents in which nine persons were killed and 14 seriously injured during the month. Arrests for public drunkeness decreased from 48 the previous month to 44.

MACMURRAY AND LOMBARD IN THIRD FILM AT STRAND

Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray, the romantic team of "Hands Across the Table," and "A Princes Comes Across," are together again in "Swing High, Swing Low," a romance with music which opens on Sunday, April 11th at the Strand Theatre in Montevallo.

"Swing High, Swing Low," is the story of night club life in Panama and New York. Miss Lombard plays the role of an entertainer in a panama cabaret who makes a famous musician out of MacMurray, who has been very much on the loose in the canal port. This role gives Miss Lombard an opporunity to sing and dance, the first time she exhibits her talents in this line, and MacMurray plays the trumpet, also for the first time in pictures.

The cast also includes glamorous Dorothy Lamour ,the beauty who captivated America in her first screen appearance. "The Jungle Princess." She plays the role of "the other woman," with whom MacMurray falls in love. Miss Lamour, who was famous as a radio singer before her entry into pictures, also sings and dances in "Swing High, Swing Low." Charles Butterworth, Jean Dixon, Harvey Stephens and other well known feature players complete the cast.

We call your attention to the announcement of Yeager Horn, who has this week taken over the Managerial position of the Horn Service Station, formerly operated by Homer J. Walton.

Mr. Horn, has for a number of years, been identified with commercial activities in Columbiana, and formerly successfully operated this Standard Oil Station. The many patrons who use Standard Oil Products will be glad to know that Mr. Horn is again associated with this Company, and he has also engaged two expert mechanics, Luther Curlee and Louie Verchot, who are well known and thoroughly equipped to look after any automobile needs you may desire.

Drive by today and try the excellent service this filling station and aut oaccessory shop offers.

PUPILS OF SHELBY HIGH MADE TOUR SYLACAUGA MILL

The Sr. II Home Economics Class and the Jr. II Social Study Class visited the Cotton Mill in Sylacauga Wednesday, March 31. Those above sixteen were given an experienced guide to show them through the cotton mill. The others were shown over the mill grounds. Both groups visited the "Cotton Boll" ,an exhibit house and afterwards visited the quarry. Miss Mildred Meroney and Miss Elizabeth Bell accompanied the group.

The trip was the culmination of a study of cotton and textiles. It was climaxed by giving the information we received in a chapel program.

Record Breaking 4-H Club Rally Held In Columbiana April 1st

The largest Rally in the history of 4-H Club Work in Shelby County was held on April 1st in Columbiana. There was present 1100 4-H Club boys and girls and some 150 teachers bus drivers an dvisitors.

We regret that the court house and picture show were not large enough to accomodate the group so that they might be seated comfortably, however, in the future, plans shall be made to provide for the over flow.

At 9:30 the group assembled in the Court House which was attractively arranged with Crabbe Apple and Red Bud and the following program was rendered:

A most interesting program was rendered which included the following: 9:30, song, "America," roll call by clubs, devotional by Edna Chappell, 4-H Club Girl from Wilsonville, prayer by Bro. Jones, Pastor of Columbiana Baptist Church. Welcome by Mr. P. O. Luck of Columbiana, yell (in response to welcome by entire group), Solo by Sara Nell Stockdale, Calera 4-H Club Girl, talk by Miss Elizabeth DeLoney, State 4-H Club Agent for girls, talk by Mr. T. A. Simms, State 4-H Club Agent for boys, tap dance by Nell Seals of Columbiana, health stunt by 4-H Club boys, and girls of Columbiana, announcements, song, "Booster, Booster, Be A Booster."

At 12:00 o'clock the parade started in front of the court house and extended down Main Street and up in front of the jail and back. This was indeed a beautiful sight of 1100 boys and girls with banners indicating their various clubs with the 4-H Clu bcolors of green and white in their paper caps. The parade was led by local boys in the Columbiana Orchestra with drums, etc The parade ended by a march back to the court house grounds where each mem ber was served lemonade.

After lunch ,the picture show for the 4-H Club boys and girls was started at 12:30. Those who were not able to find seating space in the picture show were led in games nad stunts on the court house grounds by Miss Elizabeth DeLoney, State 4-H Club Agent.

We wish to take this opportunity to express to the County Superintendent of Education, the bus drivers of Shelby County, the school principals, the local club leaders and every person who appeared on the program for their co-operation in helping make the day a successful one We feel sure that every 4-H Club member enjoyed the day a great deal.

Veteran's 50,000 Word Novel Complete Without Use Of "E"

LOS ANGELES—A man out at the National Military Home has written a short novel, 50,110 words without using a single "e." the most used letter in English. He tied down the "e' bar on his typewriter.

Is the novel freakish or cryptic? No, it is an amazing smooth piece of work.

Instead of Gertrude Stein, it reads much like Samuel Pepys, or Dickens, or some of the Frenchmen.

The author is sharp-eyed Ernest Vincent Wright, 66, a musician in the World War, and a Massachusetts Institute of Hechnology graduate of '89.

To achieve his feat Wright had to avoid, for instance, such pronouns as them, they, he and she. He could not use verb past tenses such as wanted, etc. He changed the name of one character from Bob to Frank because some kibitzer suggested Bob's full name was Robert containing an "e."

These were only a few of his difficulties. To appreciate it, just try to write an intelligible paragraph without an "e."

The reporter craftily asked Wright for a snatch-grab at his manuscript. The random pluck brought out a page abou t16,000 words containing the following.

"Now, an approach to a young girls "big day" is not always just as that girl might wish. Small things bob up which at first loo kactually disastrous for a joyous occasion; and for Nancy and Frank just such a thing did bob up—for on May third a pouring rain and whistling winds put Branton Hills' spirits, way way low."

Wright is a white whiskered Bostonian, in appearance somewhat a composite of Walt Whitman and George Bernard Shaw. He said he wrote the story in five months. He undertook the task after reading somewhere a statement that the letter "e" occurs five times more than any other, and after seeing a four-stansa poem without an "e."

HEALTH PROTECTION FOR EVERY CHILD MAY DAY SLOGAN

MONTGOMERY—A letter has been sent to Alabama's 57 county health officers by Dr. B. F. Austin, director of the Bureau of Hygiene and Nursing of the State Department of Health, urging them to co-operate as fully as possible in plans for the nation-wide observance of Child Health Day, which is observed annually on May Day, which is May 1.

Dr. Austin was appointed chairman of the May Day-Child Helath Day program for Alabama by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, which sponsors the annual observance ,on the recommendation of Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer.

In his letter to county health officers, Dr. Austin requested them to confer with their local education and public welfare officials and others interested in the welfare of children.

The President of the United States was authorized, in a Congressional resolution adopted on May 18, 1928, to proclaim May Day as Child Health Day. The Children's Bureau has chosen as its 1937 Child Health Day Slogan "Health protection for every child" and is seeking to extend year round child-health services in every community, including those for physically handicapped children.

ASSOCIATIONAL BAPTIST TRAINING UNION MEETING

BANKERS ARRANGING REGIONAL MEETINGS

Studying New Legal and Economic Conditions Affecting Bank Management

STRESS PUBLIC RELATIONS

American Bankers Association Sponsor of Meetings as Part of Nationwide Program of Banking Development

PHILADELPHIA.—Fifteen hundred bankers from fifteen eastern states met here in January in a two day conference devoted to discussions on legislative, managerial, operating and public relations problems of the banking business. This was the first of a series of meetings planned by the American Bankers Association in its nationwide program of banking development under the leadership of Robert V. Fleming, president of the association. Similar conferences will be held in southern and western sections of the country.

"It is the purpose of these working conferences to bring to association members and other bankers a thorough knowledge of the changes in banking laws and rules, provide discussion of better public relations so that there shall be greater cooperation and understanding between the banker and his customers, and to give opportunity for a survey of the problems incident to the Government's competition with our chartered institutions," Mr. Fleming said in opening the meeting.

To Help Government Quit Banking

The discussions at the conference showed that the bankers are ready to make it easier for the Government to relinquish many of its emergency financial services as soon as possible by demonstrating how their institutions are able to render full banking facilities to the public on sound lines.

Bankers generally have recognized that in times of emergency the Government had to come to the assistance of the people where chartered institutions were unable to do so on account of such conditions, Mr. Fleming said. They also realize that possibly many functions which the Government is performing are of a nature which cannot be handled by chartered institutions under the principles of sound banking.

On the other hand, he said, "we should survey all emergency lending measures of the Government to judge which of these activities can be properly and soundly taken over by banks in their respective communities."

The attending bankers devoted time to considering the Banking Act of 1935 and the many related regulations and discretionary powers under the Federal law. These were explained by O. Howard Wolfe of Philadelphia, who said he had made a count of the various places in the act where provision is made for discretionary power to be exercised by government officials through regulations.

"Confining the count only to the sections which affect practically all of us, I found there are forty-eight places where discretionary power is given," he said. "It is a problem of no mean importance, therefore, to master banking law as it is today or may be tomorrow."

Bank Taxation and Solvency

Bank taxation was discussed by Charles H. Mylander of Columbus, Ohio, who declared that "the average American is vitally interested in taxation of banks because solvency may depend to a large degree upon the way in which the taxing power is exercised upon them."

To prove his point he cited earnings figures which showed that, in the year ended June 30, 1934, "for the United States as a whole, national banks used $14.89 out of each $100 of net operating earnings, before taxes, in payment of taxes; but in seven of the twelve Federal Reserve Districts the percentage of earnings used for taxes was above the average. It was in practically these same seven districts that the greatest number of bank failures occurred in those hectic years from 1920 to 1933."

As an example of how far taxation can go, he quoted official figures showing that in 1934 a large number of small state banks paid on the average $34.20 of every $100 of operating profits for taxes. Mr. Mylander urged that there be "brought home to the average American the self-evident truth that banks, dealing as they do only in intangible property, are not proper subjects for property taxation; that the true measure of a bank's ability to pay taxes is the earnings it can make."

WHEN BANK CROOKS SHOW PREFERENCES

The American Bankers Association reports that non-member banks suffer twice the percentage of burglaries and hold-up robberies as compared with members. Member banks display a sign showing that they receive the protection of the association's detective agents, who cause the arrest of from 150 to 400 bank crooks every year, the organization, which is a non-profit body, says.

"Professional criminals often boast of having sense enough to dodge the far-reaching system of man hunting available to members, so long as there are other banks without this protection," it says. "They recognize that once on the record of the Association's Protective Department, they must pay for every crime with which they can be identified. Detainer warrants have followed them from place to place so that penal servitude for one crime would not expiate other offenses."

BANKERS WILL MEET IN ANNUAL COUNCIL

Business Men Also Invited to Present Their Views on Services of Banks to the Public

WASHINGTON. D C. –Robert V Fleming, President American Bankers Association, has announced that the organization's annual convention will be held i San Francisco. September 21-24 and its program will call in not only bankers but speakers from various lines of business to present their viewpoints and advice.

The plans for the convention discussions take into consideration the fact, he said, that one of the major problems of banking today is to develop its operations along lines that will create greater public understanding of its methods and services.

"It is my earnest conviction that such public understanding of banking is not only an essential defense against attacks from whatever source. but is also requisite to reestablishing it upon a firm and satisfactory basis of profitable operations." Mr. Fleming said.

General Improvement Cited

"The improvement in general conditions which is now taking place should be of material aid to bankers in carrying forward a constructive program for increasingly useful relationships between banking and business as well as one of more helpful personal business services to all our people. Sound banking conducted in ways the public need and understand must be the aim of successful bank management.

"How can the banker make his operations and policies more understandable to the people of his community? How can better and broader financial services be soundly provided? How can banking improve its operating methods and income? These and many similar questions demand the earnest attention of all bankers. They call for a fresh counselling together and a new interchange of experience and advice among the members of our profession.

"With these thoughts in mind, we have built the convention program with the view of also calling into our councils speakers from various lines of business to give us their viewpoints and advice. I can say without reservation that this is to my mind one of the most crucial years in the evolution of American banking, and that we are passing through a period demanding, as never before, cooperation and mutual exchange of viewpoint among our members and others."

Radio Commencement Exercises

More than 200 widely separated chapters of the American Institute of Banking, the educational section of the American Bankers Association hold annually in September a simultaneous commencement exercise at which they listen to the speaker of the evening by radio. This is said to be the most extensive graduation ceremony held by any educational institution. The aggregate membership of the chapters, which are located in cities and towns throughout the United States, totals about 35,000 bank employees and officers. The graduates number each year more than 2,500, and total graduates are now over 25,000.

The Business Outlook

NEW YORK.—The natural forces of recovery have demonstrated their strength and have a momentum which may reasonably be expected to carry the country into new high ground, says 'Banking," the publication of the American Bankers Association, in its August issue. The momentary stimulation following the distribution of bonus funds to the veterans has practically died away and is no longer an important business factor. A certain degree of uncertainty arising from the national political campaign is unavoidable, the magazine says

Foreign Trade

The Commerce and Marine Commission of the American Bankers Association has made a report which shows that the foreign trade of the world for the year 1935 on the basis of its estimated physical volume was 78.9 per cent of the 1929 level This was 2.1 per cent above the volume of 1934 and is the highest since 1929 The gold values of world trade were much lower due to the lower commodity prices in January, 1936 The combined index of 75 countries showed 35.7 per cent of the 1929 average.

National Bank Growth

Comptroller of the Currency O'Connor announced recently that total deposits of the 5,374 national banks in the United States on June 30, 1936, the date of the last call made for statements of condition, aggregated $26,200,453,000. The figure is a new high record for national banks, exceeding by $1,340,998,000, or 5.39%, the amount reported as of March 4, 1936, the previous high record. The current figures show also that deposits increased $3,682,207,000 or 16.35%, over the amount reported as of June 29, 1935, the date of the corresponding call a year ago.

SONG

The words that you never will say to me
When the dusk is a dream of blue and gold
With the day's last light, and the white stars spill
All of the silver the sky can hold;

The songs that you never will sing to me
When the tall trees sigh and the shadows dart
Over the wall where the moonflowers are—
Oh, those are the SONGS that break my HEART.

BELIEF IN EACH OTHER

----is the foundation of the relationship between a bank and its customers.

The Bank, in accepting deposits from its customers also receives their confidence and trust. In granting loans to borrowers the bank expresses its own faith in their trustworthiness and business abilities.

The Columbiana Savings Bank in its community, therefore, is founded both on its confidence in customers and its sympathetic understanding of their aims and methods, and also on the confidence of its customers in its own business methods and policies.

This bank's loaning and investment practices, its facilities for protecting depositors funds, and its careful consideration of all loan applications have brought us the confidence and banking business of many people in the Community.

The County Paper

The Journalism department of the University of Southern California has been delving into the buying habits of newspaper readers and has made some valuable discoveries. Subscribers to the County paper buy from 12 to 21 per cent more merchandise from local stores than do non-subscribers. Of the people in neighboring rural or smaller communities, subscribers buy from advertisers from 9 to 35 per cent more merchandise than non-subscribers. This holds true, regardless of spending power.

The local newspaper, it is estimated, makes one of the largest, if not the largest contribution to volume o ftrade in the smaller cities of California, and doubtless in the other states. The relation of the newspaper to the business world is more vital today than at any time in the past decade. The investigators are convinced that retail business in the smaller communities would be from one-fifth to one-fourth below its present level without the push given it by newspaper advertising.

"In such economic conditions as we have today," says the report, "the local newspaper is an inestimable asset to the entire community. Not only is it a reservoir of local and national information, but through its ability to increase consumption of local goods, it stands out above any other institution in community-building value. It can also be verified that without such advertising merchandise in itself would be less dependable in quality and price, to say nothing of the effect upon trade ethics and practices. For without advertising, there is no opportunity of the comsumer to make comparisons of either goods or prices."

The local newspaper has to make quite a struggle against the big city competitor. If local citizens appreciated its value to them they would give it wholehearted support.—Troy Messenger.

Dim Your Lights!

Word that Chief Walter K. McAdory, of the state highway patrol, has issued orders for strict enforcement of the law requiring motorists to dim their headlights when meeting another car comes as welcome news to thousands of automobile drivers who have occasion to get out on the roads at night. Automotive engineers with safety in mind, hit upon the idea of "dimmers" years ago when night traffic was not as dense as it is today. For a time motorists seemed to take pride in dimming their lights as they approached one another, but in recent years there has been much less consideration along this line. "Courtesy of the road," in this respect has been sadly neglected. Less progress has been made by automotive and electrical engineers in the control of glaring headlights than in any other phase of these industries, but to make up for the deficit all modern cars are so equipped that the driver may cut down the glare when he meets another car if he so desires. There is a law requiring the inconsiderate to do so. And it is hoped that Chief McAdory and his men will enforce that law. Commercial trucks and busses as a rule obey the dimmer law because their owners and operators seem to realize more keenly the value of all safety measures. Owners of private cars are more negligent in this respect and should get in the habit of dimming their lights without the necessity of a reminder from the police.—Alabama Journal.

Bankheads On The Job

A dispatch from Washington recently stated that Senator John B. Bankhead had returned from Arizona to resume his duties in the Senate, looking bronzed and exuding energy. That is exceedingly good news to the senator's many friends in his home state, who regretted his illness at a time when he was in position to render great service to the Nation.

Senator Bankhead and his brother, W B. Bankhead Speaker of the House, have supported President Roosevelt and the Roosevelt Administration loyolly and rendered invaluable service to the Nation during a crisis in our national life that "tried men's souls," and it is gratifying news to know that they are both well again and able to discharge their duties in Congress. Alabama will be well represented as long as the Bankheads are in Congress.—Mountain Eagle

A Fire A Minute!

Don't leave small children alone at home!

Tragedy after tragedy has been recorded where an untended child has been either killed or disfigured for life by fire. A recent case is cited by the Industrial Commission of Wisconsin. A boy of four and his brother of six months were left in the same house when the parents went visiting. The boy pushed the baby buggy containing his brother too close to the heating stove. A blanket caught fire, and the infant was fatally burned.

Other accounts tell of fires started by children playing with matches. In still other incidents a stove door is opened or lids lifted off by the child and fires are started. Fatal results have often followed the pouring of kerosene on a fire by a child. All small children love to play with fire, and no precaution should be overlooked in restraining them.

Parents should immediately take two steps. First, never leave your children alone at home. Second, do the simple and inexpensive things necessary to the elimination of common fire hazards. All fireplaces should be screened. Clothes should be hung at a safe distance from pipes and stoves. All heating equipment and adjuncts should be periodically inspected and overhauled. Continous care should be taken in handling and storing inflammable liquids. Waste of all kinds, such as papers and rags, should be disposed of or stored in metal containers, The wiring of electric appliances should be checked occasionally—a frayed or twisted cord can cause short circuits followed by fire.

Every minute a fire breaks out in America. Two-thirds of all those fires occur in homes. Will your home be on that list this year—and will you and your family be subjected to a menace that may take life, due primarily to your own carlessness?

Screen Now

While the women are looking after the spring house cleaning, the men should remember that it is also time to make sure that the screens are in good condition Says The Progressive Farmer:

"There was a time when screens were considered luxuries. Not so today. Screens furnish protection against flies, mosquitoes, and other annoying insects that may spread disease. Recent studies made by public health officials show that farm families living in houses without screens spend year year for medicine and doctor bills more than the cost of placing screens on all doors and windows. Screens that are worn out or badly broken should be renewed. Get galvanized wire, which will more than pay the small extra cost in extra years of service. Where mosquito control is a problem, especially in the malaria sections, buy nothing less than 16-mesh wire".

Jim Farley, Democratic national chairman, was puzzled when he received a $1,000 check signed "Alfred M. Landon," as a contribution to the Roosevelt Victory Dinner on March 4. He soon discovered, however, that the check had not been signed by the G O. P. candidate, but by a practical joker.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

Here's the situation, folks, Nelle is away for a week and I, Nell, have just returned after being away for a week, so this news round up is something of a problem for this time but I'm game to try . . . In spite of all the poems, essays, articles and such like that have been written on the subject of spring, I would still like to say just one thing more: My idea of heaven is a place of eternal Spring (the pretty days of course.) . . . Now to get back down to earth—Gee, Sammy Guy, where did you get that cute puppy of yours? He's so chubby and he looks as though he would be splendid for cuddling. . . "Two by two", threesomes and even foursomes—well, everybody from the greatest to the smallest turned out Sunday afternoon to enjoy the sunshine. Let's see, there was Ella Ree Cost, Elizabeth Pope and some young man out kodaking; Tom Posey and Odell Carden were seen leisurely strolling down Buck Creek Avenue with a guitar for company; Ruth Howell was out with her tiny son, Stanley; Carlos Tilley and Earl Duke were looping the loop in that ford of Mr. Tilley's; Alvin and May Robinson came in from the country with a car load of spring blossoms; even the birds, butterflys, and bumble bees were paying afternoon calls and so on and so on. . . Are we losing out? Well, a number of our friends have moved away. Red Amos has taken his folks and gone to Alabama City to live Mrs. Earl Smith, nee Clara Terry, has deserted the home town for the Magic City where she will live with her sister. Here's luck to them in their new surroundings. . . . Anybody may get down but only the quitter stays down which is one way of saying each and all were glad to see Mable Black back at B. Y P. U. Sunday night. Hurry up, Mable, and throw them crutches away. . . Bill Blankenship ,are you just forgetful or do you deliberately break promises? Here's hopes for the best. . . It's great to know that Mrs. Duke is in our midst again after successfully undergoing an operation at Gorgas Hospital and the many friends of Mrs. Thorpe are anxiously awaiting her return from the same place. . . Ask Lexie who tried to steal her pencil in B Y. P. U. Sunday night. It was all a mistake, Lexie, honest. . . There's "the sweetest lil fellow" who lives down on Buck Creek Avenue. He is Ronny Langston and was he headed for the "Y" Sunday afternoon until his grand mother interrupted his progress. . . Elaine and Inell Booker were catching air Sunday afternoon in and around town and judging by the smiles they wore they were enjoying themselves immensely. . . Let me repeat, I've been away and if there are things that by every right ought to be given a place in this column and are not, I am sorry. Perhaps by next week we will be into the swing of things again.

Just,
Nell

DEMOCRAT -- 5th ANNIVERSARY

Today, April 8th, 1937, marks the passing of the fifth anniversary of the Shelby County Democrat, and it is with a keen sense of gratitude and appreciation on the part of the personnel of the official force, that we acknowledge the many kind letters, messages and thoughtful remembrances you have so lavishly bestowed upon us since we made the announcement last week of this coming happy event. We have conscientiously endeavored to give to the people of Shelby County a paper which would merit the confidence and the loyalty which has been unswervingly tendered us. For your interest, your personal encouragement and your patronage, we feel deeply grateful, and we dedicate our further journalistic activities to upholding the principals upon which the Democrat is founded, and to the meriting of your valuable cooperation in each undertaking we have sponsored, which has found such charitable commendation from friends and subscribers. Whatever success we have enjoyed, you are largely responsible. Our ambitious goal for 1937 is a DEMOCRAT in every home in Shelby County—and we ask your further assistance in helping us realize this goal of achievement.

We count it a happy privilege to continue to serve you and to foster your community interests. We trust the future years hold for each of you the happy realization of your most cherished dream.

Mrs. Lou Hoynes (Catherine Parker) and son, of Indianapolis, Indiana, are the guests of Mrs. W. A. Parker of Columbiana

LOUISE THOMPSON

Louise Thompson ,expert beautician, has just returned from several days sojourn in the Magic City where she received a Post Graduate certificate in Beauty Culture, and actively engaged in the participation of all lectures, Fashion Clinics, Advertising Clinic and Cosmetic Color Laboratory experiments. She is fully equipped to take care of all your requirement which make for a well groomed appearance, and we personally advise you to call at The Louise Beauty Salon for that new hair cut, or permanent so that you may confidently trip down Beauty Boulevard.

LENA MERRELL

The many friends of Lena Merrell, traveller de luxe, were busily engaged in extending cordial greetings back on Main Street on Tuesday. We personally acknowledge a thoughtful call in the newspaper office, and are eagerly anticipating hearing more about the fascinating Cuban expedition and the trip to Nassau. Mrs. Merrell states she enjoyed every minute filled to the brim with plenty of excitement, also admits that Columbiana looks good to her—and that she is delighted to be back again.

The many friends of Mrs. Mayme George are extending cordial greetings and a sincere welcome back in Columbiana, where she has been missed for the past few months while visiting Mr. and Mrs. Raymond George in Fairhope, Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Whittemore entertained Sunday the following guests: Mrs. Arthur Higdon, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Ray, Buddy and Emmett Ray, Mrs. E. F Ray, Mr and Mrs. J. W. Gardner, Miss Grace Gardner of Bessemer, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gardner of Montevallo and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Neil of Sylacauga

MRS. R B LUTHER

We are happy to acknowledge a call from our little London, England friend, Mrs. R B Luther, who spent Tuesday in Columbiana Mrs Luther is an interesting conversationalist, and has promised us the Coronation Edition of the London paper—which issue we are looking forward to reading Mr. Luther is in the Veteran's Hospital in Tuscaloosa, recuperating and we send sincere wishes for a speedy recovery.

COAST TO COAST

The Baptist W. M. U. of Vincent is sponsoring on April 16, a three act comedy—"Coast to Coast"—for the purpose of repainting and re-roofing the Baptist Church. There will be special musical numbers and many novelties offered during the evenings program, which will be staged in the High School Auditorium. An excellent cast has been chosen from the local talent, and a cordial invitation is extended everyone to be present. Time?—8 P. M., April 16th, 1937.

Friends of Mrs A. S. Liles deeply regret to learn of her illness at her home in Columbiana.

COLUMBIANA LEADER

The Columbiana Leader is offering to its many pleased customers the best hosiery buy we have seen in many moons. A brand new line, all silk and in any color you may want for only 69 cents. Mr Max has just received another shipment of this popular hose—and you had better hurry down before they are all "Walked off in."

COMPLAINTS

We are voicing the sentiments of many patrons of Uncle Sam's emporium in Columbiana, when we join in the chorus of petitioning speedier mail service from the Southern depot to the Columbiana Post Office. The day of the "horse and buggy' is past for U. S. Mail delivery, and having to wait an unreasonable length of time for the mail to be hauled in from the depot each day is getting on the nerves of busy people in Columbiana. Can't something be done about this? It IS 1937 you know!

And another COMPLAINT. The streets of Columbiana are in a deplorable condition. Holes are causing automobile springs to receive the jar of the century. A man sauntered in the office one rainy day last week, and declared he had just pulled a little child out of a mud hole in the middle of the road leading to his home, and thought it was a pretty lucky break for the Kiddie that he happened along. When he arrived, "only it's toes were visible". Better look into this—whoever is supposed to look after tht "jolts" that knock the fun out of automobiling!

THE MAIL BAG

We acknowledge gratefully an interesting message from St. Petersburg, Florida, where our good friends Charlie and Mary Tom Goodwin are vacationing. They write us that fishing is fine and base ball games are holding the spotlight for amusement. Florida is getting entirely too popular with many residents of Columbiana. We are afraid they might forget to come home. However, as long as they do not forget to keep us posted, we shall take a chance on that "certain something" which inevitably draws a native of Shelby County—back for "keeps" no matter how transient the beauty of the scenery elsewhere—nor the good times we enjoy. We haven't met a single vacationist who was not "thrilled" to get back to little old Columbiana. In other words, they had rather 'rock' in Columbiana than 'reel' anywhere else.

INTEMPERANCE

A dear old clergyman was telling his congregation the effects of intemperance and said "I hope the time will soon arrive when all liquor will be poured into the river. Now let's sing Hymn No. 94." There was a flicker of amusement when they opened the hymn book and sang "Shall We Gather At The River?"

THE CULURE CLUB

Mrs. E. H. Childs was hostess on Thursday afternoon from 2:30 to 5 o'clock entertaining in her lovely home on Mildred Street.

A profusion of spring flowers were used throughout the rooms where the guests were entertained.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner by the president, who also, during the business session, appointed several committees for the ensuing year.

Mrs. John Curlee wa selected as a delegate from the club to attend the annual convention of Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs which meets in Mobile April 14, 15, 16.

The subject for the afternoon was a reiview of the book, Gone With the Wind, which was given thoroughly and beautifully by Mrs. W. E. Lovelady.

Visitors for the afternoon were Mrs. Bess Garner of Washington, D. C, who is a sister of Prof. Childs, Mrs. L. B. Riddle, Mrs J. W Jones and Mrs. L D. Cole

"I Am The Fox," by W. Van Etten was the book presented by the hostess to the club library.

A delicious salad course with Russian tea and cake was served to the visitors and 13 members.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Mims Roberts April 15th. Mrs. Knox Woolley, program leader.

—Reporter.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Riddle and sons were called to Goodwater Monday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Riddle's Aunt, Mrs. Mary Staples, who was also the sister of the late W. G. Brown. She was the last member of this pioneer family of Goodwater. A much beloved christian citizen.

NELL AND NELLE

The journalistic partnership from Siluria, under the caption of "Villige Chatter" continues to win favorable comment from subscribers in Shelby County. We are in receipt of a letter from an adjoining County which states "I do not know a single person in Siluria, but the clever way in which the Village Chatter is written makes me read every line of it." Congratulations to the Democrat and the personnel who have made it the most outstanding weekly in Alabama." We pass this comment on to our workers "Nell and Nelle."

HARRIS MILTON GORDON

Harris Milton Gordon, brilliant student at the University and son of Mayor and Mrs .Harry Gordon of Columbiana, continues to climb high the ladder of distinction at Alabama. The latest honor to crown the activities of Mr. Gordon since entering the University three years ago, is the election o fthis popular young man to the position of Secretary-Treasurer of the Student body by a lead of 425 votes over his his nearest opponent, Gene Thomley of Stockton. Congratulations fly across the miles to Mr. Gordon from his many friends in Shelby County who feel a keen sense of pride in his many successful achievements in the social, commercial, scholastic and executive life of the University.

MR. AND MRS. MAX LEFKOVITS CELEBRATE THEIR 37th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

We began our columns this week paying a tribute to the birthday anniversary of this weekly enterprise --and now it is our happy privilege to chronicle another joyous occasion when we join a host of friends in sending heartiest congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Max Lefkovits who will pass together another milestone of congenial comradeship when they celebrate their 37th wedding anniversary on April 22nd. May all that is gloriously bright and happy continue to bless these life long friends of ours better known as "Mr. Max and Miss Dottie," and Happy Landing thru all the years to be.

Heart Drifts

HE

O Woman, unbidden ,within me
Strong love for you has sprung!
But expression ,alas, is a difficult task
For my unaccustomed tongue.

But doubt not my love, my devotion;
Just trust me, and always try
To read what my tongue can't utter,
In the steadfast gleam of my eye.

If radio's slim fingers
Can pluck a melody
From night, and toss it over
Oceantinent or sea;
If the petaled white notes
Of a violin
Are blown across the mountains
Of the city's din;
If songs, life crimson roses,
Are culled from thin blue air—
Why should mortals wonder
If God hears prayer."
— E. R. F.

A POET'S HAT

When I was about as high as that
I saw a poet in his hat.
I often think he must have smiled
At such a solemn-gazing child.

But wasn't it a funny thing,
To get a sight of J. M. Synge
And notice nothing but his hat?
For life is often just like that.
—Selected.

A LITTLE PARABLE

I made the cross myself whose weight
Was later laid on me.
This thought is torture as I toil
Up life's steep Calvary.

I think mine own hands drove the nails!
I sang a merry song,
I chose the heaviest wood I had
To build it firm and strong.

If I had guessed—if I had dreamed
Its weight was meant for me,
I should have made a lighter cross
To bear up Calvary!
—A. R. A.

CONFESSION

I shall not always tend the fire
With pale, domestic grace,
Nor wear, four quarters of the year,
My best, compliant face.

Quite bravely I shall scrub the hearth
As shining as a bell,
And clip the vines,and stew the figs
And manage very well.

But I may let the tea things sit
To pen an ode or two
Because I see a leafless twig
With yellow breaking through.

And I may let the pudding burn
A dozen times a year.
But if you love me very much,
You will not mind, my dear.
—Hinkle

YESTERDAY—TOMORROW

If yesterday could be ,again, tomorrow,
Returning from the land of Used to be;
If we could look on every joy and sorrow,
Could glimpse again each face we used to see—
Would we make use of moments that wasted,
Would we fill empty hours with delight;
Would we taste of those joys that went untasted
And set each broken dream and ideal right?

If yesterday could come, again, to greet us,
Would we turn tears to smiles—or smiles to tears?
Would we be braver, letting anguish meet us,
The fears that we have known in other years?
Or would we shrink in utter pain and sorrow,
And turn our frightened faces quite away—
If yesterday could be, again, tomorrow,
If we might live, again, each yesterday!

INTERESTING PERSONALITIES

DAVID MacKNIGHT

If you happen to be walking along Main Street and see a tall and imposing figure, whom you remember WHEN he was a student in Shelby County High School, that is DAVID MacKNIGHT, son of Mrs. Lillie Mae MacKnight, who has just returned from South America and other points as an attache in the U. S Special Service Squadron, now based at Balboa, Canal Zone.

Shelby County citizens are doffing their hats with pride in another Columbiana boy who has scaled the heights since leaving Main Street. We prevailed upon Mr. MacKnight to relate some of the places he has visited and assure you he is a brilliant and interesting reconteur and that he has visited some superlatively interesting places, leading a roving, colorful life—but we shall let Mr. MacKnight talk a bit:

"Shortly after I finished High School in Columbiana in 1933, I enlisted at Macon, Georgia, as a private in the Marine Corps, and upon completion of training at Paris, Island, S. C., and the Sea School at Portsmouth, Va,, I was ordered to duty with the Marine detachment aboard the destroyer, Babbitt, then based in Key West, Florida. Since this time I have served aboard three other destroyers and at the Marine barracks Submarine Base, Coco Solo, Canal Zone and with the Marines at Norfolk, Navy Yard, Portsmouth, Va. Immediately after the expiration of my furlough, I have been ordered to report to the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida."

We pressed the young gentleman to relate for readers of the Democrat some o fthe outstanding events in his experiences on the high seas, and we found that while travelling with the Navy, he was detailed on two occasions as an honor guard for the President of the United States—Franklin Delano Roosevelt, if you please—first at Cape Hatien, Haiti, in July 1934, when taking the President of Haiti from Portan Prince on Roosevelt's visit to Haiti enroute to Hawaii, and the second at Jacksonville, Florida, in April, 1935, when Roosevelt was on a fishing trip which included the Bahama Island waters, and had the destroyer, Claxton, as convoy ship to Vincent Astor's Yacht Nourmahal. Astor had as another honored guest at this time, the Duke of Kent.

Mr. MacKnight was in Cuba during the recent trouble there until the repeal of the Platt Amendment in May 1934, thus removing all war ships of the United States out of Havana. However, during January, 1934, he saw the office of the President change hands four times while in Havana harbor. The destroyers in the squadron visited Mobile for Mardi Gras festival during that year, then proceeded to Panama to operate with submarines, followed by landing forces in the everglades of Florida.

Later in 1934, the squadron based in St. Petersburg, Fla., and held battle maneuvers at Egmont Key. Early in 1935, the squadron consisting of a cruiser, 7,500 tons and 1190 tons destroyers left the U. S. for the war games at Culebra, Puerto Rico, with the Training Squadron stopping a few days, after battle practices at Gonaives Bay, Haiti, at such ports as Ponce and San Juan, P. R. and St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. The Special Service Squadron then left for Balboa, Canal Zone, and has been based there since, only to operate with submarines and make good will cruises occasionally thru Central and South America and in British West Indies, promoting a better understanding between U .S. and Latin America republics.

It has been the good fortune of Mr. MacKnight to visit a majority of the capital cities in Central America and the two S. A. Capitals, operating on both the Atlantic and Pacific side with an estimated mileage of 75,000 miles. He has transited the Canal by water 9 times and also by land and air. However, he smilingly stated had he not soon left the tropics he would have turned "native."

Cordially does the Democrat welcome home another of Shelby County's distinguished citizens.

CHANGES URGED IN BANKING BILL

Business Men and Bankers Agree in Objecting to Political Control Over Banks.

AMENDMENTS ARE SUGGESTED

Political Domination of Federal Reserve Board Declared to Be Undesirable for Depositors as Well as Their Banks.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Business men and bankers alike who have appeared before committees of Congress to present views regarding the Banking Act of 1935 have found common cause for criticism in those provisions which they agree would create the means for undesirable political control over the Federal Reserve System and thereby over individual banks throughout the United States. They have made the point that this undesirable condition would affect depositors in banks even more than the banks themselves.

This view has been stressed in criticisms by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and the question of partisan control over banking was the central theme of a statement presented by R. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, who appeared before the Senate Sub-Committee on Banking and Currency hearings here. Mr. Hecht declared that his organization is actuated by a desire to be helpful to Congress "in enacting effective and workable banking legislation in the interests of all our people." He said in part:

"If it is finally decided that it is necessary to carry this legislation through at this session, we are strongly of the opinion that special care should be taken to keep our credit control and banking mechanism free from any sort of political considerations.

"In making this statement I do not wish to appear to question the propriety of the Government's exerting a certain amount of control over banking operations so far as they affect the nation's currency and general monetary policy. Nor do we object to broad powers of supervision over the operation of our banking institutions because of the semi-public responsibilities they carry. But when it comes to such matters as the granting of credit and the making of investments by our banks, these are questions of business policies that surely should not be under the sole control of a board so constituted as to be dependent upon partisan or political considerations under any administration.

The Basis of Sound Credit

"The real conditions that create the necessity for the expansion or contraction of credit arise from the needs of agriculture, industry and trade themselves, wholly independent of the administrative policies of the party which happens to be in power. We feel that the financial requirements of the nation's business constitute a continuing economic process that is not related to political changes. The fundamental principles of sound credit do not vary with variations in public thought. All experience teaches that the quality of credit is sound only so long as it is based purely on the requirements of sound business. It is not sound when any other considerations or motives enter into its composition.

The Banking Act would centralize in the Federal Reserve Board at Washington means aimed to control the supply of money in the country, which term includes the sum total of currency in circulation and demand deposits in the banks which become current through checks. The powers which it is proposed to give the Board are intended to enable it to influence the quantity of this deposit money through open market operations, the discount rate and reserve requirements.

The Need for Independence

"That is the reason why we are so strongly in favor of making the Federal Reserve Board a body of such independence and prestige that it would be definitely removed from all political thought, influence and dictation. Its members should be free to study and to act in accordance with the needs and conditions of agriculture, industry and trade. The policies of the board should have no reference to the politics or the changes in politics of the national administration.

"In our studies of the bank bill, we have been strongly impressed with the fact that it would set up a situation under, which the Federal Reserve Board and its policies might be subject to control from the political administration of the country. In saying this I do not charge that it is the intention of the present administration to bring about any undue control over the nation's banking mechanism. The point is that if the bill passed as now proposed, opportunity for control would be there for the use of the present or whatever future administration might be in power.

"Our criticisms of the bill are not aimed, therefore, at the motives of the present administration, but they are wholly impersonal and non-political and are aimed entirely at the basic principles involved."

WILSONVILLE P. T. A. HAS ELECTION OF NEW OFFICERS

The Parent Teacher Association of Wilsonville held a call meeting on Wednesday afternoon, March 1, to elect new officers for the coming year's work.

Miss Ida Edwards was elected as president, Mrs. Howard Reinhardt as vice president and Mrs. Embrew Weldon as secretary and treasurer.

The Association plans to send Miss Edwards to Birmingham as a delegate to the State P. T A. Convention which is to meet April 21-23

This was the final meeting of the organization for this school year. We are looking forward to the beginning of activities next fall and feel sure that the enthusiasm shown in the past will continue and increase so that we may help to make our school the very best possible.

NEW YORK, (Special).—Miss Liberty, of the statue in New York Harbor, is already playing in her newest role. An artist's impression of her graces the official seal of the New York World's Fair of 1939. Thus, from the vantage point of news columns, mail stickers and innumerable other decorated devices she carries the torch of invitation to every corner of the world and into every home in the United States.

WOULD PROTECT BANKING FIELD IN RURAL AREAS

American Bankers Association Announces Purpose to Combat Return of Excessive Number of Banks

CITES LAX CHARTER POLICIES IN THE PAST

Finds a Chief Cause of Bank Failures Was Too Many Banks—Existing Sound Banks Serving Communities Well

NEW YORK. — Existing sound banks, especially the small banks in the rural districts which are serving their communities well, should be protected from any return of the over-banked local conditions caused by former lax chartering policies, which were mainly to blame for the unfavorable failure record of the past, says the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association. This is brought out in a report covering an investigation by the commission of bank failures and public policies in chartering banks.

"The Commission's study gives an impressive revelation of how great a part mistaken public policies in the chartering of banks played in creating the unsound banking structure which finally collapsed with the Bank Holiday in March 1933," Robert V. Fleming, president of the association, says in a foreword.

"Over-production of banks, literally by thousands, over many years in the face of insistent warnings not only from bankers and others who recognized the danger, but even more so from the mounting records of bank failures themselves, is clearly shown to have constituted as a whole one of the greatest single economic errors in the history of the Nation."

A Recurrence Feared

He refers to fears of a recurrence of over-banking recently expressed by Federal banking authorities, to the powers given the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation by the provision of the Banking Act of 1935 over the admission of banks to membership in the insurance fund, to strengthened state laws and to the policies now being followed by both national and state supervisory authorities aimed to safeguard the nation against over-banking.

"But sound laws and conscientious officials are not of themselves always sufficient safeguard in any field of our complex national life unless they have the active support of public opinion," he adds. "It is the purpose of the American Bankers Association to aid in marshaling public opinion in support of both national and state supervisory authorities in their efforts to strengthen and protect the banking structure."

The Economic Policy Commission summarizes its findings in part as follows:

"The facts show a distinct causal relationship between the over-chartering of banks and the abnormal bank failure conditions that prevailed from 1920 to the bank holiday in 1933. It is desirable that studies be made on the basis of experience to develop standards governing the number of banks or the volume of bank capital which can be successfully operated.

"Such a study would embrace the question whether banking facilities can best be supplied to the rural districts by small unit banks or by branches from banks of substantial capital in larger centers. Existing sound banks, which are serving their communities well should be protected from any return of the over-banked local conditions caused in the past by lax chartering policies.

Banking Officials Queried

"An inquiry among state bank commissioners shows a preponderant opinion against increasing materially the number of banks, coupled with the fact that present laws give them sufficient discretion to prevent a repetition of the grave errors of the past.

"Under prevailing abnormal conditions, with the Federal Government extensively exercising loaning powers in competition with the banks, and with industry itself so largely supplied with funds as to render it to a great degree independent of normal bank borrowing, the banking structure even with its present reduced numbers, finds it difficult to support its existing capital investment and operating personnel.

"These are new factors, intensifying the need for highly prudent and restrictive chartering policies. We urge the retirement of the Federal Government from the banking business as rapidly as the return of normal business conditions warrant."

Conference on Banking

NEW YORK. — An eastern states conference on banking service will be held by the American Bankers Association in Philadelphia January 23 and 24 as a part of the organization's nationwide program on banking development, it has been announced.

Robert V. Fleming, president of the association, will preside over the meetings. It is stated that this conference will be the first of several to be held in various parts of the country presenting a program the details of which are now in the course of preparation.

The general topic of the conference will embrace the managerial, legislative and operative problems confronted by all classes of banks. An outstanding phase of the meetings will be the development of plans for promoting a general better public understanding in regard to bank functions and policies

On April 4, 5, and 6 the Alabama Conference of Social Work was held in Birmingham. Miss Bender, the director, and Mrs. Walburn, the community worker ,represented the County Department of Public Welfare. Miss Brooks and Mrs. Bruce, of the Alabama College Sociology Department and students from the Department were in attendance. Mrs. Homer Walton, School Supervisor, Judge Walker, and Mr. Luck, the County Solicitor, attended one of the evening sessions to hear Dr. Harrison A. Dobbs, Associate Professor of Social Work at the University of Chicago speak on "The Juvenile Court as a Child Welfare Resource." Miss Sally Smoke ,the School Attendance Worker, and Miss Elizabeth Merrill, the N. Y. A. Supervisor, also attended the conference

Miss Brooks, who is a veteran in the field of Social Work in Alabama, said, "It was a good conference." And others who attended were of the same mind. The experience of hearing and meeting persons who are national authorities in many phases of Social Work and of mingling with workers from other counties in the State was stimulating, the Shelby County delegation reported.

The outstanding speakers were Dr. Ernest A. Groves, of the University of North Carolina; Dr. Harrison A. Dobbs ,of the University of Chicago; Miss Carmelite Jarvier of the New Orlenas Schools; Dr. Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University; Miss Helen Fuller of the U S. Department of Justice; Miss Jane Hoey ,of the U. S. Social Security Board Miss Josephine Brown, of the Work Progress Administration; Mr. J. H. Aldridge, of the Tennessee Valley Authority; Mr. Wilbur Nolen, of the Federal Housing Administration; and Mr. R W. Hudgens, of the Rural Resettlement.

Residents of Shelby County will be interested to know that Miss Annie Louise Pruitt, former Director of the County Department of Public Welfare, served as first vice president of the conference.

Farmers who plant crops now for fall prices know what gambling is.

NEW TAXES TO AID TUBERCULOSIS WORK

MONTGOMERY — Receipts from recently imposed taxes will permit the state to assist in the maintenance of county and district tuberculosis on and after May 1, Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer, said recently.

Dr. Baker urged county authorities to take advantage of this financial assistance by constructing institutions for the treatment of tubercular patients,.

Tuberculosis ranks sixth in the state in the number of deaths it causes every year, he said.

CROP PLANNING IN RELATION TO COMPLIANCE

A. A. Lauderdale

It is necessary to measure and map farms under the Agricultural Conservation Program.

To make this program accurate and economical, it is necessary for farmers to plan their crops and plant in fields as nearly as possible.

If the cotton crop can be planted in as few fields as possible, instead of patches, it will make the work of measuring more accurate and cheaper, as well as being better for the farm, in general. The same thing applies to corn, hay, truck crops, and legume crops.

Let me urge every farmer to plan his crop very carefully, and I also want to assure him that we are going to do the best job possible in helping with compliance.

With warmer weather and soft moons you can expect the usual crop of June brides.

MRS. A. S. LILES, OF COLUMBIANA DIED LAST THURSDAY

Mrs. A. S. Liles, beloved citizen of Shelby County, aged 85 years, passed away at her home in Columbiana on Thursday, April 8th. Mrs Liles was a native of Dallas County, but moved to Columbiana in 1889, where she has since made her home.

Mrs. Liles was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and for a number of years active in religious circles in Columbiana. Funeral services were conducted from the Methodist Church on Friday afternoon, the Rev. Augustus J. Cox, Presbyterian Minister of Montevallo, assisted by the Rev. T. K. Roberts, f Coolumbiana, officiating.

Interment in Columbiana Cemetery Walton in charge.

Surviving Mrs. Liles are her husband, A. S. Liles ,and one daughter, Mrs Lillie Mae MacKnight, and three grand children, Hallett MacKnight of North Carolina, David MacKnight of Pensacola, Florida ,and Frank MacKnight of Columbiana.

The interest displayed in social security is especially impressive among those who think they would be eligible for some payments.

A Dream In The Flesh

BY MILTON BIRD

The night was Friday, June 12. Across the hills just outside of Cokeville the cool summer wind found its way into a large, unfinished airport where the younger set were giving a dance. The music was soft, and haunting, with now and then a beat of swift tumultous swingtime that added hilarity to the occasion.

From his place in the band, a large neatly-groomed youth got up and began singing. His voice drowned out the murmur of the dancers.

". . . you're so different . . . " came the words out of his throat and onto the tepid air.

The dancers looked up casually, listened, danced on rhythmatically. The singer, his song finished, announced the first no-break. Then he came down into the crowd and claimed the dance with a slight wisp of flowing silver who giggled ever so sweetly while settling into his embrace .

"Are you?" he asked.

"Are you?"

"What?"

She giggled for the tenth time. "I'll bite," she chirped, "what?"

"Different, darling. You know," he made a sort of emphatic gesture with his left hand, "out of the ordinary, will-o-the-wispish, caked with icing, bigger and better and beautifulier."

She looked up at him teasingly. "Like a rose maybe; or a steamship."

"An angel."

She laughed. He thought suddenly that it was the darndest laugh he had ever heard, then he began to like it, and in a moment he was laughing too. They danced near a door and went out.

"I've got something to tell you," he said, prompted by the warmth of her close to him.

"And I've got something to ask you.'"

"What?" he asked, looking down into her face.

"Your name," she laughed, "and I'll tell you mine."

"No, don't. It'll be more fun not knowing. Just sort o' starting from taw and not knowing where we're going."

She agreed and they went on with out talking, past the cars that were parked along the side of the building, and stopping under an oak tree several hundred feet away.

He said: "You remind me of some one I have wanted to meet for a long time. But never have. Because she's got too much dough."

"Who is she?"

He looked off listlessly. "Oh, just a dream. One of those things we always see yet never do either. You know."

She looked at him quickly. "I think you are foolish," she said. "Why don't you arrange to meet her. Maybe she would like to meet you too. Maybe you'd get along."

"And her with all that dough and me with a song. Don't be funny."

She took hold of his arm and squeezed it ever so slightly. "What would you do if you knew you would meet her tonight?'

"Baby, I'd just fight my way thru the throng."

Suddenly she seemed tired. "Maybe, she said wearily, "it's best for her to just stay a dream. You might not like her so well if she came in the flesh." She walked away from him and stood looking up at the stars.

"Irked?' he asked.

"No. Just a little tired. Shall we go back and dance."

He felt himself being led back into the room, against his will, and all the while wondering why he wasn't telling tihs girl what he was thinking, and what she had done to him in these few sort minutes, with her understanding, her friendliness, her laughter. But he remained silent and once inside she was snatched away from him while he went back to the band to sing the night away and watch for the lady with the dough.

Eleven o'clock came, and intermission. And after that tw osplendid hours of waltzes and foxtrots. Joe Estes got up from his seat and warbled chorus after chorus. But all the time he was thinking of the wisp of silver, and sursing himself fro letting the dream of some unseen woman run her out of his arms.

"Damn!" he mumbled between songs, puffing a cigarette absently. The music was getting monotonous, grating on his nerves. He wanted very much to run away from the music, the wisp of silver, and, particularly, from the dream that had caused this terrible restlessness in his heart.

His last song finished, he walked away wearily, stopping just outside the door in answer to a call from Bill Stewart.

"What's the matter, Joe,' Bill asked. "Did yourdream girl make a creep in favor of Jim Samson's packard?"

Joe looked at his friend dazedly. "What do y' mean, my dream girl?" He looked off disgustedly, hiding the look of disappointment in his eyes. "Why, that girl wouldn't hold Jane Evans a light."

Bill scratched his head dubiously. You mean you didn't know who that was in the silver dress?"

"I didn't ask her. I was thinking about Jane."

Then Bill began laughing. He laughed until he shook. "That lady, my dear Joseph, was the one and only Jane Evans, in the flesh, with all the trimmings and whatnots, so help me hannable!"

SOIL CONSERVATION PROGRAM

A. A. Lauderdale

The Soil Conservation Program is available to every farmer in Shelby County, but in order to receive the largest benefits offered, it is necessary to make out a Work Sheet covering the farm.

Work Sheets can be made any day at the office in Columbiana, but to make it more convenient for all, we are going to make another schedule for the various communities to make Work Sheets. These meetings will be announced in time for all who have not already made Work Sheets to do so.

Each producer should know how much cotton was planted and how many bales harvested on the farm in 1935 and 1936.

The Soil Conservation Program has the following purposes:

1. o adjust the supply of cotton and maintain a fair price.

2. To maintain an dbuild the soil.

Paymentsa re made for reducing 35 per cent of the cotton acreage, and for carrying out soil building practices. It is not necessary to reduce cotton to receive benefit payments for soil building.

This Program is improtant to every farmer in Shelby County, and we are here t ohelp you take advantage of the benefits offered; if you do not understand all of the program I want to urge you to meet us and let us help you.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

What a variety of dishes the weather man has served us this week. If perchance you saw a bedraggled bunch headed for their homes just at daylight Monday morning be not alarmed; it was only a number of our citizens returning from a storm pit dash. Whether or not it is gratifying to be disappointed in a case like that is hard to tell . . . Were you headed for a fire on that bicycle Friday afternoon Elizabeth Hinds . Take it from us, you were really sittin' on it . . . . Even Siluria, small and inconsequently as it may be, can boast a great name. Yes, we have a Milton, and even though he doesn't have the acclaim of the famous literary Milton, Milton Stone is just as welcome back among his friends as any man needs to be. . . It is provoking to be confined at any time, but in the light of these glorious spring days, our hearts go out in deepest sympathy to those who are sick and abed. Mr. Walter Horton sits in a chair and tweedles his thumbs all day long waiting for that leg of his which has earcyphilis to get well. . . If reports are correct, the home coming of Mrs. Thorpe from Gorgas hospital where she recently underwent an operation, has been delayed because of an infection of the incision. . . Little Sammy Guy is convalescing after an emergency appendicitis operation last week. . There's a bright little face absent among the kindergarten kiddies for Elwood Jones is waging a battle with Pneumonia. Success and recovery is what we wish you, Elwood . . . "Skittish" is undoubtedly the word for Lonnie Mauldings cat. Said cat took to the timber one evening upon the appearance of a neighbor and next morning Lonnie, having exhausted his powers of persuasion, secured the service of a ladder to bring Kitty down from his lofty perch. Tsk, tsk, kitty, surely that neighbor didn't look so frightful . . . Few of you grown ups could have been more apt than Sonny Horton in putting into words that feeling one gets upon suddenly dipping over one of those little rises (thrill hills) some call them, often encountered in the road, when he said, "Whew, it tickles my stomach." . . . Scattered over our village, like newly arrived birds, are flocks of happy children busily engaged at "play-like." The secret lies in the fact that Grammar School closed here last week . .. Geraldine Tucker, you presented such a convincing picture of a future big game hunter as you stalked through the woods Thursday with that shiny air rifle across your shoulder that we caught a vision of crouching tigers and charging elephants. . . Well,well what about that swanky new car parked alongside Troy and Evas place of abode? Evidently, Troy has succeeded in persuading Eva that what they need is a new car and we only hope he doesn't have to lengthen his garage as a result of his successful persuasion. . . Nell speaking: Nelle has returned home after spending a delightful week in Sylacauga with friends and relatives and you ought to hear her report that superswell time. Crippled or not crippled she still seems to be pretty good at roping new beaus for she brought her latest catch "Rip" Harris, home with her Sunday to spend the day. Lloyd Rasco came along too, to see Margaret Tilley. . . Five certain young ladies are all aflutter in contemplation of an event scheduled for the near future. Just wait and see. . . At the latter part of this writing we are pleased to say that Mrs. Thorpe has at last been allowed to come home from the hospital. . . Without more ado we'll "skedaddle" and hold our peace

'til next week,
Nell and Nelle.

WILTON NEWS

Mrs. Minnie Campbell and Mrs. B. B. Curry's guests from Hollywood, California are Mrs. Emma Bailey and Louie Bailey. These popular visitors from the "Land of Stardom" have legions of friends in the county who are glad to have them visit their former home.

Those wedding bells are "Breaking Up That Old Gang Of Mine' in our little town. Other members to leave our ranks recently were Miss Louise Nolen and Mitchell Youn gof Montevallo, who were married March 30th. May continued happiness, peace and prosperity pour out upon the happy young couple.

Two of our popular teachers, Misses Fannie Thomas and Mary Leonard Logan have returned to their homes after a successful year's work in the schools at Vincent and Prattville.

R. O. Calwell from the C. C. Camp at Wilson Dam, spent the week end with his family

Miss Nannie Pratt of Centerville, spent Sunday with Misses Mary Leonard and Jean Logan and J. P. Logan

Lance Hubbard of Montgomery, was at home for the week end.

Continued showers fall upon the brides here. After the program meeting of the W. M .U. Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. K. Hogan, Sr., a kitchen shower was presented to Mrs. M. R. Hogan Jr. From all indications that new home will be a good place to appease the appetite when all those pots and pans, etc., are utilized.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess to the following: Mesdames V. L. Hubbard, B. B. Curry E V. Waldrop, F .W. Bassett, Tony Franks, A. B. Canant, Mae Moreland J. M. Dennis, Lance Hubbard, Ada Pruitt and Misses Mary Sanders and Alice Nolen.

We can't think of tokens of affections now, it's tokens of afflictions. Necessities have become luxuries—and luxuries have become extinct.

We hate to be called squeakers,
We always longed for peace,
But the wheels that do the squeaking
Are the wheels that get the grease.

We don't want grease, but we want paved roads. We're choking with dust and being peltered with rocks, and we're going to squeak 'til something is done about it. Now, what are you going to do about it. We'll come again next week.

CERTAIN SIGNS

There's a wren in my throat
And it calls and it sings,
And my heart's a white flutter
Of mocking bird wings!

There's a robin thats bouncing
All over my brain,
And my heart's a warm mingle,
Of crocus and rain.

Oh, it's April that's got me,
I knew it by the trance
And the rainbows that break
And the puddles that dance.

Whimsical, changeable, lovable old April! It DOES get you—and you or rather WE ,find it hard to "stay put" in one place for long at a time. We long to go a gypsy-ing where the white dog wood tents are now spreading, and the red bud and violets are profusely flaunting their fragrant and colorful array of beauty. The call of the open road is for more insistent than the clackety clack clack of the press—yet—the wheels of industry must keep turning—and a sit down strike is not to be thought of in this busy, noisy newspaper office. So—here goes with another issue of the . . . . DEMOCRAT.

BRICKBATS

Last week we hurled a few verbal brick bats in several directons, and promptly got a rebound-of comments which assure us that the DEMOCRAT is being read—and that's some thing in this high geared age. No. 1. THE MAIL SERVICE from the Southern Depot to the Columbiana Post Office continues with slow and measured tread. Fact is, Sunday, a prominent man about town who sanctioned our move for speedier delivery, stated that the QUARDRUPED which jogs along the highway on week days and saunters in when all four legs get there—was parked at the corner where aforesaid animal is accustomed to turning in for lunch eon, and the mail was carted by MAN POWER from the corner on in to Uncle Sam's Emporium—thus delaying the one attraction on Main Street on Sunday—the MAIL BAG! Something should be done about this No excuse on earth for just JOGGING ALONG! We understand a petition has been signed and will be presented to the postal authorities for better mail service to this up and coming TOWN—and it is a much needed improvement! Here's hoping a larger allowance, sufficient to warrant the purchase of a truck will be given Mr. Owen by Uncle Sam.

BRICKBAT NO. 2

We are still harping on the lack of a TRAFFIC LIGHT on MAIN STREET—especially at Davis Corner "A Light Or A Life" may be the answer to this if something is not done about it.

BOUQUETS

NOW, for the good part, THANKS and DEEPEST GRATITUDE from a number of inhabitants of Columbiana to Henry Nichols, prominent member of the Town Council and to Will Page, director of civic Improvement. The mud holes we referred to in last weeks issue have all been refilled, and a tractor has made the rounds in the incorporated limits of the town, and BOY, it is great to sail along in your motor car minus a bump or a squeak from reluctant springs—which have long registered a SQUAWK when entering this picturesque little town we call HOME. The stranger within our gates may now enter and exit with out a jar to his feelings. In other words, he will feel that he is welcome to stay and that really we meant no harm by these BUMPS we had left open for him. A travelling man who is a subscriber to this paper, writes and thanks us for calling attention to this much needed repair work. To say that it HAS BEEN DONE is most gratifying, and we herewith tender our appreciation to the "powers that be" who were responsible for the speedy and efficient remedy expertly applied!

MAYOR HARRY GORDON BASEBALL ENTHUSIAST

Mayor Harry Gordon will lead a motor cade to the Magic City when Columbiana baseball fans join the procession that leads to Rickwood Park on next Friday afternoon, to witness the first game of the season Birmingham vs Memphis.

This game will be the first of the series and Mayor Gordon is Co-Chair man for the State of Alabama and is busily engaged in stirring up enthusiasm over this popular summer recreation. No wiser choice could have been made by the officials, for Mayor Gordon never misses a game—and a greater booster for the willow stick and the horse hide pellet would be hard to find.

MILDRED CURLEE

Mildred Curlee, energetic and capable representative of the Culture Club, left Tuesday night for Mobile, Alabama, where she will enjoy the programs offered by the Federated Clubs of Alabama.

MARY NELL WHITAKER

The corps of workers in the Yellow Front Store, as well as a large following of customers are missing Mary Nell Whitaker from her accustomed place in this popular trading center this week. Mrs. Whitaker has resigned for a few months vacation, and will be succeeded by Miss Florence McGiboney.

MRS. ARTHUR MILSTEAD

We happily welcome a new subscriber this week and an old friend—Mrs. Arthur Milstead, who is recuperating at present in the Norwood Hospital from a broken hip. Happily do we place her name on our roster of readers, and happier still de we come across the miles into the Land of Counterpane where the little sick a bed lady awaits the day when she can return to her home in Columbiana.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S CIRCLE

The B. W. C. held its regular monthly business meeting at the home of Mrs. L. B Riddle with Miss Hermoine Woolley as hostess on Monday afternoon, April 12th.

An inspiring Devotional was led by Miss Irene Bishop and prayer by Miss Eleanor Atchison.

Reports from the committees were given as follows:

Personal Service.....Mildred Meroney
Enlistment ..... Mary Woolley
Literature ..... Gertrude Bishop
White Cross ..... Vonzelle Goodwin

A quarterly report was given by Mrs. Katherine Curlee.

Plans were made for remembering several mothers on Mother's Day and the Circle voted to give a donation for helping to paper the Primary Sunday School Department at the Church.

A delicious ice course was served to 16 members and 1 visitor.

The next meeting will be held with Miss Mary George Burks with Hermoine Woolley in charge of the program.

FLOWERS

If you generous friends only knew how much brighter the hours grow, and how much more beautiful the prosaic office becomes when flowers come to lighten the tasks assigned, no words of mine would be necessary to express personal appreciation to those of you who have so kindly remembered us this week. To L. C. Abbott, Shelby County's Most Beloved Bachelor and FRIEND TO EVERYBODY—(One official who is never too busy to BE A FRIEND)—we proffer thanks for the first spring LILACS. To Mrs. Fay Miles Benton who brought us a perfectly glorious bunch of VIOLETS—favorite of all the flowers that grow—we send our deepest appreciation. For honeysuckle, dogwood, red bud and other wild flowers, we are indebted to the High School set—whose thoughtfulness of us made Tuesday a memorable occasion. We can only say — THANKS A MILLION FOR YOU—AND TO YOU.

HORACE POLK BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

This is Anniversary time again in the Democrat Office, and this time we are paying our tribute to one of our most most faithful and capable workers—HORACE POLK—who is racing by another milestone TODAY!

Three years ago, this young fellow walked in the office and announced he wanted to join forces with the Democrat. He was willing to work and wanted to learn the printing business. TODAY, this same young fellow now 17 years of age, has mastered the Job Printing, can run the Liontype in a pinch—and sets an ad to order quick as a wink. Powell Blair, under whose instruction he has worked for the past two years, thinks he has a brilliant future in this fascinating work, and we, here in the office, consider him INDISPENSABLE! We offer all our good wishes and "many happy returns of the day!"

Birthday wishes for all that's gloriously bright and happy were flying in Mildred Curlee's direction on Monday, as she chalked up another useful year of service to her home town—Columbiana.

CARLEEN EMBRY

Carleen Embry, pianist and director of music in the Vincent Consolidated School, will present her pupils April 23rd. The public is cordially in Piano Recital on Friday night, invited to attend this musical progrom offered.

Friends of Mrs. Arthur Milstead, regret to learn of her continued illness in Norwood Hospital. Mrs. Milstead had the misfortune to fall and break her hip last week, and the operation has been a serious and a pain ful one. We sincerely hope she will soon improve sufficiently to return to her home in Columbiana.

TERREE NALL COX

When Little Miss Fluffy Ruffles Terree Nall Cox, makes her dainty entrance in the Democrat office and smiles in her friendly greeting, there is n omore work in this shop until she leaves—for she is a favorite with the entire personnel. Universally be loved this little lady claims the attention of all the grown ups in town, and of course, the kiddies adore her. A personable babette, who is destined to cause many hearts to do a flip flop—about 16 years hence!

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS
Judge Wales W. Wallace, Teacher

Last Sunday morning brought the realization of an ambitious goal when the Men's Bible Class of the Columbiana Baptist Church, under the leadership of Judge W. W. Wallace, capably assisted by his Membership Committee, reported 51 present. This class began a little more than a year ago, has increased its membership from 19 members to 51. They have recently purchased a new piano, and the musical program each morning, consisting of a Men's Chorus, is an attractive feature preceeding the lecture series offered by Judge Wallace each week.

P. T. A. MEETING

The Columbiana P. T. A. held its regular meeting Tuesday night at the High School Auditorium. The President, Mrs. Curlee, presided. This being the last meeting of the year, the treasurer gave her annual report which was very commendable and proved that this year was a very successful one. The nominating committee submitted the following names for the next year.

Mrs. Tom Taylor ..... President
Mrs. ohn Curlee.....Vice-President
Mrs. Bolin Cooper ..... Secretary
Mrs. Luther Curlee ..... Treasurer

After the business session, Mrs. Curlee introduced the speaker for the evening, Miss Doris Bender. She gave a most interesting and enlightening discussion of the Shelby County Public Welfare. Her main subject being "The Dependent Child". Mrs. Joe Stone gave a vocal solo: "Just Awearying For You." The meeting then adjourned.

HENRY VANCE PAYS TRIBUTE TO COLUMBIANA'S MAYOR DE LUXE

Far famed columnist and my personal friend, Henry Vance, pays a glowing tribute to our MAYOR GORDON, and as we have much faith in HENNERY'S diagnosis of people and things, having travelled the radio trail with this gentleman—either preceeding or succeeding the famous team of Percy and Henry, for a number of years, we KNOW he KNOWS FOLK when he sees 'em. We do not however, agree that the Magic City should ADOPT the Lord Mayor — rather do we invite Sir Hennery Vance to lend his penpoint industry and his voluble and talented self to little Old Columbiana. WE ALSO KNOW A GOOD MAN WHEN WE SEE ONE. Happily do we reprint the following which appeared in Wednesday's issue of the S G. N. COAL BIN—'s CHOICE LUMP for the day sez we!

Harry Gordon, mayor of Columbiana, is working like a Trojan to help Birmingham win the Prexy Martin attendance trophy for opening day at Rickwood Friday. Some day I want to get in the Columbiana calaboose just to test Hizzoner, Hair-breadth Harry, out. I want to see how long it would take him to do a little nol prossing Or would he? I trust that man implicitly, and yet it might be just my luck to do a little plain and fancy languishing. Mr. Gordon is a great guy, and Birmingham ought to steal him away from Columbiana by adopting him.

Heart Drifts

JUST PASSING BY

The melting road was lonf and still
Before I came to the crest of a hill
And saw the lights of a farmhouse glow
Through pines that dropped their weight of snow.
I smelled the wood smoke clinging near
The shadowy roof, then drifting clear.
And I thought of wood still ranked in the shed,
Fragrant and dry, and of horses fed
In the musky barn, on clover hay
And corn, and of cattle sleeping away
The chilly night, but I thought still more
Of the cellar under the farmhouse floor—
The tang of apples in barrel and bin
And vegetables plump and still tucked in
Shelves, winking with berries and fruit inside,
And of jugs, cobwebbed and smelling of earth
That gurgle with ciders rustic mirth
And I thought of the smokehouse mellowed through
With hickory smoke, where hams show dew
Of flavor upon them, in ordered rows
Upon the beams, and, twitching the nose
With the most tantalizing scent of all
The russet bacon on pegs in the wall
No sound I heard but retreat of the snow
And wind in the boughs—but my heart sang low,
Through the damp chill night, a song's reply.
And I was warmed . . . just passing by.

TOGETHER

You and I by this lamp with these Few books shut out the world. Our knees
Touch almost in this little space.
But I am glad, I see your face.
The silences are long, but each
Hears the other without speech.
And in this simple scene there is
The essence of all subtleties,
The freedom from all fret and smart
The one srue sabbath of the heart.

The world—we cannot conquer it.
Nor change the mind of fools one whit
Here, here alone, do we create
Beauty and peace inviolate:
Here night by night and hour by hour
We build a high, impregnable tower
Whence may shine, now and again,
A light to light the feet of men
When they see the rays thereof:
And this is marriage, this is love.

—L. L.

WISDOM

This I say and this I know;
Love has seen the last of me.
Love's a trodden lane to woe,
Love's a path to misery.

This I knew and knew before,
This I tell you ,of my years:
Hide your heart, and lock your door.
Hell's afloat with lovers' tears.

Give your heart, and toss and moan:
What apretty fool you look!
I am sage, who sit alone:
Here's my wool and here's my book.

Look! a lad's a-waiting there,
Tall he is and bold and gay.
What the devil do I care
What I know, and what I say?

THE PAMPERED WOMAN

In her white curtained parlor,
Shut away from life,
She thinks herself her special saint
What dreams she of the strife.

That rends the consciousness of men
Who battle there below,
Who meet and fight with human wolves?
Who every hour go

In an arena just as real
As any in old Spain.
The wounds and blood are in their souls,
She can not see the stain.

In camlness she accepts the gifts
They bring at close of day,
And offers her cool rose-rouged lips
As bounteous, ample pay.

THE MASK

The other time I broke my heart
The mask I wore was gay,
As though it knew its need could not
Outlast the summer day.

But laughter passes easily
And this time I must wear
One strong enough to brave the days
That you will never share.

Longview-Saginaw Lime Works Is Most Decided Asset To Shelby County

Because they furnish employment to approximately 100 local men which means a community of approximately five hundred people; because they own property and pay taxes to our County and because they bring money here from other sections, Longview-Saginaw Lime Works is one of Shelby County's most decided assets.

This company was established in 1874 and is the oldest lime company in this entire seciton and whenever lime is mentioned almost anywhere, one naturally thinks of Longview Lime Products so firmly are they entrenched in the minds of the public.

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. Warren Lewis, vice president and general manager of this Company, is unselfishly taking part in the Progressive Shelby County edition of the Democrat.

They are manufacturers of structural, agricultural, chemical and industrial lime and their products are sold all over the southeast.

It is concerns like the Longview-Saginaw Lime Works that go to make a county or section progressive and this writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having this plant in their midst.

American Marble and Granite Company Of Sylacauga Best Equipped In This Section

If you desire the best of materials, the greatest satisfaction that money can buy, you can easily supply them to your present and future pleasure by the purchase of a monument or memorial from the American Marble and Granite Company of Sylacauga.

This Marble Company has been in business for several years and they have made many friends throughout Shelby County by their fair and square business dealings.

Mr. J. B. Hendryx, the owner, is always willing to take part in any project that will help Shelby County.

There are no shops in Birmingham or in the South that are better equipped than the American Marble and Granite Company and this writer congratulates the people of this section on having them located here.

Thompson Gin and Fertilizer Company Of Clanton, Does A Large Business

Mr. Hugh Thompson, who owns and operates the Thompson Gin and Fertilizer Company of Clanton, has been in business for several years and in this time he has built up a large volume of business by his fair and square business dealings.

He is dealer for Parkers fertilizers Armour fertilizers and several other leading brands which are recognized as the best on the market and this writer suggests that if you haven't bought your fertilizer to see Mr. Hugh Thompson before you buy.

He also operates one of the most modern and best equipped cotton gins in this entire section. These gins assure you of a bigger turnout, better sample and cleaner seed.

See the Thompson Gin and Fertilizer Company for your ftrilizer and cotton seed needs.

Brown Lumber Company Is A Most Decided Asset To Shelby County

The Brown Lumber Company have been operating in Shelby County since 1933 and during this time they have meant much to our county. They have paid out thousands and thousands of dollars to the farmers and land owners for timber, as they use all kinds.

They furnish employment to more local people than any other concern in Shelby County, employing approximately three hundred and fifty people who are Shelby County People.

Since they have been here in Shelby County they have proven that they are interested in the growth and development of the County and Mr. J. F. Barnes, the manager, here in Shelby County, is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

Their lumber is shipped to all sections of the country which in turn brings money into our county from other sections to be spent here for payrolls, taxes, equipment, etc.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having such an organization as the Brown Lumber Company operating in the County

MILLER FOUNDRY COMPANY ALWAYS CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, the Miller Foundry Company is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

The owners, Mr. William H. Miller and his son, Mr. Walter H. Miller, have been in business several years and during this time they have made hosts of friends throughout this entire section by their fair and square business dealings.

They manufacture Grey Iron and Semi Steel Castings of all kinds and due to the many years experience the owners have had as well as their experienced workmen plus their modern equipped plant they have built up an enviable volume of business.

They are located at 44th Street and 6th Avenue, North. Mail address is 4617 10th Avenue, North and their telephone number is 9-6648.

Newala Lime Works Is Most Decided Asset To Shelby County

The Newala Lime Works is one of Shelby County's most decided assets. They furnish steady employment to approximately thirty local men which means that over a hundred people are directly dependent upon this organization for a livelihood. They own property and pay taxes in Shelby County and through them money is brought to this section from other sections and is spent here for payrolls equipment, etc.

Mr. J. Hardy, the owner ,assisted by his son, John, are no strangers to the people of this section and both are well known and they have hosts of friends made by their fair treatment to everyone.

They stand ready at all times to lend their co-operation in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County and they are unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads booster edition of the Democrat.

It is men and concerns like these that make a community go forward and progress and this writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having Newala Lime Works in their midst.

J. R. MULLINS COMPANY. CLANTON CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. J. R. Mullins is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

This progressive firm was established by Mr. W. F. Mullins and his brother in 1889 then he went into business for himself in 1901. Mr. J. R. Mullins has been identified with the business from the start and he has made hosts of friends throughout this entire section by his fair and square business dealings.

Mr. Mullins is naturally interested in the growth and development of Shelby County as he is a tax payer of this county and recently he purchased the Mitchell property in Columbiana. He is also a stockholder in the Columbiana Savings Bank.

J. R. Mullins Company carry a complete line of general merchandise. They are dealers for Ox Brand and Armour Fertilizers as well as A A Sea Fowl, the latter has been being sold over 56 years by this concern. They also carry B. F. Avery & Son farm implements, farm hardware, Sherwin-Williams Paints, Shoes for the entire family, piece goods, clothing, in fact, anything in the general merchandise line will be found here at J .R. Mullins Company in Clanton at fair and square prices.

UpChurch Drug Company Of Clanton Established Over Thirty-Four Years

When the question is asked in Clanton, "Where is the best drug store?" The answer comes back in a hurry, Upchurch Drug Company.

Owned by Mr. E. E. Upchurch, who started in business over thirty-four years ago, has made hosts of friends throughout this entire section b yhis fair and square business dealings. He is always willing to co-operate with Shelby County in any project that is calculated to be of benefit to our County.

Besides being a modern and up to date drug store in every respect, Dr. Upchurch is also a licensed optometrist and has been fitting eye glasses since he first entered business.

Upchurch Drug Company in Clanton, a good place to meet your friends. They are located on the main corner of the town on the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway. You can't miss it and it is a real drug store.

George A. McCain Has Built Reputation For Fair And Square Business Dealings

Mr. Geo. A. McCain who is well known in Shelby County, and other surrounding counties, has been selling horses and mules for years and he has made hosts of friends by his fair treatment to everyone.

Every horse and mule that Mr. McCain sells is sold with a money back guarantee and this is one of the reasons that he is recognized as one of the leading horse and mule dealers in Alabama.

He also sells the well known Studebaker Wagons, this firm has been making wagons for over fifty years and are pioneers in the wagon field.

Mr. McCain has on hand a stable of horses and mules that it will pay you to see before you buy as well as a stock of Studebaker wagons and he can save you money on both.

Remember just as you go into Clanton ,his stables are on the right. Trade With Him.

Clanton Motors. Inc., Of Clanton Have Built Up Good Volume Of Business

Clanton Motors of Clanton, who are Ford dealers there, have been in business several years and during this time they have made many friends here in Shelby County.

Mr. T. J. Littlejohn ,the manager, is always ready to co-operate with Shelby County. Associated with this progressive firm are Warren W. Wingard and Skeet Ozley who are both well known in Shelby County.

Have you driven or ridden in the new 1937 Ford V-8? If not, take this writer's advice and go by Clanton Motors and let one of their salesmen show you the many new features that are found on Ford exclusively. Or, if you need a used car, we recommend those at Clanton Motors. They have some remarkable values and besides you can't go wrong when you buy a car, new or used, from Clanton Motors.

The Klinner Furniture Co

Of Clanton Boosts Shelby County For Good Roads And Anything Else Good It Wishes

The Klinner Furniture Company of Clanton and located diagonally across the street from Upchurch Drug Company, are always willing to cooperate with Shelby County in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to our county and they are unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

The Klinner Furniture Company serve the people of Shelby County and the surrounding section and they have made hosts of friends by their fair and square business dealings.

High grade and popular priced furniture will be found at the Klinner Furniture Company and their prices are fair and reasonable.

This newspaper has no hesitancy in recommending Klinner Furniture Company of Clanton to its readers. Trade with them.

The Modern Beauty Shop in Montevallo And Clanton Are Among The Best

Mrs. W. C. Robinson, owner of the Modern Beauty Shops in Clanton and Montevallo are rendering the people of this section a real service.

Mrs. Robinson also operates the only beauty school in this immediate section which in this writer's opinion is a decided asset as girls and ladies who want positions and who want to become independent can take a beauty course at the Modern Beauty School in Clanton under the direction of Mrs. Robinson.

The course only requires a few months, and no phase of beauty culture is overlooked and the prices are fair and reasonable. The ones who are at home doing nothing—or the ones who want to better themselves should write or go to see Mrs. Robinson at Clanton.

The Modern Beauty Shop in Montevallo, is in charge of expert beauticians who have had years of experience. So next time visit the Modern Beauty Shop in Montevallo.

Keystone Lime Works Have Been In Business In Shelby County 20 Years

Because they are progressive and public spirited because they want to see Shelby County go forward and progress, the Keystone Lime Works are unselfishly taking part in this Progressive Shelby County edition of the Democrat.

Keystone, since they have been in Shelby County, have meant much to the economic life of this section. They furnish steady employment to approximately 85 local people, they own property and pay taxes and they ship their product to all parts of the country which in turn brings money into Shelby County from other sections and is spent here for payrolls, taxes, equipment, etc. Keystone is beyond a doubt ,one of Shelby County's most decided assets.

The owners W. Virgil, M. W. and K. L. Hammond are always willing to cooperate with Shelby County in any forward movement and this writer congratulates the people on having these men and this plant located in Shelby County.

Montevallo Coal Mining Company Is Most Decided Asset To Shelby County

Beyond a doubt one of the most outstanding assets of Shelby County is the Montevallo Coal Mining Company located at Aldrich.

During the years of operation in Shelby County, they have meant much to the economic life of this section and today, employing approximately 200 men means eight or nine hundred people are directly dependent upon this company for a means of livelihood so it can easily be seen why the Montevallo Coal Mining Company is such an asset to Shelby County.

They also pay taxes and bring money here from other sections which in turn is spent for payrolls, taxes, equipment, etc.

Mr. D. A. Thomas, president, is no stranger to the people here and he has hosts of friends throughout this entire section made by his fair treatment to everyone. He is always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that will benefit Shelby County and he is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having this company and citizen in their midst.

PARAMOUNT COAL COMPANY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County the Paramount Coal Company is unselfishly taking part in the Progressive Shelby County edition of the Democrat.

The Paramount Coal Company has been operating in Shelby County since 1921 and during these years they have meant much to the economic life of this section. They are one of our distinct assets as they furnish employment to approximately eighty local people which means a community of four or five hundred people who are dependent upon this company for a livelihood. They own property and pay taxes and contribute in numerous ways to the welfare of our county.

Mr. T. S. Abernathy, president of the Paramount Coal Company, and his son, Mr. T. D. Abernathy, have hosts of friends in Shelby County, made by their fair treatment to everyone.

It is concerns like this and citizens like these that go to make a community or section progress and develop and this writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having them in their midst .

PARKER'S FERTILIZER COMPANY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. Howard Parker is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

Mr. Parker is well known in Shelby County and he has made hosts of friends by his fair and square business dealings. He has been manufacturing fertilizer for 18 years and was the first man in this part of Alabama to begin making a 6-8-4 fertilizer which has proven to be so popular in this section. Parker's 6-8-4 is the biggest seller in Shelby County and there in dealers in nearly every part of Shelby. The dealers who sell Parkers fertilizers in Shelby County are The J. F. Pope Co., at Wilsonville; Sharbutt & Florey at Vincent; Shelby County Exchange at Columbiana; Pate Mercantile Co. at Shelby; Calera Cash Store at Calera; Archer's Store at Westover and G. W. Weldon at Chelsea.

Mr. Parker is conducting another Parker's Acre Contest this year and already over fifty Shelby County boys have entered this contest. Last year he and the Avondale Mills gave away valuable prizes and this year they are doing the same thing. The J. F. Pope Company is also giving a $25.00 suit of clothes to the Shelby County boy winning first prize

The first pure bred seed were introduced to this section by Mr. Parker and has done much to improve the staple and yield.

Parkers fertilizers are made right here in this section and has already been shown. Mr. Parker is vitally interested in bettering farming conditions and this writer congratulates the people on having such a progressive public spirited man and such a good fertilizer as Parker's 6-8-4 in their midst.

SOUTHERN COTTON OIL COMPANY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. M. S. Hurston ,manager of The Southern Cotton Oil Company at Sylacauga is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

When you buy fertilizer there are several factors to remember—first, you want a fertilizer that is made by a manufacturer who has had experience; second, you want the best materials to go into your fertilizer and third you want a fertilizer that will give you better and bigger yields and SCO-CO does this and they have had over fifty years experience in the cotton oil business and thirty-seven years experience making fertilizer.

The Southern Cotton Oil Company at Sylacauga are prepared to serve you in your fertilizer needs and this writer suggests that before you buy any kind to investigate SCO-CO and see what it is.

They also offer an unexcelled gin service during the season and of course buy cotton seed, paying top market prices.

This writer congratulates the people of this section that this mill is located in their midst.

The Pen Coal Company Is Most Decided Asset To Shelby County

The Pen Coal Company which has been operating since 1932, is one of our decided assets in that they furnish employment to over thirty local men which means that approximately 150 people live and depend upon this company.

Mr. W. K. Penhallegore, the manager, is a native of this section and naturally interested in the growth and development of Shelby County and he is the type of man that can always be counted on to do his full part in any project that is for community good.

This writer went over some of the property of the Pen Coal Company and what impressed me was a new washer that they have just installed for washingsteamc o al and while the Pen Coal Company may not be as large as some of the others, their equipment is modern and up to date and they are progressive and public spirited.

This newspaper is proud of the fact that the Pen Coal Company and Mr. W. K. Penhallegore are located here in Shelby County and would that we had more concerns like them.

Alabaster Lime Company Is A Most Decided Asset To Shelby County

Because they furnish employment to approximately fifty local people, because they pay taxes and own property in Shelby County and because they contribute in many other ways to the economic life of Shelby County the Alabaster Lime Company is one of the most decided assets in this section.

They are always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that will tend to make Shelby County go forward and advance as they are vitally interested in the growth and development of Shelby County.

We are indeed fortunate in that we have industries of this kind in our midst, would that we had more of them.

When we want to boost the building of better roads or when we want to call others attention to Shelby County we know we can always count on Mr. George Scott and the Alabaster Lime Compnay on doing their full part.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having this company in their midst

SOUTHERN DAIRIES, BIRMINGHAM CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County Mr T. A. Horsley ,district manager of Southern Dairies, is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

Southern Dairies have been in business and serving the people of this section since 1925 and during this time they have paid out thousands of dollars to the dairymen and farmers as they buy everything they possibly can locally which is a decided asset to this entire section; they also furnish employment to scores of local people.

The Southern Dairies have recently remodeled their plant and stands today as one of the most modern and up to date plants of its kind anywhere.

Anything in milk products, ice cream, milk, butter, etc. are all made here in this modern plant and their trucks visit Shelby County regularly, so next time you go into a store ask for Southern Dairies products

UNDER THE COURTHOUSE DOME

M. W. W.

SHELBY COUNTY'S FIRST COURT HOUSE COST $53.00

Rev. R R. Brasher, formerly of Birmingham, who recently moved back to his native County, Shelby, brings us interesting news regarding the First Courthouse in Shelby County, which he clipped from "This Date in Alabama History" by W J. Boles. We reprint the article as all Shelby County citizens will be interested in this historical sketch.

A county courthouse complete with benches and costing only $53.00 What would present day architects, contractors and county commissions think of a proposition to put up a courthouse at a cost of only $53?

Yet this is what records of Shelby County show relative to the first courthouse built in that county.

Thomas Amis Rogers was the builder and, so far as the records tell, the building was satisfactory and answered the purposes of the County for years.

Rogers was born at Rogersville, Tenn, March 18, 1792, of Huguenot parents who came to the United States from Ireland, first located in North Carolina, then moved to Tennessee and from that state to Shelby County.

According to the county records, Rogers was given the contract Jan. 4, 1820. to build the courthouse, which is described as 24 feet long, 20 feet wide, eight feet to the eaves clapboard roof, lined and chinked, benches, doors with shutters, and to be finished by the next session of the County Court.

In 1818 Rogers, Alexander McLaughlin and John Cunningham were appointed superintendents for county representatives. He was licensed in Shelby County to practice law in 1819; the same year was a member of the state constitutional convention secretary of the State Senate and 1819-21 secretary of state

March 26, 1816, he and Matilda Nall were married.

WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE LONG AGITATED ROAD PROJECT?

Frank Head, prominent attorney, spent Monday in Centerville, attending professional duties.

Judge Wales W. Wallace and Harold Harlin have returned from a two weeks session of the Coosa County Circuit Court, and report, for the first time in many years, there is not an inmate in the Coosa County jail. The doors are wide open!

The time will soon be up for filing your objection to Tax Assessments. The Board of Review has received many objections to the taxes assessed on various pieces of property in Shelby County. They will convene for hearing objections which have been filed on Monday, April 26.

ALABAMA REDUCES ITS INDEBTEDNESS

MONTGOMER—Alabama has reduced its indebtedness by approximately $5,000,000 since March 4, 1933

That was the estimate Gov. Bibb Graves made in announcing the states purchase of $30,000 in state bonds issued soon after the Civil War.

"So far as I know," the governor said, "Alabama is about the only state in the Union that has not increased its indebtedness since 1933.

"We are not only balancing our budget and meeting our bills but we are retiring some of our bonds ahead of time"

The $30,000 worth of "carpet bagger" bonds, he said, were purchased for the state's trust fund with proceeds of the sales tax.

One benefit about being sick is that one gets a rest.

R. M. LACKEY NEW PRESIDENT BROWN SERVICE COMPANY

BIRMINGHAM—R. M. Lackey, former executive vice president of Brown Service Funeral Co., was elected president of the company at a meeting of the directors this week. He succeeds the late D. Lee Edmundson.

Since 1933 Mr. Lackey has been the active directing head of the company. He is 40 years old and has had 20 years' experience in the industrial and funeral insurance business. He began as a canvassing agent and worked his way up to his new post. His election to the company's presidency carried out the wishes of the late Mr. Edmundson.

In 1927 Mr Lackey organized the Service Insurance Co. of Anniston. This company was merged with the Brown Funeral Homes & Insurance Co in 1933 at which time Mr. Lackey took over the active management of the consolidated institution as executive vice president

S. R Brice, secretary; T. A Arnold vice president and O. H. Schultz, as treasurer, veteran officials of the company which is now the largest of its kind in the world, will continue in their present positions.

In assuming the presidency, Mr. Lackey, who is widely known through out Alabama, said: "I have always believed that ability, energy and loyalty should be rewarded. The heads of any sound business institutions must work up from the bottom. This will be the policy of Brown-Service as long as I am president"

FUTURE FARMERS TO PRESENT PLAY

The Columbiana Chapter of the Future Farmers of America will present a three act comedy "The Simon Pure Simpleton" at the Shelby High Auditorium Tuesday evening, April 27th at 8 o'clock.

Set in a small town with the hero a 100% hick who pulls a surprise trick on everyone, the play is a fast moving one with many thrills and laughs in every scene.

Wilbur Wee, the hick simpleton, is supported by his aunt, a loving old lady, who worries about Wilburs many foolish actions caused by his balling heir to a small fortune; and also playing important parts are other accupants of the Weed boarding house; Bee Lambert ,the witty bauty shop operator, Ben, the constable. who is very dumb but funny Joe Cook the operator of the corner garage; and others who help carry out the plot

Portraying small town humor and life of its citizens "The Simon Pure Simpleton" has a very pleasing atmosphere and should be enjoyed by every member of the family. The F. F A. invites everyone to attend

MAY DAY -- CHILD HEALTH DAY

Saturday, May 1st, has been set aside as "Child Health Day" This does not mean that the other days in the year are not as important to Child Health as May 1st, but that this day is designated merely as a time to stress Child Health and impress it upon the minds of the public.

The slogan for May Day is "Health Protection For Every Child" and the objective is "to promote the extension of year-round child-health services in every community, including services for physically handicapped children."

Let us consider some of the means whereby health protection can be influenced. There are a great many physically handicapped children in Shelby County who might be materially helped by hospitalization, surgery, etc. Organized groups can do much to aid in the carrying on of this work. Also, it is hoped that the parents of all children and infants between the ages of six months and twelve years will see to it that these children have the benefit of the protective shot for diphtheria. This is a harmless preparation and insures protection in 95% of the cases. To refuse to give a child such protection is really an injustice to the child as well as to the community in which one lives.

Vaccination for smallpox is also another means of combatting a dreaded disease. It is true that Smallpox is a rare disease but this same vaccination has made it so. Even though it is rare, it is by no means wiped out and who knows but that your own child might be the one in whom the disease might crop out again. Vaccination for smallpox can be given from birth on up and should, by all means, be given to everyone, especially those individuals who have never had a successful "take."

Besides these "sure-fire" methods of protection the general education of the public is necessary to limit the extent to which other diseases might gain a foot-hold. People now-a-days are more health-conscious than they formerly were. They know what a safe water and milk supply means and that both are essential to good health. The Health Department tries to keep a check on these supplies and correct any fautly supply that might arise. Other foods, besides milk are also checked and although it is a difficult task, our meat and foods are unusually sanitary as well as palatable

No Child Health Program is complete without the consideration of maternal welfare and steps taken to reduc einfant mortality. Mothers should be checked through the prenatal period in order that as many live and normal babies as possible can be brought into this world. Frequently an expectant mother is found to have syphilis and, although a curse to mankind and one of the primary causes of miscarriages, stillbirths, malformation sand congenital defects, a great deal can be done to insure a live, healthy baby providing the patient sees a competent physician as early in pregnancy as possible. There are other danger signs in pregnancy but neither time nor space will allow a discussion of them at the present time.

It is hoped that Child Health Day will serve as a means whereby the citizens of Shelby County as well as other counties will think over the welfare of our children and do all in their power to promote Child Health more than ever before.—Hugh C. Nickson, M. D., County Health Officer.

R. B. POSEY, DIED ON LAST TUESDAY

R B. Posey of Harpersville, pioneer citizen of Shelby County, passed away at his residence on Tuesday, April 20th. Mr Posey was a prominent figure in the political life of the County serving as a member of the Democratic Executive for over 40 years. He was also a devout member of the Baptist Church, serving his local church in the capacity of clerk for over 35 years. He was a use ful and well beloved citizen. Funeral services were conducted from the Harpersville Church on Wednesday afternoon, with interment in the Harpersville cemetery Mr. Posey is survived by his widow and three children

WOMAN LIVES TO TELL ALL ABOUT IT

AUSTIN, Texas—Miss Willie Branch 25, will live to tell about a bullet in her brain.

When a 25-calibre pistol was discharged accidentally by Miss Branch the bullet struck her head and ranged diagonally through the brain to the opposite side. Sh ewas rushed to a hospital and was not believed to have a chance of recovering. Then on close examination doctors found the bullet had travelled a "silent" area in th ebrain without severing any large blood vessels or piercing a vital spot.

Miss Branch is recovering rapidly and doctors say there will be no after effects, but that to remove the bullet is impractical.

Herny Chapman, former resident of Columbiana, now residing in Dadeville, was a welcomed guest in Columbiana, Wednesday.

6 GALLON LOAD RUM HIDDEN IN OVERALLS

SPARTANBURG, S. C.,—City policemen have for the first time been treated to the spectacle of a "Walking" barroom

The "saloon" lacking only a counter, brass rail and free lunch, turned out to be medium sized Negro wearing oversize overalls .

A search disclosed he was carrying 12 half-gallon fruit jars of whiskey in pockets of a specially constructed belt under his overalls. Officers estimated the liquor weighed fifty pounds.

The "barroom" is in jail here.

VINCENT BETTER HOMES CLUB ... MONTHS MEETING

Registered In Chancery 7-6-86

The Vincent Better Homes Club held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. J F. Bates Thursday, April 15th with nine members and two visitors present. The meeting was opened by repeating the club motto. Members answered roll call with helpful household and garden hints. After the reading of minutes the club entered into a business conference A motion was made and carried to meet Wednesday before the second Sunday in May to clean off cemetery and to decorate graves second Sunday which is Mother's Day. Mrs. Frank Bates was appointed by the president to represent our club at the public speaking contest. This being all of the business the meeting was turned over to program chairman A very interesting program on trees and the kitchen was given by Mrs. Lillie Phillips, Mrs. T E. Elliott, Mrs. Stoklem and Mrs Bennie Freeze. We were given phamplets "How to modernize our Kitchens." Our visitors were Miss Upshaw and Miss Patterson, Home Economic Teachers, who gave a brief outline of her work and a lesson on Meat canning. This was a very enjoyable meeting. We missed having Miss Nolen very much. After we were served apples and delicious candy, the meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. Lillie Phillips May 20th.

JENNIE LIND WILSON DIED ON APRIL 19TH

Mrs. Jennie Lind Wilson, former resident of Columbiana, passed away at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. L. N. Bowdon in Birmingham on April 19th. Mrs. Wilson was the wife of the late Rev. M E Wilson, who was Pastor of the Methodist Church in Columbiana for a number of years.

SPORTS

By FRANK MACKNIGHT, Columbiana, Alabama.

With Abercrombie, Vincent ace, pitching 2 hit ball in seven innings, Shelby High suffered its second defeat at the hands of the Vincent boys last Friday afternoon and were pushed further down int othe league

On two errors of Shelby High men Vincent got off to a quick start in the first inning to score two runs on one hit. Shelby came back in the third inning however to even the count after two were gone and score two runs on one hit also.

Scoring was checked by both teams while D. Wallace was striking out 10 men but in the last of the seventh G. Southen led off with a single only to be cut oll in home by a pretty throw from second base, but successive hits by Abecrombie and Summers scored the winning run and ended the game.

The final score was Vincent 3 runs 6 hits and 2 errors. County High 2 runs, 2 hits and 3 errors.

On Thursday of last week, Mrs Harry Bronson and son Jimmie, of Montgomery were visitors of Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. B B. Curry and Mrs. Emma Bailey.

On last Friday, sadness entered into our program when Mrs. J W. Little and Mrs. Mathis Fancher motored to Selma to attend the funeral of a friend, Mrs. James Rowell, the 7th victim of the Phantom Dance fire in that city during the Christmas holidays.

Week-enders were Miss Louise Seales in Birmingham and C O. Arant home from Selma with his family

Visitors for the week are Mrs. Floyd Armstrong of Greenville at Mrs. W D McClandon's and Leonard Sanders of Birmingham in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J A. Sanders

Social events for the week include a social at the home of Miss Jennie McClendon on Friday night entertaining the following of our younger set: Misses Peggy Payne, Evelyn and Margaret Saunderson, Margaret Tubbs, Frances Bassett, Johnnie Sanders, Dorothy and Nellie Mae Chappell, Dorothy Franks and Messrs. James Baker, Roy Daly, Winston Hogan, Fred Adams and Clinton Millstead. Delicious refreshments were served to the group after an evening of fun

Cocktail drinkers never believe they will become drunkards, but there are drunkards.

A Letter From Pope's Store

TO OUR FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS:—

FROM ALL INDICATIONS WE ARE AFRAID WE ARE GOING TO PLANT TOO MUCH OF OUR ACREAGE TO COTTON. WE HAVE HAD TWO SHORT FEED AND FOOD CROPS IN SECCESSION NOW AND THOSE OF US WHO ARE HAVING TO BUY FEEDS OF ANY KIND CERTAINLY OUGHT TO REALIZE THE IMPORTANCE OF GROWING MORE FOOD AND FEED ON OUR FARMS.

OF COURSE THE HIGH PRICES WE ARE HAVING TO PAY FOR FEEDS NOW ARE DUE PRINCIPALLY TO THE DROUGHT WE HAD IN THE CORN COUNTRY LAST YEAR, WITH A CERTAIN AMOUNT OF SPECULATION TOO.....WHAT FEED WE GROW IN ALABAMA DOES NOT HAVE ANY EFFECT ON THE MARKET. BUT WHEN WE ALABAMIANS HAVE TO BUY FEEDS WE CERTAINLY FEEL THE EFFECTS OF THE HIGH PRICES, SO LET'S NOT GO WILD ON COTTON AGAIN. DO YOUR BEST TO CO-OPERATE WITH THE GOVERNMENT. IT HAS DONE MORE TO HELP THE FARMERS THE PAST FEW YEARS THAN ANY OTHER AGENCY WE KNOW OF. IF THAT BE TRUE, THEN WHY NOT TRY TO CO-OPERATE WITH OUR GOVERNMENT AND HELP CARRY OUT IT'S PLANS AS FAR AS PRACTICAL. OF COURSE OUR GOVERNMENT NOR ANY OTHER AGENCY OR INDIVIDUAL CANNOT WORK OUT A PLAN THAT WILL SUIT EVERY BODY, BUT ONE THING WE DO KNOW IS THAT WE ARE BETTER OFF THAN WE WERE SO LET'S TRY TO KEEP ON IMPROVING AND NOT GO BACKWARDS.

WE ARE SORRY THE PRICE OF COTTON HAD TO ADVANCE JUST BEFORE PLANTING SEASON. THE FERTILIZER MANUFACTURERS SAY THAT THEY HAVE NEVER HAD SUCH A DEMAND FOR FERTILIZERS AS THEY HAVE THIS SEASON. NOW IF YOU HAVE BEEN READING THE PAPERS YOU HAVE NOTICED THAT THE PRICE OF COTTON HAS DECLINED JUST ABOUT AS FAST AS IT ADVANCED A FEW WEEKS AGO. NOW A BIG COTTON CROP CAN GIVE US SOME MORE LOW PRICES. A MEDIUM SIZED COTTON CROP SHOULD GIVE US A FAIR PRICE AND A SMALL CROP A REAL GOOD PRICE. WHICH HAD YOU RATHER HAVE? REMEMBER IT COSTS MORE TO MAKE AND GATHER A LARGE CROP AND IA SELDOM BRINGS AS MUCH MONEY AS A SMALL CROP. OF COURSE, IT WOULD BE MIGHTY NICE, IN A WAY IF WE COULD MAKE A BUMPER COTTON CROP HERE IN SHELBY COUNTY BUT NO WHERE ELSE, BUT HAVE YOU EVER SEEN THAT OCCUR? WE DO NOT THINK SO. SO LET'S TRY TO OPERATE ON A SAFE AND SANE PLAN, GROW ALL THE FOOD AND FEEDS YOU WILL NEED FOR YOUR FAMILY AND LIVESTOCK, AND SOME TO SELL, AND THEN GROK ALL THE COTTON YOU CAN ON THE ACREAGE YOU ARE ALLOWED TO PLANT.

WE CERTAINLY WOULD NOT ADVISE THIS IF WE DID NOT BELIEVE IT RIGHT THING FOR OUR FARMERS TO DO, BECAUSE WE HAVE ABOUT AS MUCH INTEREST IN THE SUCCESS OF OUR FARMER CUSTOMERS AS ANYONE YOU WILL FIND, SO LET'S ALL PULL TOGETHER FOR A SAFER AND SANER FARMING PROGRAM FOR 1937.

REMEMBER TOO, IF YOU NEED ANYTHING TO HELP YOU MAKE A GOOD CROP THIS YEAR "YOU WILL FIND IT AT POPE'S STORE."

YOUR FRIENDS,

The J. F. Pope Co.
Wilsonville, Alabama

When the grocer's boy shows up at your back door loaded down with tempting, out-of-season vegetables, fine quality canned goods, fresh meats and other delicacies—ten to one you never dream that your neighbor, the L & N has a hand in the delivery.

Actually, though, back of every food delivery to millions of people, there's the high speed, safe and sure L & N freight service. Thousands of cars iced up to keep green goods crisp and garden-fresh—thousands more packed to capacity with all manner of good things—flash across the country 24 hours a day. Thousands of alert, fast-working, careful employees bring order out of the maze of shipments—to make sure that your food arrives on time—in perfect condition.

Delivering groceries is just one of the hundred ways in which the L & N works to be of service—and that's being a good neighbor, don't you think?

The President Scores

The President has sent one message to Congress which can be marked in advance as "no contest" with assurance.

The message concerns the establishment of the CCC as a permanent agency. The proposed plan contemplates continuation of the organization on a flexiblt basis. It is suggested that 300,000 members be set as the maximum, and the total could rise in this range with the demand for the type of jobs and opportunity provided.

Young men would thus be assured of jobs in a healthful environment. There has never been any compulsory features associated with the CCC and on the other hand the salaries have never been solucrative that there would be a tendency to draw young men from private enterprise.

Besides the consideration for the welfare of the nation's young men, the benefits to the nation's natural resources are also concerned. With the country becoming more conservation minded and with the demand for conservation work increasing, there will be a permanent need for the work of the CCC.

No Nine Months Term Again

All of our lives we have been haunted by the cry of "Vote for this tax, mothers, fathers save your children from ignorance. The money will pay for your children's education, it will pay the salaries of your teachers," and we have voted them and voted them and swallowed one bitter pill after another (including the sales tax and the repeal bill) and always we have said to ourselves, "Now we have done our duty, the children can have a nine months school and the teachers nine measly months of pay." Always too we have been disappointed. So this time we are not disillusioned at all, we expected a cry of "no nine month term, there are no available funds," although there is a sales tax passed to make more funds. We were optimistic at first though and tried not to complain of the tax, but oh well, we have become like the people who heard the little boy cry "Wolf, Wolf" so many times. So, perhaps the people themselves will become suspicious of the tactics used by politicians again and will not go to the assistance of education. We will just make more roads for the ignorant children grown into ignorant men and women to walk on, more money for the unscrupulous to spend.—Hale County News.

Commencement Promises

With April comes the annual open season for high school graduations when practically every effervescent finals speaker will tell of the great things awaiting each individual student leaving h igshchools for the verdant fields of the future.

But it's all just plain and fancy talk!

There never has been a utopia thrown inth the laps of youth, and there never will be. Opportunities present themselves only to those who seek them out, and then only can be found hints of the glowing promises commencement orators speak of. Generations ago it was discovered that the world owes no one a living, but youth has yet to find such is the case. Colleges are great and necessary institutions for the majority of the youths preparing to graduate from our high schools into these promised fields, and without them our present civilization could not be what it is today. College training, however, does not guarantee a job, and it doesn't bar employment on a WPA project.

It is well for commencement speakers to lay open the promise to youth to spur them on, but youth should not let flowery words lead them to believe that the world can be conquered without some effort on their part.—Wallace Enterprise.

Does Alabama Need Drivers Tests

When the driver's license was first assessed it was hoped that Alabama would follow the lead of other States and require stringent tests for drivers. It was recognized that the assessments were not licenses at all but taxes. Nevertheless the original purpose, to raise funds for the State highway patrol, was a legitimate one and has justified itself.

However, the question is raised whether the tax is to remain a tax or become a license in the sense that certain qualifications are required of drivers..

It may be that conditions in Alabama would not justify the inauguration of a drivers' licensing system. Perhaps the number of unqualified drivers is not large enough to create a problem. If that is the case the difficlty and cost of administering tests would not be worthwhile. The funds required might better be spent in patrolling the highways.

At the same time the subject is one which might be studied to advantage by safety organizations, automobile clubs and the officials of the highway patrol. We should have sufficient knowledge of Alabama's traffic problems and the experiences of other States to estimate the need for a system of drivers' tests.

Where Death Rate Is High

When an important bread manufacturing plant closes down and discharges all of its employees follow ing a sit down strike, there is food for thought in the situation, even though there may be less food for the table.

The answer appears to be that there is not enough money in the making of bread to justify very much worry on the part of the bakery owner whether he operates a plant or closes it. This brings up the question of why such a situation exists, and one of the answers undoubtedly lies in the fact that there are more than fifty taxes represented by the finished loaf of bread.

The taxing process began upon the land where the wheat was produced and continued throughout every process of its conversion into flour, its delivery to the baker, and its final production in the form of bread.

Manifestly, there cannot be a great amount left either for wages or for profit when more than fifty forms of taxation have been applied to an article that sells for a few cents, and the manufacturer is very likely to find himself working for various governments rather than for himsefl, which is a discouraging circumstance at best.

The thing would not be so significaut were it true that the situation applied only to bread. But this is not the case. The came condition attaches to every product ,being still more arduous in some instances.

The mortality among business institutions in this country is many times that among human beings in this country ,and there can be no doubt whatever that this high death rate is due in great numbers of instances to the destructive nature of the disease known as excessive taxation—a disease that is becoming more and more deadly.—Tuscaloosa News

Run Up The Flag Again

Isn't it about time we did a little waving of the American Flag right here at home?

Hordes of outlanders, some native born, others paid and sent here from foreign shores are trying to spread Communism throughout our country. We want none of it. In Russia they have killed their capitalists their storekeepers, their landlords, their business executives, their scientists. Among a "classless" society made up only of peasants and manual laborers, Russia today stands as the greatest social failure of the ages and one of the most brutal autocracies on earth. If the American workman knew the truth about Communism, as it actually works out, he would fight it to his last gasp. And especially would his women folk fight it because of its atheism and its use of women only as brood mares for future armies!

Nor is Fascism for us. We need no dictator to tell us what we may read, how to vote, how to salute and cheer fo rhim, when to die for him, forbidding us to travel ,to marry as we desire, to live as we see fit.

The gall of them—trying to foment us into rebellion against the things our fathers and forefathers fought for, trying to get our government to gag our newspapers, drilling in our midst in foreign uniforms, inciting our people to "sit down" in the best jobs we've had for seven or eight years, defying our laws, violating our property rights.

There is no hope, no future for the American business man, professional man or worker in either of these alien doctrines. Isn't it time to throw them out and with them tramps who have been set here to spread them in the best country in the world?

Let's do a little American Flag waving and back it with a few of the old time vigor that gave us our independence and made us the greatest and most envied nation on earth.—Public Record.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

These balmy spring days are calling our citizens to the great outdoors. Quite a crowd packed off to Camp Okimo for the week end, Lexie and Clovis Reese and Elizabeth and Mr. and Mrs George Thomason being included in the bunch. We are inclined to believe there is something fishy about that trip. We hear that Jim Jasper Harper from Ganadarke joined the gang at Camp Okimo in the early hours of Saturday night and you ought to hear them rave about that famous "Harper Gravy". By the way, we wonder what's become of Jims 'Bugger Farm' that he used to boast of? . . . If you should happen to find time hanging on your hands come down to the "Y' and get an eyeful of Lloyd Thorpe and Margaret Tilley doing the "spin". Boy, can they shake a leg! Shular Scott and Helen Robinson also know their stuff when it comes to dancing . . . It looks like Hazel Maudling and Fred Winters are "that way" about each other At least Fred looks pretty serious. . . Everybody thinks Janie Nix and Allison Goss look cute together . . Did you happen to see little Betty Sue Robinson in those blue slacks Saturday afternoon? She was a knock out, an adorable knock out. . . In years to come, Lillie Mae, Margaret, Lola B. and our humble selves Nell and Nelle can turn the yellowed pages of the old family album and exclaim over those pictures snapped on a Saturday afternoon in April, 1937, which is by way of saying there was a kodaking party down around the "Y" Saturday afternoon. . . Mrs. J A. Hines is with us again after a successful trip to the hospital and we assure you Mrs. Hines, that you are as "welcome as the flowers in May." . . . The Dukes have as their week end guests, Mr. and Mrs Ruffin and their neice, Daphene Crowe and we must say Daphene was looking prettier than ever. . . Its a sad, sad story that we must pass on to you or at least Mrs Eris Robinson thinks it very sad indeed that someone deliberately took her purse in town Saturday where she had gone on a shopping spree. . . . Fred Phillips was home for the week end and we were glad indeed to see Fred and we are looking forward to the time when he will be home from Georgia Tech for the summer holidays. . . Feeling a bad case of spring fever coming on we hasten to bid you all

So long,
Nelle and Nell.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

"Grant me another sunlit hour,
Dear God, I humbly ask;
The ones bequeathed to me for dower
Failed to complete my task,
Perhaps I wasted them; forgive!
But lanes were edged with bloom
A redbreast was imperative
I view its nesting room.
The moments fled, and I with them,
Toward hills that called to us—
For who wear trees for diadem
May be imperious,
And when I started home, alas,
My feet were unaware
How dandelions in the grass
Would be like magnets there.
Tomorrow I will work all day—
This is my solemn pledge —
Unless the first unbudded spray
Calls from the lilac hedge."

COLUMBIANA—THE LITTLE TOWN WITH A GREAT BIG HEART

This lovely town known as Columbiana, will, during this year, celebrate its 100th Anniversary. During the past century, FRIENDLINESS has been the key note of the charm that always hovers around this little village. There has never, in the history of the 'town, lived a NATIVE who moved away from Columbiana, who did not long to return to this picturesque haven we proudly call—HOME! Especially has the sympathetic heart throb been manifested in homes this week where the dread specter of illness has darkened the home with black cloud shadows. Clouds that, for the time being, seemed too dark for even a ray of light to pierce and make visible the silver lining. Yet, in so many, many ways have kind messages winged their way to friends and loved ones who were confused in the hospitals, where the flash of white robed "Angels of Mercy" passed as they administered to the patient—and the gleaming scalpels held in sure and steady fingers of the surgeons alleviated the suffering of residents in whom Columbiana citizens have been so keenly interested. So, at this writing, it is our happy privilege to report that Ruth Luck is recuperating as rapidly as can be expected from her serious illness. Little "Teddy" Bird, a town favorite, who is in the Children's Hospital, is convalescing satisfactorily. Mrs. Barton, (Orla Mae Bearden) is much improved after undergoing a serious operation. Thus do the stars of HOPE appear on an erstwhile black horizon and the sorrows shared become lighter burdens to bear as the years passes and life again triumphs over the Grim Reaper.

DREAMS

Embroider the world upon a loom,
Embroider with dreams my tapestry;
I in a little lonely room
Am master of earth and sea,
And the planets come to me
Embroider my love, thread upon
The thread;

Embroider my life into the frame.
The world goes by with its glory and shame
Crowns are bartered and blood is shed:
But and broider my dreams instead

For the only world is the world of my dreams,
And my weaving the only happiness;
What is the world but what it seems?
Or who knows but that God,
Beyond our guess,
Is weaving worlds out of loneliness?"

The above poem comes to mind as we gratefully acknowledge:

SINGING FLAME

We are the happy recipients of a copy of "SINGING FLAME", a collection of lyrics from the versatile pen of Alabama's most distinguished poet, Martha Lyman Shillito. Withthe pages of the artistic cover, which is designed in colors, gold and silver are lie poetic gems which reflect their brilliance—reflecting the beautiful personality of the author, and there are also lyrics that tug at your heart strings. I think a contemporary writer has caught the spirit of the lovely collection of poems and has painted both the writer and her poems far better than our limited pen point industry can picture. We quote Edith Tatum's tribute to Martha Lyman Shillito: "Mrs. Shillito is a singer with songs to sing; an artist with scenes of delicate beauty to paint, a woman whose heart has responded to emotions with sincerity and without sentimentality" We, who have had the good fortune to claim Martha Lyman Shillito's priceless FRIENDSHIP, congenial COMRADESHIP, and UNDERSTANDING HEART, are better prepared to appreciate her altogether lovely poetic creations, than you, who have not shared this good fortune—but the book will appeal to all lovers of the beautiful and best in Poetry Land. It is published by theKaleidograph Press of Dallas Texas—and will make the loveliest of gifts for your friends or will most certainly be a creditable addition to your own poetic collections.

BILLIE JEAN YOUNG

When a charming young Miss leaves a little note on your typewriter which states she will be in the office about 3 p m. for the purpose of an INTERVIEW with "yours truly", regarding the hobby which lies closest to our heart—but which we have always found difficult to express—MUSIC—well, it is Panic Time for Personal Mention. We, who have for the past 5 years, interviewed the other fellow, and popped the questions fast and furious now realize just on what a disadvantageous spot the Interviewee is placed. Especially is this true—when efficient, systematic, "Miss Interview-er" knows exactly what she wants to find out, and exactly how to go about it and waits with poised pencil point for your answer to her original questions! We doff our hots again to Young America especially to Billie Jean Young, who "stumped" us the first round. However, we were secretly as proud as Punch over the idea, and had a swell time at the Interview. BUT, we haven't had the nerve to ask HER what SHE thought about it—after it was all over! AND, we are still WONDERING how the Interview registered in the English test, of which we were a part. We hope if there were any errors—the Teacher will blame it on the SUBJECT, and not on the attractive and altogether business like Billie Jean!

MAYOR GORDON HONORED IN BIRMINGHAM for CO-OPERATION

....The News last week carried pictures of local baseball fans who attended the opening game of the season in Birmingham which included: Mr and. Mrs. Charlie Tinney, Mayor and Mrs. Harry Gordon, Charlie Goodwin and Leo Friedberger. However, these were only SOME of the fans whom the Candid Camera caught. There were also present on this gala occasion: Dr. E .S. Lightcap, E M. Young, Rip Cox, Dr. J B Parham, P. O. Luck and many others AND—by the way, DID you know that "Bull" Conner of radio and political fame, publicly paid a tribute to Mayor Harry Gordon of Columbiana? "Bull" was asked to nominate the most co-operative person as far as boosting the Barons was concerned—he unqualifiedly nominated Columbiana's famous Mayor — and asked that he stand while the crowd gave him the Glad Hand of recognition.

MILDRED CURLEE

Mildred Curlee, who has returned from Mobile where she represented the Culture Club, has again been signally honored by her co-workers in the P. T. A. EVANS BROS. CONSTRUCTION CO. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefi t to us, Mrs C. A. Frickhoffer, president and treasurer of Evans Bros. Construction Co., is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

Evans Bros. Construction Company have been in business since 1890 and they built their present plant in 1903. They built the By-products plant in Shelby during the war for the U. S. Government and Mr Frickhoffer has many friends in Shelby County.

While they sell all kinds of rough and dressed lumber, hardwoods, etc., they also specialize in mill work of every description and they ship their mill work all over the State. They recently furnished the mill work for several new homes in Clanton.

This writer suggests to anyone thinking of building, remodeling or any changes to consult Mr Frickhoffer at Evans Bros. Construction Company. They are located at 2312-2318 Sixth Avenue, South.

MILTON E. McDUFF OF BIRMINGHAM CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. Milton E McDuff, Investigator, is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

Mr. McDuff is no stranger to the people of Shelby County as he has handled nearly every case in Shelby County and he has made hosts of friends throughout the county by his fair and square dealings.

Before accepting charge of any case, Mr. McDuff always makes a preliminary investigation to advise his client. All phases of criminal and civil investigations are his specialty and he is recognized not only in Birmingham but all over the South as a peer in his line of endeavor.

He is located at 526 Chamber of Commerce Building and his telephone numbers are 3-6302, 7-4133 and 7-4134.

DIXIE BRONZE CO., BIRMINGHAM CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. Charles Wegerlin, president of the Dixie Bronze Company, is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

They have been in business since 1918 and they have made hosts of friends throughout this entire section by their fair treatment to every one.

The Dixie Bronze Company manufacture bronze and aluminum castings, serving the immediate section and a large outlying area. They are also manufacturers of bronze tablets or placques, the kind you see on newly erected buildings, colleges, courthouses, etc.

Mr. Wegelin is interested in the growth and development of any section and this writer congratulates the people of Shelby County that the Dixie Bronze Company is located in our section.

They are located at 1231 North 6th Avenue.

MR. C. B. COX, CLANTON, REPRESENTATIVE OF AMERICAN CASTING CO. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. C. B. Cox of Clanton is unselfishly taking part in this Good Roads edition of the Democrat.

Mr. Cox is no stranger to the people of this section and he has made hosts of friends throughout Shelby County by his fair treatment to every one.

The American Casting Company of Birmingham have been manufacturing cast iron culvert pipe for more than thirty years and this pipe is recognized as the ideal highway culvert pipe.

Cast Iron Spiral Corrugated Culvert Pipe or Spi-Cor meets the requirement of Federal Bureau of Roads for all types of roads and good culverts are just as necessary as any other road bed construction detail.

Cast iron culverts and pipe last longer, costs less and in fact, is the logical pipe and culvert to use and our officials should investigate Spi-Cor cast iron pipe, culverts, etc.

The American Casting Company located in Birmingham is a Southern owned and operated concern and should be patronized by our people of Alabama.

BRAMMER PAINT & BODY COMPANY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. C. L. Brammer, of Brammer Paint and Body Company, is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

Mr. Brammer has been in business over two years but he has had over twenty years experience in body and fender work and painting. He was formerly with Wood Chevrolet Co

The Brammer Paint and Body Com pany are located at 519 South 22nd Street and their telephone numbers are business phone 7-1683 and residence phone 7-1321.

This writer suggests that if you have a smashed fender or a body that needs fixing or a first class paint job and you want the best job at a fair and reasonable price, then next time take your car to Brammer Paint and Body Company, they know how and they do it right.

Mr. Brammer is interested in the growth and development of Shelby County because he is progressive and public spirited and because his wife who was formerly Miss Lula Underwood is a native of Shelby County.

This newspaper recommends the Brammer Paint and Body Company to its many readers.

Grayson Lumber Company, Birmingham Has Built Large Lumber Business

Mr. C. H. Grayson has been in the lumber business in Birmingham for 13 years and he has made hosts of friends in Shelby County during this time. Grayson Lumber Company is one of the most complete and largest lumber companies in this entire section. Anything and everything to build, remodel or repair with can be found here.

At present they are sawing timber in Shelby County and since they have been in business they have paid out thousands of dollars to Shelby County land owners for timber and they also are furnishing employment to local people.

This concern we are proud to have operate in Shelby County and this writer congratulates the people of this section on having Grayson Lumber Company in their midst.

Acton Coal Company on Highwav Is Decided Asset To Shelby County

The Acton Coal Company which has been in business here in Shelby County ten years,i s one of Shelby County's assets. They furnish employment to approximately sixty local people. They own property and pay taxes here and in countless other ways they aid in the economic life of Shelby County.

Mr. Chas. N. Milam, the manager, is no stranger to the people here as he was born in Shelby County and he numbers his friends by his acquaintances. He is always ready and willing to cooperate and help in any project or movement that will tend to make Shelby County go forward and prosper, and he is unselfishly taking part in this progressive Shelby County edition of the Democrat.

The newspaper congratulates the people of Shelby County on having the Acton Coal Company and a citizen like Mr. Chas. Milam in our midst.

ELECTRICAL REPAIR & SERVICE CO. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate with Shelby County in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to our County, Messrs. A L. Brown and J. N. Brown, owners of the Electrical Repair and Service Company are taking part in this edition of the Democrat

They have been in business since 1919 and they have made hosts of friends throughout this entire section by their fair and square business dealings.

This is one of the largest electrical repair shops in the South and there is no phase of electrical repair work that they are not thoroughly familiar with. They are also dealers for wire rope and are manufacturers of carbon brushes and their sales department also carry a full line of ball bearings for mine, mill and also tractors.

Their men are all experienced in electrical motor and transformer repair work for mill and mine.

Their telephone number is 7-8121 and Mr. A. L. Brown's residence phone number is 9-8483 and Mr. J. N. Brown's number is 9-8565.

THE TAYLOR TRAVEL AGENCY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Are you thinking of or planning a trip? If so, this writer suggests that you write the Taylor Travel Agency or when in Birmingham to go by and let Mrs. Augus M Taylor of the Taylor Travel Agency offer you some advice on how to go and when to go.

Mrs. Taylor arranges party and individual travels either foreign or domestic and she is the authorized agent for all steamship lines and all air lines and she will be more than glad to help you plan your trip or give you any information or assistance you may want or need. There is no charge for this service and anyone interested should certainly avail themselves of this opportunity

Mrs. Taylor has been in business five years and having traveled extensively herself and having studied this line of work she is fully qualified to render this service.

She is always willing to co-operate with Shelby County and this writer congratulates the people of this section on having her in our midst.

The Taylor Travel Agency is located on the ground floor of the Brown-Marx Building, Birmingham.

Little Gem Coal Company Is Most Decided Asset To Shelby County

One of the most decided assets in Shelby County is the Little Gem Coal Company, which is located at Dogwood on the famous Montevallo vein. They furnish employment to approximately 200 men which means six or seven hundred people are directly dependent upon this organization for a living. They pay taxes to our county and they contribute in numerous ways to the economic life of Shelby County.

Mr. Sam John ,the manager, has been a resident of Dogwood and Shelby County for the past 18 years and during this time he has made hosts of friends by his fair and square treatment to everyone.

This company stands ready at all times to cooperate in any movement or project that will be beneficial to Shelby County and they are unselfish ly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having the Little Gem Coal Company in their midst.

ALABAMA TYPEWRITER COMPANY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. H. B Gooch, manager of the Alabama Typewriter Company, is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat

The Alabama Typewriter Company started in business in the Empire Building in 1919 and they have built up an enviable volume of business since that time

They are state distributors for the Victor Adding Machines, Wood Stock Typewriters, Friden Calculating Machines, Ediphone Dictating Machines and United States Cash Registers. They also do a very large repair business on all makes of adding machines, typewriters cash registers and dictating machines

Everything sold by them must give satisfactory service or the customers money will be cheerfully refunded and it is this policy of doing business that have made them such a progressive and successful firm

This writer has no hesitancy in recommending the Alabama Typewriter Company to th ejeojle of Shelby County. They are located at 1923 Fifth Avenue, North.

Cheney Lime And Cement Company Is One Of Shelby County's Most Decided Assets

Furnishing employment to approxi mately eighty local people, paying taxes to Shelby County and contributing in many other ways to the welfare of our County. The Cheney Lime & Cement Company is one of Shelby County's most decided assets.

They have been doing business in Shelby County for fifteen years and have meant much to the economic life since they have been here.

Mr. R L. Hill, the manager, is a native of Shelby County and he has many friends throughout this entire section, and there is no project or movement calculated to better Shelby County but what finds Mr Hill and the Cheney Lime and Cement Company will ing to do their full part.

This company has invested thousands of dollars in to their plant and equipment and today the Cheney Lime and Cement Company stand out as on eof the most modern and up to date lime and cement companies in the country.

Shelby County should be and are proud of the fact that the Cheney Lime and Cement Company are located in their midst.

WHAT? NO ROAD PROJECT O. K. YET?

Some weeks ago we began agitating more and better roads for Shelby County. There was a flurry of interest manifested. Leading business and professional men called by the Democrat office to offer assistance, co-operation and "whatever it takes" to put it over. Weeks have passed. Time marches on, and, although we have repeatedly asked the "powers that be" the status of the proposed highway from Bibb County to St. Clair County, we have received only vague answers.

The advantages of a modern highway thru Shelby County are too obvious to mention. We have been disappointed in looking thru the numerous road projects receiving the coveted "o. k." in noting that Shelby County had not been included in the state wide progressive program for highway development. We are, so to speak, still in the mud and dust, and even with Shelby County's natural resoures the outstanding citizenship and the many other attractive features she possesses, we are, apparently sponsoring bad roads, hence, we cannot expect any of the 25,000,000 automobiles which Americans own to come thru this section if they can avoid it. Nor, can we expect to receive the benefits which we feel should be ours if we but take advantage of the liberal three way plan worked out by Uncle Sam ,and begin a highway construction program which will allow Shelby County to step forward in the line of permanent constructive, development along with other wide a wake counties in Alabama.

We understand from "Big Chief" Lyon that the matter is before the Board, and some phases of the project have been "checked" to Representative L. H. Ellis. Knowing Mr. Ellis to be a man of action and one who usually gets what he goes after we are eagerly awaiting his solution to X—The Unknown Road Project. Sure, we'll tell you as soon as we get —the answer.

A complete program including a modern system of Road Building for Shelby County will do more for its future development than any proposed project could do. It is the ONE FOOL PROOF program. The propitious time to strike is NOW!

FARMERS SIGN WORK SHEETS FINAL DATE, MAY 15th, 1937

Every farmer in Shelby County has the opportunity to receive a benefit payment in 1937 for reducing cotton acreage or carrying out soil building practices, or both.

Why is a farm program necessary this year? A farm program is necessary for three special reasons: (1) To keep down production to hold up prices; (2) to stimulate better farming; (3) to place farm buying power a little nearer on parity with that of other workers.

To be eligible for a payment under the farm program, it is necessary to make a Work Sheet by May 15.

In making a Work Sheet, it does not obligate you to reduce cotton or carry out soil building practices, but will make you eligible for a payment provided you either reduce cotton or carry out soil building practices.

Since it does not cost you anything or obligate you, I would urge you to make your Work Sheet and be eligible provided you earn a payment; you cannot tell what your conditions will be 30 or 60 days from now, so it is best tomake work sheets and be safe. Come to my office any day between now and May 15 and make your work sheets.

Use 400 to 600 pounds per acre of 6-8-4 Fertilizer for cotton.

If we can be of any service, call on us.—A. A. Lauderdale.

EXEMPTIONS FOR HOMESTEADS TO BEGIN OCTOBER 1

MONTGOMERY — Exemptions under Alabama's homestead tax exemption act will become effective October 1, 1937, despite a ruling by Attorney-General A. A. Carmichael that they will not take effect until October, 1938,Governor Bibb Graves said recently.

Carmichael handed down on opinion declaring the exemptions are not in force until 1938. Governor Graves previously had ordered State Comptroller Charles Lee to notify collectors that the exemptions were applicable October 1, 1937.

"The people of Alabama will not pay taxes on homsteads exempt on October 1," Graves said.

Replying to the Governor's statement, Carmichael said "we have merely interpreted the law and every tax assessor and collector in Alabama is going to follow my opinion to a man.'

Graves threatened to order the State Tax Commission to reduce assessments on homesteads up to the amount of the exemption.

"I don't want to do this, but no homestead owner in Alabama is going to pay a nickel of this exemption in October."

The exemption act, passed by the last Legislature ,frees homesteads up to $2,000 from the six and one-half mill state ad vadorem tav "beginning October 1, 1937."

ALABAMA BUSINESS COLLEGE, AUBURN, TO OPEN SEPT. 6TH

AUBURN—The Alabama Businsse College, a new educational institution in the City of Auburn, will open its doors for the first time here on September 6th under the direction of Prof. F. X. Carberry

Olthough the college will have no official connection with the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, its purpose is to give business training to a limited number of select students who are prepared for college but who are financially unable or who are not interested immediately in a four year course leading to a bachelor's degree.

A cooperative arrangement has been worked out whereby a student in the Alabama Business College wil do part time study at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute While pursuing an intensive one-year course in the Business College a student will carry about one half of a regular college load.

It is beilieved by those in charge that preparation of students as secretaries, stenographers, and bookkeepers may provide them with sufficient earning power to complete their college courses either at Auburn or at some other institution. Graduates of the Alabama Business College may also be qualified for Civil Service appointments as stenographers, secretaries ,or clerks.

"The Alabama Business College is not designed as a substitute for more liberal college training," said Prof. Carberry. "Its purpose is to open the door of opportunity to boys and girls of Alabama who are financially unable to undertake a four year course leading to the bachelor's degree."

EXAMINATIONS FOR CIVIL SERVICE ARE BEING ANNOUNCED

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

Associate physicist (electroencephalography), $3,200 a year, U. S. Public Health Service.

Endocrinologist, $3,800 a year, Bureau of Dairy Industry.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office or customhouse in any city which has a post office of the first or second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

What one does not know rarely proves troublesome as long as the lips are kept together.

THE COLUMBIANA BAPTIST CHURCH

Regular services will be held on Sunday, May 2, 1937. We are glad to note the increased interest and much larger congregations. We trust that everyone will lend a helping hand and make the church what it should be in the community.

Some one has made the following appeal which we pass on for what it is worth.

"Don't wait to die before you go to church. Better to go on your own two feet than to be carried by your friends. Besides you will be of little use to the church or the church to you after you are dead.

Come next Sunday, meet your neighbors and your friends there and receive the inspiration and help that comes from fellowship with genial companions.

A hearse is a mighty poor thing to come to church in. Why wait? Come now!

I would much prefer holding a service with you than over you.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to take this opportunity to thank the business people, the American Legion and the Exchange Club for contributions to help take care of the expense of the 4-H Club Rally recently held at Columbiana.

NOTICE

All members of Summer Hill Church are wanted to clean off the graves on Thursday before the third Sunday in May.

DR. E. S. MILLER, A FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN SYLACAUGA

The many friends of Dr. E. S. Miller, prominent physician of Talladega County, and former resident of Columbiana, passed away at the Sylacauga Infirmary after only a few days illness of pneumonia.

Dr. Miller successfully practiced his profession in Shelby County for a number of years, leaving Columbiana to accept contract practice with the Sylacauga Marble Company. After many years service with this Company, Dr. Miller accepted a position with the State, and for a number of years was Health Officer of Macon County. He recently returned to his native County, Talladega, to engage in the practice o fmedicine in Childersburg ,where he was stricken with pneumonia on last Friday.

Funeral rites were conducted from the funeral home in Sylacauga with interment in Columbiana Cemetery, the Rev. T. K Roberts officiating.

Surviving Dr. Miller are his widow, Elna Elliott Miller, one daughter Sara Elna Braswell, and one grand son, Ray Braswell his father, E. M. Miller of Talladega, one sister, Minnie Miller, and one brother Mark Miller of Birmingham.

The Democrat joins a host of friends in Shelby County and extend sincere sympathy to the bereaved ones.

CARD O FTHANKS

We wish to express our thanks to our many friends both in this county and Jefferson County, for their kindness and sympathy in the bereavement of our loved one, also for the beautiful flowers.

Heart Drifts

KETTLES

Life is full of changes,
Years are hard and long;
But the world's teakettles
Keep their old song.

The same old humming
That they've hummed night and days
Since a woman set the first one
Over a blaze.

Oh, the long pleasure
Their music has been
To calm cats purring
With their paws folded in;

To children nodding, nodding
At the edge of a dream,
Their heads all misty
In a silver stream!

Time, change, weather—
None of these things
Can make much trouble
When a teakettle sings!

INVITATION

Here for your comfort, wide and low
A chair waits in an ingle nook.
A picture, fashioned long ago,
A candle and a book.

Here shall be quiet for your dreams
When on the roof the rain drops fall
Or moonlight through the window gleams
Or firelight on the wall

Here shall the night be still for you,
Nor one sweet hour of slumber fail
A bird song on the sill for you
Shall be your morning's hail.

However long the road you came,
However far your final quest,
This tranquil place, in Love's good name,
Shall ledge our Guest.

LINES FOR A SLEEPING ROOM

As a garment I put off the day
And the cares that were mine.
One star at my window is set
Like a candle a-shine.

There's a wind in the room, cool and sweet,
And it bears on its wings
Old fragrance and quiet and sleep
And dreams of old things.

Today has slipped into the past
On a journey unknown.
Tomorrow is God's, and is safe.
Tonight is my own.

Like a candle my star in the west
Burns low with its light.
As a beautiful garment of rest,
I put on the night.

AFTER SEVENTY

Lest it be too easily asserted that a man's accomplishments and abilities are of declining value as he accumulates years or that his abilities necessarily become debilitated, it should be recorded that:

Between the ages of 70 and 83—

Commodore Vanderbilt added about 100 millions to his fortune.

Kant at 74 wrote his Anthropology Metaphysics of Ethics and Strife of Faculties.

Tintoretto at 74 painted the vast Paradise, a canvas 74 efet by 30.

Verdi at 74 produced his masterpiece Othello! at 80, Falstaff and at 85 the famous Ave Maria, Stabat Mater and Te Deum.

Lamarck at 78 completed his great zoological work ,The Natural History of the Invertebrates.

Oliver Wendell Holmes at 78 wrote Over the Teacups.

Cato at 80 began the study of Greek.

Goethe at 80 completed Faust.

Tennyson at 83 wrote Crossing the Bar.

Titian at 98 painted his historic picture of the Battle of Lepanto.

WILDLIFE SAFETY AIM OF PROGRAM

MONTGOMERY—Progress ... storation and development of Alabama's wildlife resources depends mainly upon activity of various county organizations and sportsmen's clubs, with the younger generation bearing the responsibility, according to the Alabama Department of Conservation.

Now in process of drafting recommendations for the county organizations, the department suggests programs on: Fish reclamation, planting food for game, developing converts for certain species of birds and animals, fish rearing pools, feeding during periods when snow covers the ground, cooperation with landowners forest fire protection ,assisting the authorities in breaking up unlawful taking of game and fish and many other problems.

A total of 150 organizations, including 67 county conservation councils, private clubs and other groups are now functioning in Alabama, and it is the aim of conservation leaders to enlist their aid. Alabama is joining with other states to launch the national move under the General Wild life Federation and the state wildlife federations in co-operation with state departments of conservation.

"There exists a great need for introducing conservation in the schools most fertile of all fields." said Commissioner I. T. Quinn. "School age is the time to instill a love of the outdoors ,respect for its advantages and protection for its inhabitants.

WELFARE DIRECTORS TO CO-OPERATE IN CHILD HEALTH DAY

MONTGOMERY—County Welfare directors and county superintendents of education in all parts of Alabama are urged to co-operate fully in the observance of Child Health Day, which will be observed throughout the nation on May Day, May 1, in a letter issued by Dr B. F. Austin, director of the Bureau of Hygeine and Nursing of the State oard of Health, who has been named chairman of the May Day-Child Health Day program for Alabama by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor ,which sponsors the annual observance.

A somewha tsimilar appeal was made by Dr. Austin a short time ago to th ehealth officers in Alabama's 57 counties having county departments of health.

The county officials have been urged to confer with other persons in their communities regarding plans for local observances, by means of which it is planned to acquaint the general public with the health needs of mothers and children.

In a Congressional resolution adopted on May 18, 1928, the President was authorized to proclaim May Day as Child Health Day The Children's Bureau has selected as its 1937 Child Health Day Slogan "Health Protection for Every Child" and is seeking to extend year-round child health services in every community. his theme will be stressed in the observance throughout Alabama.

When the grocer's boy shows up at your back door loaded down with tempting, out-of-season vegetables, fine quality canned goods, fresh meats and other delicacies—ten to one you never dream that your neighbor, the L & N has a hand in the delivery.

Actually, though, back of every food delivery to millions of people, there's the high speed, safe and sure L & N freight service. Thousands of cars iced up to keep green goods crisp and garden-fresh—thousands more packed to capacity with all manner of good things—flash across the country 24 hours a day. Thousands of alert, fast-working, careful employees bring order out of the maze of shipments—to make sure that your food arrives on time—in perfect condition.

Delivering groceries is just one of the hundred ways in which the L & N works to be of service—and that's being a good neighbor, don't you think?

NO CAR UNDER $1,000 GIVES YOU A V-8 ENGINE EXCEPT FORD!

A V-TYPE engine offers definite advantages in power and performance. And an 8-cylinder engine is smoother running than any engine with a lesser number of cylinders.

Yet, despite these advantages, only Ford has put the V-8 engine within the reach of every car buyer. And this year Ford offers owners the choice of two V-8 engines . . . the brilliant "85", improved for 1937, and the smaller, thrifty "60". In five of the 1937 Ford V-8 body-types you can have either of these engines, depending upon whether you want the maximum in performance or the maximum in economy. Both engines have cylinders and crankcase cast in one piece and both engines are distinguished by the same high quality of materials and precision manufacture which have made Ford dependability just as outstanding as Ford performance.

Drive one of our 1937 Ford V-8's. Try out the Easy-Action Safety Brakes. We're at your service with a car, ready to go, whenever you say the word.

The President's Economy Plea

It was to be expected that President Roosevelt's economy message would strike certain discords in Congress. Spending is an easier tune than budget balancing. But sober thought in both houses, as in the country is rallying to his position. The failure of tax receipts to come up to estimates requires a revision of plans. The President proposes for his own part, to withhold from apportionment for expenditure "a substantial percentage of the funds available for the next fiscal year so far as is feasible, and also to increase the receipts of the treasury through the liquidation of the assets of some of the emergency agencies. "I regard it as extremely important," he says, "that we should achieve a balance of actual income and outgo for the fiscal year 1938, and I appeal to you to join me in a determined effort to bring about that result. . . While I recognize many opportunities to improve social and economic conditions through federal action, I am convinced that the success of our whole program and the permanent security of our people demand that we adjust all expenditures within the limits of my budget estimate."

On this principle the President proposes that the work relief fund for next year shall be kept within one billion, five hundred million dollars, whereas certain Congressmen are for increasing it by nine hundred million or doubling it. The government's real responsiblities in work relief must be met as a matter of national welfare. Unemployment continues to be a serious problem, notwithstanding its large reduction in the last few years; and there are careful observers who predict that even a high tide of prosperity will not cut the number of the jobless below several million. These facts the President recognizes and would provide for them; but he also sees that the basic program of social security and national recovery depends upon sound fiscal policies. To attempt more than such policies warrant would be a hazard to the constructive efforts now under way. Appropriations beyond that margin of safety would be ill-advised. The country approves the President's appeal to defer or eliminate "all outlays which are not absolutely necessary at this time."

—The Atlanta Journal.

The Drunken Driver

Highway Patrol Chief McAdory recently pointed out that three factors were responsible for highway traffic deaths—roads, cars and drivers. As the officer said, the modern automobile is as near fool-proof as engineering research can make. Alabama roads, with some notable exceptions, are also good. It is the driver that must be reckoned with, for careless, reckless and drunken driving are responsible for practically every traffic accident in the state.

The new state act providing for drastic punishment for the drunken driver is a major step toward making the highways of the state more safe, and it is a law with which every driver should be familiar.

The provision makes a fine of not more than $100. or both a fine and a prison term mandatory upon conviction of drunken driving as well as a suspension of the driver's license for first offenders. The penalty is heavier for repeaters. The state officers have made it known that the new law will be enforced to the letter.

This law against drunken drivers is a good one, and it should have the support of every law agency in the state. Only stiff fines and prison terms from which there can be no appeal will ever lessen the number of persons who drive while intoxicated or under the influence of drugs.

Unless the drunken driver is banished from the highway, there can be no real safety for the careful motorist or pedestrian and it is unlikely that the high death toll will be lessened.

Every driver should be acquainted with the law. No driver will be able to take refuge in favoritism because of the mandatory clause, and for the same reason the law may be able to do some good. The drunken driver has no place upon our roads, but until he is forced to pay heavily for his violation of the law, we will have him with us.—Eufaula Tribune

Where Do School Funds Go?

If all the money that politicians have collected in behalf of the schools were put end to end it would reach to a proper education of every boy and girl in the land, but a lot of it is put to other purposes and the schools go on struggling.

In Alabama, where in the last twenty years, city, county, and school district taxes have been levied under a constitutional amendment adopted in 1916 and where an income tax has been in force ,and where exactions of many other kinds have been made, and where the state has just gone into the liquor business "to help the schools," the problem of education still is unsolved.

Dr. J. A. Keller, Alabama Superintendent of Education, is authority for the claim that full terms in public schools can be made possible only by going the limit in local taxation and by exercising the utmost economy in administration.

What is happening to school money when taxes "for school purposes" are created time and time again and enough revenue is derived to do the job as it should be done?

This is a question that ought to interest every Alabamian and there should be some means of getting the truth. Of the many millions of dollars raised for school purposes in the last twenty years, how much has gone for political purposes instead of purposes of education? A complete answer to this question might do more to solve the problem of school needs than any number of new taxes, and the answer should be demanded.—Tuscaloosa News.

An Exposition Year

Twe great International Expositions will be held in the United States in 1939.

They should not be competing projects but complete American Enterprise.

There is ample room in America for both, and ample reason for the most friendly co-operation between their promoters.

In New York City, the World's Fair of 1939 will utilize all the resources of science, education and industry to portray "The World of Tomorrow."

In San Francisco, the Golden Gate International Exposition will hail one of the greatest engineering triumphs of human history, the double bridging of San Francisco bay.

Between these two cities lies all of America, to be traversed and appreciated by the millions who will travel from one end of the country to the other.

The nation itself will thus be one vast exposition.

Millions of Americans will See America for the first time.

Visitors from every nation of the world will see, not one city or one section of America, but the entire nation.

The world will be welcomed to the opposite ends of America, and will witness all the marvels of the American scene en route.

What a year 1939 will be for Seeing America!

New York, the greatest city in the world, at one extreme of the tremendous American panorama!

At the other extreme, San Francisco, the wonderful Western "City of Seven Hills"—the splendid port into which pour the argosies of the East—San Francisco with its Golden Gate, famed in song and story with its marvelous created island in the middle of its beautiful bay, where the Exposition is already lifting the glory of its golden domes.

And in between, the whole inspiration of the Continuing Continental Exposition of American Progress and Achievement!

This is not a prospect into which the element of competition can properly enter.

Neither of these wonderful Expositions can be complete without the other.

Millions of people will visit both Expositions, to their profit and enlightenment.

They will cross America with the speed of one day's sun if they wish, or at their leisure if they will; but always in comfort and safety.

Those who travel without haste Will See The Most.

The year of 1939 will truly be a Great American Exposition year, with the cities of New York and San Francisco and with all America co-operating, to give the world the most inspiring spectacle it has ever seen. —News-Post.

A LETTER FROM MAMA

BY MILTON BIRD

BE Turner got the following letter on Friday, May 1, 1936:

"I just don't love you, Bill. Anyway, it wouldn't work out. Goodbye and the best o' luck. Anne"

Then, because Bill Turner was a very shy young man, he did a very extraordinary thing. He jumped 3 feet in the air and came down with a sudden thud, adding, in a quite hilarious manner, several noisy outbursts that sounded very much like laughter.

The few people in front of the post office looked at him dubiously. To them the sight of Bills happiness was strange and startling. Hadn't he always been the shyest youth in Cokeville, even to the point of timidity, and now this sudden act of hilarity! They shook their heads and watched him out of the corners of their eyes.

Everyone knew, or had heard, the story of his case of athlete's feet, got in the summer of 1938, because he dared not wear the white sandals the doctor prescribed for his feet; and most of them knew the torment he suffered on social occasions because he was ashamed to buy a certain soap from the village druggist; and his undies, pale cotton things, had not, as far as anyone knew, ever seen the sight of lux.

Still, the ladies liked Bill. They liked him because he had a patch of freckles under his left eye, and a dimple in his chin, and was terribly conscious of the way they twitched when he laughed. That was what first attracted Anne Stewart. Anne had seen the freckles and the dimple from the reserved section of Bill's arms and had liked the close-up immensely. Maybe she had liked it too well ;that is, she figured she had because after one quick trembling kiss Bill had dumped her out of his arms with a suddeness that took her breath away.

Still more things than wine get better as the days multiply. Affection does. Particularly when the boy is twenty and the girl eighteen, and they see each other most every night and dream about each other every day. All this Bill was remembering as he took another peek at the letter then, emitting another outburst, he ran off down the street.

He ran up East College Street, turned off at the public school, and breathing excitedly, climbed the stairs to Anne's apartment and beat on the door violently.

He listened. All he could hear was the beating of his own heart against his ribs. He was so happy he hurt, and the torment of waiting was unbearable. He walke up and down the hall ,listening, glancing back at the door, stopping ever so often to listen more intently.

Finally, there was a sound in the room inside. Bill swallowed his gum and scotched himself against the stair railing. The footsteps were coming nearer and his heart was beating more furiously. Suddenly he wondered wha the would say. He thought a hundred thoughts and discarded each one with a feeling of utter futility. Then the door opened. Momentarily he closed his eyes, held them closed for a moment, and then looked straight at the door.

"Good morning, Bill,' a woman's voice sounded. It was Mrs. Stewart. Bill thought another hundred thoughts But each one of them ended in an ca'he so none of them suited.

"Fine morning," he managed. That wouldn't do a. realized confusedly. What must he say. His heart was pounding louder now. She would hear it. She mustn't how excite: he was There were reasons. He swallowed three more times and started over: "I wonder," he said, "if I might see Anne."

"Anne has gone away," Mrs. Stewart said cooly.

Bill could feel the blood trickling along the rims of his ears.

"W-where?" he stammered.

Mrs. Stewart's voice was calm. "New York," she said, "to visit her aunt."

Bill turned away, walked down the stairs and made his way to the park. The third hundred thoughts were no better than the first two hundred, so he sat down under a tree to collect his wits. Hurt, he took out the letter to read it again. Maybe he had misunderstood. His eyes scanned the letters hurriedly. It was as plain as the nose on your face. But, hurrah, hossanah, there was another word, in one tiny corner of the paper that he had overlooked before. Just the one word, Birmingham, scribbled hurriedly in Anne's handwriting.

Immediately, the fourth hundred thoughts began. They were so fine that he simply basked in them, turning them over in his mind luxuriously adding each to the other, and reaching the hundreth just as the bus he was riding pulled into the terminal at Birmingham.

And that was the end of the thinking. Twice he tried, but having a woman in his arms drowning out his words wit hher kisses, made it impossible.

Presently Anne came out from under the freckles and said: "I had the awfullest time getting the letter away from mother long enough to get the Birmingham on it."

"And I had an awful time getting Bill Turner away from her long enough to get to Birmingham."

"But you did. And she didn't even suspect."

He traded her half interest in his freckles for a kiss.

"How could she," he managed after a moment, "when the letter stated very emphatically that Anne had ceased caring for Bill's company and henceforth in the future would find her happiness elsewhere."

He included the dimple in the transaction, raising the price a kiss.

"And, Darling," he went on happily "even the wise Mrs. Stewart didn't know you would mean just the opposite to what the letter said."

A GAMBLE

As the baseball season begins it might be well to consider the high prices paid for ball players and to understand that the magnates gamble whenthey buy.

An example is the purchase of Al Simmons by Detroit slightly more than a year ago for $75,000. The other day he was sold to another club for about one-fifth that sum. The gamble is that, this year, under new circumstances, the slugger may be worth $75,000

MEMORIAL DAY

Monday, April 26, was Memorial Day and the South paid tribute to the rapidly fading ranks of the men in gray and honored the memory of those valiant sons of the Confederacy who have answered the last roll call.

Strolling about one day last week in an endeavor, after the busy work a day world had ended, to clear the cobwebs from a tired brain, we walked thru the City of the Silent Sleepers in Columbiana, and found four Confederate Graves, marked "To An Unknown Confederate Soldier." We were not aware of these monuments to soldiers of the lost cause who have gone to the final bivouac. Evidently, they were natives of Shelby County. Not even a wreath of remembrance marked their graves. Can it be that patriotism is dying—or that the WARS in which so many lives were lost have been forgotten. LEST WE FORGET, we reprint a poem below which vividly pictures the transient, fleeting ,ungrateful attitude which seems to mark those who remained at home—as viewed by the "Spirit of the Doughboy."

TWENTY YEARS AFTER

Beside the cross on a rose-clad grave
In a sunny field i nFrance
A doughboys spirit stood at dawn,
And he cast his loving glance
Far to the West, to America's shores
Turned to the land of his birth,
As he asked his pals: "How goes it there?
How goes the rest of the Earth?

"It was twenty years ago this day
We rose in might and main
And went to war to end all war—
There'd be no war again!
We did our part, we won the fight,
Sent the foe home in defeat:
We gave our lives for lasting peace,
Has the job been made complete

"Do nations meet in conclave now
To mend their itching pride,
Have armies gone, are navies sunk,
Are air-bombs laid aside?
Do cannons rust, do rifles rot
Is life one happy song?
Does Justice fix for all the world
Just what is right and wrong?"

From North and South and East no sound,
No answer from the West,
The eerie soldier slumped from view,
Went back unto his rest
Among the tombs in serried rows
Of those who died for naught;
The statesman who took up their task
Forgot for what they fought.

REV. P. G. JOHNSTON

The Rev. P. G. Johnston se,ction foreman with the Southern Railway Company and Baptist Pastor, has received a promotion with this Company, which makes it necessary that he and his family remove to Jacksonville, Alabama. While offering congratulations upon the promotion which Mr. Johnston so richly deserves his many friends in Columbiana regret that he will leave this community which he has so faithfully and usefully served to accept the new responsibilities which the promotion involves. However, the good wishes of a large following in Columbiana follow Mr. and Mrs. Johnston and their family to their new field of employment.

BISHOP'S CRUSADE DINNER.

The Ladies of the Methodist Missionary Society were hostesses on Friday night when they entertained the members of the Methodist church with a Bishop's Dinner. A delightfully appropriate program was presented by Mrs. James R. White, Mrs. T K. Roberts and Luther Fowler, who made interesting talks interspersed with music. A playlet featuring Mrs Mary Nell Whitaker, J. Parham and Louise Lovelady was the concluding number, after which a delicious salad plate with tea was served. The money received from this occasion was donated to the Bishop's fund for Foreign Missions.

WHEELER REUNION

The Wheeler Family Reunion was held at W. J. Wheeler's home near Wilsonville on Sunday, April 18th. This being near the date of our mother's birthday anniversary, who left us five years ago. All the children were present except the oldest daughter, Mrs. McManus, who went to the spirit world on March the 6th. Those present were G. B., W J., J. B., J. A. and G. C. Wheeler all of Shelby County; Mrs. Max Perkins of Birmingham, Mrs. Viola Hickman and Mrs. J. R. Bentley of Sylacauga. A number of the grand children were absent. There were about 100 people all told. Several visitors from Birmingham and some from Sylacauga were present. Plenty of good things to eat. We had some good music and singing and everybody seemed to enjoy the day.

—G. B. Wheeler.

LITTLE GARY LUTTRELL

When Little Gary Luttrell, three months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Luttrell (Eunice White) makes her initial appearance in the native heath of her mpter, immediately old and cherished friends come in to pay homage to her tiny "Majesty"—and a daintier, lovelier bit of femininity than Gary would be hard to find. Cordially and with baby friendliness did she greet all who welcomed her in Columbiana on Sunday .

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Eiland of Dothan and Mr. and Mrs R. O. Culver of San Francisco, were visitors in Columbiana last Thursday.

ALICE NOLAN

We were delighted to welcome Alice Nolan of Wilton in the Democrat office on Friday. Miss Nolan has been the Democrat correspondent from her home town since the paper was organized and her efficient reporting and her loyalty to us has made our journalistic pilgrimage together a most pleasant and profitable journey. We proffer thanks for continued support from the Wiltonians. Miss Nolan will be glad to receive new subscribers and to renew your subscriptions if they have expired. Please call her!

A BRIEF SKETCH OF ALABAMA'S ONLY NATIVE GOVERNOR

Only Native Alabamian Elected As Governor Of State

Alabama was just emerging from the dark days of the reconstruction period following the War between the States when Rufus Wills Cobb took office as governor of the state. He was born at Ashville, St. Clair County, February 25, 1829 attended school at Ashville, graduated from the University o fTennessee in 1850, read law at Ashville and was admitted to the bar at that place in 1855.

After two years' practice at Ashville, he moved to Shelby County, where he formed a law partnership with B. B. Lewis, which continued until the latter's election to the presidency of the University of Alabama. Enlisting in the Confederate Army, he was commissioned captain of Company C, Tenth Infantry, Forney's Brigade, was sent to Virginia, and in 1863 was assigned to Gen. Joe Wheelers Calvary in Tennessee, where he was placed in charge of scouting.

After the war he practiced law at Marion until 1868, when he moved to Columbiana, remaining there until 1873, when he located at Helena. He was elected to the State Senate from Shelby and Bibb Counties in 1872 and from Shelby and Jefferson Counties in 1876.

During the Houston administration he and Peter Hamilton of Mobile, adjusted the state's debts under authority of a commission given them by the Legislature.

He was elected by the Democratic party as Governor in 1878 and re-elected in 1880.

While practicing law he interested himself in agriculture and industry, conducted a cotton plantation, was president of the Central Iron Works, Helena, 1873-91, and developed the Delmar ore mines in North Alabama.

He was a Baptist and member of all branches of the York and Scottish Rite Masons and during his first term as Governor also was Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Alabama, a distinction attained by no other man in the history of the state.

He was twice married, first to Margaret McClung of Knoxville, Tenn., and second to Frances Fell. Of these marriages, three sons and one daughter were born.

EPITAPHS!

Had you ever thought what kind of an epitaph can TRUTHFULLY be written about you after you have "passed on?" Your every day life lived by and with people who know you, speaks volumes! Some lives register a worth while existence on account of THOUGHTFUL CONSIDERATION of the other fellow. Some will be long remembered on account of their SMILES. Some by their gifts of FLOWERS to brighten the long hours. Some by their INDOMITABLE FIGHTING SPIRIT Some by their GENEROSITY. Others in a not so favorable light will possibly be occasionally recalled by their over indulgence in GOSSIP. The malicious, idle kind that only brainless wonders indulge in, or only morons believe. Others by their STINGINESS. Others by the SKEPTIC UNBELIEF in people and things — and so it goes, living characteristics that mark your daily pilgrimage are NOT unnoticed by those who, too, are travelling thru, before "Crossing the Bar"—to the Land of Never Return!

SUNSHINE AND SHADOWS

Legions of friends of Mayor Harry Gordon regret to learn of his serious illness in the Baptist Hospital in Birmingham. Many friends of Ruth Luck will be happy to know she is convalescing rapidly after several weeks sojourn in a Birmingham Infirmary. Happy news in Kiddie Land brings the comforting message that Buddy Bird will soon return home from the Childrens Hospital where he has been a patient little sufferer for the past two weeks. Mr. O. P. Head, who number his friends by hundreds throughout Shelby County, will regret to learn of his illness at his home in Wilton.

Mrs. Ernest Westmore nee Ethlyn Williamson, and known on the screen as Ethlyn Claire, visited Mrs. Rosa Teague in Columbiana on Tuesday.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS

In 18 states Daylight Savings Time went into effect on last Sunday.

Possibly you were confused in turning your dial for your favorite radio program to hear an entirely different one at the time formerly scheduled for your Sunday evening's choice entertainment. It was on account of reaching up and getting another hours time before the old Sun said Goodnight—in other words, DAYLIGHT STVINGS TIME.

THE LONG DAY CLOSES

"And now the long Summer's Day has drawn to evening, evening, serene and joyous as the dawn. Overhead the stars have come out—the steadfast stars, neither fretting nor fuming nor reforming one another" What a peaceful setting greets us as we join the Rocking Chair Brigade on our own front porch to watch the stars peep thru—and to listen to that Whip-poor-will's lullaby as we seek a bit of shut eye before again tackling the tasks which will come on the Morrow. Thanks for following thru—and for your kindnesses shown us this week. Especially do we send our appreciation to Irene West Stone for the loveliest bunch of Sweet Peas we have seen—but no lovelier than the pretty little donor, nor more radiant than her smile of greeting nor sweeter than her words of presentation. Thanks a million Little Lady. You know what we hav elong thought about little old Y-O-U-!

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

We know a certain young couple who have leased an apartment at the Imperial apartment house which makes it plain as day tha tthere already has been or there soon will be a wedding. Personally, we believe they are already hitched, judging by the wifely and husbandly smiles of—Oh! no, that would be telling . . . . How many of you saw O. B. Mathis week end guest, Gaillard Counts? Some of our girls seem to have gone quite "dippy" over those BLUE eyes and that let-me-take-you-in-my arms smile. No doubt these girls would be thrilled to have Gaillard spend frequent week ends in our fair haven. O. B. thinks he will finish his business course at Alverson in about a month but Gaillard is of the opinion that they will have to burn the building to get rid of O. B. . . . There is crepe on the hearts ofPat Swinney's friends and loved ones for Pat crossed over the river last week His friends were innumerable and none can understand why Pat, who was only eighteen, was so early called away. We take this opportunity of extending a deep and heart felt sympathy to the bereaved ones. "God giveth and God taketh away." This sweet life has been taken but we know of a new one that has been given which is by way of saying that Mr. and Mrs. Bud Blankenship are now sporting a new name, "Popper and Mommer." Congratulations to Mr and Mrs. Blankenship. . . . We always thought Siluria was a friendly little village, but now we know it since Miss Grace Rasco of Sylacauga who was a visitor here last week, expressed her opinion. She says that this is the friendliest little place she was ever in. Don't get the "swell head" over that, folks, we're sorry that Grace's visit had to be cut so short. . . . Carlos Tilley was treated to a surprise birthday party last Friday night. His mother gave the party in honor of his sixteenth birth day. Games and contests furnished entertainment for sixteen guests until the late and cock crowing hour of eleven at which hour a delicious ice course was served. All power to you in the future, Carlos, and we hope you live a thousand years and never do die . . . . The first ball game to be played in Siluria this season was pitched off Sunday afternoon at the Buck Creek Ball Park. Clanton was their stiff opponent, but our boys were the victors . . . This cold snap caused our citizens to draw up like cheap gingham in the wash, especially the ones who failed to wear a coat to Church Sunday morning. . . After thinking and thinking we can't think of anything else so we'll quit

'til another day,
Nell and Nelle.

HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB OF LONGVIEW HAS MEETING

The Longview Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. Sam Pardue April 20th. After group singing the program was in keeping with Arbor Day. Mrs. J. O. Jones gave the history of Arbor Day. Mrs. Roland Hale read a paper "Trees,' A Friend t oMan," Mrs. Fred Hillman an interesting talk on "The Value of the Forest" and Mrs. Wilson Durhen read a poem entitled "Trees." We all then entered in to the spirit of the program in a contest, seeing who could name the most Alabama native trees in six minutes. Mrs. Thompson of Siluria won the prize which was a sample box of Rumford Baking Powder. The program was closed by all singing a new song "Gone Are The Days," which we all enjoyed very much.

The meeting was then turned over to Miss Nolen, who with the help of Mrs. Hillman, gave us very interesting and helpful points for our kitchen

After this discussion, Mrs Pardue asked us into her kitchen, where Miss Nolen discussed the good things about it and also where things might be made better and more convenient for her.

About 4 o'clock a delicious lunch was served by the hostess. The next meeting is to be with Mrs. Thompson at Siluria.

Mr Carl Ballard of Birmingham, spent the week end with friends.

Mr. and Mrs Prince Martin of Birmingham, were the guests of Mrs W. H. Martin and family Sunday

LIQUOR TO SELL 20 TO 40% CHEAPER IN THE STATE STORES

MONTGOMERY—Liquor will be sold in Alabama state stores from 20 to 50 per cent lower than previous bootleg prices, it was revealed last week as the Alabama Alcoholic Beverage Control Board released its price list.

Stores at Montgomery, Mobile and Birmingham and a number of small towns in the 24 wet counties were stocking their shelves with about 200 brands of domestic and foreign whiskey, rum, gin wines, cordials and liqueurs this week, it was learned.

A caravan of trucks loaded with the first legal booze to be sold in Alabama in 22 years, arrived in Montgomery from Mobile last Friday, some of which was consigned to Birmingham.

Meanwhile, Montgomery bootleggers who have done an open and highly lucrative business for years were scurrying for cover as inspector-agents of the beverage board made "friendly calls" to inform them that they must "cease and desist" or suffer the consequences. No seizures or arrests were made ,and it was hoped that such action would not be necessary ,said David Earl Dunn, assistant administration of the ABC board. A cursory survey here revealed that little or no contraband liquor remained. The more reputable proprietors of restaurants and clubs were willingly cooperating with the board, it was said and open bootlegging had all but disappeared in the capitol city.

MAKE WORK SHEETS FOR MAY 15 IS FINAL DATE

The State Conservation Board has set May 15 as the final date for making work sheets for those who wish to take part in the 1937 Conservation Program,

This is a very important program from the standpoint of maintaining a fair price for cotton and building the soils.

We are anxious to aid the farmers in taking full advantage of the benefits offered by the program, and would ilke to see every farmer who can reduce his cotton or carry out soil building practices sign a work sheet before it is too late.

To make it as convenient as possible, we are making the final round scheduled below to aid in making the work sheets. It is not possible to call at individual farms, but I am sure you will be glad to meet us at the appointed time in your community.

It will greatly aid us in this work if you will have the following information about your farm:

1. Who worked the farm in 1935 and 1936.
2. Number acres cotton grown in 1936. Bales made.
3. Number acres legumes normally planted.

LOVEMAN'S STORE TO GIVE $200. TO WINNING ESSAY

BIRMINGHAM—A state wide contest, with $200.00 in cash awards awaiting boys and girls under 16 years of age who write prize winning essays on the subject "Industry the Soul of Alabama," will feature the big Golden Jubilee Celebration of Loveman, Joseph & Loeb, Alabama's largest department store, in commemoration of its fiftieth anniversary, according to Joseph H. Loveman, president.

"The boy or girl who wins first prize will receive $100.00 in cash; second prize $50.00; third prize, $15.; fourth prize, $10.00. Besides, there will be five other prizes of $5.00 each So, boys and girls of Alabama hurry up and get your essays in!" said Mr. Loveman.

The contest closes at midnight on May 15. All entries should be addressed to the Advertising Department, Loveman, Joseph & Loeb, Birmingham, Alabama.

Essays will be judged entirely on merit and may be as long or as brief as desired. Artwork, or "trimmings" will not be considered in awarding the prizes, Mr. Loveman explained.

Representatives of Birmingham Newspapers and the Parent-Teacher Association will be sole judges of the contest.

As an aid in writing the essays, all boys and girls who can come to Birmingham within the next few days will find it worthwhile to study the 20 elaborate window displays featured by Loveman, Joseph & Loeb as part of its fiftieth anniversary celebration.

Each display contains a large size oil painting depicting in brilliant hues a phase of Alabama's industrial advancement. A vital picturization of the romantic story of steel making is one of the major exhibits. Revealing the story in word and picture five large Birmingham concerns—Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, Republic Steel Corporation, Woodward Iron Company, Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Company, and Ingalls Iron Works—cooperated in its presentation.

Picturesque views of the hewing of iron ore and coal from Alabama hills are also a novel feature of the displays. Oil paintings and educational exhibits composing this part of the demonstration are sponsored by various coal and iron ore mining companies of the state.

The Alabama By-Products Company's display depicts the remarkable story of the extraction of many useful chemicals from Alabama coal Alabama Power Company and the Birmingham Electric Company present an exhibit of electricity in Alabama's residential and business life. Southern Bell Telephone Company shows the far reaching importance of communications in our state's growth.

Products made by Alabama textile mills are displayed, with murals of the cotton industry, by Avondale Mills. The way in which agriculture aids industry is also shown in another window.

Authorities have said these 20 window displays strike a new note in the presentation of Alabama's industrial development, and already thousands of people have studied them.

Loveman, Joseph & Loeb was founded in April, 1887 and has been in continous operation as a leading Alabama firm ever since that date.

COUNTY EXEMPT ON 2 PER CENT TAX

MONTGOMERY—Purchases of materials and supplies by county governing bodies, sales of all types of magazines and periodicals ,and printing service including book-binding, engraving and embossing, were held to be exempt from the 2 per cent luxury tax in two court rulings last week.

The Alabama Supreme Court last Thursday held that magazines are not taxable under provisions of the levy, while the other rulings were made by Judge Walter B. Jones in Montgomery circuit court. In each case, it was pointed out, the test suit was entirely friendly, both the State Tax Commission and the complainants being equally desirous that the luxury tax act enacted by the Legislature early this year be clarified for the benefit of all concerned.

Prior to Judge Jones' decision, Attorney General Albert A. Carmichael had issued a ruling declaring that it was the Legislature's "intent" that purchases by counties be exempt, as well as those by the State and cities.

SUMMER TERM AT MONTEVALLO TO OPEN ON JUNE 10

MONTEVALLO—A faculty of recognized leaders in education from many states will conduct the progressive education program in the Summer School of Alabama College opening here June 10, according to Dr. M. L Orr director.

Heading the progressive education work will be Dr. Alice V. Keliher, of New York, chairman of the Commission on Human Relations of the Progressive Education Association. She will be assisted by a corps of expert demonstration teachers, by the Alabama College faculty, by James S. Tippett, curriculum director of the Parker school district, Greenville, S. C; and by Miss Grace Tietje, T. V. A. school, Sheffield, Alabama.

Of interest to teachers studying curriculum problems will be a curriculum laboratory operated as part of the progressive program, and conducted by James S. Tippett, Miss Grace Tietje and Mrs. Charlotte Peterson. A variety of illustrative materials textbooks, booklets, pamphlets periodicals and free materials will be available. Through the curriculum laboratory, guidance material will be developed for use in the curriculum revision program by teachers of the State.

Non-credit short courses of a new type at Montevallo will be offered as follows: Coaching high school dramatics, June 10-21; progressive education, June 21-July 2; curriculum problems, June 28-July 2; and directing high school news writing, July 5-10.

Miss Wilma Tate spent the week end inTuscaloosa the guest of Miss Jackie Falls.

Heart Drifts

STORMY SEASON

The heart knows its windy season;
Now without reproof,
Let it batter the walls of reason,
Tug at windows and roof;

Unhinge the creaking shutter
Let clapboard and shingle fly
While thunders groan and mutter
And lightnings slash the sky.

After the crash and clatter,
After the wrench and strain,
Only the things that matter
In the still sun remain.

—M. G. B.

WORLD TO COME

Some say this of Heaven, and some say that of Heaven;
For your heart, your dream; for my heart, mine.
Some will have a splendid star for their guiding given;
Some a little steadfast flame of candlelight ashine.

All I know, and all I care, 'twill prove a happy homing;
Be the journey long or brief, the ending shall be blest,
Where the strong and eager find them fair new fields for roaming
Where the old and weary find them rest.

—Selected.

THE HERB CALLED HEARTSEASE

The herb called heartease
Grows as it will
Not on every hill.

If a gardener knew the secret
Of its growing, all
The world would come a-storming
His garden wall.

A strange herb is heartease,
Of old, wise ways.
Some have sought it weeping,
For half their days,

And then, turning, homeward
And weeping no more,
Have found it growing sweetly
By the kitchen door.

—Nancy Byrd Turner.

SLEEP

Lie still and mark
The comfort and the blessing of the dark,
How gentle in the hollow of its hand,
How quietly, it holds the trusting land,
The stars, the dreaming boughs, the folded wings,
Think on these things

Remember long ago:
How, when the shadows used to gather slow,
You put your treasures down and faltered home,
Happy with play, but glad the dusk had come,
Your eyeleds dropping in the sweet twilight—
Remember this tonight.

Be safe; be still.
When dawn shall wake you at your window-sill
There will be beauty in the mornings gold;
There will be strength for all the day shall hold;
But now the night has taken you, strong and deep,
So . . . . sleep.

AN ERSTWHILE WOMAN HATER TO HIS LOVE

For days and weeks I've meditated
On you—and women I have hated.
You'd be surprised to know how hatable
Girls are to one so unplacatable
As I have been until quite recently;

But I'll confess my dudgeon decently!
I hated Moudie, who tried to tell me
She was the type who could impel me
To Higher Things and Thoughts Inspired.

Oh, how that woman made me tired!
I hate Yvonne, Annette and others
Who "trust me as they would their brothers!"

And you, whom I consider catty
Perverse, pernicious and high-hatty,
So fiercely eager to infest me
With gibes to prove that you detest me—
With all my heart I should abhor you!
But listen, lady—I adore you!

ALUMNI BANQUET OF SHELBY COUNTY HI TO BE MAY 7TH

The annual Alumni Banquet of Shelby County High School has been set for May 7, The plans are being handled by the Senior Three Class of Shelby High. This affair is held each year to form a closer union between the graduates of the school and the school. The banquet is to be held in the spacious halls of Shelby High to bring back memories of days spent there before.

The Senior Three Class has been divided into groups, each of which has been assigned a definite duty to perform. Some of the committees are those on arrangements, foods, decorations, activities and invitations.

An elaborate menu has been planned as well as a very interesting program. All those attending are assured a delightful evening of entertainment.

School records prior to 1926 are neither complete nor accurate. Because of this fact, it is very likely that some names have been left off the invitation list. When such an omission occurs, the alumnus should communicate with L. B. Riddle, Jr,. the chairman of the invitation committee.

GOV. GRAVES SEEKS TO RAISE WAGES IN INDUSTRIAL SOUTH

MONTGOMERY—Governor Bibb Graves will champion the cause of Labor in an effort to put an end to low wages in the industrial South, due in part to unfair and inequitable railway freight rates.

This was revealed earl ythis week as the Governor prepared to attend a conference of 12 Southern Governors, together with heads of various State railway and public service commissions and rate experts called in Atlanta on May 10.

Purpose of the meeting is to bring about a more equitable scale of freight rates from the South to the great Chicago territory similar to the reduction on coke shipments ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission last year and subsequently upheld by a three-judge Federal court sitting in Chicago.

"One of the chief causes of lower wages in the South is the high freight rates imposed on our industries which must compete successfully in the rich Chicago territory which is the greatest consumer of textile goods in the world," Governor Graves explained

"This is a fight not just for Alabama and the South ,but on behalf of the nation as a whole," he added.

Governor Graves was recently named permnent chairman of the group of Southern Governors seeking to obtain fairer freight rates from their States to the large Eastern and Mid-Western marketing centers

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

Here we are with bells on. We're all wound up and its doubtful whether we ever run down or not. First off the reel we wished we could turn back the pages of time and go skipping to that birthday party of little Audry Lee Gardner's last Thursday afternoon.. Betty Sue Robinson, Hazel Howard, Buck Duke, Jimmy Tilley, Louise Howard, Alice Faye Cofer Braxton Bradley Billy Joe Northcutt Sherry Edwards and James Crotwell were there in a merry way all decked out in pink and blue crepe paper head bands and sashes. Margaret Tilley and Janie Nix led the games and contests. The little honoree received many lovely gifts. Delicious refreshments were served this bunch of kiddies and so far as we know everybody had a jolly time . . . There is a gorgeous rose budding in the corner of Mr. and Mrs. Clay Parrish's yard that we are sorely tempted to snitch . . . One by one our citizens are shuffing off to (not Buffalo) the hospital. It is distressing to say the least though so far all have come out from under the knife in splendid shape. Just now Mrs. John Denham and Mrs. Pope are taking it easy after undergoing an operation. We await their return . . . How does it feel to get into a home of your own, Newlyweds? We're asking Mr. and Mrs. Almus Glass. They have taken a house in our village and we're fishing for an invitation to go avisiting. While we're on the subject that couple whom we were speaking of last week has moved into their apartment. They are not known as Mr. and Mrs A. B. Bradly, so you see the wedding bells have already chimed out. Congratulations, Doris and A. B. . . . Judging by the manner in which Troy Henderson dashes that dishwater out he must be a dandy cook and housekeeper. Poor Troy, he's having a time but we think it will do him good and help him too. . . . Guess Mr and Mrs. Ray Thornton think they got something. At least we would if we were driving a new "Chevie." Words leave us when we attempt to tell about that house party at our house this week end. It was divine, it was swell, oh, it was great! The only flaw in it was the fact that it had to end. The couples were like this: Zola Moore and Clarence Stewart, Margie Reach and Lloyd Rasco, Ella Ree Cost and Fred Russell, Hazel Maudling and Relius Nobles, Elizabeth Maudling and Shelby Minor, Nell Hughey and Leonard Brasher, and Nelle Walton and Curtis Harris. The boys were from Sylacauga. What a "chawming" place that must be to harbor such likable young men. And can they handle that violin, guitar and banjo. That music would have melted the heart of the sphinx. We can't help but notice that Elizabeth has developed a sudden weakness for black curly hair and Zola is dippy over blonds—especially if his name is Clarence. For some unknown reason Ella Ree is partial to the name Fred. Margie Reach prefers her boy friends tall, dark and handsome. Little mustaches sure do "tickle" Nelle. Nell is frantically scanning the cook books these days in an effort to learn the art of cooking bow-legged biscuits on a knock-kneed stove. Hazel met again "the boy who used to live next door to her." If the boys knew how welcome they were they'd be surprised and we, speaking for all the girls, hope they repeat the visit soon. . . Lexie and Odell went to town Saturday on a shopping spree and you ought to have seen Lexie "flossed" out in her new dress Saturday night. . . . Margaret Tilley had as her guest Saturday night George Johnson of Birmingham. George has a new car and Margaret is just some proud of it. Who wouldn't be . . . Here's a bit of timely advice, you'd better be careful or the LOVE BUG will bite you. He's already bitten several that we know. No cure has ever been known for this delicious disease. If we survive, you'll be hearing from us,

Next week,
Nelle and Nell.

RETURN OF BELL TO CHURCH ADDS TO THEFT PUZZLE

DECATUR—Did the lin-lan-lone at evening of a bell taken from a church two years ago vibrate a chord of conscience in the thief and cause him to return it? That's what he did a few days ago.

The bell was stolen from Belleview Church on Moulton Highway nine miles west of here, in 1935. Church officers never knew what became of it and the bell's disappearance remained a mystery. It still does—with another mystery added to it. When it was stolen the bell had a crack in it. But when it was returned the aperture had been mended. And a workmanlike job it was ,too.

Those winning cash prizes in Calera on Trades Day Saturday were: Miss Mildred Cook 50c, Mr. M. J. Owens 50c; Miss Luthie Phillips 50c; Miss Frances Johnson 50c; Bud Martin $1.00; Miss Mildred Cook $1.00; and D. C. Dunlap $1.00.

J. F. POPE CO. CELEBRATING SIXTY YEARS OF SERV

The Democrat joins a host of friends and patrons of the J. F. Pope Company, General Merchants and Cotton Buyers of Wilsonville, in extending congratulations to this highly esteemed Company upon the occasion of the celebration of 60 years of dependable service to this territory.

While talking with our good friend Mr. W .H. Pope, who is Secretary and Treasurer of the Company, the writer was interested in finding out a bit of history regarding the founding of perhaps the largest Mercantile establishment and the oldest in Shelby County. The following facts, we feel sure you will find interesting:

In 1877, the late J. F. Pope came to Wilsonville, a young man with brilliant ideas and a far vision for the future development o fthe home of his choice. He began his journey in commercial circles in Shelby County as a Clerk in the store of the late Col. W. T Smith, who was operating a small country store in a frame building on the same location the imposing brick structure now stands. Soon after Mr. Pope's arrival in Wilsonville, a one half interest in the Smith Store was sold to Mr. G. W. McGowen, and the firm operated under the name of Smith and McGowen Later, Mr. Pope bought Mr. McGowen's interest and operated the store under the caption of J, F. Pope, until his death which occurred in 19[illegible]ess otherwise After his passing, the heirs organ[illegible] amount to one a stock company and incorpo[illegible] several hundred the business under its present THE J. Heart Disease A Killer

[illegible] disease is rapidly becoming the chief cause [illegible]h in the United States, being far ahead of [illegible], the second on the list of diseases which kill greatest number of people in the United States every year. Incidentally ,of the ten leading causes [illegible] death in the country, only one, tuberculosis, has shown a steady decline during the past three years. Whether this is to be attributed to the steady campaign which is waged against the white plaque, or not, we have no way of knowing but we suspect that there is some close connection.

Concerning heart disease, Dr. Harry L. Smith, of the Mayo Clinc, reports that coronary sclerosis is sometimes called the "disease of the intelligensia" because of the susceptibility of physicians, bankers, lawyers and clergymen. The characteristics of the disease include the hardening of the nerves, ligaments and blood vessels around the heart and its incidence is highest among those who do mental work and lowest among those who do manual labor .

This newspaper naturally hesitates to attempt any conclusion from these observations but, apparently, the disease attacks individuals who are prone to forget the importance of physical exercise while consuming their energies in the anxiety of mental worries. It would appear that, somewhere along the line of popular education in this country, the physical nature of man has been neglected. If this is true, and we believe that it is, we might save the lives of future professional men by stressing athletic activities during childhood, with the hope that, when they grow up, the individuals will have sense enough to continue what has been wisely begun.

The world's economy is out of joint when millions of people face starvation and suffering and there's no philosophy that excuses such a condition.

The trouble with so many people who believe in is that they don't believe in anything else.

[illegible] Is Clean-Up Time

[illegible]gns of spring fever every where. [illegible]ng and sowing their fields. Sur- [illegible]g their gardens. Housewives are [illegible]ping homes. Communities are [illegible]ent projects.

[illegible] movement to paint up ,clean-up and beau- [illegible]s a community, it leaves in its wake a happier town. From the standpoint of fire [illegible]ne, the movement pays big dividends—as the [illegible]how, many a disastrous fire has been caused [illegible]bish and litter. What Is Traffic Control?

A noted traffic authority recently discussed the traffic accident problem in terms of three types of safety. The first is personal safety, the necessity for protecting the limbs and lives of us all.

The second is moral safety, the necessity for building an appreciation of the values of proper regulation, Motor vehicle traffic inevitably involves the law and law observance.

Disregard for the laws of the road, even the minor ones, breeds contempt and disregard for more serious rules of society, especially among the young, for in the early stages disrespect for law masquerades as adventure.

The third is the need for protecting the economic benefits which accrue from the widespread use of the automobile. Traffic accidents not only cost millions of dollars directly through [illegible] lost time, hospital expenses and repair bills—they also push down property and rental values, slow up business turnover, reduce the value of investment portfolios, large and small.

Our understanding of the traffic problem might be better served if in thinking about it we substitute for the relatively narrow term "traffic safety" the more accurate term "traffic control." Traffic control means the application of certain logical principles to motor vehicular movement which will at once ease congestion and reduce hazard.

An important step in the direction of effective traffic control is the publication of the handbook, "Creating Safer Communities." Published by state motor vehicles and safety authorities in 24 states in co-operation with the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, the handbook tells how to set up a community traffic safety organization and presents a series of procedures for reducing accidents by removing their causes. It describes how essential accident information is secured.

In this kind of co-ordinated community approach to traffic problems can we hope to achieve mastery of a grave menace to the nation's personal, moral and financial safety.

When the grocer's boy shows up at your back door loaded down with tempting, out-of-season vegetables, fine quality canned goods, fresh meats and other delicacies—ten to one you never dream that your neighbor, the L & N has a hand in the delivery.

Actually, though, back of every food delivery to millions of people, there's the high speed, safe and sure L & N freight service. Thousands of cars iced up to keep green goods crisp and garden-fresh—thousands more packed to capacity with all manner of good things—flash across the country 24 hours a day. Thousands of alert, fast-working, careful employees bring order out of the maze of shipments—to make sure that your food arrives on time—in perfect condition.

Delivering groceries is just one of the hundred ways in which the L & N works to be of service—and that's being a good neighbor, don't you think?

JOE STONE AND THE FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

Recently, on several occasions, we ve come in contact with members an interesting organization known the Future Farmers of America. nding the personnel of this famous oup the most energetic "up and at crowd" of youngsters we have en in many moons, with all their rograms having a worth while mo- ve behind the successful activity xpended, we began a pilgrimage to nd out WHO furnished the inspira- on for this veritable wave of accom- lishment for which the Future Farm s of America are noted—and the an we found was JOE STONE, af- ctionately known as "SOAPY." Mr. one was busily engaged in com- eting plans with his "boys" for eir summer cross country jaunt hich will carry them into the far est. (Last year their tour included lorida and the West Coast.). We vidly recalled, in our conversation, th Mr. Stone our years spent in holastic circles ,and also the im- rtant factor the Agricultural De- rtment played in each undertaking e sponsored during our five years the Shelby County High School. ct is, when we wanted anything ne RIGHT THAT MINUTE and ne RIGHT—we always ran to the ocational Department and presto— ere it was completed, and in place, re it stage scenery or a last min- e character for which we had been arching. This department has al- ys been teeming with both talent nd brains. A combination which is nbeatable. So, complying with our equest for a bit of history regarding is all important Department of Vo- ational Education which, by the way e are in danger of losing should we il to make arrangement for a new nd modern equipped building accord g to the specifications required— asked r. Stone for some "facts figu --and we believe you will nte ed in the following data od s from the genial, all a- Aub port, and excellently e- h arn graduate who has an enviable record since ommand of these young exactly ten years ago!

st year in Agricultural Ed- the Shelby County High an in 1918, under the su- f J. L. Bryan. The Form he plan for vocational ag- instruction, approved by Board is signed for 1918, signature of Spright Dow- tive Secretary. (Dr. Dow- ell was for a number of years Prin- cipal of the Columbiana Schools, be- fore receiving the many promotions in the State which finally took him to the Presidency of Auburn. He is now occupying the enviable posi- tion of President of Mercer College in Macon, Georgia.) Turning further the pages of this document we find enrolled in this first class the names of Blackmon Acuff, Will Parker, Ar- thur Price, Gerald Fulton, James Moore, Homer Walton, Hubert Lyon, Howard Hill, Claude Shrader, Nina Shrader, Hannon Hicks Marion Pitts Laura Belle Jordan, Estelle Kimble, Jimmy Finley. Many of these stu- dents have lead successful and color- ful lives, especially outstanding is Howard Hill who has won national recognition as a world renowned Archer and is now a featured player on the cinema screen. You will re- cognize many successful business and professional men in the line-up—as we see them every day in Columbiana

During the past decade since Mr Stone has piloted the activities of this department, there have been en- rolled 297 pupils who have gone thru the course offered. Seven students have completed their college courses, 103 are actively engaged in Farming and 17 have secured responsible ag- ricultural positions and are employ- ed on Federal projects.

All students have been outstandng in their practical projects and are fully capable of competing with bu- siness and agricultural problems.

Farming, scientifically and suc- cessfully, is one of the main objects in the Vocational course offered. Was it Daniel Webster who once re- minded us that the cultivation of the earth was the most important labor of man? He further stated "Man may be civilized in some degree with out great progress in manufactures and with little commerce with his dis tant neighbors. But without culti- vation of the earth, he is, in all coun- tries, a savage. Until he gives up the chase, and fixes himself in some place, and seeks a living from the earth, he is a roaming barbarian. When tillage begins, other arts fol- low. THE FARMERS THEREFORE ARE THE FOUNDERS OF CIVILI- ZATION.

Realizing the importance of the farm ers, it is necessary to train the Fu- ture Farmers of America to carry on the great work which Mr. Stone has successfully endeavored to foster, even with limited equipment and in a most deplorably deficient building. We urge all civic organizations, clubs the Mayor and Council and each citi- zen in Shelby County to investigate this requirement for the continuation of this work, and lend a hand in help- ing maintain the standard necessary for this department to remain a part of the Shelby County High School. Should Columbiana or Shelby County fail in this, and lose this vitally im- portant spoke in the Educational wheel of progress—the loss would be inestimable. The cause warrants the serious consideration and co-opera- tive interest of every citizen.

WILTON-DAY BY DAY

By Alice Nolen

A wet week end to report but not the intoxicating kind. The skies wept profusely and made many stay at homes, but some activities have been carried on. ON—

Sunday

Miss Fannie Thomas left for a visit with relatives in Talladega for several days.

Philip Harrison, who works in Birmingham, spent the day with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Harri- son.

Mr. and Mrs Henry Winslett of Al- drich were guests in the afternoon of Mr. and Mrs Geo. Winslett

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lacey and Philip Lacey of Maylene and Mr. Lance Hubbard of Montgomery spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Hubbard.

The meeting is progressing nicely. Large crowds are attending the ser- vices conducted by Rev. Byron Hixon of Wilsonville.

Mrs. Leonard Wyatt, Mr and Mrs. Jarratt Evans and children of Birm- ingham were spend the day guests of Mrs. Sara Nabors and Mrs. Ada Pruitt.

Monday

Miss Mary Leonard was called back to Prattville to teach another month in the grammar school there. The town extended the term after having closed for two weeks.

Mrs. Tom Taylor, Dorothy and Elizabeth Taylor of Columbiana were dinner guests of Mr and Mrs. W. L. Thompson.

Delton Rhodes of Birmingham was at home for the day.

Reports were that little Bobby Franks was being taken to an in- firmary in Birmingham for treatment of mastoids. Our sincerest wishes for the little man to return home soon and well again went with him.

Mrs. Tom Shaw of Aldich, was the guest of Mrs. A. L. Lucas for the day.

Tuesday

Miss Sadie Word left for Calera to accept a position in the Modern Beauty Shop. Miss Word completed a course in Beauty Culture at the Modern Beauty Shop in Clanton.

Wednesday

In the afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 Mrs. E. V. Waldrop entertained in honor of her son Emmit Jr., on his sixth birthday. A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in table appointments and refreshments. Games were enjoyed until 5:00 o'clock then after wishing him many more happy birthdays and presenting many nice gifts, the little guests were in- vited into the dining room where ice cream and cake were served to the following: Eddie Ewing, Jimmy At- chison, Billie Lee Elizabeth and Louie Smitherman Jr., Patricia and Virgin- ia Woolley, Robert Dennis, Fay Franks, Bonnie Fay Thomas Glenn Canant, Curry Rhodes Ward, Emmit Jr., Waldrop.

Mrs. Waldrop was assisted in serv- ing by Mrs. Louie Smitherman and Miss Alice Nolen.

Thursday

The Evening Class will meet with Mrs. F. W. Bassett in the afternoon at 3:30. The subject to be discussed is an arrangement of pictures. All ladies in the community are urged to

RETURN OF BELL TO CHURCH ADDS TO THEFT PUZZLE

DECATUR—Did the lin-lan-lone at evening of a bell taken from a church two years ago vibrate a chord of conscience in the thief and cause him to return it? That's what he did a few days ago.

The bell was stolen from Belleview Church on Moulton Highway nine miles west of here, in 1935. Church officers never knew what became of it and the bell's disappearance re- mained a mystery. It still does— with another mystery added to it. When it was stolen the bell had a crack in it. But when it was return- ed the aperture had been mended. And a workmanlike job it was ,too.

Those winning cash prizes in Ca- lera on Trades Day Saturday were: Miss Mildred Cook 50c, Mr. M. J. Owens 50c; Miss Luthie Phillips 50c; Miss Frances Johnson 50c; Bud Mar- tin $1.00; Miss Mildred Cook $1.00; and D. C. Dunlap $1.00.

J. F. POPE CO. CELEBRATING SIXTY YEARS OF SERVIC

The Democrat joins a host of friends and patrons of the J. F. Pope Company, General Merchants and Cotton Buyers of Wilsonville, in extending congratulations to this highly esteemed Company upon the occasion of the celebration of 60 years of dependable service to this territory.

While talking with our good friend Mr. W .H. Pope, who is Secretary and Treasurer of the Company, the writer was interested in finding out a bit of history regarding the founding of perhaps the largest Mercantile establishment and the oldest in Shelby County. The following facts, we feel sure you will find interesting:

In 1877, the late J. F. Pope came to Wilsonville, a young man with brilliant ideas and a far vision for the future development o fthe home of his choice. He began his journey in commercial circles in Shelby County as a Clerk in the store of the late Col. W. T Smith, who was operating a small country store in a frame building on the same location the imposing brick structure now stands. Soon after Mr. Pope's arrival in Wilsonville, a one half interest in the Smith Store was sold to Mr. G. W. McGowen, and the firm operated under the name of Smith and McGowen Later, Mr. Pope bought Mr. McGowen's interest and operated the store under the caption of J, F. Pope, until his death which occurred in 1921. After his passing, the heirs organized a stock company and incorporated the business under its present name, THE J. F. POPE COMPANY, Inc., There was one minor heir, and W. H. Pope, brother of J. F. Pope bought that interest

In 1895, the business had expanded to such an extent that a new brick building was erected by J. F. Pope, and a larger and more complete stock was bought to meet the ever increasing demands from this section of the County. This was the first brick building in Wilsonville and the dimensions were 30x90, two stories. In 1904, the size was doubled and in 1905 ,another complete Hardware Department was added to furnish the planters who have played such a large part in the agricultural development of this territory. An extensive addition in 1920 ...

Big Ben will chime the hour when the procession begins. Should you wish to keep in touch with the royal pilgrimage to Westminister Abbey—you will have to get up about 3 A. M.—to turn the dial on your radio and fall in line. We were interested in noting the thousands of people who cancelled their transports, after King Edward abdicated 'all on account of that sly, little, wise little guy known as CUPID. We were further interested in noting that interest centers not in the royal crown and purple robes—but in the world's greatest Love Story. Lowell Thomas, I believe, stated that King Edward's speech over radio in which he renounced the throne would go down in history as the most beautiful tribute ever paid to woman. We reprint the oft quoted paragraphs from the famous radio renunciation speech:

"You all know the reasons which impelled me to renounce the throne. But I want you to understand that in making up my mind, I did not forget the country or the Empire which, as Prince of Wales, and lately as King, I have for 25 years tried to serve.

"But you must believe me when I tell you that I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as king as I would wish to do without the help and support of the woman I love.

"And I want you to know that the decision I have made has been mine, and mine alone.

"I made this decision, the most serious of my life, only upon the single thought of what would, in the end, be best for all.

Ever since I was Prince of Wales, and later on when I occupied the throne, I have been treated with the greatest kindness by all classes of the people, wherever I have lived or journeyed throughout the Empire. For that I am very grateful.

"I now quit altogether public affairs ... ture I can be found of service to His Majesty in a private station, I shall not fail.

"And now, we all have a new King. I wish him and you, his people, happiness and prosperity with all my heart. God bless you all! God save the King!"

"Long live the King," says Edward —and we say LONG LIVE CUPID! He is far more important as far as HAPPINESS is concerned.

The guests who enjoyed this beautiful cinema protrayal included: Mrs. W. F. Davis, Mrs. D. S. Lightcap, Mrs Pearle Belser, Mrs. Rosa Teague, Mrs W. A. Parker and Mrs. Ellen Meroney.

FLOWERS

Lillies gleaned from the garden of Lady Lightcap, and larkspur from the gardens of our neighbor, Mrs. Alma McGhee proffered as we swung along to work on Tuesday, brought a note of fragrant cheer in the office throughout the long day. We are truly grateful!

CANNON-SMITH

Of wide spread interest comes the announcement of the marriage of Carl Cannon, prominent young businessman of Columbiana and Clotyle Smith, popular member of the High School set, whose surprise wedding occurred on last Thursday, April 29, in Birmingham.

We join a host of friends in extending sincere congratulations to the young couple and offer best wishes for a long and happy life together.

Mrs. R. F. Cox entertained the sub-debs with a birthday party honoring Miss Faye Nell Polk on Monday night, April 26th. Green and pink color scheme was carried out through the evening. The house was lighted with green candles. Games and dancing were enjoyed throughout the evening. Ice cream and cake were served to the following guests:

Louise Messer, Margaret Wood, Doris Tinney, Elizabeth Verchot, Rosa Lee Collins, Billie Jean Young, Emma Jane Albright, Betty Jo Black Peggy Smith, Mrs. R. F. Cox, Horace Polk, Jones Reinhardt, Don Lovelady, Frank Martin, Tom Tinney, Jack Collins, Mr. R. F. Cox and Faye Nell Polk.

E. B. TURNER JR.

We gratefully acknowledge our first introduction to one of Columbiana's newest and most popular citizens—E. B. Turner Jr.—who came by with his pretty mother on Monday and stopped the works with his manly charming little self. He was exactly three months old on this occasion, and weighs 15 pounds—and he can sit up as straight as a soldier and he certainly knows what he wants—when he wants it and what it is all about. He captivated the Democrat crew—and we are eagerly awaiting his next appearance.

CAPTAIN JIM OAKLEY

Last Sunday was a day mooded to melancholy! J. Pluvius continually sent his raindrops to tattoo a doleful melody on the window pane. BUT, the kindness of Captain Jim Oakley again portrayed in an artistic arrangement of colorful Spring flowers including roses, larkspur, sweet peas and narcissi which lovely gift we happily received, brightened the gloom of our living room, and sent the friendly sunshine of thoughtfulness to chase the raindrops on their way. The cinema, MAYTIME, concluded a memorable afternoon. Music firelight, flowers, and friends—you can't beat this combination!

WANT A PIANO..

We know of a wonderful bargain in a piano. Good condition and worth three or four times the money required to purchase it. Only $50.00 will buy this instrument—and it is a real buy! Terms to reliable parties, too, may be arranged. Come, if interested,and let's talk it over.

PUZZLED EXPRESSIONS

Charlie Goodwin, baseball enthusiast travelled to the Magic City to witness the double header on Sunday afternoon—and was informed Knoxville players had left town on account of rain. He turned around in sight of the ball park, and did not know until he returned that the game was played. Moral: DON'T BELIEVE ANYTHING YOU HEAR!

Charlie Sparks and Bud Norwood busily engaged in a game of "Hiding" with LEO. We have not learned how the game ended. BUT we saw the PUZZLED EXPRESSION!

More puzzled expressions when interested friends of Carl Cannon and Clotyle Smith learned of their marriage on last Thursday. Rarely, if ever, has a couple so popular been able to keep secret an event so interesting!

Mildred Curlee's puzzled expression over WHY she should receive an ORCHID from the Birmingham News BUT those of us who know of her outstanding work in the many lines of endeavor in Columbiana—do not WONDER—they offer heartiest congratulations over the deserved recognition.

All Old Gold Contestants have furrowed brows over the last series of puzzles received. And ALL entrants are perfectly confident they will win the $100,000. One thing certain all COLUMBIANA answers well be practically the same thing—and the answer from Mr. Old Gold might as well be written on a carbon copy to natives of Your Little Main Street and Mine. Like everything else—everybody knows exactly what everybody else "said it was!"

HARRY MIMS ROBERTS

The many friends of Harry Mims Roberts, formerly with the Department of the Interior and located in Birmingham, will be delighted to learn of his promotion to the responsible official position of Labor Relations Advisor for District E, which comprises the States of Alabama, Florida, Tennessee and Georgia. Mr. Roberts' new headquarters will be located in Atlanta, and in addition to the numerous duties incumbent with this important post, Mr. Roberts has the personnel of his co-workers to select, and the entire managership of the offiees located in the Georgian Capitol. Congratulations wing their way to Atlanta to Mr. Roberts from a host of friends in Columbiana, who wish for him continued success in his new field of important work for the Government.

HOWARD WHITAKER

Friends and associates of Howard Whitaker, popular and prominent young business man of Columbiana, regret to learn that the new position which he has accepted will take him to Shawmutt, Alabama to reside. However, before leaving Sunday, he ordered the Democrat so he could keep tab on the folks back "home."

MARENE EDMONDSON

Sincere regrets are mingled with good wishes as we say good bye to pretty and efficient Marene Edmondson, who has been associated with the Democrat for the past few months as Local Correspondent, when she leaves Columbiana to enter the ranks of the Benedicts. Her future home will be Mt. Pinson, Alabama.

THE COLUMBIANA CULTURE CLUB MEETS

The Columbiana Culture Club had an interesting meeting last Thursday Mrs. H. C. Nickson being the hostess in her lovely home.

Woodland flowers formed the colorful decorations in the rooms.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. H. J. Walton. Mrs John Curlee gave an interesting account of the convention held in Mobile, Alabama.

The program for the afternoon was on "The Boy who was traded for a house." This was beautifully given by Mrs. Mims Roberts.

The new book presented to the Club was "Theatre" by W. Somerset Vaughan.

A delicious salad course was served to 12 members by the gracious hostess.

The meeting adjourned with all members happily looking forward to the next meeting when Mrs. Edna Roberts will entertain our club jointly with Sylacauga Club on May 13th in her lovely home.

COACH HOSMER

The Football boys, the personnel of the High School ,and many friends in Columbiana are joined in deeply regretting that Coach Hosmer will soon leave for Florida to enter the Aviation Corps of Uncle Sam's boys. Mr. Hosmer has won the admiration the respect and the love of all his pupils and since he has been a resident of Columbiana ,he has entered wholeheartedly into the religious, social, civic and educational life of the community and entrenched himself into the hearts of all who knew him. Hence, his absence from these circles will long be missed. However, with his new promotion and broader field for accomplishment, he carries the best wishes from a grateful community for the faithful service he has rendered and we also feel perfectly confident that his future success as an Aviator is already assured.

VINCENT NEWS

We were glad to have had Miss Mattie Hunt of West Jefferson and brother, a student of A. P. I. home for the week end.

We are all happy to have among us, especially the youngsters, little Miss Martha Lee Self of St. Clair Springs, who is visiting her Aunt and Uncle, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Self.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Smith has as their week end visitors: Mr. Estis and Phillip Oakes of Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira L. Sharbutt's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Barto Smith of Birmingham, visi briefly with them during the we end.

We were all delighted on havi the former Miss Frances Merrill, n Mrs. Floyd Scarbough who is tea ing at Ridge Grove, with us a sh while Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. J. F. Bates' niece of Atlan has visited with her the past week

Mr. Jabe McGraw was home fo the week end.

Mrs. A. L. Horton entertained at her home last Wednesday, the Vincent Study Club. The general theme of the program was "Education." The members responded to roll call by giving names of great educators. A paper by Mrs. Tom Bell was read by Mrs. H. E. Florey. The subject of this paper was: How Schools Came to Alabama. The color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, and in the flowers.

We are glad to hear that the 'hom town boy making good' is getting long fine. Of course, we are refe ring to Jimmie Sharbutt, who is no employed by a railroad company Chicago.

Among the out of town visitors we find Mrs. Cal Florey is visiting relatives in South Alabama. Also, little Wilbur Florey, who is awfully young to leave his mother and daddy

RETURN OF BELL TO CHURCH ADDS TO THEFT PUZZLE

DECATUR—Did the lin-lan-lone at evening of a bell taken from a church two years ago vibrate a chord of conscience in the thief and cause him to return it? That's what he did a few days ago.

The bell was stolen from Belleview Church on Moulton Highway nine miles west of here, in 1935. Church officers never knew what became of it and the bell's disappearance remained a mystery. It still does—with another mystery added to it. When it was stolen the bell had a crack in it. But when it was returned the aperture had been mended. And a workmanlike job it was ,too.

Bank Safety....
What Is It...?

Most frequently when people think of the safety of their money in the bank, they think of steel vaults, and material things. Unless the bank is robbed, they consider their deposits safe.

The skillful and experienced banker takes an entirely different view. He knows that providing physical safeguards is a simple matter. SAFETY to him depends upon his strong sense of responsibility toward depositors and the honesty and skill of competent management. Poor loans can take more money out of a bank than the most expert thief.

Dab investments carelessly considered are always menacing burglars who can never be caught and their booty recovered.

Yet a constructive bank must make loans. To produce income, money must be invested. Someone must make decisions on both of these operations. Policies must be set to cover interest rates, service charges and other functions of the bank in its relations with the community it serves.

Real bank safety comes when all these things are done conscientiously, intelligently and skillfully so that the ultimate result is two-fold security for the depositors and constructive use of the money in the best interests of commerce, industry and individual needs.

The Columbiana Savings Bank stands on its record for the past 43 years.

J. F. POPE CO. CELEBRATING SIXTY YEARS OF SERVICE

The Democrat joins a host of friends and patrons of the J. F. Pope Company, General Merchants and Cotton Buyers of Wilsonville, in extending congratulations to this highly esteemed Company upon the occasion of the celebration of 60 years of dependable service to this territory.

While talking with our good friend Mr. W .H. Pope, who is Secretary and Treasurer of the Company, the writer was interested in finding out a bit of history regarding the founding of perhaps the largest Mercantile establishment and the oldest in Shelby County. The following facts, we feel sure you will find interesting:

In 1877, the late J. F. Pope came to Wilsonville, a young man with brilliant ideas and a far vision for the future development o fthe home of his choice. He began his journey in commercial circles in Shelby County as a Clerk in the store of the late Col. W. T Smith, who was operating a small country store in a frame building on the same location the imposing brick structure now stands. Soon after Mr. Pope's arrival in Wilsonville, a one half interest in the Smith Store was sold to Mr. G. W. McGowen, and the firm operated under the name of Smith and McGowen Later, Mr. Pope bought Mr. McGowen's interest and operated the store under the caption of J. F. Pope, until his death which occurred in 1921. After his passing, the heirs organized a stock company and incorporated the business under its present name, THE J. F. POPE COMPANY, Inc., There was one minor heir, and W. H. Pope, brother of J. F. Pope bought that interest

In 1895, the business had expanded to such an extent that a new brick building was erected by J. F. Pope, and a larger and more complete stock was bought to meet the ever increasing demands from this section of the County. This was the first brick building in Wilsonville and the dimensions were 30x90. two stories. In 1904, the size was doubled and in 1905 another complete Hardware Department was added to furnish the planters who have played such a large part in the agricultural development of this territory. An extensive and imposing brick structure now stands as a monument to the Pope family, which covers 20,000 square feet—the last annex extending back 60 feet beyond the main building.

On the first floor or basement, there are stored building materials, salt, lime ,cement, etc. The Pope Company also operates a grist mill, feed crusher and a barn for livestock In fact, the most complete line of General Merchandise will be found in the J. F. Pope Company's store.

The officers who have made possible this successful enterprise include Mrs. J. F. Pope, President; J. H. Wilder, Vice President and General Manager; and W. H. Pope, Secretary and Treasurer.

Shelby County citizens feel an especial pride in this commercial asset to an ever widening circle of creditable business houses, and offer heartiest wishes for continued prosperity and success which this firm richly deserves. The firm of J. F. Pope Co., Inc., warrants the confidence they now enjoy after rendering 60 years of dependable service to the town of Wilsonville and the surrounding territory. A distinctly honorable record richly merited. Again do we proffer our appreciation and congratulations.

THE GOLDEN WHISTLE TO BE GIVEN IN WILSONVILLE

The Golden Whistle, an operetta, sponsored by the Women's Missionary Society for the benefit of the Old Chapel Church, will be presented with a talented local cast of 23 characters on May 15th, 1937 at 8 o'clock

Hours have been spent in rehersasl and elaborate costumes have been purchased for the gala occasion and members of the W. M. S. cordially urge you to be with them on next Saturday night. The curtain will be raised on the lovely stage setting at exactly 8 bells. Admission 10 and 25 cents.

REP. L. H. ELLIS CONFIDENT OF ROAD PROJECT SUCCESS

A one minute interview with busy Representative L. H. Ellis, who spent a few days in Columbiana this week reveals the encouraging news that he feels confident the proposed highway from Bibb County to St. Clair County line, leading thru Shelby County, is assured. Anly a few differences between County and State requirements remain to be ironed out and the road work will likely begin.

This project is to the writer's mind the most vitally important spoke in the wheel of progress which the County may turn. County wide interest centers in the permanent development of this important connecting link and the Democrat happily passes on the optimistic word regarding same.

MRS. CELIA WALLIS PASSED AWAY ON MONDAY, MAY 3RD

Mrs. Celia Ella Wallis passed away at 8:00 o'clock, Monday morning May 3rd, 1937 at her home in the Arkwright Community. She was born in St. Clair County near Riverside, February 6th, 1867, and at the time of her death was 70 years old.

Early in life she united with the Baptist Church of which she was still a member. At this time she was a member of the Arkwright Baptist Church. She was also a Sunday School teacher and member of the Woman's Missionary Society of that Church, which capacity she filled as few others can, as she was a devout Christian, a devoted wife, a loving mother, and staunch friend. To know her was to love her as she scattered sunshine and happiness wherever she went as the name of Jesus was with her in every walk of life. She will truly be missed in her community by man, woman, boy, girl, and even the little children. She bore her long suffering with patience and endurance. Like the Master, and she knew that her Saviour would not put more on her than she could bear, and was ready to go when he called her home.

She leaves to mourn her death, a husband, E. E. Wallis, one daughter, Mrs. H' M. Cosper, and three step children, M. W. Wallis, Mrs. N. Smith and Mrs. Floyd Green, all of Vincent Alabama, one brother, Mr. F. Milstead ,of Childersburg, Ala., and a host of grandchildren, nieces, nephews, and other relatives, and scores of friends.

Funeral services were conducted from the Arkwright Baptist Church Tuesday morning at 11:00 o'clock by The Rev. Hood, pastor o fthat church with burial in the cemetery of that place. Her body was laid to rest 'neath a bountiful floral blanket that bespoke the love and esteem in which she was held. Brown Funeral Co. of Sylacauga, Ala., had charge. Active pallbearers were M. W. Wallis, L. Hamilton Cosper, William H. Cosper H. M Cosper, N. Smith and F. Green. Honorary pallbearers were neices: Mrs. I. L. Sharbutt, Mrs F. J. Dunlap Mrs H. L Gortney, Mrs L Dearman, Shirley and Arstine Cosper, Mrs. B. H. Cosper, Mrs .E. V. Cosper, Wanna Dean, Mrs. A C. Cosper, Mrs. L. F. Dorough and Mrs L C Baker.

SHELBY COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARF

When additional funds form recent taxation are made available to the Department of Public Welfare, the Department will be in a much better position to render service to the county, but even with additional funds it will not be possible to give assistance to everyone who considers that they need assistance. Of course, additional families will be helped, but only after through investigations to determine the need.

During the many months when the county has not been in a position to participate in the financial support of the Public Welfare Program and when only limited funds form the State and the Federal Government have been available, the Department has depended heavily on assistance Civic and religious groups. In fact, contributions from such groups have been so important that the work could not have gone forward without them.

The emergency has almost passed but the need will continue to be greater than the Department can meet from public funds. Therefore, it is hoped that civic and religious groups will plan to continue their contributions. A continuation of your contributions may mean that the Department will be able to give thought to health needs and medical care, to adequate food and clothing, and to better housing conditions. In other words, the Department may be in a position to help dependent and handicapped family groups to find social security in "truth as well as in name".

NEGRO IS NOT DEAD NOR GUILTY SAYS TUSCALOOSA JUDGE

TUSCALOOSA—Cornelius Howard, negro, appeared in police court here with this statement:

"Judge, I ain't dead, and I ain't guilty."

After considerable legal argument, the judge agreed with him on both counts.

Cornelius was charged with stealing chickens, and authorities had quoted his brother Frankenstein Howard as saying Cornelius was drowned in the Ohio river flood.

In fact, Police Chief Hardin D. Billingsley said, Frankenstein had taken a week off to attend his brother's funeral.

The chief heard rumors however, and when officers went to Frankenstein's house, there Cornelius was. The officers said his mouth was greasy, and they found chicken bones on his plate.

Judge R. C. Price held this insufficient evidence, and Cornelius was

F. F. A. PARLEY IN STATE PLANNED

MONTGOMERY—Preliminary plans for the eighth annual state convention of the Alabama Association of the Future Farmers of America to be held at Auburn this Summer made here Saturday afternoon when the Association's executiev committee held a three-hour session at the State Department of Education with C. W. Wells, Jr., Jemison, state F. F. A. president, presiding.

July 15, 16, and 17 were the tentative dates set for the meeting at Auburn, at which attendance will be limited to approximately 800 high school students in vocational agriculture and the 143 vocational teachers in every section of the state.

During the three-day session, there will be a special leadership training period for the F. F. A. chapter officers who have been elected to conduct their organizations for the coming year.

"Attendance at the convention this year will of necessity be limited to five officers from each of the 143 chapters which represent a total state membership of more than 3,750 students." said R. E. Cammack, " In addition we will have at the convention some 50 outstanding students in vocational agriculture who will be named as state farmers because of their high ranking work during the past two years,"

A brass band of 40 pieces, composed of F. F. A. boys from all parts of the state, and two string bands will play. Featuring the enlarged recreational program will be softball tournament for 16 district teams. One of the subcommittees on arrangements has been commissioned to purchase 300 watermelons.

An Appreciation Of Coach Hosmer

To the High School Faculty, Student Body and all my friends in Columbiana and Shelby County: —

Greetings:—

I can never be able to express to you in mere words my very deep appreciation of the manner you received me and kept me during the two most pleasant years of my life spent with you in Shelby County High School. You have every one meant so much to me, and it shall ever be my sincere endeavor to live worthily of your great esteem.

I am sure that no man has ever been more fortunately situated than was my good fortune to be during my two years with you.

A finer faculty and more loyal student body cannot be found than you. Besides there are so many real true men and women as well as boys and girls who were not in school that I esteem very highly.

I commend you to my successor and trust you will continue to go and grow until finally you will reach the goal that you so much desire. I trust that our paths may cross again, some where along the line of life and I am sure that in that event that I shall be made again very happy to be again associated with you.

I am leaving you with a heart full of love and with best wishes for all.

Sincerely yours,

Robert S. Hosmer.

APPROACH OF SUMMER BRINGS FEAR OF TYPHOID

The approach of the vacation and outing season greatly increases the danger of typhoid fever for those who have not been vaccinated against it within the past two or three years. Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer, warned today in urging those who lacked this protection to avail themselves of it before setting out on their vacations and camping trips.

The danger from typhoid has been greatly reduced during the past two or three decades, thanks to effective steps to guard water supplies against pollution, milk pasteurization, sanitary inspection of food supplies generally, the more widespread use of vaccine immunization, etc.," the state health officer said. "Nevertheless, in spite of this progress, about 80 or 85 persons die in Alabama from typhoid every year, originating mostly in rural areas; this is an average of one and one-quarter deaths per year per county. If our people can be educated to the importance of proper sanitation and of the protection afforded by vaccination, typhoid will practically disappear as a factor in our health problem, and these lives can be saved."

Dr Baker called attention to the fact that typhoid vaccine is furnished without charge to health departments and to the physicians of the State.

R. A. AIDS MANY FARM FAMILIES IN THE SOUTHEAST

More than 50,000 farm families in Alabama, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina have been aided by the Resettlement Administration in the last two years, according to a report issued by the Fifth Regional office in Montgomery.

Saturday, May 1, marked the second anniversary of the Resettlement Administration—the executive order setting up this agency was signed by President Roosevelt, April 30, 1935.

During the 24 months since, the report from the office of Regional Director R. W. Hudgens said, grants have been made and credit facilities created fo rthousands of worthy but distressed rural families.

In 1936 grants totaling $363,888.44 were made to 31,785 families in this region to buy food, clothing and shelter where the families would have suffered without this aid, the report said. In 1937 to date grants totaling $340,648.99 have been made to 23,923 families.

The report wa salso revealed that in 1936 a total of 38,461 "standard rehabilitation clients" in Region Five were loaned $9,478,377.38, and that in 1937 olans to 28,058 clients have totaled $6,213,148.14.

"The immediate aims of this organization is not sudden prosperity fo revery farmer," the report said, "and the success can not be measured by statistics. The real measurements must be thought of in terms of a little better clothing, a few more jars of home canned garden products a little more milk, more meat, medical aid, a few more tools, work stock rental of good land suited for crops, guidance in matters of farm and home management, individual gains up the ladder of rehabilitation to better living and economic independence.

ALABAMA USES MORE GASOLINE

Alabama motorists have driven their cars oftener and farther, with an increase of 28,404,000 gallons of gasoline consumed in this state in the past years, according to a statement from Alex Montgomery, vice-president of the Alabama Motorists' Association.

"A total of 200,850,000 gallons of gasoline went into automobile tanks in Alabama in 1936, compared with 172,446,000 gallons in the preceding year," Mr. Montgomery said.

"In the country as a whole, motor vehicles used 19,500,000,000 gallons of gasoline during the past year, according to estimates. That was a gain of 9.2 per cent over the 1935 figure.

Gasoline tax collections soared, as state governments took in approximately $678,000,000 from this source last year, a gain of 10 per cent over 1935 colections and a new all-time high record, he said.

"Counting in Federal and local gas taxes, the total amount of revenue extracted by means of the gas pump during 1936 was approximately $880,000,000 or nearly $30. for every vehicle registered in the entire nation he said.

Anderson's Cleaners And Dyers At Five Points Appreciates Shelby County Patronage

Anderson's have been located at Five Points for five years and the Manager, Miss Ellie Coleman, has made hosts of friends in Shelby County by her fair and square business dealings.

At this modern and up to date dry cleaning establishment one receives the most courteous service and high grade work at fair and reasonable prices.

Their equipment is the best that money can buy so as to assure their customers the best in cleaning and dyeing.

They appreciate the patronage of the Shelby County people and this writer has no hesitancy in recommending Andersons Cleaners and Dyers, located at Five Points.

ALL ALABAMA COUNTIES SHOULD USE ALABAMA MADE PRODUCTS

There are several reasons why Alabama Counties should use culvert pipe manufactured by the Southern Culvert Company of Birmingham but the most outstanding reasons are these culvert pipe are made out of Alabama Material and the fact that this company furnishes employment to Alabama people.

Besides these facts Southern Culvert Pipe is recognized as one of the best culvert pipes on the American Market on account of their sturdy construction and the quality of the material used in them.

Mrs. J. H. Scruggs, the district manager, is always willing to assist Shelby County in any progressive project.

George B. Bragan, Roofing And Heating Has Had Much Experience In This Line

Mr. Geo. B. Bragan was associated with his father Mr. A. P Bragan until seven years ago when he went into business for himself and the name Bragan has long been recognized as one of the pioneers in the field and it was during his association with his father that he gained his valuable experience.

If you are thinking of building, remodeling or repairing, you will think of your roof and the sheet metal work and this writer suggests that you consult Mr. Geo B Bragan. He is located at 916 North 19th Street and his telephone number is 7-7480.

Perfection Mattress And Spring Products Are Popular In Shelby County

Perfection products are popular all over the Southeast and Alabama's leading hotels and hospitals are now equipped with Perfection Spring Air Mattress and Spring Company they must give the public the best mattress possible.

In Superflex Springs which was recently introduced by the Perfection Mattress and Spring Compan ythey put on the market a spring that gives perfect comfort and permanent service and when you buy a Superflex Spring you are getting a spring that is modern to the last degree.

T. R. Walton in Columbiana and Whaley Furniture Company, Montevallo are dealers in Shelby County, also McGraw Brothers in Vincent and L C. Walker in Alabaster, and they will be glad to point out the many other outstanding features.

CLEVELAND ROCK DRILL COMPANY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be o fbenefit to Shelby County, Mr. O. C. Stoelker,district manager of the Cleveland Rock Drill Company is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

The Cleveland Rock Drill Company has been in business in Alabama for nineteen years and during this time they have made hosts of friends in this section by their fair and square business dealings.

They are the largest exclusive manufacturers of pneumatic tools in the United States and the office and warehouse in Birmingham carry the largest stock of tools and parts in Birmingham.

They have several customers in Shelby County among the mill and mine owners and these men vouch for the excellent service they receive when ordering parts, etc.

It is concerns like the Cleveland Rock Drill Company—concerns that are interested i nthe growth and development of their neighboring county that make a community progress and go forward and this writer congratulates the people of this section on having them in our midst. They are located at 1304-06 North First Avenue in Birmingham.

MAE GRADY'S NEW FLORENCE CAFE ..... CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Miss Mae Grady is unselfishly taking part in this Progressive Shelby County edition of the Democrat.

Miss Grady is no stranger to the people here as she has made hosts of friends throughout this entire section by her affable personality and her fair and square dealings with everyone—and she cordially invites the people of Shelby County to make the New Florence Cafe their headquarters while in Birmingham.

The New Florence Cafe remains open day and night and for delicious steaks, chops, regular meals or short orders and sandwiches. This writer has no hesitancy in recommending the New Florence Cafe to the people of Shelby County. There are also private booths for parties and they are located at 406 North 18th Street.

Next time you are in Birmingham visit Miss Mae Grady's New Florence Cafe.

They are located at 2026 Third Avenue, South and their telephone number is 3-6389.

This newspaper recommends the General Welding Company to the people of Shelby County.

WHY YOU SHOULD USE JIM DANDY PIG AND HOG RATION

There are several reasons why you should use Jim Dandy Pig and Hog Ration but the most outstanding are Jim Oandy Pig and Hog Ration is the ideal hog ration to use for brood sows, growing pigs, and fattening hogs. Each particular ingredient that it contains has its special function to perform. It contains a combination of ingredients to promote health, growth and vitality. Jim Dandy Pig and Hog Ration does not contain ordinary corn meal. Only the corn germ is used. The Western Grain Company, at a great expense, has installed machinery to remove the germ from corn by a special process, Corn germ meal being more palatable and higher in protein than corn, makes it the most valuable of all ingredients to use in hog feeds.

The exression Golden Nuggets, always suggests precious value and in its association with Jim Dandy Pig and Hog Ration, Golden Nuggets by no means loses any of its significance because it is specially prepared. Golden "nut-like" corn germ meal from the hearts of corn.

The Western Grain Company maintains an Extension Department for their customers benefit. At any time if information is desired on hogs, such as feeds, cholera control, worming, house and self-feeders plans, write them and all information will be sent you by return mail.

Space doesn't permit this writer to dwell on the many other features of Jim Dandy Pig and Hog Ration (that makes it the best hog feed on the market) but take this writer's advice—Buy a bag of Jim Dandy Pig and Hog Ration today. Give it a test in your own herd and then you will be assured of its unequalled value.

CONCRETE PRODUCTS & ROOFING CO. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. F. G. Smithson of the Concrete Products and Roofing Company is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

They have been in business since 1911 and during this time they have made hosts of friends in Shelby County by their fair and square business dealings.

There are numerous homes and buildings in Columbiana, Montevallo and other towns in Shelby County that the Concrete Products and Roofing Company furnished roofs for. There slogan is "no plant too large —No house too small."

They recently sold Columbiana and Calera meter boxes, in fact, all meter boxes in Shelby County are their products.

They are manufacturers of concrete roof tile in four patterns and all colors, as well as general roofing contractors. They are also dealers for the well known Genasco Built Up Roofs and Trinidad Lake Asphalt.

Sheet metal work of all kinds is done here by experts and their prices are fair and reasonable.

This writer congratulates the people of this section on having the Concrete Products and Roofing Company to serve them. They are located at 4523 1st Avenue, North and their telephone number is 9-1165.

Miss Eloise Lester had as her week end guest Miss olene Bavman of Montevallo College and Miss Marion Fulton of Oxford.

Tom Stinson, and Sons, Paul and Handy, are taking an extended vacation which leads thru Texas and other points West.

A Challenge To The South

Efforts of Southern Governors to force correction in freight rates discriminatory against this section are not likely to result in immediate victory, but merit the endorsement and support of every state in the area until this goal has been achieved.

Only by constant battling against heavy odds can the South win fair freight rates on her products—the length of the battle to be determined chiefly by the measure in which her states co-operate.

The chief handicap against the South in her battle is the Interstate Commerce Commission. Packed with representatives from other sections, the board has long been callous to the unfair conditions faced by this section. It was not until recently that the South was able to place as many as two members on this board, but the fact that a gain in membership has been achieved is definite proof that efforts to correct the situation are bearing fruit, even if the crop is slow in maturing.

Taking this gain in board membership as an incentive, the South should press forward until she wins a fair chance to market her products, for upon this concession depends her full development as an industrial center.

With the advantages of labor and materials that are already hers, the South can go far, if profitable and steady markets for what she produces are opened to her on a fair, competitive basis.

The prospect of such benefits to be gained should be inspiration enough for us to pledge ourselves to an unceasing campaign for what should be ours without question. —Selma Times-Journal.

Teach Them How

The most dangerous group of drivers, according to statistics, is the group which ought to be the safest; The so-called "teen-age" class. When a person of eighteen or younger has an accident it is almost always a serious one. It is 42 per cent more likely to be fatal than if an older driver were involved.

In the opinion of authorities, the chief difficulty is that young people who drive cars lack both training and judgment. They have had no formal instruction behind the wheel. Usually they learn to drive watch- they learn bad practices along with good ones, and, ing older persons or a young companion. In this way being young, they are apt to exaggerate the bad and minimize the good. As one bad apple contaminates a barrel one poor driver can create dozens of worse ones if he attempts the role of teacher.

Fortunately, the high schools of the nation are recognizing a responsibility for these facts. Accoruing the safety education division of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, some five thousand high schools in more than half the states are now giving instructions in the principles of traffic safety. Some schools are actually teaching their students how to drive by giving real road training in real cars. Three states, California, Indiana and North Carolina, have made such instructions compulsory, while state departments of education in 28 states have issued courses of study in traffic. The subject of good driving has become the fastest growing movement in the history of American education.

Already there are significant results. In Rhode Island, more than a thousand high school boys and girls were taught to drive in a course sponsored by the Motor Vehicle Department of tha tstate. Their driving records were kept in a special file for a period of three years. In all that time not one of the youngsters was involved in a reportable accident and not one was convicted of a traffic violation. Outstanding educators say there is no greater function for education than teaching children how to do better, the things the ymay expect to do in life. Certainly, teaching them how to drive motor cars so as not to kill themselves or others, fits neatly into that definition.

—Marion Times Standard.

It won't be long now before people with fine vegetables growing in their garden will have a lot of lazy loafers stopping at the fence to tell them how splendidly everything is looking.

Women And Men In Illness

Dr. John W. Williams, well known pathologist, is quoted as saying: "Women are ill one and a half times as often as men, yet the 'weaker' sex lives slightly longer."

Men are exposed to greater dangers and so more of them die from accidental causes. Also, while they are sturdier than women they do not take as good care of themselves while indisposed. They are more reckless. It is said that you can get a mustard plaster on a woman in half the time it takes to rope and quell a man and make him agree to accept a mustard plaster. It other words, men are bigger fools than women, taking them by and large.

Another thing: Women seem ill oftener than men because they count as illnesses many disorders that men would not acknowledge.

Not only do women excel men in guarding against dangerous illnesses, but have you not noticed that they are better traders? Any store clerk would rather receive a man than a woman at the counter because he (or she) knows that the man in the end will take what he is told to buy. Whereas the woman will hem and haw, probably take the article home for further examination ,and bring it back the next day. For that reason women generally are better dressed than men, though not more vain. They are merely shrewder and more tenacious. If men had half the patience of women while shopping all of them would look better in their Sunday suits.

The South's Lopsideness

It is high time to get away from all the lopsideness that has so long held back in the South.

1. We have depended too much on brawn and not enough on brain, too much on muscle and not enough

2. We have depended too much on agriculture and not enough on industry.
on mind.

3. We have depended too much on plant production and not enough on animal production.

4. We hav edepended too much on making money and not enough on saving money.

5. We have depended too much on education to fit for college entrance and not enough on education that fits for economic independence and the enrichment of life.

6. We have depended too much on our relatively small wealthier classes to make the South prosperous and not enough on the development and improvement of the vastly large numbers of all our disadvantaged classes.

Only by getting away from all such lopsideness and laying an infinitely broader and sounder foundation can we have a genuinely great and prosperous South, freed from the handicaps under which all classes of Southern people now suffer.—Progressive Farmer

Desire To Excel

Many who have studied the crime situation in America think the desire to keep up with their neighbors or keep up with the processions, breeds crime among the people. Probably there is some truth in the theory that people commit certain kinds of crime the theory that people commit certain kinds of crime in an effort to "keep up with the procession," but the human race could not make much progress without the ambition to excel.

The desire to excel, to beat the other fellow or the desire of one community to beat the other community stimulates effort and makes for real progress. The desire of one company to produce a little better car than its competitors makes for progress. The ambition of school children to make better grades than their classmates stimulates study. In fact the desire to excel is a powerful incentive in every line of effort.

In America the people have a greater opportunity to realize their ambition than in any other country in the world. Unfortunately, too may Americans go wrong.—Mountain Eagle.

Well, to be frank, we would like to take a cruise to some foreign port and spend a few weeks enjoying the attractions that are not apt to be as advertised and we would if we had the money.

A world able to spend a billion and a half dollars on new battleships ought to be able to spend some money in the interests of establishing international good will.

BIRMINGHAM SEAFOOD COMPANY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County. Mr. L. D. Gore of the Birmingham Seafood Company, is unselfishly taking part in this edition o fthe Democrat.

Mr. Gore has been in business in Birmingham seven years and he has made many friends throughout this entire section by his fair and square business dealings.

They receive shipments of seafood every day by freight and express and they also operate their own trucks to the coast where they have buying connections so as to assure them of first quality seafood of all kinds.

They are strictly wholesalers and they supply all of the leading markets and stores in this section.

They are located at 1301 4th Ave., North and their telephone number is 3-9245.

SALMON AND COWIN, INC., ALWAYS CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Salmo & Cowin, Inc., of Birmingham are unselfishly taking part in this Progressive County Edition of the Democrat.

Salmon and Cowin are Mining Engineers, Mining Contractors and Sub-Contractors for breaking rock on the surface and they have been in business in Birmingham since 1924.

Both Mr. H. S. Salmon and Mr. P. G Cowin are well known all over this entire section and they have many friends in Shelby County made by their fair and square business dealings.

They specialize in mine plant construction, mine development, rock drilling and blasting, shaft and slope sinking. They also do consulting, make reports, surveys, do prospecting and make appraisals.

Salmon & Cowin are also agents for Ingersoll Rand Rock Drilling Equipment, etc.,

They have recently built a new modern plant at 980 Second Avenue, North and are now excavating for a new office here at this same location. This shop and plant is equipped with the latest and most up to date equipment for taking care of their customers needs—and they also rent compressors and rock drilling outfits in fact, if it is anything about a mine or mill, Salmon & Cowin are prepared to serve you and this writer congratulates the people of this section on having this progressive firm in their midst.

HOOVER FURNITURE COMPANY CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Messrs L. K. and C. V. Hoover Jr. of Hoover Furniture Company, are unselfishly taking part in the Progressive Shelby County edition of the Democrat.

Founded in 1915 by their father, Mr. C. V. Hoover, the business is now being operated by the two sons and they have made hosts of friends in Shelby County by their fair and square dealings. They all lived in Shelby County from 1912 to 1915 when they moved to Birmngham, but they are still vitally interested in the growth and development of our county because they own property and pay taxes here. They own the old Dr. Smother's place.

Since they have been in Birmingham, they have built up an enviable volume of trade in Shelby County—selling high grade furniture at fair and reasonable prices.

This newspaper has no hesitancy in recommending Hoover Furniture Company to its many readers. They are located at 3920 10th Avenue, N., Trade with them.

N. O. NELSON COMPANY ALWAYS CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County. Mr. Ralph R. Hicks, District Manager of the N. O. Nelson Company, is unselfishly taking part in this Progressive Shelby County edition of the Democrat.

The N. O. Nelson Company have been in business in Birmingham for 22 years serving the people of this section with all kinds of plumbing and heating fixtures and supplies. This firm has operated as a manufacturing plant also for over fifty years and they maintain branch ware houses and offices in a number of principal cities.

Being wholesalers they have built up an enviable volume of business, with the jobbers, merchants and other wholesale buyers.

This writer congratulates the people o nhaving N. O. Nelson Company located in this section.

MY MOTHER

My mother was a princess —
She wore a shining dress;
Everyone who saw her said,
"Ah, she is loveliness!"

When I saw her walking
Among a troubled throng,
Her face was like a hymn of peace;
She was a holy song.

Her hair was fine as thistle down
Upon a thistle pod
There was something in her eyes
That looked at you like God.

Once when I was weeping
She stood beside my chair
With cool hands on my throbbing brow,
And I knew she was a prayer

But when I saw her lying
Upon a flower strewn bed
With lillies on her quiet breast
And candles at her head,

I heard a silken sound as if
Soft wings were whispering by,
And looking up I saw God plant
A new star in the sky!

RED AND WHITE ROSES FOR REMEMBRANCE

On Sunday, Mother's Day, red and white blossoms were worn on millions of shoulders—as the WORLD paid a silent tribute to MOTHERS. There was a red rose worn for those whose Mothers still live, work, plan and dream. There was a pure white blossom donned in tender memory for one who ,possibly from her celestial realm continues maternal vigil on the triumphs or failures of her earth bound children--and FLOWERS were not the only tributes which Mother enjoyed. There were gifts, lavishly bestowed and every home was a happy home—all on account of THOUGHTFU LREMEMBRANCE —treasured words—two of the sweetest "LOVE IMMEASUREABLE"—sent with the loveliest of gifts bought with pennies saved for the occasion —became priceless gifts from priceless treasures! We join a host of Mothers in grateful appreciation for the day and the joy it brought.

MRS. EMMA MILES

Gowned in a lovely dress of silk crepe, Mrs. Emma Miles, affectionately called "GAMMY" Miles, stood in the Baptist Church on Sunday morning to receive the beautiful tribute paid her as she occupied the honorable position as the eldest Mother in Columbiana. A lovely corsage of sweet peas and sweetheart roses was presented her which she graciously accepted. "Gammy" is beloved by all; is elderly but not old. She keeps abreast of the times, and her alert mind and keen sense of humor makes her a most loveable companion for both old and young—ninety years happily crown her useful life as wife, mother and friend—and her man yfriends were delighted to have the opportunity of again greeting her on this occasion, and took this opportunity to wish sunset years the brightest and happiest.

GAIL ELIZABETH GILMORE

Monday morning is always a topsy turvy episode in the week—and unless something really special happens we rather dread the grind that goes with newspaper routine in mapping out the paper, getting ideas across to recalcitrant merchants, who want to advertise, but do not know exactly how much space, etc..—BUT, when Little Gail Elizabeth Gilmore, made her first public appearance in this office on Monday morning, held tenderly in the arms of her adoring grand-mother, Mrs. L .H. Ellis, well —some how the cares took wings, after she smiled her way into our hearts, and Monday, May 10th became a red letter day on our little desk calendar especially after we took Little Miss Eleven Weeks old over to our desk for closer inspection of her femmine charms. The first thing our distinguished little guest did was to shift to a more comfortable position, then with an adorable little "cuddle" she proceeded to "take us in'.' We could not fathom her thoughts, but she evidently found something rather funny about it all, for with the broadest of baby smiles, and the merriest twinkle in a pair of the bluest of blue eyes, she cooed her merriest of "coos"—curled her tiny fingers around mine—and settled down contentedly for a few minutes rest before she was placed in her bassinet and whizzed on her way for a day in the Magic City accompanied by her lovely mother, Mrs. Harry Gilmore, Mrs. L. H. Ellis and Mrs. Frank Ellis, devoted subjects, who eagerly await her majesty's slightest command from her daintily pillowed tiny throne. Deliciously sweet, adorably dressed. She was simply DE-LOVELY-.that's the word

BENNETT-HARRISON

Mr. and Mrs. James Leiers Bennett of Savannah, Ga., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mildred Hollored to Karl Cecil Harrison, of Columbiana, the marriage to be solemnized June 5, 1937.

The above announcement will be of state wide interest to the many friends of this popular couple. Mr. Harrison is a prominent attorney of Columbiana, and Miss Bennett of Savannah, Georgia, has won many friends on her visits to Columbiana, where she is a social favorite.

BUDDY BIRD

Little Buddy Bird, who remains ill at the Children's Hospital, still holds the spotlight of anxious hearts in Columbiana, who love this popular little fellow and who are eagerly awaiting his return. With a great big wish for a speedy recovery we personally greet the little patient sufferer, and sincerely hope he will soon be allowed to return home

WILLIAM CAREY WOMACK

One of the happiest grand-dad's we noted Sunday, was Will Page, who received his initial introduction to his namesake, William Carey Womack .handsome son of Mr. and Mrs. Womack (Willie Lee Page, who reside in Tennessee, but who returned Sunday for a visit with relatives in Columbiana and in Birmingham. We are promised a visit from William Carey immediately upon his return from the Magic City, and we shall happily welcome him.

THAT'S where several thousand electric ranges and water heaters are going these delightful spring months, because electric ranges and water heaters in style, size and price are now available to fit the requirements of any home—of any pocketbook.

Electric Ranges Enjoy Deserved Popularity

They are clean—they are economical to operate (electricity is cheap in Alabama) —food tastes better when cooked electrically—they are modern—they are time-savers—they are safe—they beautify any kitchen—they cook so conveniently! Just the flick of a switch turns on clean, even heat—as clean and dependable as electric light.

So is it any wonder that 6,110 Alabama Women Say "I Want an Electric Range"—

Or that nearly 4,000 say they want electric water heaters, too, because like the electric range, they are clean, convenient, safe and economical to operate? Electric ranges and water heaters which give you service you will be pleased with are made by many reputable manufacturers, among whom are:

HOTPOINT—UNIVERSAL—GENERAL ELECTRIC
KENMORE—M-W—ENTERPRISE—MONARCH
MARION—L&H—STANDARD—KELVINATOR
GRAYBAR-CRAWFORD—ESTATE—HOFFMAN
WESTINGHOUSE—NORGE—PEMCO—SEPCO
REX—HERCULES—SATURN

Plan to have an electric range and water heater installed in your home soon!

NEON LIGHTS ADVERTISING CO. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. S. M. Jacobs, general manager of Neon Lights Advertising Company is unselfishly taking part in this Progressive Shelby County edition of the Democrat.

This firm has been in business in Birmingham ten years and during this time they have made hosts of friends throughout this entire section by their fair and square business dealings.

Nelad Neon Signs have revolutionized the sign industry and today all of the leading business concerns have had installed Nelad Neon signs which makes a most attractive sign and produces much new business.

This newspaper has no hesitancy in recommending Neon Lights Advertising Company to the people of Shelby County. They are located on 20th Street on the right going into town just before you go under the viaduct and their telephone number is 7-5105. A postal card will bring a representative without any obligation.

BIRMINGHAM TENT AND AWNING CO. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County the manager of the Birmingham Tent & Awning Company is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

The Birmingham Tent & Awning Company is the oldest concern of its kind in this section as it dates back to the old covered wagon days. founded by an old German couple who travelled around and did the work wherever there was a job right on the premises. Then decided to locate in Birmingham permanently.

Twenty-five years ago Mr. M. D. Smith purchased the company.

A complete line of awnings for homes, stores, offices, etc., are manufactured here as well as tents of all kinds and truck covers all at fair and reasonable prices. They have made hosts of friends in Shelby County by their fair and square business dealings .

They are located at 2631 12th Avenue North and their telephone number is 3-0090 and don't forget their slogan "It's Awning Time.'

CUMBERLAND BATTERY M'F'G. CO. CO-OPERATES IN SHELBY COUNTY

Always willing to co-operate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County, Mr. R. V. Lawson, manager of the Cumberland Battery Manufacturing Co., Birmingham Division, is unselfishly taking part in this edition of the Democrat.

Mr. Lawson has made many friends in Shelby County by his fair and square business dealings.

The Cumberland Battery Manufacturing Co. are manufacturers of Southern batteries and they are built to go the distance, they are on sale at the following towns of Shelby County, Columbiana, Montevallo, Vincent and Harpersville. So before you buy any battery, be sure you see the line of Southern Batteries.

This writer congratulates the people of Shelby County on having Mr. Lawson and Cumberland Battery Manufacturing Company to serve them.

CANADA DRY UNIVERSALLY RECOGNIZED AS CHAMPAGNE OF GINGER ALES

Always willing to cooperate in any project or movement that is calculated to be of benefit to Shelby County Mr. C. B. Wooten, manager of this district for Canada Dry Ginger Ale is unselfishly taking part in this Progressive Edition of the Democrat.

Canada Dry has been hailed thru the years as the Champagne of Ginger Ales. Everywhere it is famous for its mellow smoothness, its fragrant bouquet and sparkling zest and now that prices have been reduced, more and more people are switching from other ginger ales, making a habit of always ordering Canada Dry.

Fourteen separate inspections safeguard Canada Dry's jewel-like sparkle and matchless quality. It is so wholesome and pure that many doctors prescribe it.

Their Sparkling Water, the water with the "Champagne Sparkle" is packed with pin-point carbonation and makes smooth and zestful long, tall drinks. An opened bottle even after having been open in the refrigerator is still full of life and sparkle after 24 hours.

Canada Dry's trucks visit Shelby County regular supplying Shelby County merchants and is on sale at practically all of the grocery, drug and other stores.

Now that there are new low prices on Canada Dry—people are buying it by the half dozen bottles, keeping some always in the ice box, so they can serve the family and unexpected guests. So next time specify Canada Dry—The Champagne of Ginger Ales.

LIEUT. GOV. THOMAS E. KNIGHT DIES IN MONTGOMERY

County wide regret is expressed over the passing of Lieut. Gov. Thomas E. Knight, which occurred in Montgomery on Monday afternoon. State Senator Hardy Riddle of Talladega, president pro tem of the Senate, becomes next in line to Gov Bibb Graves.

STATE INCOME TAX COLLECTIONS RISE

An increase of $405,057 in state income tax collections from January 17 to May 15—as compared with the corresponding period last year was reported Monday by Henry Long, Chairman of the State Tax Commission.

Mr. Long further stated that collections from January 17 to May 15 this year total $921,182.84 against $516,124.92 during the same period of 1936.

SCHOOL BUSES ARE RULED TAX FREE

Atty. Gen. Carmichael ruled on Monday trucks and accessories purchased by Boards of Education for transportation of school children were exempt from th eState's tax.

The Board of Revenue held a brief business session in the Courthouse on Monday.

Regarding inquiries concerning the next term of Circuit Court, Judge Wallace states he will not call same until the Farmers have finished planting their crops.

Free school books valued at $400,000 have been distributed to school children of the first and second grades in the elementary schools of the state during the school years of 1935-36 and 1936-37, M. H. Killingsworth, business manager of the State Department of Education revealed last week in a report to the Board of Education. Of the total amount spent, the State supplied approximately $300,000, most of which was derived from the tax levy on snuff and chewing tobacco.

STATE HAS ONLY UNTIL JULY TO MATCH FEDERAL FUNDS

Gaston Scott, chairman of the State Highway Commission, returned from Washington Tuesday with word that plans for Alabama's new $5,000,000 highway program were being completed as rapidly as possible.

Under the program, $1,750,000 worth of state warrants sold recently will be used to match Federal funds, with counties putting up as much as the state within their respective borders.

Under the Hayden-Cartwright act, Alabama must match $2,500,0000 allocated to it before July 1 or the Federal money will be re-allocated to other states.

THE COLUMBIANA BAPTIST CHURCH

J. W. Jones, Pastor

The pastor has returned from the Southern Baptist Convention and will preach both morning and evening Sunday. There will be a baptismal service at the close of the evening service.

A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to be present.

Remember the revival services begin June 2nd.

Personally, we are constitutionally opposed to all foods with mysterious names.

POSTMASTERS TO MEET IN THE MAGIC CITY MAY 26 - 27

The Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, the City Commission, and The National League of District Postmasters are preparing to entertain the postmasters of Alabama who will assemble on May 26th and 27th in Birmingham for their annual convention.

An interesting part of the program arranged for the postmasters will be an address by the Honorable John H. Moody, of Cotton Valley, La., Mr. Moody is national president of the organization of postmasters who are sponsoring the program.

Among the entertainment features of the convention will be a banquet given in the Terrace Room of the Thomas efferson Hotel on the night of May 26th with a floor show and dance following. The principal speaker of the evening will be The Hon. Leon McCord of Montgomery.

All postmasters are invited to attend the convention.

JUNIOR THREE'S GIVE PARTY

The Junior Three Class of Shelby County High School entertained with a class party, Friday night, May 14, at the Masonic Hall.

The large group of Junior Threes and faculty members played games and enjoyed a number of contests. Later in the evening dancing was enjoyed by some while others were initiated into several new games.

The faculty was well represented with Miss Meroney, Mrs. Head, Mr. Stone, Miss Bell and Miss Peters attending.

Decorations consisted of snap-dragons, gorgeous re dand white ones, roses of every color and larkspur.

MRS. J. T. ANDERSON DIES AT HOME

Mrs. J. T. Anderson died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jess Poe in Kingdom Community on Saturday, May 8th after an illness of several months. She was 63 years of age at the time of her death and had been a resident of this Community for 17 years, having come here with her family from Sand Mountain.

SENIOR CLASS OF SHELBY HIGH TO GIVE CLASS PLAY

The graduaitng class of Shelby County High School will present its annual class play on Friday evening, May 21st, at eight o'clock in the auditorium of the High School.

The play chosen for presentation this year is "The District Attorney", a drama of unusual interest because of its revelation of political graft as well as the personal problems of its leading character.

Between the acts of the play groups of high school girls will give some lovely esthetic dances.

Prices of admission are 25c for adults and 15c for children.

GRADUATES FETED AT HELENA JR. HI

The graduating class of the Helena Junior High School was entertained with a banquet given by the Junior 11 Class on the evening of April 30.

The banque ttable was centered with a clever circus scene, and novel place cards bearing the names of the guests further carried out the idea of a circus. Bowls of larkspur and roses were placed at intervals along the tables. For favors tiny gingham elephants filled with peanuts, were at each plate.

Betty June Payne and Nettie Mae Stone, dressed as acrobats, sang, The Man On The Flying Trapeze," while distributing clever prophesies to the Seniors. Margaret Roy, wearing a ballet costume, acted as the tight-rope walker. James Williams, as the circus clown, presented each person with a balloon to which was attached a character portrayal.

An auction sale was held at which prized senion possessions were bought by the Junior II's.

Adding further to the entertainment were other songs, stunts, toasts and speeches given by members of both classes.

SUPREME COURT RULES ALL FLOUR AS TAX EXEMPT

All flour was exempted from the state 2 per cent sales tax recently by a decision of the Alabama Supreme Court. The decision was unanimous, and reversed Judge Walter B. Jones, of Montgomery Circuit Court who held only "plain" flour was exempt.

In a second decision on the sales tax the court ruled that automobile repair shops should pay the levy only on sales of parts used in repairing automobiles. No tax, the court held is due on paint, solder and other materials or for parts used in re-conditioning cars used by the shops for re-sale.

The court's decision on flour ended a sharp disagreement within the state administration.

Attorney General Albert Carmichael ruled all flour falling within general meaning of the word, including self-rising and pan cake brands were exempt fro mthe tax, in an informal ruling at the request of State Representative Eugene (Bull) Connor of Birmingham.

Disregarding this opinion, the state tax commission held only plain flour was exempt and the suit on which the ruling was returned was filed by D. W. Holt, Montgomery grocery and market operator.

In the automobile repair shop case brought up by F. A. Doby, a Montgomery circuit ruling was modified and affirmed.

The lower court had held that parts paints and the like used in repairing cars were taxable but personal service was exempt.

RETURN FROM SALES TAX GIVEN

MONTGOMERY— Alabama's two per cent sales tax poured more than a quarter of a million dollars into the state treasury during its first month's operation, Henry Long, chairman of the State Tax Commission, reported recently.

"We have deposited $231,000 in the State Treasury from the tax collection," he said, "but literally thousands of returns were not made out correctly and had to be returned, so that total colections for March will be over the quarter million mark.

"Collections indicate some estimates made during the legislative session as to the amount the tax would bring in are much too high."

During debates on the sales tax in the Legislature, estimates of its annaul take hanged from $2,500,00 to $7,000.000. Most of it is earmarked for schools.

First reports from merchants on the tax were due April 20, on sales made during March. However, credit sales are not reported until accounts are paid, so that little credit business was reflected in the first month's report .

The sales tax superseded a one and one half per cent gross receipts tax levied on merchants, which brought in $461,000 during the two months of it soperation.

MUSICAL PLAY

There will be a musical play at Lesters Chapel Church Saturday night, May 22nd, and believe it or not there will be a wedding without a woman! Please come to see "Musical Memories."

If you plan a vacation this summer why not consider a trip in the United States and learn something about the diversity and the similarity of the country.

UNIVERSITY—Long forward strides were recorded again in March by state business enterprises. Statistics contained in the May issue of the University of Alabama Business News, monthly publication of the school of commerce, reveal advances in all lines of activity studied.

Largest percentage advances were recorded by automobile sales, which advanced 66.1 per cent over February and 49.4 per cent over March, 1936. Department store sales continued to stand among the leaders, registering a 12.2 per cent increase over February and a 14.9 per cent rise over March, 1936.

Life insurance sales, long laggard in commercial recovery, advanced 23.3 per cent over February and 18.4 per cent over March, 1936. Coal production was up 18.9 per cent for the month, coke production, 17.5 per cent. Cotton consumption was 16.9 per cent higher than in February and 41.2 per cent higher than in March, 1936.

Electric energy consumption was up only 2.8 per cent over February, but 21.9 per cent over March, 1936. Pig iron production advanced 12 per cent for the month and steel ingot production 14.2 per cent. Compared with March, 1936, pig iron was up 40.8 er cent and steel ingot 25.7 per cent.

Square footage of building contracts advanced 18.7 for the month and 11.2 for the year. The number on payrolls was up 2.2 over February while the amount of payrolls was up 3.2 per cent.

INTRASTATE CUT IN LONG DISTANCE RATE

Alabama intrastate long distance telephone rates, after June 1, will be in line with those recently ordered into effect by Federal authorities for interstate service, the Alabama Public Service Commission having issued the order last Saturday.

According to the opinion of the Alabama Commission, the order will save approximately $65,000 a year to long distance telephone users in Alabama who use the service between points in Alabama.

The Alabama Commission found that th eexpenses of the telephone company are increasing in Alabama but that its revenues are also increasing and that the cut in rates can be made by the company without impairing its service in any way.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

Folks, if you happened ot notice the absence of our Chatter in last weeks paper blame it on time. Time brought that train through our town before our news was in the post office and so i twas too late. Accept our apologies. . . Mobile has called some of our citizens away for a visit. . . . Did Lillian and Evelyn Robinson look happy and eager Saturday morn ing awaiting that train to take off with their grand mother, Mrs. Ross, for a visit with relatives in Mobile. Here's to a pleasant and safe return. . . . Betty Busby had a birthday party By Crackie! That's alliteration and truth too. Betty was six times one and the big event came off last Saturday, May 8th. The following bright faced lads and lassies assembled at the home of Betty's grand parents,Mr . and Mrs. W. F. Fallon: Vivian and Sonny Horton Jerry Vandiver, Jimmie Tilley, Betty Butler, Nellie Lowery, Donald Lowery, Buck Duke, Betty Sue Robinson, Colleen Danner, James Thompson, Thomas Maxwell, Jean Blankenship, Betty Jefferson, J. H. Denham, Edna Earl Denham, Hazel and Louise Howard, Sherry Edwards and Wylodine Fallon After reveling in such games as A Circus Party, Animals everywhere, and a treasure hunt ,the boys and girls took a trip t othe Zoo, which was the dining room, where an animal candle decorated cake was served with drinks. Afterwards the guests returned to the lawn where they had a balloon blowing up good time. Pictures were taken. Many more birthdays, Betty, is what we wish you . . . .Our kindergarten closed Saturday with a lovely May Festival. The kiddies were at their best in the roles they played. The pretty queen was Betty Busby. Thomas Maxwell was the stately King. Mother Goose came to life in the person of Jean Blankenship. Donald Lowery and Edna Earl Denham portrayed Jack and Jill. We had a convincing Miss Muffett in Nellie Lowery. Billowing waves and distant lands came to our minds when we saw those three men in a tub, Sonny Horton, Allen Hawkins and Paul Hawkins. Bo ee, Lucy Lockett, Boy Blue and Tommy Tucker got in the scene through the persons of Betty Jefferson, Betty Butler Buck Duke and Bennie Cassels. The colorful May Pole Dance came last. Miss Reed directed, Mrs. Doyle Cofer played the piano and all the people enjoyed it immensely. . . . Young people, STOP, LOOK and LISTEN for Dan Cupid is working his way thru our fair haven. As a result of some of his sure fire shooting we know two hearts that are about to start beating as one. For later reports see next weeks paper. . . We believe in honor where honor is due so heres a hand out for Montin Duke and Elizabeth Hines fo rtheir excellent dramatization of that reading which was first prize in our "Major Bowes Amateur Hour" last week. Buck Duke didn't do bad with his portrayal of "Halleujah I'm a Bum," for it brought down second prize. We do have some talent around here, believe it or not. You would have had to believe it could you have seen Bill Averette in the rol eof negro harmonica soloist. . . All good things have to end and so do those that aren't so good. So here's an end of this

'Til another day,

Nell and Nelle.

VINCENT NEWS

Las tThursday afternoon, despite the rain, we witnessed a very comical baseball game. It being played between the Vincent Red Sox (the ladies) and the Vincent Bear Cats (the men). After five innings the Bear Cats defeated the Red Sox with the score being eight and nine.

Friday evening, Roy Shelton, of Jefferson County, presented "Youth Follies". The proceeds will be used on a tour to Washington which will be made in the summer by Guy Wyatt McCranie. The four classes in the High School appointed a representative after averaging the grades. We are happy on sending Guy Wyatt as a representative from the Junior Class and we ar esure it will be very educational and of much benefit to him and us also.

The Seniors made a trip to Blue Creek Saturday. This was given them by their teacher, Miss Turner. Motor boat riding, fishing, swimming and observing were feats greatly enjoyed by all. We enjoyed the trip, worlds! We'd like to say that the class, as a whole, represented the school very nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bates vacationed a few days with Mr and Mrs. J. F. Bates last week.

Mr .and Mrs. Stanley Jones and Mr. and Mrs. E E. Florey had Mr. and Mrs. Lester Jones of Birmingham with them this week end

The old fashioned men and women who objected so strenously to the one piece bathing suit for women might start campaigning to get them to wear its equivalent. at least, this summer.

Alabama Is Rapidly Closing Almshouses

UNIVERSITY—County almshouses in Alabama have been reduced from 61 in November, 1935, to 22 in April, 1937, according to Dr. E. W Gregory of the University of Alabama. Dr. Gregory, head of the University's Sociology Department, has had an article on Alabama's almshouses published in the May issue of the University of Alabama Business News.

The inmates of the 39 closed houses have been placed in private homes. The institution of care of the poor in private homes has been made possible by the passage of the National Social Security Act, according to Dr. Gregory. This act provides for state and Federal cooperation with the counties in caring for the poor.

Eye Sight Returns With 3rd Set Teeth

ENID, Okla.—Youth is creeping up on sixty year old R. L. Downing, who has discarded his glasses and now is cutting his third set of teeth.

Downing formerly could not read the streamer line on a newspaper without his glasses. One day he found he could read a little better, and within a year he laid aside his glasses entirely.

The improvement in his eyesight, Downing admitted, was not nearly so much a surprise as the discovery his third set of teeth was coming through

This is the time of the year that most people should get in the habit of rising early and going to work.

Commencement

In colleges and high schools throughout the country this is "commencement" period. Graduation classes will be listening to learned discourses which concern for the most part "their future."

There was a time when commencement speakers could give advice with assurance, or as many of them did, quote a few bromides which have been considered the keys of success in the past and hence could be expected to produce the same results in the future.

Of late, however, commencement speakers have not been as authoritative in their declarations. Nor have those who are about to receive diplomas been as certain about the wisdom of commencement speakers. Graduates much prefer the assurance of a job to any amount of wisdom.

Edward A. Filene, who is always identified as "the Boston Merchant", delivered a unique commencement address recently. Speaking on a nation-wide broadcast arranged by the United States Office of Education, he addressed high school graduates in many sections of the country, particularly those in smaller communities where outstanding speakers are not available.

Mr. Filene, who is old in years but so young in his ideas that he often shocks his contemporaries, spoke as one who has seen the work of the last generation and has caught the vision of the task of the next

The significant accomplishment of the present generation, he said, has been the development of the machine. The mass production technique is the foundation of a civilization, the potentialities of which will be realized only after a future generation has utilized it for the benefit of mankind as a whole.

What course to take Mr. Filene is frank to admit he does not know. He believes that the lack of any greater degree of success in the past can be attributed to the fact that "we were so lacking in the social viewpoint that we couldn't run the machines which we had set up." The tools are still available, however, and that contribution cannot be minimized. Mr. Filene continued:

"It is not with regret, therefore, but with a deep sense of gratitude, that I recall the humble part which I was privileged to play. But yours is the greater task; in the very nature of the task you cannot expect much worthwhile advice from us, who assumed when we were toiling that we were toiling merely for ourselves."

"We have been disciplined by work," he declared to his high school listeners."You must school yourselves to rise beyond mere work. We have been disciplined by scarcity. You must school yourselves to solve the problems of abundance. We have been disciplined by the conflict which we thought would never end—the conflict of man against man. We have now reached a time ,however, when that war must end, else the machinery we have developed will become machinery of destruction—used to halt the upward march of the human race. It is up to you, therefore, to learn a way of life—a way of human peace, of human co-operation and human kinship—which we of the older generation can scarcely comprehend."

—Montgomery Advertiser.

The Victims Increase

Talk about safety all you please but the automobile continues to take its victims in Shelby County and all over the United States, and the people of the land seem to regard it as an inevitable toll.

The National Safety Council reports that 8,600 persons died in traffic accidents in the first three months of this year, which is more than 25 per cent above the figures for the same period of 1936.

What about it? The answer is nothing much! We will sit quietly in our homes or die on the roads, as the case may be, but the next year will see the fatalities increase. A few words of warning, an exhibition of grief here and there as death strikes home and the automobiles speed on their way.

Figures Don't Lie

As schools all over the state close prematurely despite Graves' pledge that sales tax revenue would prevent this tragedy, the sordid story of patronage at the State Capitol grimly unfolds itself notwithstanding all efforts to minimize or suppress it.

Figures don't lie, and for the benefit of Skeptical Silases who consistently seek to discount warnings that the state is in peril of being gobbled up by a powerful political machine that may possibly develop into a virtual dictatorship as ruthless as that which shamed Louisiana, the Times Journal offers facts gleaned from official records which speak for themselves.

Latest figures from the State Tax Commission show a payroll increase of better than $28,000 monthly for April of this year over December of 1934, the last month of Miller's administration. During Millers last month $15,824.59 was paid out in salaries as compared wtih $42,321.27 for the past April.

And most significant in the whole odoriferous comparison, is the fact that 380 employes were working for the Tax Commission last month, while Miller managed to get the work done with 133. This was an increase of 247, which is nearly twice as many as the total employed in 1934. Thus in one department of the state, we have 247 prospective supporters for a system of pillage and patronage, not counting their families and friends, which make the number legion.

A sharp rise in payrolls of the Health Department since 1936 proves that Graves has recently tapped a rich source of revenue despite the fact that this income has not evidenced itself in full terms for our schools.

In December of 1934, under Miller, this department paid out $10,483.95 in monthly salaries. In anuary of 1936, Graves distributed $11,588.10, which was a comparatively small increase. Last month, however,, the figures jumped to $18,459.67, showing an increase for the brief interim of nearly eight times the increase for the previous two years. And still the schools are closing short of the time required to give the students accredited standing.

Payrolls of the Convict Department advanced from $28,363.04 in 1934 to $33,817.63 in April of this year. In the Comptroller's office, the jump was from $6,101.62 to $17,146.66, involving approximately 140 employees against a total of 38 under Miller.

But why extend the sorry parade of figures? Get these in your mind and then consider the plight of the schools. Think on the conditions faced by our own schools as well as those of our neighbors in Wilcox Hale, Marengo and Autauga. Dallas is unable to say what will come next winter and already the blow has fallen on adjoining counties, none of which were able to complete terms required for accredited standings.

If a sorrier tune must be piped to completely awaken Alabama from her troubled slumber and inspire her to read asunder the shackles Bibb Graves is steadily forging, good government is indeed doomed in our state.—Selma Tomes-Journal.

Leading Double Lives

The average driver behind the wheel frequently toots his horn and sputters at the pedestrian who "doesn't know any better." Then, the driver becomes a pedestrian, and presto—change his gears shift into reverse psychology and he bawls out some driver who warns him of danger. That's not an unusual person.

Things happen all-of-a-sudden in crowded streets and highways. And so, we should all drive along with every intersection, walker, traffic light, signal, and every car under suspicion. All too often, when an accident happens, if we are sufficiently alert we don't let the other fellow's mistake get us in trouble.

Expert drivers tell us there is just one thing to do—to give ourselves a margin of safety, a reserve of space and a reserve of time.

Traffic accidents furnish evidence that most of us lead double-lives. Become an "expert driver" and you will grow away from the weakness of "leading a double life."

You love the people who knew you when, but it doesn't take long to find out all that most of them know, although it takes long to tell what they suspect.

If a human being would be entirely free he would have to live on an isolated island away from all people —and then he would be the slave of his environment.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

When you hit our town you'll know it by the fragrance in the air. That sweet perfume emanates from our honeysuckles. It is everywhere and we'll wager a pretty penny that everyone loves it. While passing certain homes you may inhale a breath of the Odor of China Berry blossoms and we must say they play no second fiddle in this matter of perfume. The Roosevelts have nothing on us—we live in a white house too, and if the painters keep up this speedy weilding of brushes it won't be long until our whole village will be glistening white. That little green touch just sets everything off. . . . John R Sweeney is now holding down a bed in Gorgas hospital. Reports say that he is doing fine after undergoing an appendix operation. We feel for you John R.. and you hurry home for you are much missed. This leads up to some thing else: Mr. J. T Phillips superintendent of Buck Creek Cotton Mills was rushed to Gorgas hospital last Thursday for an appendix operation. We hear that he came through in splendid shape and that he is anxious to come home. We know that all of his employees want him home again too . . . . Donald Lowery informed his daddy upon being questioned as to the closin gdate of kindergarten, that it certainly couldn't close until they have their "'May-West" Pole. That May Pole is scheduled for next Saturday and we think it will be good . . . . Some of our young married couples seem to be going around in circles. Mr .and Mrs. Ralph Brown Mr an.d Mrs George Thomason and Mr. and Mrs A B. Bradley were asking you why you interrupted your Sunday afternoon stroll so often for conference, but we don't expect an answer . . . . About the cutest thing we know of is James Fredrick Thornton, better known as "Skipper". Note those great big eyes next time you have a chance and does that little billed cap give him a mannish air. . . . If perchance you should try to stay neutral in a free for all fight and one of a dozen fellows in gray should crack your bean with a bottle what would be the correct thing to do? Why, get a bottle and return the compliment with interest to a fellow in a gray suit. Whether he be the same one who bumped you or not is absolutely immaterial. For further details see Chester Jones . . . . Lloyd Thorpe and Churck Harris made a flying trip to Atlanta last Friday night to bring Fred Phillips back to the bedside of his father. . .. "Something old and something new something——". You've heard it. his time it is something new in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Byrd a son whom they have named Bobby Ray . . . . Mrs. Thorpe has returned home from a visit with her brother of Gorgas She reports a good time plenty to eat and all the fixings

We're at our wits end as to anything more of news so we'll sign off with the assurance that we remain yours,

'til the cows come home with Apple Dumplings on their horns,

Nell and Nelle.

Early Skyscrapers

In Edinburgh, Scotland, are still some of the first "skyscrapers." These are houses built very high because the space within the city walls was so restricted.

REST from kitchen care—rest from scouring smudgy pots and pans—rest from kitchen stove-tending—that's what women who do their own housework want.

● CLEANLINESS! That's what all women demand in their kitchens, whether they do their own housework, or whether they have it done by servants. Clean walls, clean drapes, clean cooking vessels (outside, as well as in), clean stoves.

● ECONOMY! Household money must go far, so you'll find women everywhere practicing economy in their kitchens.

● BETTER TASTING FOOD! Children and husbands demand it—earnest mothers and wives are constantly seeking ways to make food taste better.

Electric Cookery Brings You All These Pleasures

So rapidly has electric cookery swept into popular favor that today you can buy (at surprisingly moderate prices) electric ranges that queens and princesses would have envied a few years ago. SO CHEAP IS ELECTRICITY IN ALABAMA that you can cook electrically almost as inexpensively as any other way. (Sometimes at less cost than the old way).

6,110 ALABAMA WOMEN HAVE SAID THEIR NEXT STOVE WILL BE ELECTRIC

(Will you be one of these up-to-date women?)

They'll make their selections from one of the following kinds, offered by furniture, hardware, department, electrical and general stores in Alabama:

KENMORE—WESTINGHOUSE—NORGE—HOTPOINT—M-W—UNIVERSAL—GENERAL ELECTRIC—MONARCH—MARION—ENTERPRISE—L & H—STANDARD—ESTATE GRAYBAR-CRAWFORD—KELVINATOR

Many models to suit any type of kitchen at prices and terms to fit any pocketbook!

Social and Personal Mention

MILDRED WHITE WALLACE, Social Editor

"One way I have to baffle woe
When failure follows all I've tried—
I suddenly detach myself
And just sit still and let things slide"

When you get into one of those animated suspension moods, mentioned above ,its hard not to join the SIT DOWNERS and STRIKE. Especially is this true, these lazy, old, dreamy old, southern afternoons! Old Sol is so hectic. The ,afternoons so long, the radio so static, the press so fussy the news so scarce. The rumblings on Main so worthless. WHAT TO DO? LET THINGS SLIDE says Cheerful Cherub, and thats just what we did this week. Now, here it is Wednesday morning, and not a line written o nthis page for you to read or pass by ,as the case may be. It is, so far, a blank page—but it MUST BE FILLED with something, and we know of no social festivity which has caused such favorable comment from all fortunate enough to have attended than the lovely reception held in the hospitable home of Mrs. Edna Roberts on last Thursday afternoon. So ,let's begin with that:

Mrs Edna Roberts Entertains Culture Club of Columbiana and Matrons Study Club of Sylacauga

The lovely home of Mrs. Edna Roberts was hospitably thrown open to the members of the Culture Club of Columbiana and the Matron's Study Club of Sylacauga when she entertained with a lovely reception on last Thursday afternoon, May 13th.

Roses in tall baskets, peonies and garden flowers added fragrance and beauty to the attractively arranged rooms.

Mrs. Roberts, assisted by Mrs. R. Williams of Sylacauga, received the guests and ushered them into the dining room where delicious punch was served from a beautifully appointed table covered with Venetian lace, and centered with a vase of pink roses.

The meeting was called to order by the president of the Culture Club, Mrs. Homer J. Walton and the club song was rendered in chorus. Mrs. M. Tatum, President of the Matrons Club of Sylacauga, introduced members from her club. Mesdames J. E. Jordan, P. Vardeman, R. Williams, and Miss Frances Porter. Mrs. Walton then presented members from the Culture Club in a clever, personal manner, after which Mrs. Walton graciously extended cordial words of welcome to the guests. Response was made by Mrs. Jordan.

A musical program followed:

Vocal Solo Sylvia..Mrs Henry Nichols
Violin Solo.....Mrs. R. Williams
Vocal Solo ..... Mrs. Tatum
Reading ..... Miss Porter

Brief reports of club activities were given by Mrs. Tatum and Mrs. Jordan. Mrs. Vardaman reported scholarships given by the Club which are among the many worth while activities they have sponsored.

The book presented by Mrs. W. F. Davis to the Club Library was Drums along the Mohawk. A social hour was enjoyed during which time a lovely salad plate with tea was served by Mrs. Bill Lee and Mrs. Cochran ,sisters of th ehostess.

Visitors included: Mesdames J. R. White, A. P. McGhee, J W. Letson, Fay Benton, L H. Ellis, C. E Niven, L. Fowler, Cage Head, Frank Head, Lou McGiboney, Sidney Bird and Miss Mildred Meroney

ADA SUE GORMAN

The Democrat happily welcomes a new member to its staff of writers, Miss Ada Sue Gorman of Vincent, who will furnish us news from this locality and will also represent the Democrat in Vincent. If your subscription has expired to this weekly, and you wish to continue getting it see Miss Gorman for your renewal.

MARY McMILLAN ROBINSON

Mary McMillan Robinson ,of Denver, Colorado, was a distinguished guest in Columbiana on last Friday. Mrs. Robinson will be remembered for her outstanding work in Columbiana in the Child Welfare Department for a number of years ,and also for her gifted pen poems, many of which have received national recognition. She was accompanied by Mrs Margaret Dozier of Birmingham, and Miss May Hamburger of Montgomery, and was the guest of Mrs. Hardy Nelson and Mrs. Esther Christian.

WILLIAM CAREY WOMACK

Returning from Tennessee with his pretty mother, Mrs. Womack (Willie Lee Page), little William Carey Womack received the spotlight of approval last week when he made his initial appearance in Columbiana, the former home of his mother. He was closely followed by his grand father, Will Page, who admits he is the "finest baby he ever saw." The young gentleman rceeived our O. K. and we shall not soon forget his friendly smile as we were introduced—even though he is only eleven weeks old. Best wishes attend thee little man!

RHYTHM 'RISTOCRATS

The Rhythm 'Ristocrats have been signally honored by President of the Postmasters of Alabama, Dick McGraw of Vincent, when he chose this musical organization to play for the luncheon and dance which will be held in Birmingham at the Thomas Jefferson Hotel on May 26th. The boys have a ten piece orchestra and are now available for summer dance engagements. For further details and engagements, write to Manager L. B. Riddle, Jr.

They will play for the Legion dance at the Masonic Hall in Columbiana on next Friday night.

The Rev. J. W. Jones has returned from New Orleans, La., where he attended the Baptist Convention. He will resume his morning and evening services at the Baptist Church Sunday.

The Rev. P. G. Johnston, formerly of Columbiana, no wresiding in Jacksonville, Ala., spent Sunday in Columbiana .

Mary Echols of Calera, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Holcombe.

Mrs. Roy Walton is visiting in Birmingham this week.

The many friends of Mrs. Lula Polk, regret to learn of her illness in her home in Columbiana.

CLARA JO WILLIAMS

An attractive little Miss who hails from Oxford, Alabama, was a cordially welcomed guest in the Democrat office on Friday. Her name? Clara Jo Williams, talented and versatile daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Williams (Effie Mae Fulton). Little Miss Williams is a Reader, and has a personality all her own, which vies for honorable mention—yea, even when Miss Shirley Temple is mentioned. AND, Clara Jo states she is going to Hollywood. I believe she was three years old when this statement was emphatically made. We shall see what happens say 15 years from NOW. At any rate, we are wishing her luck and heartily believe in DREAMS COME TRUE—IF you just dream hard and long enough—and are willing to pay the price.

E. P. LIGHTCAP

The many friends of Dr. Edgar Lightcap ,former Dentist of Shelby County, now residing in New York City ,were welcoming him home again Tuesday. He is the distinguished guest of Dr. and Mrs. D. S. Lightcap.

Mrs. Rena Phillips of Ensley is the guest of Miss Era Pitts this week.

Mr. and Mrs Joe Davidson and children of Helena an,d the Rev. W. T. Edwards of Anniston, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pitts in Columbiana.

GILLA ANN AND GLENDA LOIS ROBERTSON

A baby is always the most interesting person in the world. So, TWO BABIES would be and ARE just twice as interesting as one baby. So, when Mrs. Beston Robertson (Rosebud Moore) parked her car on Main Street Saturday, and we joined a throng of former friends to welcome her home again, the spotlight of popular favor was centered on the rear seat, where Lady Gilla Ann and Lady Glenda Lois, three months old twins, were receiving the homage their beauty and baby charm richly deserve. We saw first two dainty pairs of blue bootees kicking their approval of some gaily swung toys, hung at just the right angle to attract their blue optics. Next, there were two pairs of pink tightly closed fists which were attempting to make connection with these aforementiontoys. Failing in this, there were two lusty yells from these "fragile beginnings of a mighty end"—and presto—the whole town jumped to obey their demands for CURB SERVICE. Daintily clad and completely adorable they captivated—COLUMBIANA. Hurry back Babettes, your hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Edwards state they have never missed "anything half so much" as they have missed sweet little Y-O-U-S!

B. W. C. MEETING

The regular monthly business meeting of the B. W. C. was held on Monday afternoon, May 10th, with Miss Ethel Walton, thirteen members being present.

The Roll Call was answered by payment of dues.

Prayer by Mrs. Luther Curlee.

The following reports were given:
Gertrude Bishop....Literary Chairman
Mildred Meroney.....Personal Service
Mary Woolley ..... Enlistment
Agnes Armstrong..... Stewardship

The financial report was given by Mary Woolley as Mrs. Young, the Secretary, was absent.

The different committees made interesting reports on personal service done on Mother's Day and at other times.

After the business session the guests enjoyed a lovely salad plate served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held with Mildred Meroney on May 31st.

—Reporter.

Misses Odell and Idell Turner, W. M. Clark and Powell Blair spent last Sunday in Auburn.

EB WALTON

The many friends of E. B. Walton formerly of Columbiana, now residing in Clanton, were delighted to have the privilege of greeting him again this week on Main Street, after an absence o fseveral weeks due to the uncomfortable Jobean complaint —and of which PATIENCE seems to be the only remedy!

Miss Frances Stinson of Itasca, Texas is the attractive house guest of Mrs. Tom Stinson.

Mrs. Norman West visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank West in Thomasville, Ala., last week.

Mrs. Irene Stone visited her mother, Mrs. Frank West in Thomasville over the week end.

Mrs. Jean Bird who has been with us for a short visit has returned to her work in Decatur .

Mr. and Mrs. Mc D. Messer and family were guests of Mr. C. D. Messer in Sylacauga Sunday.

Miss Mary George Burks, Miss Vivian Nix and Miss Hermoine Woolley spent the week end in Eclectic where Miss Woolley is staying with her parents until school opens again in the fall.

WAKE UP SHELBY COUNTY

Reports listed in the daily papers evidence the fact that Highway construction programs in various Counties in Alabama ,are in full swing. These facts, continue to bring inquiries into the Democrat Office regarding the apparent delinquency of Shelby County in taking advantage of the liberal State-County or State-County-Federal two way and three way plans offered, which other Counties have already availed themselves of and profited by.

For instance in an article headed "DREAM COMES TRUE" from the Progressive Age (Scottsboro) — we learn that the State Highway Depart ment has gotten so interested in its work in this County that they are maintaining a crew of workers on the job day and night—resurfacing and grading the Lee Highway making it possible soon for the Lee highway paving project to extend thru the entire County. Many other Counties in the State bespeak activity on the Road projects, realizing the importance of Road development if progress thru their sections will continue. Shelby County's name is conspicuous by its absence from the list.

Can it be possible with reasons so obviously advantageous for Road Building that Shelby County is not qualified to take advantage of the TWO WAY or THREE WAY, or the more recent FOUR WAY plan liberally offered by State, Federal and County, where the Federal Government agrees to put up One half the amount—the remaining amount to be equally divided by State and County? Can it be possible that the majority of the Counties are advancing in the Forward March movement, while Shelby County lags languidly behind? Are we allowing selfishness to over shadow the goal of achievement offered? Is personal ambition to curry favor with a few voters overshadowing the good of the majority in the County? Can Shelby County afford to asume the lethargic attitude toward this permanent step for her future development by refusing to meet the terms laid down by officials who have carefully studied the situation, and which plan has been whole heartedly accepted by practically all other wide awake Counties in the State?

In an endeavor to answer your inquiries, we have invited comments, we have personally asked the officials in charge, and giving honor to whom honor is due, we quote "Chairman J. M. Lyon, who states "You cannot quote me as being too favorable for the Road Project. I am for it 100 per cent". WHY something DEFINITE cannot be learned is not known. We understand the time limit for acceptance is July. (If we are wrong, please correct us). It is almost JUNE! About all we have been able to glean from the personal questions you have asked us to find out and publish—is that "NOTHING DEFINITE" is known at the present Like Mark Twain's weather — there is plenty talk about it—but little done about it—APPARENTLY—and TIME MARCHES ON. Remember Nero fiddled while Rome burned. There was a soldier in the late War who made the remark when the entire Army marched by—"Everybody's out of step but Jim." Could he have been a native of Shelby County?

A POLIOMYELITIS EPIDEMIC NOT TO APPEAR IN 1937

MONTGOMERY — Alabama parents were assured today by Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, that this State is not likely to see this year a repetition o fthe poliomyelitis epidemic which caused so much anxiety last year, especially between June 1 and November 1, when 364 cases were reported and 30 poliomyelitis deaths occurred in the State. Forty poliomyelitis deaths, more than twice the normal annual mortality for this disease, were reported during the entire year.

Dr. Baker pointed out that poliomyelitis does not usually appear in epidemic form in the same part of the uocnrty in successive years, although it is unlikely that a State that has just passed through a poliomyelitis epidemic will escape it altogether.

A somewhat similar assurance was given a short itme ago by Dr. J. P. Leake, of the United States Public Health Service, who has studied the record of this disease over a period of many years.

"In 1935, a normal poliomyelitis year, there were 13 deaths from this disease," he said, "Eight of these occurred among children under five years of age, and 11, or all but two, under the age of 15. Eight deaths occurred between June 1 and November 1, which was the period when the 1936 epidemic was at its worst.

ALL COUNTIES WILL GET FISH FOR RESTOCKING

MONTGOMERY—Fish to restock Alabama's rivers and lakes for sports' men will be distributed through local conservation councils in the state's 67 counties this year, I. T. Quinn, state conservation commissioner announced recently.

"We feel that better results can be obtained through distributing the fish through county units because of their knowledge of local conditions in the various sections of the state," Mr. Quinn said.

He urged sportsmen and farmers wishing to restock lakes and streams to get in touch with their county conservation council.

HOWARD CRIMSON AND BLUE WILL BE ON '38 AUTO TAGS

MONTGOMERY—Alabama's 1938 automobile license tags will be crimson and blue in recognition of Howard College, Birmingham.

Announcement of the color scheme. bright crimson fgiures on a blue back ground, was made Thursday by Cleon B. Rogers chairman of the State Board of Administration.

The 1937 tags used colors of Spring Hill College, Mobile, purple and white. The state has used colors of the various colleges several years.

There will be Sunday School at the usual hour and the congregation will attend services at the High School at the eleven O'clock hour. Rev. L. L. Gwaltney will deliver the Baccalureate sermon.

Dr. Gwaltney will preach at hte Baptist Church at seven-thirty. Everyone is urged to hear this great man of God. An invitation is extended to the nearby communities to attend these services.

Revival services will begin Wednesday 7:30 p. m. Rev. J. L. Moye, pastor Hunter Street Baptist Church Birmingham, will do the preaching. Rev LaFayette Walker, Howard College will direct the singing.

The business men of the town have agreed to close their places of business for the eleven O'clock service each day, with the exception of Saturday. We appreciate this spirit of co-operation.

LONGVIEW DEMONSTATION CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The Longview Home Demonstration Club met at the Camp Branch-Saginaw School auditorium May 18, with 16 ladies present.

The meeting was called to order by the president with group singing two songs, "TheChu rch in the Wild wood" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot."

Mrs. Wilson Durden had charge of the program on "The Observance of Child Health Day," which was May 1.

Very interesting and helpful papers were read by Mrs. Durden, Mrs. Crim and Mrs. Bufodr on Tuberculosis in children, venereal diseases and health in general.

Mrs. Hillman had charge of the Demonstration "Seat Covers." Miss Nolen showed beautiful samples suitable to be used.

A lovely lunch was served by Mesdames Evans, Cobb and Wyatt. The next meeting place was not decided.

Shelby County Conservation Association ANNUAL MEETING

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE SHELBY COUNTY CONSERVATION ASSOCIATION AND ALL OTHERS WHO ARE INTERESTED IN CONSERVATION WORK:

The annual meeting of the Conservation Association will be held at the Court House, Columbiana, Friday night, May 28th. It will be an important meeting and you are urged to attend.

T. O. SMITH, President

Many citizens know of the efforts that have been made to establish the work of Conservation in our county. The above call by President Smith represents one more effort to establish this work.

All the counties of Alabama are being organized, or have been organized to carry on similar work. In no other country is there greater reason to be interested in Conservation than in Shelby County, because no other county in all the state is more fortunate in its natural wealth than is our county.

There is genuine interest in the work and there is no doubt that with the right sort of effort we can accomplish some wonderful results. All we need is the right sort of new start.

Please come to the meeting Friday night ready to do your part toward making this new start. Get your neighbors who are interested to come.

LUTHER FOWLER, Secretary

NEW ROAD PROGRAM ADVANCED IN STATE

MONTG... new "four-way" final ... policy that may swell Alabama's 1937 highway building program to a $6,000,000 total has been decided upon by the State Highway Commission.

Under it, counties getting roads will match state funds, and the Federal Government will match both state and county money to finance road construction in the state.

Gov. Bibb Graves annuonced the new policy following conferences with the commission .

"Many counties already have agreed to co-operate in matching the state money," he said. "and I believe the rest can be persuaded to put up as much as we do.

"If the state puts u pa fourth, the counties a fourth, and the Government a half, we'll have a four-way program that will put Alabama to the forefront of the nation as a road builder."

PRIZES ANNOUNCED FOR FAIR SEPTEMBER 27 THRU OCTOBER 2

At a recent meeting of a committee appointed fro mthe last years Exhibitors at the State Fair in Birmingham it wa sdecided that there would be some changing in the scoring and judging of the Agricultural Exhibits for the coming fall of 1937. According to the new scoring, the product in one booth will be scored against the products in another booth For instance—the hay in one booth will be scored against the hay in another booth and a prize will be given for the best hay. The cotton in one booth will be scored against the cotton in another booth. This will enable the county to have a chance at winning 1st in their leading product and maybe 2nd or 3rd in minor products, however, the Fair Association will continue the $150.00 guarantee for the County Exhibit under the same terms as last year. The following seven groups have been formed for the Fair which is to begin September 27th through October 2, 1937.

Ancient Public Utilities
The famous Babylonian code of Hammurabi, 4,000 years ago, listed the rates of hire of animals and carts, fixed the rates of laborers' and artisans' pay, but made no interference with prices of goods.

Ancient Copper Mine
Copper mining was carried on by the ancients on a great scale in southern Rhodesia and the old workings at Lamagundi is said to be the largest hole in the world apart from the Kimberley mine.

Ten Good Things
Ten things for which no one has ever been sorry for: doing good to all, being patient toward everybody, hearing before judging, thinking before speaking, holding an angry tongue, being kind to the distressed, speaking evil of none, asking pardon for all wrongs, stopping the ears to a tale-bearer, disbelieving all ill reports.

Drums Really Talk
The so-called talking drums of native Africa do not send messages by a sort of Morse code; they speak the actual words, imitating the sounds produced by the human vvoice.

Ideas of Soul
Among ancient peoples the soul has been frequently and variously imagined as a butterfly, a moth, bee, firefly, as well as symbolized with sparks, flames and stars.

Health and Wealth Differ
Good health is an essential element of human welfare, but over and above a certain low point good health does not necessarily, or even normally, increase with increases of private income or wealth.

Dahomey's Amazons
Dahomey, one of France's seven colonies in French West Africa, was, from the Seventeenth century to about 50 years ago, an absolute negro monarchy with a standing army, including many female warriors.

Name for Cod Fish
The Province of Nova Scotia, the Acadia of French days, was once named in honor of the cod fish. Daring Basque fishermen, who crossed the Atalntic in the Sixteenth century to fish off the Grand Banks of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, called present day Canada's most easternly province "Baccalaos," meaning cod fish. Baccaro Point, near Shelburne, is the only surviving place-name derived from the old Basque term.

Overproduction
When Benjamin Franklin wanted to marry, his prospective mother-in-law hesitated about letting her daughter marry a printer. There were already two printing places in the country and it was a question if the United States could support a third.

Steam Engines
All steam engines are really machines for turning heat energy into the energy of motion of the parts of the machine, which in their turn do the work required.

Meaning of "Infante"
The name "Infante" was the title formerly applied in Spain and Portugal to a prince of the blood royal except the oldest son, who was heir apparent and who had a special title. Infanta is the feminine form of infante and was applied to the princesses of the blood royal. A son or daughter of the sovereign could grant these titles to other members of the royal family as a mark of honor. The pretenders to both the Spanish and Portuguese thrones preserve the titles in their families.

Where the Bard Played
Although all the Shakespeare theaters are gone, visitors in London are still shown the Hall of the Middle Temple, which was built in 1572 and has the finest Elizabethan roof in the city. In this hall "Twelfth Night" was given February 22, 1602, and it is commonly stated that Shakespeare was one of the actors in that play.

Largest Real Estate Deal
The largest real estate transaction in history was the Louisiana Purchase, in 1803, when the United States bought from France the middle third of this country—a piece of land five times larger than France itself. Moreover, its low price probably constitutes a record, for, although it is the richest agricultural region in the world, it cost us only four cents an acre.—Collier's Weekly.

Founded First Hospital in U. S.
Thomas Bond (1712-1784), an American physician, founded the first hospital in the United States, was influential in establishing the first medical school, and according to Benjamin Rush, introduced the use of mercury into general practice in Philadelphia. He aroused the interest of Benjamin Franklin in a hospital for the sick, injured or insane, and together they secured the funds to open it in 1752. Bond gave his services as physician to the institution until his death.

What Some Animals Symbolize
The ape symbolizes uncleanness, malice and cunning; the ass, stupidity; bulldog, pertinacity; cat, deceit; camel, submission; dog, fidelity; elephant, sagacity and ponderosity; lamb, innocence; rabbit, fecundity; sheep, timidity; tiger, ferocity; horse, speed and grace; leopard, sin; monkey, tricks.

Perry's Naval Experience
By the time he was twenty-eight years old, Oliver H. Perry, immortalized for his victory on Lake Erie, not only had fourteen years of naval service to his credit but had been with Commodore Stephen Decatur in the fierce campaign of 1815 that ended the pirate terrorism along the Barbary coast.

Alaska Not Always in Zero Cold
On the southeastern coast of Alaska some winters go by without any zero temperatures, except at inland stations. Zero marks are scored less than twice a year at Juneau, on the average, and less than once a year at Sitka.—Gas Logic.

Court-leet in English Law
Court-leet in English law is a local customary court with a limited criminal jurisdiction.

We Learn From Egyptians
The Egyptians were the fathers of most things modern, including engineering, architecture and chemistry. They were also the first people to start making confectionery, the confectioner using honey as a sweetener, and added to this sweet herbs and spices. They were highly colored to attract the eye of the candy lover.

The Scientists
Scientists are individuals with the trait of curiosity highly developed. The ordinary mortal is content to accept things as they are, but the scientist ever is trying to discover new phenomena in the field in which he works.

Most Intricate Organ
The most intricate and elaborate automatic organ in history, it is believed, was that which was built inside a huge fountain in the Villa d'Este in Tivoli, Italy, about 1560, notes a writer in Collier's Weekly. One selected and played any of its many tunes by simply stepping on the proper stone in the surrounding pavement.

Sponge Rubber Used in 1850
Probably the earliest mention of sponge rubber is in British patent No. 13103, issued to William Edward Newton, Middlesex, England, in 1850. The sponge rubber was made by mixing raw sugar, resins, or other materials, with the rubber prior to vulcanization, and was used for shoe soles and for other purposes in connection with footwear.

The Nine Worthies
The nine worthies are designated in literature as Hector, son of Priam; Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, Joshua, David, Judas Maccabeus, King Arthur, Charlemagne and Godfrey of Bouillon.

Little Vibration
Readings taken with delicate instruments show that during the heaviest winds the vibration in our tallest buildings does not produce a movement of half an inch each way from the vertical.

World's Biggest Bears
The world's biggest bears were the cave bears that lived in European caves about 50,000 years ago.

Early Permanent Wavings
Earliest records of permanent waving go as far back as 3000 B. C., when Babylonian women had their hair braided and treated with bitumen to preserve the curls.

Hair Has No Roots
Hair has no roots. The hair-shaft grows from a socket in the scalp, says a writer in Literary Digest. The vital growing part is a strand of cells fastened to its lower end. As the hair grows, it gets old, tends to fall out naturally after a few months. But a new hair will replace it, provided the vital cells are undamaged. About forty old hairs normally fall daily from a healthy scalp.

Naples Home of Macaroni
Naples was the center of the macaroni industry for many years. The process for making macaroni was kept a secret until the Fourteenth century.

Like "Old Shoes" Best
"We dislike to change our customs," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "always regretting that old shoes have to wear out and that new shoes are likely to be a little uncomfortable."

The Galosh
The galosh or golosh was originally a wooden shoe or clog, but later came to mean an overshoe. As early as 1683 they were referred to in that sense: "Galloshios are false shooes or covers for shooes." The word is adapted from the French galoche, from low Latin, galopedium, a wooden shoe.

Famous Irish Poet
Bermuda takes pride in the fact that it was at quaint St. George's, former capital of the Bermudas, that Tom Moore, the romantic Irish poet, wrote the song for which he is best known, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

First Train Locomotive
In 1829 the first train was moved by an American steam locomotive in this country. A year later the first railroad stock—that of the Mohawk and Hudson railroad—was listed on the stock exchange.

Truthfulness
Complete truthfulness is one of the rarest of virtues. Even those who regard themselves as absolutely truthful are daily guilty of overstatements and under-statements. Exaggeration is almost universal.

5 Responsibilities We Have As A Commercial Bank

As a commercial bank this institution recognizes its responsibilities to the following groups of people:

1. To our depositors, whose funds are entrusted to our care.
2. To our borrowers, to whom we have advanced credit.
3. To our stockholders, whose money provides the bank's capital
4. To our community, which benefits by the sound growth and capable management of this bank.
5. To our officers and our employees.

Though different in many respects our responsibilities to these groups are basically similar. The eternal principle that banking is trusteeship is the bedrock upon which every policy and action of thi sbank is founded. It guides us in our daily work of serving the financial needs of the people in this community.

And by July, one in every 4 families in Alabama will be enjoying the cleanliness, economy and better tasting foods made possible by the MODERN, EASY way of cooking—electrically!

So Popular Has Electric Cookery Become That Manufacturers Are Hard Put to Make Deliveries

THIS popularity isn't sudden—for years there have been women who, replacing old stoves with electric ranges, immediately began singing praises of electric cookery. So their friends bought electric ranges when the time came to replace their out-of-date kitchen stoves. Because electricity is so cheap in Alabama they know an electric range costs little to operate. They know an electric range requires little attention, that it will cook food unattended, that it makes kitchens easier to keep clean, that food cooked the electric way tastes better.

Wouldn't You, Too, Like to Have a Kitchen that Sparkles?

First you'll want a modern electric refrigerator—then an electric range—then an electric water heater and perhaps an electric dishwasher. Perhaps you'll want to get all four at once—prices are so moderate and terms so liberal!

IF YOU'LL LOOK YOU'LL BUY

If you'll look at one of the electric ranges mentioned below you'll be sure to want to start cooking the electric way right away! Moderate prices—easy terms:

HOTPOINT — M-W — UNIVERSAL — GENERAL ELECTRIC
PROSPERITY — MONARCH — MARION — ENTERPRISE — L&H
STANDARD — GRAYBAR-CRAWFORD — ESTATE — NORGE
KELVINATOR — WESTINGHOUSE

Plan to have an electric range and water heater installed in your home soon!

What? Jail The Car?

In California Dr. C. F. Cheverton, president of Chapman College, has suggested to the State Traffic Commission the incarceration of automobiles as a means of punishing violators of the law. John Doe, convicted of speeding, for instance, would not go to jail and would not pay a fine, but his automobile would go to durance vile, perhaps for 10 days, perhaps for 30 days, perhaps for 60 days.

This ma yseem like a whimsical suggestion, but there is in it the germ of an idea. If it is wise to disarm a man who seems likely to make harmful use of a gun, would it not be wise to disarm a man who has already demonstrated that he cannot use properly a machine just as dangerous as a gun?—Bangor News.

To Our Graduates

In the life of the average boy and girl few occasions stand out in memory to compare with the thrill of graduation from high school.

In our local communities the schools will soon celebrate the graduation of another class by the staging of commencement exercises during which the students will receive diplomas attesting to their proficiency and intelligence. For many boys and girls this will mark the end of their opportunity to attend school but they should realize that it does not end their opportunity to learn.

The graudates of our schools and colleges today go into a world that is much improved when compared with conditions several years ago, but nevertheless they face problems which some older citizens escape. Many of them face the obvious search for employment and the opportunity to make their way in life and, unfortunately, there is little certainty that all those who deserve the opportunity to work will be lucky enough to find it.

This newspaper hopes that the boys and girls who will or who have recently graduated in this county will continue their studies if it is possible for them to do so. They will find their time well spent and reap an appropriate reward later in life. At the same time, we trust that those who must immediately seek their economic fortunate will not forget the days of study or come to the conclusion that they have learned all that they need.

We take this opportunity of congratulating all students in this County who have completed their school courses and thereforer eceive appropriate diplomas at this time. It is really an epoch in life and the occasion marks the end of an era that will live long in memory but will never return.

"As Maine Goes---"

Maine is certainly pointing the way for traffic accident control, in at least one respect. That is, curtailing the activities of the drunken driver.

A survey recently completed by the Maine Highway Safety Campaign revealed that one-fifth of motor vehicle fatalities in Maine in 1936 had liquor associated with them. Even in 1936 Maine had effectively reduced traffi cfatalities as compared with the preceding year. However, not satisfied with partial success she is now setting out to better her own record with special emphasis placed on drunken driving. The motor vehicle division urged better cooperation by the courts in handling cases involving drunkeness, and held certain "legal loop-holes" and technicalities to be inimical to effective law enforcement.

Public officials ,as well as the citizens of Maine, realize that the drunken driver is a criminal to be handled the same as any other criminal. Both menace society. There is absolutely no excuse or driving while under the influence of liquor. Every person doing so is a potential murderer. In some respects the drunken driver is even worse than the average murderer because the murderer usually commits his crime in the heat of passion. The drunken driver blunders along with callous indifference toward all who are unfortunate enough to be in his path of death.

Maine is to be congratulated, as are all other states that take a determined stand to "wipe out" the drunken driver.—Exchange.

New AAA

The proposed agricultural adjustment act, which has received approval of farm organizations and the Department of Agriculture, is regimentation to the nth degree.

It will, if enacted by Congress and approved by a reorganized Supreme Court, work something like this: At the beginning of the season, Farmer A will be told how much cotton he can plant and the maximum amount that he may produce for sale per acre. If he plants more than his alloted acreage, he is subject to a heavy fine. If he produces more than his alloted number of bales, he is subject to a heavy fine if he sells the surplus. In return for this compliance, the farmer would be guaranteed a "parity" price, based on the price of agricultural products during the five years preceding the World War. This price was 10c a pound on basis of the old dollar, which would be 16c on basis of the devalued dollar. The farmer is at liberty to sell his quota at the market regarless of how high the market goes. If the market drops considerably below the parity price, then he has the alternativeof demanding a government loan of 80 per cent of the parity price, putting up the cotton as collateral.

This complicated system, which will make political patronage of every farmer's right to utilize his land, seemingly is to be approved by the administration as against the alternative of cutting down industrial tariffs so that the farmers may come logically and naturally to parity price and parity participation in the national income from industrial production. Farm leaders in Washington contend tha ta great majority of the farmers are in favor of it. They may be; it remains to be seen how many of them will favor it after it has been in operation under a thoroughly entrenched bureaucracy for a few years.

—Dallas Morning News.

P. O. Davis On Agriculture - Industry

If there is a man in this state who should know something of the needs of the agricultural element of our population it is P. O. Davis, Director of the Alabama Extension Service. In a recent address in Birmingham, Mr. Davis told of the many advantages which will come through the proper co-operation of those forces included in agriculture and industry.

In discussin gwhat the textile industry has done for the South, Mr. Davis said in part as follows:

"We see, therefore, tha tcotton has been, and still is, a big factor in developing all areas in the United States and also in building the nation as a whole because of exports, in addition to providing the raw product for an important industry; namely the cotton textile industry.

"Incidentally, the cotton textile industry is our major Southern industry. If all cotton textiles were eliminated the South, which is now low in industry, would sink industrially to a much lower level because that which is now the main cornerstone, would be gone.

"While cotton has been enriching other areas it is well for us to make inquiry of ourselves as to what has occurred at home. In answering this question, we become depressed because the facts reveal without contradiction that while we have been building prosperity abroad ,we have been building poverty at home. All reliable statistics tell us that per capita income in the South—especially in the Southeast—is lower than any other area in the United States. It is distressingly low, and Alabama is in the center of the low income area."

The South is low in pen capita wealth because she has been asleep to the possibilities which would have added untold wealth to this section. There are few of us who do not know of the great benefits derived from the textile industry in the South, yet we continue to grope our way about so fa ras deversified industry is concerned. There are possibilities untold for Alabama now when we awaken to a deversified industrial program. In fact our diversified farm program depends on a market that can come only through an nidustrial awakening.—Exchange.

Not everybody who talks about the truth wants to discover it.

We are willing to admit that the modern scientists are ahead of us.

The popular man is the guy who tells you what you want to hear.

WILTON-DAY BY DAY

By Alice Nolen

Day by day the home purchased by the W. C. Hardman's on the City Hall Street is looking prettier and prettier as the renovation project continues, which reminds us that many of the homes are being enlarged by the addition of a new bath room

The installation of a water works system this spring necessitated the building of this much needed addition to the home.

Now let's see what other activities have been carried on from day to day including visits, socials, etc.

Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. W .H. Edwards motored to Shady Grove to visit relatives in the afternoon.

Mrs. B. J. Rhodes and children returned from a visit with Mr. Rhodes in Tuskegee, where he is employed.

Mrs. R. C. Middlebrooks of Maples ville, spent the day with her parents Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner.

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Peguese and family of Marion, motored up to spend the day with Mrs Anna Saunderson.

Monday

Several of our ladies and Rev. A. B. Canant attended the funeral of Mrs. Walter Smitherman of Dry Valley in the afternoon at Randolph. Mrs. Smitherman was a former resident of our town and to the bereaved family deepest sympathy is extended

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Head of Centerville, visited with Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Head in the afternoon.

Tuesday

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crosby of Tuscaloosa, came up for a visit with Mrs. Fannie Crosby.

Mrs. Georgie Averitt left for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Bright in Anniston.

Wednesday

Mrs. B. B. Curry and Mrs. Emma Bailey spent the day in iBrmingham.

Thursday

Marvin Huatt and Miss Jones of Clanton were guests of Mrs. Fannie Crosby in the afternoon.

Floyd Crosby left for a trip to California via his new motorbike.

Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Titus and family moved to Birmingham where Mr. Titus is employed. We wish them much success in their new home but will miss them here.

Miss Myrtis Clayton of Birmingham, who formerly taught in the public school here, came down for a visit with friends including Mrs. S. J. Vest and many others.

Saturday

Mrs. Millard Smtiherman returned from a visit with her sister, Mrs. Curtis Merchant in Livingston.

Will Hamner Little shopped in Selma.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ambrose of Pittsburgh, Pa., came down for a visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Ambrose.

YEAGER HORN, JR.

"What is the little one thinking about?
Very wonderful things, no doubt!
Unwritten history!
Unfathomed mystery!
Yet he laughs, and cries, and eats and drinks,
And chuckles and crows, and nods an winks,
As if his head were as full of kinks
And curious riddles as any sphinx"—

The above poetic effusion was brought to mind ,as we were introduced to Yeager Horn, Jr., one day last week, who with his versatile and talented Mother were cordially welcomed guests in our office. We had heard much about this particular new comer, and considered it our misfortune that we had not had the privilege of meeting him. However, on the occasion of exactly three months old, and weighing in at exactly 16 pounds, we met the little cherub, and he is just one of those fascinating babettes that creep so very close and tie right in to your heart strings—the first time you meet them. Dressed exactly like a picture book baby, and as cuddly as could be. we had the pleasure of initiating him into the mysteries of the press room—and other mechanical devices that disturbed not his equilibrium. Which proves he has a level head on his square cut shoulders, and will possibly be as dignified as his DAD, and as friendly and charming as his Mater.

We also walked with the young gentleman across the street, for, having been disturbed from his perambulator, he refused with manly emphasis to return to its cozy depths. He was far older in masculine wiles than he looked. He knew exactly what he wanted and how to go about getting it! However, we had the distinction of giving him his first "mannish bob"— which particular hair cut made him look like the Real Boy he is! Gee—how cute he was and never one negative murmur during the performance! Hurry back Yeager, we all fell hard for you and just for your own adorably sweet little self; too!

RHYTHM 'RISTOCRATS

The Rhythm 'Ristocrats, popular dance orchestra, under the direction of Wales W. Wallace, Jr., left Columbiana on Wednesday to furnish the musical program for the Dinner and Dance honoring the Postmasters of Alabama, at the Thomas Jefferson Hotel in Birmingham. Manager L. B. Riddle, Jr., states he has received several bids for dances thru the summer, and will be glad to book the orchestra during the summer season. The orchestra now numbers 10 pieces with a tap dancer de luxe in Nell Seales, and a vocal soloist in Doris Tinney ,that enchances the attractiveness of their varied offerings.

R. E. Bowdon Sr., prominent citizen of Calera, was a cordially greeted guest in the Democrat office on Friday.

Benton Letson, Radio Engineer and world traveller, recently returned from England, is a distinguished figure on Main Street this week, as he greets his former class mates and friends while vacationing with his mother, Mrs. J. W. Letson.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Head and attractive son, Bill Jr., of Bessemer, were guests of Judge and Mrs. Cage Head on Tuesday.

Mrs. Lula Polk continues ill at her home in Columbiana.

ATTENTION! CITY FATHERS! S. O. S.

Dear City Fathers:—

Have you attempted to drive thru the incorporated limits of Columbiana recently If not, PLEASE make the rounds ,especially down Shelby road! With this road the writer is more familiar for we ATTEMPT to travel it daily. There are exactly 13 holes in the pavement between the old Courthouse and the bridge— about one half block! The last "resting place" lies just over the hill, and after travelling this road, at the risk of breaking an auto spring, and hear-recalcitrant wheels grind at sudden stops necessary to avoid same, we are convinced that this road is fully capable of bumping off a live man to say nothing of the "passer on" enjoying his suspended animation ride to the City of Silent Sleepers! What a certain travelling salesman had to say of this road on his weekly rounds to Shelby—will not do to print—BUT, we cordially invite an inspection trip from the "powers that be"—BUT get SHOCK PROOF—and be prepared for the JARS. You might be unceremoniously thrust into the "bourne from which no traveller e'er returns." and we know you do not contemplate so final a trip at present! Joking aside Folk—IT IS TERRIBLE!

We humble citizens humbly ask that you look into it—PLEASE! And Many Thanks for Consideration--past and future.

Just — E. Pluribus Enum

Friends of Mrs. Pearl Friedberger will regret to learn of her serious illness in Gorgas Hospital in Birmingham.

Miss Idell Turner of Siluria was a week end visitor in Columbiana.

Misses Jane Fowler, Charlie Verne Tinney and Margaret Ellis of Alabama College were week end visitors in Columbiana.

B. W. C. MEETING

The Business Women's Circle met on Monday afternoon, May 24th, with Mildred Meroney as hostess and Mary George Burkes having charge of the Program.

A very interesting program on The Slav was rendered as follows:

Song ..... America The Beautiful
Prayer ..... Ethel Walton
Devotional ..... Mary Woolley
Prayer ..... Mildred Meroney
The Slavs, The Coming Race.....
.....Mary George Burkes
Baptist Among European Slavs ....

HOME COMING AT SHELBY SUNDAY, JUNE THE 6th

Sunday, June 6th has been set apart as Home Coming Day for the Methodist Church and the Christian people of Shelby. It is sincerely hoped that many of the former members of this church and residents of the community will come back for a day of happy reunion and chistian fellowship.

Dinner on the church lawn; then re-assemble in the church for an old time Love Feast. June the 6th is the date. Fill your lunch baskets with eats and come and rejoice with us. God bless you everyone!

VACATIONS

The most attractive vacation trip planned of which we have heard, centers around the foursome—Mr. and Mrs. Mason Edwards of Columbiana, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Edwards of Alabaster—who will leave on July 17th for a motor trip which includes Mississippi, Florida, Louisiana, Mexico and Texas. The Clanton Wholesale Grocery Co. is giving these two popular Managers of their Chain Stores, a ten day vacation and they richly deserve this appreciation from this enterprising Company. Both young men are exceedingly well known, well liked, and successful in commercial circles in Shelby County.

So far as we are able to determine the Spanish civil war will be going on some months after you read this.

ATTENTION SUBSCRIBERS!

We have received many letters from subscribers asking that we write and notify them "WHEN their subscription expires". It would be an endless task and an expensive one should we attempt to notify our readers WHEN their subscription is UP. We do not want to lose a single reader—so, won't you please just look on the yellow label on your paper this week, and check your own account with us. We shall have to discontinue your paper unless the small amount of $1.00 is paid per year. Remember TWO CENTS per week keeps youinformed of the County and State happenings. We hope you think you have received your "money's worth" and believe from your many evidences of interest that you consider the DEMOCRAT worth it! Paper has advanced—and necessary printing materials—but we have not raised our subscription price. Let us hear from you! This notice will be our last, before culling the list of delinquents.

INTERESTING PERSONALITIES

By Mildred White Wallace

BENTON LETSON

I find no happier thrill in traversing the sea of journalism ,than the one I know when chronicling the successful achievements of my fellow townsmen. Especially is this true when ambitoin, close application to work, coupled with conscientious effort ,brings merited success ,and especially true again, when it falls my lot to recount the outstanding recognition acorded a personal friend — namely BENTON LETSON, whom it is my privilege to present, or shall I say recall to his many friends in Shelby County.

Benton Letson will be happily remembered as the son of Mrs. J. W. Letson, and the late J. W. Letson, who for many years was Superintendent of Education in Shelby County. I shall recall Benton Letson to his classmates and comrades ,for he was an honor graduate and athlete of Shelby High School. I shall present Benton Letson, sole radio operator on the good ship S. S. Lehigh, a vessel in the U .S .Marine which plys her course between North Atlantic and European Ports to our many readers

SHIPS, have always had a universal appeal—whether they were launched from a real port with sails unfurled, or just a make believe Ship O' Dreams whose cargo still flounders on some unknown reef. There is adventure in the very name. Unchartrede seas—a Ship to sail—to foreign ports—what more intriguing or colorful life could one want? Early very early, we remember, Benton Letson made up his mind that RADIO would play a vitally important part in the commercial life on land and sea. He began studying this intricate little dingus known as MIKE, while a student in High School. We recall many nights the Studio, Mrs. Letson allowed him to "wrig" up for his experiments a la Radio ,became the most popular rendevous in town for young America. No doubt the plans and specifications for the successful career Mr. Letson now enjoys was begun with this boyish dream—and later realized in the responsible position he now occupies. We asked Mr. Letson to recount some of his travels, and we proudly present the following statement from this distinguished young American who is one person we know, fortunate enough to see a "dream come true." and who is vacationing in Columbianan for a few weeks with his mother. Mrs. J. W. Letson.

"Well, Mrs. Wallace, our home port is Norfolk, Va., but we also make Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston. On the other side our first port is usually Dublin, Ireland, then we cross the Irish Sea to Manchester and Liverpool, pass thru the English Channel to London, cross the North Sea to Hamburg, Germany back across the North Sea to Edinburgh, Scotland, and then back to the U. S. via Halifax, Nova Scotia. I have made two trips each taking slightly over two months to complete.

We take over a 6,000 ton cargo of tobacco, cotton ,and food stuffs ,and bring back to this country woolen goods, leather, jute, liquor, and linen. The average time in crossing is 12 days going over and fourteen days coming back. This difference is due to head winds on the return trip as well as to the fact that we are buck-the Gulf stream which flows east.

By far the most interesting city that I visited was London where I saw the changing of the guards at Buckingham Palace, Westminister Abbey, Tower of London where the crown jewels are kept, St. Peters Cathedral, Picidilly Circus ,and Hyde Park. In Edinburgh, Scotland, I visited the Lincoln monument and the castle where Mary, Queen of Scots, reigned. I saw Shakespeare's home in Stratford, but as visitors are not allowed to go through the home after 4 p. m., I had to be content with just seeing the exterior. There is no lighting system in Shakespear's home as this would be a fire hazard ,and that explains why visitors are not permitted after 4 p. m.

The chief topics of conversation in England were the romance of Wally and Edward and the coronation while in Germany the people talked of everything except Hitler. England's pride was badly hurt when Edward gave up his people for an American divorcee, and the Germans are afraid to talk of Hitler except in terms of praise.

I have enjoyed both of these trips immensely ,and at the present time I am trying to change ships. I want to make a few trips to South America..

In closing this pen point sketch we join a host of friends in bidding Bon Voyage to this typical American Youth, and assure him al lover again that heart's best wishes attend him him on his journeys. We knew, after we talked with him, he would not linger long, land bound. He will, like all other sailors we know, seek new lands, new territory—and bring home new adventures as he climbs still higher the ladder of success. We who remain here will watch with keen pride further accomplishment—and the return of—what shall we say—another DREAM BOAT COME HOME-?

HUGO BLACK GETS ONE DAY MAIL SERVICE TO BIRMINGHAM

Hugo Black, United States Senator, is high in the hierarchy of political circles. He has won national acclaim and has, for the past few years ,played a vitally important part in the important issues under President Roosevelt's New Deal plan—but he is also not unmindful of the needs of the "folks back home" in his native county and when called on by his life long friend, Postmaster C. E. Niven to assist him and the patrons of his post office in procuring one day mail service to Birmingham, he answered the call and in a letter just received by Mr. Niven states in part: "I am happy to advise you that they have agreed to give you the additional mail service requested on the Star Route to Columbiana. They state, however, that due to the condition of their funds, they will not be able to make this change effective until July 1, 1937."

"Needless to say, I am very happy indeed we have finally been able to get the officials to agree to give this additional service in accordance with the wishes of you and the other citizens."

"With all good wishes I am,
Sincerely your friend,
Hugo L. Black"

And there you have the story of another "dream come true" for ever since C. E. Niven has been in charge of the Post Office in Columbiana, he has been at work on a plan to better conditions regarding the mail service to Birmingham and other important points North and South.

The Democrat joins a host of grateful friends and business firms who deeply appreciate this consideration on the part of Senator Black, and offer thanks to Mr. Niven for his untiring efforts to bring this service to his patrons.

Mr. Mason Edwards is at home this week recuperating from a minor operation which he underwent Monday in Birmingham.

Mr. Rux Carter of Birmingham, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Grace Carter.

Mr. Francis Leonard returned home from Anniston but has now accepted a position in Birmingham.

Miss Alice Roberts spent the week end in Columbiana with her mother.

"Cotton Week"
SPECIAL AT POPE'S

Next week, May 31st to June 5th, inclusive, is "COTTON WEEK." Everyone is requested to buy something that week that is made of cotton... From all indications now we will have two "COTTON WEEKS" next year to use up the large surplus of cotton we are going to TRY to make this year. Now if there is anything made of cotton that you are contemplating buying in the near future, let's get it next week and show the folks we want to co-operate in this movement. We are going to offer a few specials for next week and, if you are in need of any of them, we hope you will come to see us.

Home Economics Class Of Shelby High School Visits Baker's Dairy

By YEARDLEY FAY MOORE

Friday, May 7th, we visited Bakers Dairy to see as well as read about milk. This dairy is a branch of the larger dairy in Birmingham. They milk 120 cows which average giving about twelve quarts of milk a day the first year and a half. There are 162 calves from the age of birth up unto the dry cows. They specialize in three breeds of cows, Holstein, Geurnsey and Jersey. The Holstein is from Holland where its original colors were red and white. They are still registered in Holland as red and white but no red spots have been registered here for 20 years. In the U. S. A. a Holstein cow can not be registered if there is a black spot touching the hoof. The Geurnseys and Jerseys come from the islands for which they are named.

The milking is begun at 3:15 a. m. and 3:15 p. m. The cows are milked with the 'Delavalve' milking machine The machine requires about two minutes to milk one cow. The Pulso pump furnishes power for the milking machines. This is a new machine and requires about 1-5 as much power as the older machines. One disadvantage about the machines is that if allowed to remain on cow after she has been milked it irritates the tits. To prevent this there is a piece of glass in the tube through which the milk can be see passing through. To correct this ailment the cows should be milked by hand for several days and should be greased.

There are about 300 set rules that commercial dairies must follow. The most important is cleanliness and the one ranking second is the cooling of the milk. The cows are not fed while being milked. They are washed and dried with sterile cloths before each milking. The most dirt if form ed around the udder. The milk barn is scrubbed every day and the calf barn once a week in winter and two or three times in summer. The barn yard is cleaned every day and implements are washed.

The very best cow feed is Alfalfa which is short in the South because the earth lacks lime and when the lime doesn't reach the cow it causes milk to clot. The next best hay is legume hay. Clover is a legume hay Our clover is Japanese Clover. Legume hays are termed lespedeza hay which term takes in all kinds of clovers. The alfalfa produces more milk than any other feed. It requires high, dry, fertile land. Alfalfa shouldn't be planted in the spring because when it grows to need water the spring drought is on and weeds take the plants.

The third best hay is soy bean hay. Thus we find that alfalfa hay ranks first, peavine second ,and soy bean third.

The best and cheapest solid food is made of crushed corn, cob and shuck and cotton see. The proportion is 500 lbs of corn to 100 lbs of Cotton Seed Meal. The corn should be gathered for this purpose right after roasting ear time while it is still soft. Cows seem to like it better when gathered early.

The dairy is equipped with 6 silos 14 feet in diameter and 140 feet high with a capacity of 140 tons. The silos are packed by a distributor. The first silo is packed the first of August and the others are packed later.

As before said, the next important thing to cleanliness is the cooling of milk. The temperature must be 50 degrees or below if bacteria doesn't grow. However, this dairy keeps it at 36 degrees. This dairy also boasts the only sterilizer of its kind in the Birmingham district.

To keep milk cool and clean the many necessities are very high. For instance: the cooler cost $200., the bottler $800., and one brass valve $35.

Cows that give five gallons of milk a day (40 pounds) drink from 20 to 24 gallons of water. They exhale 32 pounds of moisture a day and the milk is 877 water.

A commercial dairy cow must be butchered after 4 years. This is more sanitary but people of India think of dairying as a religious ceremony and milk their cows for life and worship them.

Correct this sentence: "Sure I go out with John; there's nothing between us; we are just good friends."

Speaking of hard work have you ever tried to get the landlord to repair a rented house?

Are there any housewives of this town who will forget everything to get to a bridge game?

Many a vacation will become lost between the planning and the scheduled time of departure.

Many a man who used to try to keep up with his bank balance is now trying to keep a balance.

We have many friends who disagree with what we think about many things and it's o. k. with us.

The Strength of Gentleness
Nothing is so strong as gentleness; nothing so gentle as real strength.

Red Coral Always Prized
It is red coral that is and always has been prized, not solely for jewelry and buttons, but as a charm to bring safety, health and secrets not revealed to the ordinary person. As ancient Gauls rushed headlong into battle, they trusted their safety to their swords, strength and the "magic" coral imbedded in their shields or helmets. Many Italians and Indians regard coral as protection against the "evil eye." The world's red coral comes from the reefs off the Mediterranean coast of Africa, says the Washington Post, and is obtained chiefly by Italians.

Indians Liked Boone
The famous Daniel Boone was once taken prisoner by the Indians, but they liked him so well that the chief adopted him as his son with the name of Big Turtle.

Palace of Sobieski in Garden
Wilanow, the palace built by King John Sobieski of Poland, conqueror of the Turks, stands five miles from Warsaw in a French garden.

Each Person Uses 300 Trees
From the wood in his cradle to the wood in his coffin, the average individual consumption is equivalent to at least 300 trees.

Frogs Thin Skinned
Frogs are only suited to live in damp surroundings, because their skin is thin and moist and would dry up in dry places.

Size of Africa
All of Europe, plus India, China and the United States, would just fill Africa.

Broadway, a Village
Broadway in England is often called one of the country's five loveliest villages.

Palestine Larger
Palestine is slightly larger than the state of New Hampshire.

Melancholy Bagpipe
The "biniou" was an ancient musical instrument in Brittany, a sort of bagpipe with melancholy notes.

Watches Once Small Clocks
Watches originally were small clocks and were worn hung from the girdle because they were too large for the pocket.

Frog Walks on Ceilings
A green frog which can walk on ceilings is found in Australia.

Slow in Building
The famous Gothic Cathedral of Burgos, Spain, was more than 300 years in the building.

Low Animals
The lowest form of animal life consists of tiny specks of living jelly, far too small to be seen by the naked eye.

Islands Are Rich
The West Indies was once the envy of the world for its wealth.

Make the Best of Things
When the best things are not possible, the best may be made of those that are.

Sepia From Cuttlefish
The dark brown pigment known as sepia is obtained from the ink sacs of the cuttlefish.

Benzine Once Useless
Benzine, discovered by Faraday in 1825, was of no practical use for some 30 years until the first dye was made from coal tar, mauve.

Sand Life in New Mexico
Ordinary gray field mice become white in the sands of New Mexico, lizards lose their color, bugs become livid and even larger animals take a more spectral appearance. In parts of the sands there is no animal life and the sparse vegetation wages a hopeless war with the sand.

Oldest Citizen
At the corner of Rue de Chene in Brussels stands Belgium's most famous fountain, whose naked manikin is everywhere called the city's "oldest citizen."

First Plows of Tree Branches
The first farm plows were made of crooked tree branches and worked by man power.

Long Dead Forests Revealed
Some of Asia's barren sand dunes show roots of long-dead forests, and traces of human habitation revealing desolation wrought in part at least, by erosion.

Soldiers Get Little
The Japanese soldier on the march often lives on a ration of rice issued him daily, which, with a pickled plum, suffices for 24 hours—and he has to cook the food himself.

Horses Taller
The thoroughbred horse of the race course of England has been so intensively bred and cultivated that he has increased an inch in height for every 25 years since 1700.

Old Pavement
During the war, Australian soldiers trench-digging near Beersheba on the road to Egypt, turned up ancient pavements with Christian signs and inscriptions. For a week the Australians, continually under airplane bombing by the enemy, dug away, carefully raised it and dispatched it safely to Cairo.

Sold Winds
In the Middle ages the Lapps and Finns were famed for the business of selling winds to sailors and others. They would sell a cord with three knots in it, one loosed a fair wind, two a storm, and three a gale.

Back to Nature
The cry, "Return to Nature," started by Rousseau in the middle of the Eighteenth century, was caught up by romantic poets in England and echoed by the essayists in our own New England, but fell into silence about 75 years ago.

Bold Themistocles
The ancient Athenians were accustomed in each year to divide among themselves the revenue of their silver mines at Laurium, and, as Plutarch tells us, it was a daring thing for Themistocles to boldly propose that the usual distribution should cease, and that they should let him spend the money in building 100 ships for the conflict he foresaw with the Persians.

SHOWN above is a "Caterpillar" No. 10 Diesel Auto Patrol reconstructing a street in an Alabama town. One round in the ditches, 2 rounds with the scarifier and 2 rounds with the blade put the street in perfect condition in a little less than 2 hours. The work was done on 1½ gallons—6c fuel an hour. Powered by a proven "Caterpillar" 44 h.p. Diesel engine, this new Auto Patrol gives the same economy advantages that are enjoyed by "Caterpillar" Diesel owners the world over—the economy of operating on low-priced Diesel fuels plus the economy of burning less fuel per hour. Outstanding features of all Caterpillar Auto Patrols — Diesel or gasoline — are ease of handling, accessibility—perfect balance between weight, power and traction—single or tandem drive. Alabama counties which are using Caterpillar Auto Patrols are giving taxpayers more miles of good roads for every dollar spent.

STATE OF ALABAMA,
SHELBY COUNTY.
Probate Court For Said County
May Term
This 11th Day of May, 1937

To J. T. Pipes, 4624 South 7th Avenue, Louisville, Kentucky; Mrs. P. E. Hourigan, RFD, Lebanon, Kentucky; Mrs Will May, Gravel Switch, Kentucky; Mrs. Anne Roney, Perryville, Kentucky; Mrs. Grace Coyle, Gravel Switch, Kentucky; and Jessie Lee Pipes, Tulip, Indiana.

You will hereby take notice, that on this day came Nannie E. Pipes and produced to the Court a paper writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of C. N. Pipes, deceased, and moves the Court to admit the said will to Probate and Record.

You are notified to be and appear before me, at my office in the Court House of said County at Columbiana Alabama on the 5th day of June, 1937 when the motion will be considered, and show, if anything you have to allege, why said paper writing should not be admitted to Probate and record as the true last will and testament of said decedent.

Boiled Water for Ice Cubes
Clear sparkling ice cubes may be made by freezing water which has been boiled rather than freezing cold water as it comes from the faucet.

Photophobia
The defect which causes the eye to become very painful in the presence of light is called photophobia.

Manners in China
Manners are a matter of routine in some of the government offices in China. Employees must greet their superiors with "How are you?" The equally formal reply is: "I am—or am not—well, thank you!"

Seventeenth Century Madrid
At the opening of the Seventeenth century there were only 3,000 inhabitants in Madrid.

First Fraternity House
The first fraternity house in the United States is said to have been a log cabin on the outskirts of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Atlantic Coast Elevation
The highest natural elevation on the Atlantic coast is 430 feet on top of Todt (Toad or Iron) hill, Staten island.

Meaning of P. A. C. S.
The letters P. A. C. S. when used after the names of persons who served in the Civil war stand for Provisional Army, Confederate States.

Speaking the Truth
"To speak the truth in anger," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "is to make even so glorious a thing as truth seem helpless and pitiful."

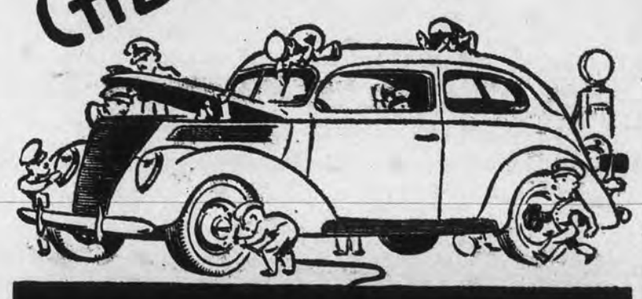
Effort Brings Progress
Wherever you find progress you find effort.

Dachshund, "Badger Dog"
Dachshund is a name adopted from the German meaning "badger dog." The Dachshund is an ancient breed of dog.

Soap From the Buckeye
In early Ohio, the buckeye, the nut after which the state got its name, was used by the cabinwives in washing clothes. By washing the kernels, the women could produce a soapy substance.

"Red Herring"
A red herring is a herring which has a red color from being cured by smoking. the political phrase "to draw a red herring across the track" means "to attempt to divert attention from the real question." The reference is to fox hunting, where a dog's scent may be led astray by such means. The Oxford dictionary has a quotation dated 1686: "The trailing or dragging of a dead cat or fox (and in case of necessity a red herring) three or four miles and then laying the dogs on the scent." Dragging any false issue into a political campaign, and not necessarily a charge of extreme radicalism, has for a long time been known by this name.

"To the Manner Born"
The earliest use of the phrase "to the manner born" appears to be in Shakespeare's play "Hamlet," Act 1, Scene 4, where Hamlet says "But to my mind, though I am native here and to the manner born, it is a custom more honored in the breach than in the observance." It signifies: born to follow or obey a certain practice or custom, also having lifelong acquaintance with given conditions, customs, etc. It has been wrongly understood to refer to a manor or mansion, hence the phrase "to the manor born" is sometimes used in the sense "accustomed to the usages of a locality, or of high or polite society."



Cantaloupe, Italian Name
Cantaloupes were named for Cantalupo, Italy, a village near Rome.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

Listen! Hear that? La-deez, nad Gen-tel-men—that's the last echo of those thar wedding bells that clanged around these diggings last week. Oh yeah, we had quite a clamour while it lasted. Aw, this is just one way of saying that Margie Reach and Walter (Snow) Harris are now Mr. and Mr.s They have an apartment in the home of Snow's parents. We calculate they're as happy as dead pigs in the sunshine and we sure hope all their troubles will be little ones. Cecil Harris seems as proud as punch of his new mama. Ain't life grand? . . . Two of our most popular young swains, Carlos Tilley and Earl Duke took off for Columbus, Georgia last week where they were the guests of their grand parents. Their dogs, Sandy and Rags presented two woe-be-gone figures of loneliness during the absence of their masters . . . . Did you take a peep at the moon Saturday night? If if wasn't glamorous then we're a cupple of speckled pups. We near that Lexie and Clovis, Janie and Allison, Alonzo and Ella Ree thought so too. Is it true, folks ,that you romanced over to John Allen bridge by the glimmer of the moon? . . . As these so-balmy week ends open up numbers of our inhabitants are up and away on pleasure trips like honey bees in quest of honey. Like the bee though they always come back There's Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Robinson who drove down to Mobile over the week end to bring back Evelyn and Lillian and Mrs. Ross. . . . Mr and Mrs. Fern Ward also took off for a short vacation their destination being points in Tennessee . . . We certainly do stay represented at Gorgas hospital. Just now we are hoping the best for Nona Lowery, We understand she is holding her own after a serious operation . . . Ice cream, as you know, is prone to melt. If eaten before hand though it has been known to melt hearts. Our hearts get in a very liquid condition every time we think of that ice cream Alonzo treated us to Sunday afternoon. Thanks a million Alonzo. . . . Have you by any chance noticed Lonnie and Nell's midget flower garden? Well we have, and we've sure wished for a boquet of those red roses—but of course we wouldn't ask for them at all . . . Speaking of roses, Chuck's Tea Room reminded us of a rose garden in June last Sunday when we were down indulging in a coca-cola . . . Our little town is always glad to welcome visitors especially if they have as friendly personality as Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hatfield and two lovely children from Birmingham who were the guests over the week end of their mother, Mrs. Blanche Hatfield. Farris (Susie) Moore who left a short time ago to seek his fortune in California, has returned home. Farris says he had a delightful trip, but he's glad to be back home . . . They leave but they always come back. if you ever drink think Siluria water one time you never forget it. There's no other that tastes the same, its like a magnet that draws you back. That gives us an idea we think we will bottle it up and label it "Magic Water," and sell it ,pretty good idea we think . . . . Chester Jones another one of Siluria's chillun is preparing to desert his home town for a position in the Magic City. We sure wish you luck and success in your new undertaking "Sweetpea." . Mama that man's here again"—and he is too, painting our door steps, he simply has us marooned, that is unless we climb out the window . . . "Say think you got something there."—that's just what we'll do, so if you should chance to see some one crawling in a window after dark be not alarmed, it's not a burglar, but one of our citizens trying to get to his own sleeping quarters . . . Words fail us when we try to tell just how much we enjoyed that theatre party with Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Bradley and Mr. and Mrs. George Thomason last Friday night. But the best part of it all was the ice cream party afterwards. Thanks fo rthe good times "pals". We enjoyed it immensely . . . . Lillian Langston thinks Manley Mize is the sweetest man she ever saw. The reason, he let her borrow his car Sunday night. . . Bet you didn't know that Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stone have a new baby girl at their house. Yep, shore 'nuff and they have named her Robbie Sherrel . . We are wondering if any of you have noticed that it is getting to be hot weather. It will get yo udown if you don't watch out. . . As it is quiet warm now we think we will crawl out in the shade.

'til next week,
Nelle and Nell.

ROADS!

An extensive highway building program estimated to cost approximately $400,000 was launched this week by Tallapoosa County when an agreement was signed between the County and the State Highway Department. 92 miles will be paved or resurfaced under the new plan.

Many other Counties in Alabama are falling in line. We still hear: "NOTHING DEFINITE" regarding the project for Shelby County! As "Uncle Jim Finley says"—"Ain't it awful?" ! ! ! !

The Board of Revenue held a regular business session on Tuesday. All members reporting present, with Chairman J. M. Lyon presiding.

Jack Wright and H .M. Taylor, State Examiners, are spending some time in Columbiana, checking records in the Probate Office Messrs. Jones and Macy continue their perusal of records in the Circuit Clerks office.

L. H. Ellis is spending the week in Montgomery engaged in professional legal matters for the state.

Circuit Court will not be called until after the Farmers have finished planting their crops, according to an announcement made this week by Judge W. W. Wallace.

SWIMMING IS ONE OF BEST EXERCISES TO BE FOUND

"Swimming is a fine sport and one of the best forms of exercise available to our people, but, unless one is careful, it may be dangerous as well" said Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, in warning against the danger of drowning while swimming.

"In this State in 1935, the latest year for which complete records are available, there were 131 deaths from accidental drownings," he said. "This is an average of nearly two such deaths for every County in the State. Seventy, or more than 53 per cent of these deaths occurred during the four months from June to September inclusive."

Dr. Baker pointed out that deaths from accidental drowning in 1935 exceeded those from typhoid and paratyphoid fever, typhus fever, and scarlet fever combined and also exceeded the deaths due to diptheria, ulcer of the stomach, or cirrhosis of the liver.

We know people who are sure they do you a favor when they let you do them a favor; don't you?

LIBERTY NATIONAL SERVES 160,000

An outstanding Alabama institution, located in Birmingham, is the Liberty National Life Insurance Company, whose service now extends to 160,000 policyowners, located in forty eight states and in seven foreign countries. Organized in 1900, its charter was signed in 1901 by Governor William J. Samford, grandfather of Frank P. Samford, now President of the Company.

The Company offers to the public complete protection, from the smallest policy with premiums a few cents weekly to the large business insurance policy with a premium of thousands of dollars annually. A policy for every purse and purpose is offered by the Company. Special purpose contracts such as Family Income, Retirement Income and Annuity policies, now meeting with wide acceptance by the public, are featured by the Company.

At a recent meeting of three hundred of the Company's agents, drawn from seventeen southeastern districts, Mr. Samford, President stated that the Company is now larger than ever before in its history; assets, surplus, income and insurance in force all showed substantial gains in 1936. E. A. Camp, Jr., Treasurer of the Company and Vice President of the Columbiana Savings Bank, in a recent address delivered in Birmingham, stated that the Company's investment portfolio is comprised of high-grade mortgages and bonds selected chiefly for security of principal. "Safety and not yield should be the first consideration in the investment of life insurance funds," he stated.

"Sixty-four million Americans now own 104 billion, 500 million in life insurance," Camp stated. "Therefore, it is of prime importance that life insurance companies exercise unusual care in investing their funds. I am glad to say that both the bonds and the mortgages of Liberty National Life Insurance Company are rated "excellent" by the highest authorities in the Nation."

ATTENTION SUBSCRIBERS!

We have endeavored to meet your request for the return of printed service covering State and National news and written by nationally recognized journalists. With this issue, it is our privilege to present, in response from rural subscribers, who state they rely on the Democrat, not only for the news of their local communities and the County,, but on national and State affairs a complete resume of the current events of the day. These features ,of course increase the cost of publication, but we shall not raise the subscription price for the next three months. During this time, you may renew your subscription at the old rate of $1.00 per year.

We call your attention to the new Serial Story, "WITH BANNERS," which begins its initial run in this issue of Shelby County's leading weekly. Begin this interesting story today! Included in the service we offer you, is Carter Field's letter from Washington, which will keep you right up to the minute with happenings in the Capitol. Current Events from Alabama is an informative feature with condensed news of State interest. There is also a Bed Time Story for the kiddies, a smile column, home demonstration items and dressmaking, etc., It is our happy privilege to grant this request, and we deeply appreciate your continued loyalty which is responsible for the success we now enjoy.

Kindly look on your label this week, and if your subscription has expired, let us hear from you, as your name will have to be stricken from the list unless it is attended to before June 15th, 1937.

Thanking you again for your continued cooperation and support, we are

Yours very truly,

RESETTLEMENT ADMINISTRATION BENEFITS FARMERS

The record of the service by the Resettlement Administration to the farmers of this County, in the two years since it was established was reviewed by James F. Wyatt, local rehabilitation supervisor, on the occasion of the agency's second anniversary The order setting up this agency was signed by the President April 30, 1935.

Since the commencement of this work in Shelby County more than 100 farm families have received some form o fbenefit from it, either in the form of a supervised loan, help in adjusting farm debts, or in some cases ,outright grants.

Standard loans made to families without credit facilities for necessary feed, seed, livestock, farming equipment, and capital goods necessary to place their farms on a productive basis, are assisting these farm families in regaining econmic secuority.

The 1937 program in this county so far has loaned $7688.70 to 46 families. "We had a fine record last year," said Mr. Wyatt, "and this year we expect to better this record. The present outlook for rehabilitation families is very bright and I am confident that when the harvest is made these families will have repaid their government loans and will have advanced a step or two up the rehabilitation ladder."

Supplementing the loan program the County Supervisor's office co-operate in establishing community and cooperative services for low-income families and in farm debt adjustment wrok being carried on by the local County Committees.

Rural rehabilitation has been made part of Secretary Wallace's farm program with official transfer of the Resettlement Administration to the U. S .Department of Agriculture on January 1, 1937.

MISS HATTIE LYMAN DIED LAST FRIDAY

3 MILLION MORE FOR ROADS LIKELY

Adoption by the House of Representatives in Washington of an amendment to the billion and a half emergency relief appropriation bill now before Congress, will make available to Alabama a Federal grant of more than $3,000,000 for road paving and construction, and grade-crossing elimination work during the 12 month period beginning July 1, according to information containde in a telegram received recently by President Gaston Scott, of the State Highway Commission from Congressman Frank Boykin of Mobile.

Adoption of the amendment, Mr. Scott said, would give to this State as its share of the money sought to be ear-marked, more than $3,000,000 to be expended fo rthe purposes stated. Of the total of $150,000,000 sought to be earmarked, he added, $75,000,000 would be spent for trunk highway construction, $50,000,000 for secondary road construction and $25,000,000 for grade-crossing elimination. The spending would be under the supervision of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads and the Righway Departments of the respective States.

Gov. Graves announced yesterday a highway department policy of seeking county aid in a Federal-State road building program that might reach proportions of $6,000,000.

VINCENT BETTER HOMES CLUB MET AT MRS. PHILLIPS

The Vincent Better Homes Club met with Mrs. Lillie Phillips.

The meeting was opened by singing. Eight members answered the roll call. After a short business session the meeting was turned over to Miss Nolen. She first explained the cannin gcontest, also the Fair. Her subject for the afternoon was slip covers. She explained the different styles for different pieces of furniture ,also showed just how to cut material to fit. We were shown a large number of samples of cotton material with prices attached for slip covers ,curtains, or for most any thing in the home. We were given a number of valuable phamplets on cotton seed and its uses ,also nitrate around the home and how much to use, also recipe books of different kinds, a sample of sure jell, a can of Bon Ami Powder with full directions for use. You who do not attend the Better Homes Club really miss lots of valuable house hold helps and information. Miss Nolen can and does give at the club meetings. The club adjourned with a promise with Miss Nolen to carry them on an educational tour in June.

We were served iced tea and two kinds of cookies by hostess, Mrs. Lillie Phillips and daughter Estelle.

Each Issue To Carry Special Appeal To All Classes Of Readers

With this issue of the Shelby County Democrat new and varied features are being added for our readers who are interested in other than the purely local departments which have been in each issue for the past several months. These new features will become regular departments in each issue in the future.

For the past several months the Democrat has confined its scope, largely to Shelby County happenings. Through a new contract we have negotiated such writers as, Edward W. Pickard, Carter Field, Emily Loring, Irvin S. Cobb, Thornton W. Burgess, and Rev. Harold L. Lundquist, all nationally known writers, will contribute to each issue of the Democrat.

Each of these writers will cover different subjects embracing, Current Events, Washington Happenings Fiction, Bedtime Stories and the International Sunday School Lesson. This with the coverage of news and features which our subscribers have been receiving will make a complete digest of that which can be found in the biggest and best weekly newspapers, and we proudly boast will not make it necessary for our readers to subscribe for on depend upon a daily newspaper to keep versed with time.

Space in this issue will not permit us to tell you all about the individual new contributors to the Democrat, but from week to week each new writer will be introduced to Democrat readers. Beginning in this issue will be found the opening installment of a new novel, "With Banners" by Emily Loring. This story, alone, if bought at a book store, in book form, would cost more than one years subscription to the Democrat Read "With Banners", you will enjoy it. Tell your neighbors about the new story that they may enjoy this new feature of the Democrat each week, with you.

With this broadening of the reader interest of the Democrat, your newspaper becomes diversified and will have some special appeal to all classes of readers. We hope you will like it and after you have become acquainted with our new features we would appreciate your telling others about them.

Pagan Temple Found in Transjordan Is of Christ's Time

Place of Worship of the Nabataeans

New Haven—An "amazing" pagan temple in the Holy Land, reflecting light on the Bible drama of John the Baptist, Herodias, and Salome, has been unearthed by joint efforts of American and British archeologists.

Most of the ruins, which crown a high hill in Transjordan, southeast of the River Jordan, now stand revealed. The work is being done by the American Schools of Oriental Research at Jerusalem, led by Dr. Nelson Glueck, and the Transjordan Department of Antiquities, led by Lankester Harding. The president of the American Schools of Oriental Research, Prof. Millar Burrows of Yale, announced the find, here.

The temple is of great interest because it stood in the time of John the Baptist and of Christ, and because it was a place of worship of the Nabataeans. The spark which touched off conflict between Herod and John the Baptist was Herod's divorce of a Nabataean princess in order to marry his brother's wife Herodias, whom he preferred.

Little Known About Nabataeans.

Very little has been known about the Nabataeans who figure in Bible history, except that they were Arabs who possessed a strong kingdom in Transjordan and northeastern Arabia. Gods worshiped by these people are revealed in the temple ruins. Sculptures have been found of the powerful god Zeus-Hadad, armed with his thunderbolt, and of his consort, the goddess Atargatis, wearing leaf-like decorations on her forehead and shoulders. The Nabataeans also had a goddess of fortune, Tyche, who is portrayed with staring eyes and a crown on her her head, and encircled by the figures of the zodiac.

A sculptured eagle and snake entwined suggest to the archeologists that these Arab people borrowed Roman ideas in their religion, and the other gods show that they borrowed from Syria, Greece, and Egypt also.

Fierce Worms Kill Their Prey With Hollow Spears

Honolulu.—"Dog eat dog" is realized in the world of blind life underground, in fierce attack of worm on worm. One group of predatory worm kills its kindred prey with hollow spears that they carry in their mouths, and then suck their victim's body contents through the hollow of the deadly weapon, like a kid absorbing a malted milk.

Scenes from these small but sanguinary dramas are described in Science by Drs. M. B. Linford and J. M. Oliveira of the Pineapple Experiment station. These worms, belonging to the great group known as nematodes, were found in soils in Hawaii and other Pacific islands.

Victim Has No Chance.

One group of these spear-bearing worms has big, heavy weapons with large hollows. So quickly do they suck in the flesh and blood of their victims that the speared worm has no time to struggle.

A second group has slender spears. Their victims might conceivably squirm around violently. This, however, is prevented by the paralyzing action of the slender spear's thrust, apparently due to the saliva of the attacker injected through the hollow shaft.

These strange hunter worms have a certain amount of economic importance, because some of the species that become their prey are feeders on the roots of crop and ornamental plants.

Biggest Oyster Shell Is Found in Texas

Alpine, Texas.—Biggest oyster shell in the world, is the distinction claimed for an enormous fossil, four feet long and three feet wide, dug up by geologists of the national park service in the proposed Big Bend National Park area in western Texas. Dr. Charles N. Gould, who has been working in the rich fossil deposits of the region, thinks there may even be bigger shells waiting to be excavated.

STATE EVENTS

The new million-dollar general hospital for veterans will be located near Montgomery. The Veterans' Hospital at Tuscaloosa will be used exclusively for nervous cases, and Alabama regional offices of the Veterans Administration will be transferred from Tuscaloosa to Montgomery. Ten other communities, including Birmingham, sought to locate the new unit in their areas.

Mignon, textile mill town on the outskirts of Sylacauga, is laying elaborate plans for a gala party when the new B. B. Comer Memorial School is dedicated next Fall. An invitation to President and Mrs. Roosevelt to be present for the occasion has been handed the nation's chief executive.

An exhibit depicting the contrast between proper and improper logging operations has been prepared and placed on display in Decatur under the sponsorship of the U. S. Forest Service. The exhibit is a section of the Black Warrior National Forest in miniature.

Alabama's 12,000 farmers on the federal government's rehabilitation program will harvest cash crops valued at an average of $460 each and will produce approximately sufficient foodstuffs to last them the year, a Resettlement Administration announcement revealed.

A new pay scale providing an average of 10 per cent increase for all of Jefferson County's more than 1,000 employes, conforming with recently completed civil service personnel classification, will be placed in effect by the county commission.

Will Bankhead, of Jasper, Speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives, was halfback on the first football team at The University. He graduated in 1893 and returned this year to receive an honorary LL.D. degree.

William B. (Buck) Oliver, 22 years a representative in Congress from the Sixth District, was awarded the Tuscaloosa Civitan Club's annual plaque as the outstanding citizen of the community during the past year.

Jack Steppe, student at Auburn from New Jersey, "smelled smoke" in his plane while flying at about 1,200 feet. He landed quickly and stepped from the ship just before it burst into flame.

At Tuscaloosa 468 graduates (328 men, 140 women) received degrees from The University. President Foster conferred the honorary LL.D. degree upon Chancellor George H. Denny, former president.

D. L. Peppers, farmer living near Double Bridges, lost his house and household goods by fire. His Sand Mountain neighbors stopped plowing long enough to build and furnish a new home for Peppers.

Alabama will not penalize litigants who have lost attacks against the state's social security program in courts, Attorney General A. A. Carmichael advised them.

Edwin P. Cooper, Birmingham-Southern College senior, was awarded the trophy for rendering the most outstanding service to the college during the past year.

The Alabama Writers Conclave will convene Tuesday, June 15, at Alabama College, Montevallo, for a four-day session. Dr. George Lang, of The University, will preside.

Thirteen litters of pigs in Elmore County have been earmarked for the ton-litter show and sale to be held in Montgomery this fall, according to H. S. Gilmore, 4-H club agent.

Molton Levy, 19, of Birmingham, lost his life while attempting to save another youth from the swollen and turbulent water below Cahaba River Dam, near the Florida Short Route.

Ozark city schools have an attendance record of 91 per cent for the 1936-37 school term and 35 pupils made perfect records during the year.

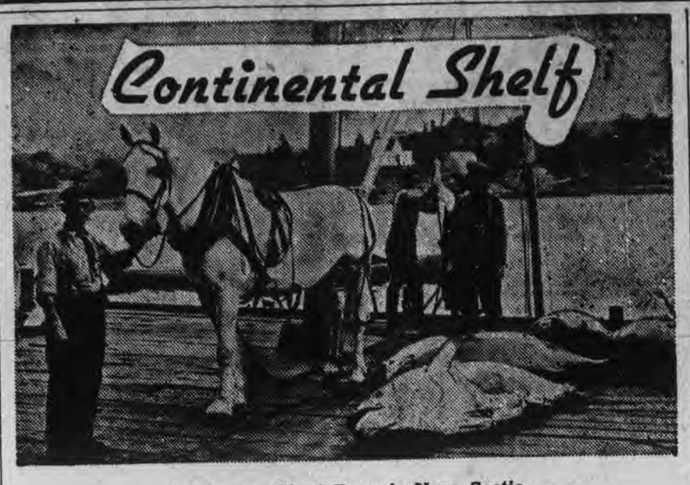
The old city clock that ticked away the time in Tuscaloosa for nearly a century has found a final resting place in The University's museum.

Earl P. Andrews, Montgomery, was elected grand chancellor at the annual state convention of the Grand Order of Knights of Pythias in Birmingham.

Roosevelt Collins, Negro, under sentence of death in charges of assaulting a white woman, was denied a rehearing by the Alabama Supreme Court.

A man quoted by authorities as saying he was an escape from Kilby Prison was arrested in San Antonio, Texas.

R. G. Williams of Citronelle is one of the two Alabama members of the graduating class at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.



The fifteenth annual convention of the Department of Alabama, United Spanish War Veterans, will be held in Selma June 13, 14 and 15.

Andy Lipscomb, of Bessemer, is the pitching star of the U. S. Military Academy baseball team. He held Princeton to one hit in a recent game.

Degrees were awarded 30 seniors in Spring Hill College's one hundred seventh annual commencement.

C. P. Ward is the first mayor elected at Centre following the recent incorporation.

AS ONE stands on the seashore at the full of the tide and looks out over the swelling floods surging in from the distant horizon, his feet are on the threshold of an enormous empire, so vast in extent and population that the achievements of the haughtiest rulers of mankind are dwarfed by comparison.

Though fleets sail over its depth, they make no significant impression upon this immense realm.

The subjects of this empire swarm through the waters in myriads totaling far greater numbers than all the life of the continental world. In fact, scientific investigations indicate that the oceans were the original abode of life on the globe, and that the continents were peopled from that inexhaustible reservoir.

Geologists believe that the depressions now occupied by the oceans have been located in approximately their present positions during the entire history of the earth, and that the foundations of the land masses likewise have been situated nearly as they are at the present time.

But during the great geological periods, the ocean has repeatedly invaded their edges and even their interior basins, sometimes to an enormous extent, forming shallow epicontinental seas.

Thus, all the continents of the world are bordered by a strip of shallow sea, the continental shelf, which slopes gradually from the coast to depths varying from 100 to 1,000 fathoms at its outer edge. Beyond this limit there is usually a more rapid gradient to the main floor of the ocean—the continental slope.

This world-wide shallow strip is of major importance to the life of the seas.

North Atlantic Shelf.

This article deals especially with the mollusks and other small creatures inhabiting the continental shelf which borders the Atlantic coast of North America from Nova Scotia to New York, and includes the extensive New England fisheries.

A most remarkable stretch of shore this is. Its southern half is of comparatively even contour, but, beginning with the region of Cape Hatteras, the coast to the northward has subsided and is indented with deep bays and irregularities, finally terminating in the long curving and tapering indentation of the Gulf of Maine.

The latter is the most noteworthy feature of the coast, its wide mouth being guarded on either hand by Cape Cod and Cape Sable, and its inner reaches narrowing to a double apex in the Bay of Fundy.

All this northern half of the Atlantic seaboard is a succession of drowned valleys, and its topography and geological history indicate that it has subsided beneath the waves of the sea during relatively recent times. On the other hand, the even outline of the coast from Hatteras south to Florida shows no evidence of such sinking.

The oceanic shelf to the 100-fathom line widens rapidly to the northward, reaching its greatest extent off the Gulf of Maine, where it is approximately 400 miles wide.

The central floor of the Gulf of Maine is an ancient river valley to which the river systems, represented by those now existent, contributed their drainage, to be emptied into the prehistoric sea by a single channel and mouth still traceable on the sea floor at the edge of the continental shelf.

Throughout this extensive and comparatively shallow oceanic margin, well illuminated by the sun's rays, conditions are favorable for an enormous development of the marine plants on which sea animals feed: namely, the microscopic diatoms, one-celled algae, and the larger seaweeds.

Nursery for Food Fishes.

Here numerous streams empty their loads of silt, rich in nitrates, phosphates, and other chemicals needed for plant food. The strong tides rushing into the narrowing channel from the open sea keep the water stirred with upwelling currents plentifully supplied with oxygen.

Hordes of small crustaceans, the copepods, feed upon this plant life. At certain seasons they swarm in these waters in numbers so vast that they give the sea a reddish color for miles.

These tiny creatures are rich in oils and are greedily devoured by large schools of mackerel, herring, alewives, and shad. Bluefish, cod, hake, and haddock pursue and devour the smaller fishes, and even the huge finback and humpback whales do not disdain to feed upon the herring.

Thus the shallow banks off New England, especially Georges and Browns Banks, at the entrance to the Gulf of Maine, as well as the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, farther away, form a veritable nursery for the important food fishes of our coasts, and thus connect mankind by an interlacing food chain with the microscopic plant life of these shallow waters.

The evolution of the animal world, as we know it, would have been impossible had these primitive plants not come into existence. From such forms, also, all the higher land plants of the world originate.

The Intertidal Zone.

As the open seas were peopled from the oceanic shelf, so the freshwater streams and swamps received parts of the overflow. Countless species found food and a measure of safety from enemies by creeping into the area between the tides, where they acquired resistance to exposure to the open air at the intervals of low water. Here a rapid evolution took place, so that the intertidal zone became densely populated with life.

Finally, from fresh-water swamps on the one hand and from the upper parts of the marine tidal zone on the other, first plants and then animals invaded the land itself and produced the highly specialized types that now reign over it.

North of Cape Cod, the coast of New England is predominantly high and rocky. Beginning with the headlands of Nahant, Marblehead, and Cape Ann, north of Boston, the cliffs are at first isolated to local regions, with intervening stretches of sandy beaches and flats. But from Portland, in Casco Bay, northward, the coast is an almost unbroken succession of granite cliffs, sloping rock-ribbed promontories, and reentrant bays and harbors, with occasional beaches.

The tidal waters flowing from the open sea are gradually confined by the narrowing outline of the Gulf of Maine, which forces them to a progressively increasing height, and reach a climax in the Bay of Fundy. From Massachusetts Bay north to Portland, the tide rises nine feet. It continues to increase northward, until it becomes 18 feet at Eastport and 37 to 48 feet at the ends of the two tapering horns which terminate the Bay of Fundy.

Here, too, there are interpolated stretches of beaches, flat points, and swampy meadows, and these are entirely covered at high tide. Naturally the width of the tidal zone on the side of a vertical cliff is measured exactly by the vertical rise and fall of the water. For example, the cliffs that surround Bliss island, at the entrance of Passamaquoddy bay, are exposed for 22 feet from the top of the barnacle frieze that marks the high-tide limit to the water level at low tide.

Crowded With Life.

This region between the tides is teeming with life, both plant and animal, in crowded array. On the vertical granite walls of Bliss island, the various species are arranged in overlapping zones, with the conspicuous white band of rock barnacles.

Below this, the rockweeds hang in thick, gracefully festooned clusters down to the low-water mark.

Concealed beneath the rockweed, and succeeding the base of the barnacle zone, the rocks are covered with a dense layer of young black mussels.

Among them are closely crowded groups of the common dog whelk, feeding upon the mussels, and laying their graceful vase-shaped egg cases, tinted rose and yellow, in mosaiclike patches in the crevices.

The latter mollusks secrete a purple dye, formerly used by the Indians for coloring their deerskin garments. They are related to the murex of the Phoenicians, from which that people derived the famous royal purple, later arrogated by the Roman emperors for their personal use.

The dog whelk has a thick shell with a characteristic spindle-shaped opening. It is extremely variable in color, size, and sculpture along the New England shore.

The common periwinkle creeps everywhere over the rockweed from the low-water mark to the highest part of the barnacle zone and even upon the bare rocks far above it. This remarkable sea snail can stand exposure to the open air longer than any other marine creature of the northern coast.

It is in a transitional state of evolution toward terrestrial life, for its gill seems to be on the point of being replaced by a lung. It has a very wide range, being found on both sides of the Atlantic. In England it is the common "winkle" sold in markets.

A Little Bit Humorous

AFTER MANY YEARS

They were very much in love, but there came a day when they had a bitter quarrel and parted, each resolving never to see the other again.

Years passed, and they had almost forgotten the little love affair, when they met at a dance.

The man felt embarrassed, but said, softly: "Why, Muriel!"

She looked at him indifferently.

"Let me see," she said calmly, "was it you or your brother who used to be an admirer of mine?"

"I really don't remember," he replied, affably. "Probably my father."—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Unhappy Highwaymen

"Any highwaymen in Crimson Gulch?" said the commercial traveler.

"A few," answered Cactus Joe. "You can see their dust a quarter of a mile up the road."

"What are they running away from?"

"You. The last high-power salesman that hit the village left the boys so tied up with monthly installments that they won't be able to pay for years to come."

Making It Pay

Two friends met. One of them had his arm broken in a motor accident and was carrying it in a sling.

"Say," asked the first, "It's too bad about your arm! How long will you have to carry it in a sling?"

The injured man shrugged.

"There's a slight difference of opinion about that," he replied. "My doctor says two weeks—and my lawyer says twelve."

GRASS FLAVOR IN MILK UNNECESSARY

Keep Cows From Any Greens Few Hours Is Advised.

By Dr. O. F. Garrett, Instructor in Dairy Manufacture, New Jersey College of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

Nothing puts that desirable "June" flavor in milk quite so successfully as tender green grass, but in order to avoid the undesirable odor and flavor which nearly always occurs when cows are first turned on pasture, it is necessary to observe caution in the pasturing practice.

Research workers at the California and Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment stations have shown that if cows are kept away from roughages, especially green roughages, at least five hours before milking very little of the "feedy" flavor will be evident in the milk. This same procedure can be applied to pasturing practices. The cows can be turned on pasture immediately after the morning milking but they should be removed to a dry lot or barn at least five hours before the next milking.

If this practice is followed for the first two or three weeks in the spring, there will be very little of the undesirable grass odor and flavor in the milk. This practice will even eliminate most of the wild garlic or onion flavor if these plant are found in the pasture. At the same time the cows will have enough time to consume the necessary quantity of grass to supply their needs.

To get the very finest flavor in milk during the pasture season, it is suggested that this procedure be followed throughout the entire time.

Forcing Breeding Hens By Increasing Protein

Forcing breeding hens by increasing the amount of protein in the ration may be done with no ill effects if an abundance of green feed is supplied. Recent experiments conducted at the Oklahoma agricultural experiment station show that the mortality of the breeders fed green feed was not increased by forcing, observes a writer in Successful Farming. Green feed protects the hatching qualities of eggs produced by forced breeders. Rations with a protein content as high as 28 per cent may be fed without injury to the hatchability of eggs if sprouted oats, alfalfa meal, or some other green feed is fed each day. Where forcing is done by increasing the protein in the feed and using lights, the use of green feed is especially important to maintain good advances in the total egg production.

Clean Water for Ponds

A location that will allow drainage from only clean pasture or meadow should be chosen for the farm pond, says Marion Clark of the Missouri College of Agriculture. Water from barnyards and lots should never be allowed to drain into stock ponds. Where it is desirable to construct a pond where water from lots would normally drain into it, terraces should be used to intercept the contaminated water and carry it to another watershed where it will not pollute the pond water.

Grain Mixture for Poultry

There are several grains or combinations of grains that give satisfactory results, but the one most commonly used in all sections of this state, says a North Carolina State college poultryman, is composed of 60 per cent yellow corn and 40 per cent wheat. However, this ration should be largely governed by what is grown on the farm, and the cost of the grain which must be purchased. Where there is an abundance of heavy barley (48 pounds to the bushel) or heavy oats (38 pounds to the bushel) these may be substituted for a part of the corn and wheat, but should never exceed 30 per cent of the grain mixture.

Agricultural Notes

Hogs yield a greater proportion of edible meat than any other meat animals.

It is found that seven out of every 100 farm fires start when sparks land on a roof.

• • •

Among spring-seeded pastures, oats give the greatest pasturage in the shortest time and at the least cost.

Milk cows require from 100 to 300 pounds of water daily, it is stated by the Missouri experiment station.

More than 50 kinds of fruits and vegetables are of commercial importance in the United States.

• • •

For the past ten years the tobacco crop in the United States has averaged about 1,350,000,000 pounds, grown on 1,740,000 acres and having an estimated farm value of $214,000,000.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

PETER FORGETS ABOUT THE STRANGE TRACKS

Kick your heels and jump and dance!
Hop and skip and gayly prance!
Sister South Wind's come to stay,
And Mistress Spring is on the way!

EVERYBODY said that Peter Rabbit and Jumper the Hare had gone crazy. Of course, it wasn't true. They weren't really crazy, even if they did act so. People always say that Jumper the Hare is mad at this time of the year, but it isn't so unless trying to show how happy and full of joy you feel is madness. That was the trouble with Jumper and Peter this time. They were so full of joy that they just had to do something, and because they couldn't sing and shout—for you know they have no voices for singing and shouting—they just had to do something to show how glad and happy they were, and so, in the moonlight, when they thought no one saw them, they hopped and skipped and jumped and danced, and did all sorts of foolish things.

But other people did see them. Jimmy Skunk saw them and said, "How silly!" Bobby Coon, poking his head out of his hollow tree to see if the last bit of snow had disappeared, yawned sleepily and said, "How foolish!"

But Peter and Jumper didn't know this, and they wouldn't have cared much anyway. They didn't have room for anything but the joy that filled their hearts, and that joy was because they knew that Mistress Spring was on the way, and she always brings the glad time, the happy time, the merry time, when the very air is full of joy and love, and it is, oh, so good to be alive! They knew that she was on the way because Sister South Wind had arrived and told them so, for Sister South Wind had come to prepare the way for her, to melt the snow and ice, and to whisper to all the trees which had slept the long winter through that it was time to wake. So they forgot everything else in the joy of this good news. Peter forgot all his trouble because his friends and neighbors wouldn't believe the story he had told them of the strange great tracks he had found deep in the Green Forest. In fact, he forgot all about those tracks himself. There was too much else to think about. The Green Forest and the Green Meadows, and the Laughing Brook and the Smiling Pool would soon be waking up, and Peter just had to be on hand to greet each of the sleepers, who had spent the long, hard, cold winter warmly tucked in bed, and knowing nothing about Jack Frost, or rough Brother North Wind, or how hard it had been sometimes to get something to eat.

So Peter hopped and skipped and danced in the moonlight with Jumper the Hare, and was happy. "No more days of hunting and hunting to find something to eat!" he cried, as he foolishly tried to jump over his own shadow. "No more racing around to keep from freezing to death!" And then, just because he didn't have to, Peter raced faster and harder than ever. You know, it is a lot easier to do things when you don't have to. It is fun then.

"Just the same," added Peter, "I wouldn't sleep all winter the way Johnny Chuck does, and Grandfather Frog and Striped Chipmunk and a lot of others for anything. Think of all they miss! It's worth it even if we do have hard times once in a while. And it's going to be such fun to see all the sleepers wake up! Yes, sir, I'm glad I don't sleep through the winter, but I'm gladder still that Mistress Spring is on the way.

"Hippity-hoppity, skippity-skoppity,
I couldn't keep still if I would!
Skippity-skoppity, hippity-hoppity,
I'm glad there's no reason I should."

GRAPHIC GOLF

By BEST BALL

ALLOWING THE LEFT ARM TO COLLAPSE

TO ENABLE the clubhead having an unhindered sweep through the ball, it is essential that those parts of the body which might block the arms, in their downswing and follow through path, be moved out of the way. Probably the worst malefactor in this regard is the left hip, which if left in the same position it enjoyed at address will cause the left arm to collapse. This is because the left arm does not possess the room to pass on through and must perforce fold up, causing the swing to lose its force.

Another cause of this action is leaving the weight too much on the right leg in the downstroke. Here the left arm is prevented from traveling on through because of the restriction placed on it by the weight being on the opposite side of the body. Instead of moving forward it can only remain set, letting the right arm carry on the swinging assignment and causing the clubhead to cut across the ball from the outside in. It is largely this factor which has caused the left arm to remain set in the upper illustration above, causing the clubhead to cut across the ball from the outside in and no doubt resulting in a slice. In the lower panel Johnny Goodman is shown making an unhindered follow through. The left hip has been turned well aside and the weight transferred to the right leg. The swing mechanics here are directly opposite to the restricted stroke and hip turn of the upper figure.

MOST of us have "the blues" at times. But the normal mind soon clears them away. This is not true, however, of some unfortunates, who seem always and quite unaccountably depressed. In a world that is filled with so much about which to be cheerful and happy, these mournful souls see only that which should not be.

Destiny, for some unfathomable reason, seems to have singled them out for unhappiness, brooding and gloom which they hardly deserve. And destiny has marked them with the finger of Saturn now to be described.

The Melancholy Finger of Saturn.

Fortunately you will not come upon many second fingers of this type. But when you do, you will recognize its peculiarities at a glance. The outstanding characteristic is the twisted and distorted appearance of the finger from root to nail tip. This and excessive length and leanness, which add emphasis to the large and knotty knuckles.

The first joint usually inclines sharply toward the forefinger, the second joint just as sharply away from it, while the nail tip turns again toward the forefinger. The nail is long, narrow, often convexed and deeply ridged and rather deeply set.

Individuals with this unusual type of second finger are rarely understood, even by those with whom they are most closely associated. They crave sympathy, which they deserve but which is too often withheld. If encouraged, the real abilities so often lying latent within them may be loosed in surprising accomplishments despite the handicap which destiny has imposed.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...

By Lemuel F. Parton

Prophet Who Predicted U. S. Trailer Craze.

NEW YORK.—The reporters gave due attention to Aldous Huxley when he came in from England recently, but they overlooked his interesting companion, Gerald Heard, British author, critic and broadcaster.

Mr. Heard is a prophet and philosopher, which isn't hot news perhaps, but the ship news men probably would have run him down had they recalled that, in 1923, he quite definitely predicted the trailer craze.

He has an uncanny way of putting two and two together—not necessarily a house and an automobile—which has made him a star of both the British broadcasting and forecasting companies, so to speak. His fortnightly radio program, "This Surprising World," has long been an important feature.

The Huxley-Heard team, in step here on an important enterprise, is not impelled by the European propaganda surge. They expect to go about quietly, and the fact is it would take a man like the late William James to report their mission properly. After a trip west, they will check at Duke university on those startling experiments and findings in telepathy which have been the sensation of the year among psychologists.

This writer has read the Duke data and conclusions. They cinch up the fact of telepathy to a degree which makes a correspondent hope he will soon be able just to think his stuff, with nobody paying wire tolls, and no wear and tear on the typewriter.

Mr. Heard is not identified with fuzzy pseudo-science, and it is as an intellectual and not as a mystic that he does his prophesying. He is rated in England as one of the most important liaisons between science and psychology, and it is with the reserve of the scientist that he has examined psychic phenomena.

In his numerous books, he has traced a continuing pattern of psychological, not physiological, evolution. There was the pre-individual, the individual, intellectually effective but "morally monstrous," and now there is emerging a super-consciousness, within some life-ordained rubric of growth, which gives hope for the attainment of a real civilization. That seems to be Mr. Heard's main idea, advanced through his "Narcissus," "The Ascent of Humanity," "The Social Substance of Religion," "Science in the Making" and other books.

He is forty-eight years old, Cambridge bred, a small, alert man with eager blue eyes and blonde hair. At the risk of being too flippant, it may be observed that he is one of the main intellectual spark plugs of England today. He and Mr. Huxley were the guests of Mrs. Leonard Elmhirst, 1172 Park avenue. They will start collaboration on a book on their western trip.

Scientific War Curve.

BUT, when it comes to prophesying, here's Professor Pitirim A. Sorokin of Harvard, also in the news, who has maintained that neither a man nor a nation can lift the veil beyond today or tomorrow. As the head of the Harvard department of sociology, he says a great deal of sociology is hokum or just a "clerical exercise."

Currently, he catches national attention with his report on wars. The first quarter of this century, he finds, was the "bloodiest period in all history." Supplementing researches which he conducted in 1933 with General N. N. Golovin, he offers the first scientific war curve, covering 902 wars from the year 500 B. C. The World war was eight times bigger than all the rest rolled into one.

Professor Sorokin is no merely bookish student of wars. In the kick-back of war, he was jailed, sentenced, and awaiting the firing squad. That was in Russia, where he had opposed the Bolsheviks. Previously he had been arrested once for being too conservative and once for being too radical. Lenin saved his life on condition that he leave the country. He came here in 1923, joined the Harvard faculty, and in 1930 became an American citizen.

Looking over the Martian box score, he says to believe in peace is to believe in miracles. While he is much gloomier about the future than Mr. Heard, he has written one sentence which seems to put them, for the moment at least, on common ground. He demands, "a liberation of imagination, intuition and speculation from the prison chains of the fact finders."

What A Man!

Some fellows can get away with anything. There's one in our neighborhood that does.

Morals don't mean a thing t ohim. He's unmarried, and lives openly with a woman he's crazy about; and doesn't care what the neighbors say or think. He has n oregard for truth or law.

The duties of the so-called good citizen are just so much bunk as far as he's concerned. He doesn't vote at the primaries or the general election. He never thinks of paying a bill.

We have seen him take a $2. taxi ride without giving the driver so much as a pleasant look. The driver only stared at him and muttered something silly.

He won't work a lick; he won't go to church; he can't play cards or dance ,or fool around with musical instruments or the radio. S a far as known he has no intellestual or cultural interests at all.

He neglects his appearance terribly. He's so indolent he'd let the house burn down before he'd turn in an alarm.

The telephone can ring itself to pieces and he wouldn't bother to answer it. Even on such ar controversial subject as the liquor question nobody knows exactly where he stands, because one minute he's dry, and the next minute he's wet.

But we'll say this for him, in spite of all his faults, he comes of a darn good family.

He's our new baby.—From Bindery Talk.

What Happens To Hours

BY MILTON BIRD

He was one of those peculiar fellows one sees in small towns, happy, satisfied, apparently at peace with the little part of the world he knew and moved about in. His happiness was habit, like his nature, and he crammed it into his life, listlessly, along side his work, his play, his secret, and at times almost unbearable, desire to get out into the world where things were happening.

He was still young, just past twenty-one, and onto his youth he had piled his dreams of several women and the ashes of two romances. But, underneath his skin, he was terribly restless. The country would be all right, he reasoned, if there was some thing to be had to break the monotony of it, speed up the hours that drug by endlessly. Sometimes he wondered how he stood it, and out of this wonder sprang a hope that something big and beautiful would happen to him, a feeling that added to his unrest yet made his existence endurable. This hope was the high spot in hi slife; he waited for it ecstatically; it added spice to his friendship, wit to his company, delight to his expectancy. Around it lay his whole philosophy of contentment. Just living the hours away, in a sort of hilarious bliss, losing them in the delight of the moment, finding after a while they were completely gone even though he was unaware of their passing.

Came the night of May 2. Over the tree tops a half moon came up, shining through the window of Joe Andrew's bath room. He glanced at it idly, without noticing, and continued his shaving. Moons were for lovers, he thought, like Bill and Mary Then he wondered who Mary was bringing along. Bill had said something about her, but he had been busy with Mrs. Smith, and a certain sassy hat she was determined to wea rin spite of the fact that it looked like a warped stove lid and fit her accordingly, so he really hadn't understood Bill beyond the mere fact that they were gonna ride around.

And they did ride around. The ride began at Mary's house and they went down a quiet country road past tiny farm houses with mail boxes out front and tall trees standing in the yards.

Joe's companion developed into one Anne Stewart, twenty-one, dainty, and with a freshness about her that took his breath away. Too, he liked to talk with her. There was somehting about her voice that made him want to listen, and the things she said fitted in perfectly with his own thoughts. They passed a mail box and he said:

"Did you ever play mail box?"

She came out of her corner with a little sigh o fexcitement. "No," she said. But she would like it, if he would teach her the rules.

What a girl, he thought happily. He was carried away with the simple delight of her company.

"A mail box," he said, "on my side and I whisper a sweet nothing in your ear, and when there is one on your side you whisper one in my ear.'

The car sped on, past a road house and then up a hill with a mail box at the top. "That's your side," he laughed.

She leaned over and held her lips up close to his ear. "I'm having a marvelous time," she whispered.

For a moment he felt her breath on his cheek, before she took her lips away, warm(satiny, like the touch of a flower petal. "That one, mister", she laughed, "is on your side."

He held her face in his hands and whispered in her ear: "If you're as happy as I am, they'll have to pinch us when we get home to make sure we're alive."

Then ther efollowed a long, hilly country, without houses, with only the sound of whip o' wills breaking the silence. Suddenly Joe realized he was so happy it hurt. He felt that he wanted to cry out. But they passed another box then, on her side, and again he could feel her breath on his cheek. "I guess they'll just have to pinch us," she said.

Thus the night went by, quickly, hurriedly, with a glass of wine at an old house where the man told them funny tales, and music under the moon, and a waltz on the road side . . .

And the night of May 2 turned into the morning of May 3. The village grocery had got in a shipment of merchandise and Joe was checking it in. All morning he had been marking the price of these things. But his mind was somewhere else, hunting out mail boxes and listening excitedly for whispered words. He was thinking of a road they would take tonight, with scads of mail boxes, whole coveys of them; and he wondered if they would want to come home at midnight, or if they would know when it got late. Maybe Bill and Mary would have to mind them again. He laughed. Maybe they would.

The manager passed, talking to his lady clerk. "You know what time it is,J oe?" he said.

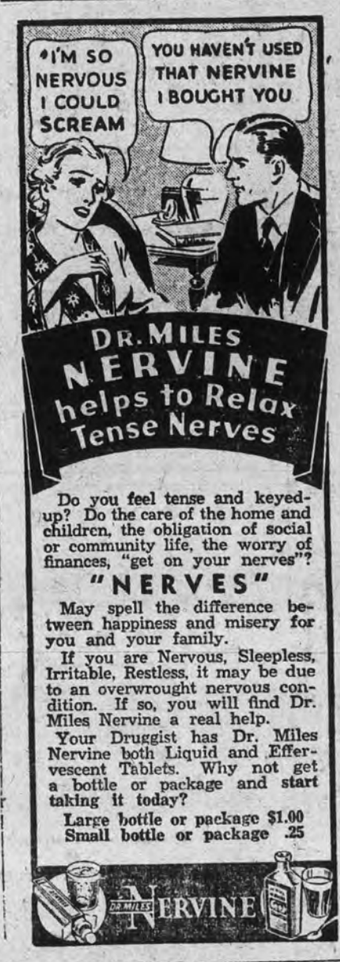
He looked up quickly. "Uh-huh," he answered, glancing at his watch. Suddenly he felt the blood trickling along the edges of his cheeks. The hands pointed to the hour of two. But that was wrong. It couldn't be that he had worked past his lunch hour. Not by two hours. He put his pencil down and started to the door. Picking up his hat, he could hear Mr. Appelby telling Miss Clark "He's been here four years, and I've never had to tell him before when it was time to eat."

Miss Clark only smiled, ever so slightly. Nor had he ever, she thought, before this morning, stopped her in the aisle to whisper sweet phrases in her ear. No, not in four years.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

Now if you had been listening at the keyhole of the little ante room down at the "Y" on a certain warmish afternoon you would have gotten the low down on the peculiarities of a portion of our feminine element. Lexie has spells when she can't bear to touch her hips, Mildred says at times the touch of a powder puff on her face is exasperating, Nell refuses to comb her hair when she has a sore tooth, Nelle gets the jitters if you point your finger at her in a "goosey" manner, and so on and so on . . . How's this for a good one on Jess Barton: While energetically engaged in the business of thumbing a ride home one day, a certain well known citizen slowed down to inquire "Jess, do you really want a lift?" "Naw," Jess replied nonchalantly, "I'm just goosin' a ghost."

Heard going down Main Street on Friday night at exactly ten minutes of ten, two unknown young men discussing the relations of a dime and a token—who were you? Come on now, 'fess up . . . School days, school days, dear old golden rule days—they are fast drawing to a close. Dr. Stevenson ,of Birmingham, preached the Baccalaureate Sermon to the graduating class here Sunday. Quite a crowd attended and did those seniors look dignified marching up the aisle with measured tread. . . There is a certain young lady—brunette—in this graduating class who is proud ly strutting a very new and beautiful diamond. The post mark on the package said Washington, D. C. Whether it means Orange blossoms and a veil or not is hard to tell. . A minor tragedy has befallen one of our kiddies. Ask Mary Nell Maudling how it feels to get almost to the place where candy is purchased and discover that a dime has mysteriously disappeared.



Sonny and Vivian Horton have a most cunning new little kitty cat. Her name is Clementine . . Smooth as silk is the only expression that will fit that ice cream we cranked up Saturday night. We enjoyed it immensely and were we proud to have Ella Ree and Alonzo join us . . Did our eyes deceive us or did we see a certain little brunette riding around Sunday with Milton Stone. What about that . . . A secret is a sacred thing, especially if it can be kept for any length of time. We know a certain young couple in our fair city who to our way of thinking have been married for quite a while, for just how long we wouldn't know, but we must admit they have kept this sacred secret for a pretty good while. If you would like to know of whom we are speaking just take a few good looks at some of our most in-love couples who have been acting some what queer here of late—then probably you will know more about the situation Mrs E. K. Edwards has as her guest this week a very charming young lady from Ohio . . . Master Hilton Brandon of Birmingham spent part of last week with his Aunt Doris and Uncle A. B. Bradley. . . . We saw a very dignified young man and young lady walking home from the show Saturday night. Who was it? Why none other than Troy Henderson Jr. and Inell Booker . . . What is any sweeter than babies? why more babies of course, and thats just what we have around us, just lots more of little babies . . . Mr. and Mrs. John L. Conner are the proud parents of a six pound baby girl. . . We got a letter this week from our good pal, Bill Thomason, who is now making his home in Los Angeles, California, Bill states he likes "The land of sunshine" very much, but he misses all his pals back home. We are watching with interest the progress of this young upcoming American and we know no one that we wish an ymore luck and success to . . . Helen Robinson looked powerfully dressed up Sunday in that new pink outfit . . . Zola Moore had a grand time in town Saturday. O. B. Mathis and Gafford Counts being her escorts to a ball game at Rickwood park Saturday afternoon . . . "Soppy" Henderson would be very glad if some one would teach him how to hoe a garden without hoeing his toes too. He is nursing a very badly cut toe this week . . . We were very sorry to hear that Ruby Robinson is ill, we hope you will soon be well again Ruby . . . No one seems happier to be home over the week ends than Lessie Odum, who is now going to school at Alverson Business College. . . . You know what we are thinking of right now? Well, we'll tell you A shady nook with a rippling brook and with these pleasant thoughts in our mind, we'll be seeing you

At another time,

Nell and Nelle

Octopus Uses "Smoke Screen"

One of the octopus' natural defenses is a thick, viscous, ink-black fluid which it injects into the water in vast clouds when attacked or disturbed. This is to confuse or blind its enemies, but apparently the monster itself can see quite well through the substance with its great owl-like eyes.

Do you feel tense and keyed-up? Do the care of the home and children, the obligation of social or community life, the worry of finances, "get on your nerves"?

The size of a Bank is determined by its ability to serve. Glamorous figures never haye spelled success or service. Giving the public the type of loan service they needed; anticipating their requirements when their wants were the greatest; giving them low costs on loans when every dollar counted most—such are the potent factors in determining the ability of a Bank to serve its whole community.

ON LEAVING COLLEGE

One last remembering, one minute more,
One glance around my room ,then break the spell
And pack away my books. No use to dwell
On winged hours passing—other girls before
Have said goodbye and softly closed the door,
Have looked down from this window, seen the swell
And fading out of sunsets, loved as well
As I the feel of misty nights, the muffled roar
Of trains through darkness.

FUTURE days, I know,
Will hold as much beauty. Come! Strip bare
The shelves and tables. What's an ended year
With all of life before me? Bravely go
Along the empty halls, nor turn to stare
At ghosts of days, dear days, behind me here.

Helen F. Blackshear has caught the poignant parting incident to College Days and happily combined it with the hope for a radiant future, in the above little poem which we feel will be especially appreciated by Jane Fowler, Margaret Ellis and Charlie Verne Tinney ,who received their much coveted Diplomas from Alabama College on Monday — and who have returned to Columbiana for the summer. This trio of attractive collegiates brought both distinction and honor to the town they represented by their creditable scholastic records maintained through the four years they have graced the halls of Alabama College, and we join their many friends in extending congratulations and a hearty greeting back to that friendly little haven known as "Your Little Main Street an: Mine."

Miss Beth Wallace is visiting her parents Judge and Mrs. W. W. Wallace this week, before entering Auburn for a post graduate course during the summer.

Mrs. Edwin R. Wallace, Mrs. Joe H. Taylor of Isabella, Tennessee, are the guests of Mrs. Rosa Teague and Mrs. W. A. Parker in Columbiana.

Miss Roberta Taylor and Louise Taylor of Birmingham and Auburn and Miss Clough Wallace of Isabella Tenn., are the charming house guests of Miss Dorothy Parker.

Mrs. Jonnie Fancher of Selma, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Cage Head on last Thursday.

Miss Alice Roberts, who has been a student in Howard College for the past semester, has returned home and will take a post graduate course in Alabama College during the summer.

Want a new permanent? All right here is your chance—Miss Louise Thompson will on Monday and Tuesday of each week, give you a permanent for the sum of $2.50. This low price is good for only two days per week. Phone early for an appointment.

K. C. HARRISON

Karl Harrison (K. C. to his friends), admitted by all to be the best looking barrister in Shelby County, left Columbiana for Savannah, Ga., on Thursday. The reason? That little old, sly old boy known as CUPID! He will take a trek down the aisle to the martial strains of Mendelsohns famous melody on next Saturday and Columbiana's social set will be enriched by the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison, after a short wedding trip along Florida's Coast.

WRITER'S CONCLAVE

Writers from the entire Southland will gather in Montevallo on June 15 for a three day program session which bids favorably for first place in the hearts of all artists, writers, would be writers, musicians and lovers of music. Many notables will be present to lend their talents toward enriching the attractive program under the direction of Esther Argo of Birmingham. Opening night brings a brilliant reception at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Harmon at which time distinguished guests and writers will be presented. Dr. George Lang, President, writes he is looking forward to the best session ever offered, and from what we can personally learn of the many delightful events planned—we KNOW he will not be disappointed, for he is ONE President who has the full cooperation and loyalty of every member of this unusually fine group of artists.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

One of the most delightful and enjoyable Social meetings of the year of the W. M. S. was Monday afternoon, May 24th when the Society accepted the cordial invitation of Mrs. L. C. Walker ,of Siluria, who is also a member of the Columbiana W .M. S., to visit her and meet with the women of the Siluria Auxiliary. The genuine hospitality of Judge and Mrs Walker and their charming daughter Frances, was graciously dispensed throughout the afternoon. We were happy to meet in this attractive, beautiful, restful home, with its spacious lawns and lovely flowers

Mrs. L. E. Christian opened the meeting by playing softly "The Church in the Wildwood." ,Mrs. J. R. White, in her earnest and impressive way conducted a very helpful and beautiful devotional, using Acts 2:1-25 as the basis for the meditation Mrs. W. L. Thompson of Siluria, led the prayer.

The missionary p rogram "The Church Universal, Building the Church Around the World," was conducted by Mrs. T. K. Roberts. Mrs. W. L. Christian discussed the work, the difficulties and the influence of the Missionary in building the church in every land. Mrs. C. E. Niven presented in an informative way the organization of the Southern Methodist Church in Japan, Korea, Mexico and Cuba.

As members of the Mother Church and helpers we concluded the program by reading in unison "Our Pledge of Allegiance to the Church". There were seven present who had been members of a church fifty years

Mrs. Fowler announced plans for the Annual District Conference of the W. M. S. at Sylacauga, May 25.

The hostess, assisted by Misses Walker and Thompson, served a delicious salad plate with grape juice to twenty four members, and six Siluria guests.

BACHELORDOM

A cynical old Bachelor sauntered in the office last week with the following remark: "A woman in love takes on the vanity of a peacock, the subtlety of the fox, the suspicion of the lynx, the tenacity of a blood hound, and the memory of an elephant."

Misses Odell and Idell Turner of Vincent and Siluria have returned home after a successful year of teaching.

Miss Jean Wallace of the University, is spending a few days in Columbiana with Miss Dorothy Parker.

Mrs. Homer Bearden has returned from a few days visit in Birmingham the guest of her sister, Mrs. Harry Harper.

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Head of Wilton, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Cleveland and son, Oliver, of York, Miss Carrie Head of Birmingham, Capt. James G. Oakley and Alvis Fitch of Ashby, were the guests of Judge and Mrs. Cage Head, Sunday.

Miss Myrtle Miles of Birmingham spent the week end in Columbiana, visiting her mother, Mrs. Emma Miles.

Misses Jean Letson and Jeanette Niven, students at Alabama College, are at home for the summer.

RUTH LUCK ENTERTAINS COLLEGIATES

A lovely dinner party given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul O. Luck by Miss Ruth Luck on Monday night honored Misses Jane Fowler and Charlie Verne Tinney, graduates of Alabama College.

The color scheme was green and white and was artistically carried out in cut flowers and decorations. A delicious four course dinner was served to the following guests: Misses Charlie Verne Tinney, Jane Fowler, A. D. and Harris Milton Gordon and James Taylor, and the hostess Miss Ruth Luck.

Mr, and Mrs. J. T. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Reinhardt of Mt. Pinson were guests of relatives Sunday.

Rux Carter, of Birmingham, spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. Grace Carter.

Miss Nancy Woolley of Eclectie, Alabama, is the guest of her sister, Miss Mary Woolley.

Jack McGhee, J. B. Turner and Pearson West, stundents of Auburn, are vacationing in Columbiana.

Ed Lovelady, who is employed on a Road Project in Mississippi, spent the week end in Columbiana with his family.

A congenial party from Columbiana enjoyed the week end on Coosa River. Guests included Mr. and Mrs Cecil Duke, Jim and Warren Duke, Mr. and Mrs. John Curlee and John Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Hop Cole, Mrs. Lena Merrell, Frank Gerald and Dick Fulton.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhonda Pitts and little daughter, Barbara Anne of Birmingham ,are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pitts this week.

Rev. W. O. Hope of Owens X Roads is visiting his parents, Rev. and Mrs W. B. Hope at the parsonage this week and will occupy the pulpit at the Methodist Church Sunday morning.

The Young People's division of the Methodist Church under the direction of Miss Evie Woodham assisted by Miss Mary Florence Lyons, rendered a splendid program at the Columbiana Methodist Church last Sunday night. The central idea was a nature study of trees, leading up to the theme of "The Tree of Life." The program was well presented, each participant rendering her part with distinction Miss Woodham hasD been active and devoted in her work with the Young People in Church activities while she has made her home here during the school year.

Mr. Lige Turner ,former resident of Columbiana, was a cordially greeted visitor in Columbiana Wednesday.

MRS. JOE ROBERT'S FLOWER SHOP MAINTAINS COMPLETE FLORAL SERVICE

"Say It With Flowers" has always been an attractive slogan—and what a desolate place would be the world without a flower! It would be a face without a smile—a feast without a welcome! How the universal heart of man responds to the charms of flowers. They are wreathed around the cradle, the marriage altar, and the tomb, and for the reason of their importance in creating a ray of beauty in an otherwise prosaic world, we heartily endorse the message a flower brings.

"Say It With Flowers," and from the Mrs. Joe Robert's Floral Shop in Sylacauga, is an ideal way of expressing any sentiment or thought that will bring happiness to the person fortunate enough to receive them

Bus service from Sylacauga assures you prompt delivery, and the flowers are fresh when you receive them. We personally recommend this artistic little Floral Shop for your orders. Mrs. Roberts is an experienced florist and artist. Her personal attention is given each order received. We shall be glad to take your orders at the Democrat office and forward to her. We know you will be pleased with the floral offerings required for any occasion.

EV-CONGRESSMAN W. B. OLIVER VISITS COLUMBIANA

Hon W. B. Oliver, former Congressman from the Sixth District, was a distinguished guest in Columbiana this week. We are indebted to this gentleman for a thoughtful call in the Democrat office ,and join a host of friends in extending cordial greetings to this popular and prominent political figure whose enviable record in Congress is proudly recalled

Prominent bankers and Directors who enjoyed the social and business program offered at the State Bankers Association in Birmingham last week were W. L. Christian, Cashier of Columbiana Savings Bank, L .G. Fulton and Bolin Cooper, Tellers, and Max Lefkovits, Director.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Davis and Douglas Holman have returned from a vacation spent in Columbus, Ohio. Mr and Mrs Davis drove a new Buick back and state the trip was fine. Good roads, a good car and good company. You can't beat that for a combination!

Friends of Mrs. Pearle Friedberger are delighted to learn that she is satisfactorily convalescing in the Baptist Hospital in Birmingham.

Mayor and Mrs. Harry Gordon and Mrs. Lena Merrell are spending a few weeks in Stafford Springs.

PUZZLED EXPRESSIONS

Why so many puzzled expressions? All on account of the PUZZLES instituted by Mr. Old Gold. All are wondering just what he will decree next. A conservative estimate is made by a leading attorney that at least 100,000 people sent in identically the same answer. What next. Where to and WHY for. What is COLUMBIANA doing about it. WAITING FOR THE EVENING MAIL WITH THE CHECK FOR $100,000.

WEST CALERA NEWS

Heart Drifts

THE ONLY WAY

I took you up on a hilltop
On a golden day in May;
Surely, there in the sunlight
You would learn how dearly I loved you,
"How beautiful is the morning light"
You said—
And knew not
It was the glow running over
From my heart.

I took you into a quiet, cathedral
Where the light filtered into a rainbow
Through the stained glass windows.
Kneeling together before the Holy Virgin,
I thought you must realize
That my love fo ryou is sacred.
"I feel so peaceful!"
You said—
And knew not
It was a benediction from my heart.

We sat together on the sands
While the waves broke against our feet,
In the starlit sorcery of the night
I thought you would know
That my love for you is as vast as the sea.
"The stars are singing to the waves"
You said—
And knew not
It was the voice of my heart.

I walked beside you in the rain
On a cold November evening .
Ah, surely, in that intimacy
You would know at last,
Ho wdeeply I loved you!
"How soft are the tears of the clouds'
You said—
And knew not
It was my heart weeping on your face.

Then . . . one day you came to me and said:
"I must go away—
Surely I can find Love . . somewhere.
You can understand / . . "
(Understand? God!)
I looked at you, and smiled;
Bravely I said, "Good-bye"—
And when I let you go
You knew!

HOUSE BLESSED

Bless the four corners of this house
And be the lintel blessed;
And bless the hearth and bless the board,
And bless each place of rest.

And bless the door that opens wide
To stranger as to kin;
And bless each crystal window pane
That lets the starlight in

And bless the roof-tree overhead,
And every sturdy wall;
The peace of God, the peace of man,
The peace of love on all.

—A. G.

RAIN AT TWILIGHT

All day the rain has fallen steadily,
Like lines of silver etched upon the sky;
The pavements gleam like mirrors,—pools of light
Reflecting shadowy forms of passers-by.

The trees stand wraith like, veiled in scarves of mist;
Above the hills the leaden clouds lie low,
Yet in this twilight hour, between the clouds
One little rift reveals the slunset glow.—G. C.

HAPPY IS THE HEART

Happy is the heart that sings!
Thanking God for little things,
Finding courage where a hill
Lifts its everlasting will,
Saying, when the night is dark,
"Morning cometh and the lark!"

Happy is the heart that knows
Close communion with the rose,
Taking pleasure in the way
God has clothed a summer day,
Saying, when the clouds complain,
"There's a rainbow in the rain!"

President Still Insists on Supreme Court Bill, Which Raymond Moley Scores—Disturbing Developments in the Field of Organized Labor.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

VALIDATION of the social security act by the Supreme court was most pleasing to President Roosevelt, but he did not agree with the general opinion that this would put a stop to his program for enlargement of the highest tribunal. He more than intimated in a press conference that the fight for his court bill would be fought to a finish and that he was not satisfied with the apparently slender "liberal" majority in the court, since a number of important administration policies are still to be passed upon by the Supreme court. He cited four issues raised by the new wages and hours bill, namely, child labor, minimum wages, maximum hours, and the question whether goods produced under unfair practices can be regulated by the government. He also mentioned TVA, the problems of flood control on the Ohio watershed, the right of municipalities to borrow federal funds to construct electric light plants, and whether the government can condemn property for a housing program.

Raymond Moley

One of those who believe the President's court plan is doomed to defeat is Raymond Moley, former head of the "brain trust." Addressing the Illinois Bankers' convention in Chicago, Dr. Moley scathingly attacked the scheme. "The President," he said, "has spoken of the dangers of a government of men. Well, there is something worse than a government of men; it is a government by a man.

"Most law and all constitutional government down the ages are really halters and check-reins upon this unlovely tendency in rulers to lose their heads in the intoxication of power. . . .

"There are incidental factors that have contributed to the defeat of the President's proposal to violate in this way the spirit of the constitution. The change in the philosophy dominating the majority opinion of the court has helped. The scattering of the attorney general's insincere, insubstantial statistics by the chief justice is another. The retirement of Justice Van Devanter has helped, too.

"But behind all this has been a slow and powerful surge of public opinion. The people prefer the stability of constitutional institutions as against the unpredictable will of leaders, even very popular leaders."

FINAL passage of the $1,500,000,000 work relief bill by the house was delayed by rebellion against the practice of "writing blank checks" which give the President and Harry Hopkins power to spend relief funds as they deem fit. The opponents of this policy found in the revolt a chance to obtain a lot of "pork" by the earmarking of more than half a billion from the total appropriation for projects that would get votes. In a day of wild debate these major changes in the bill were voted:

$55,000,000 to be set aside for flood control and water conservation work.

$300,000,000 to be "earmarked" for PWA projects.

$150,000,000 to be spent on highway and grade crossing elimination projects.

Authority to use work-relief money for construction of power lines into rural sections for nonprofit and co-operative utility groups.

Unskilled and agricultural workers who refuse private jobs will be ineligible for work-relief as long as a private job is available.

CONTINUING its vigorous campaign to organize the steel industry, the C. I. O. called out on strike the employees of the independent companies that refused to sign contracts for collective bargaining. These companies were Inland Steel, Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube. More than 20 plants employing about 85,000 men were involved. Philip Murray, chairman of the organizing committee, said it was the purpose of the committee to conduct the strike peacefully. In the Chicago district police arrested a number of men for violating the rule against mass picketing and for other offenses, and there was some trouble in Buffalo.

Employees of the Sharon Steel corporation followed the example of those of the Jones & Laughlin concern and voted in favor of the S. W. O. C. by a large majority, so the C I. O. gets contracts from those companies.

Operations in the huge Pittsburgh plant of the H. J. Heinz company were interrupted by a strike of the Canning and Pickle Workers' union. The strikers demanded a 10 per cent wage increase and recognition of the union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, as sole bargaining agency.

FORD employees at the Rouge plant, Detroit, took matters into their own hands and severely pummeled a number of U. A. W. A. men who undertook to distribute at the plant gates handbills designed to offset the "Fordisms" card that had been given Henry's workers. Among the union men beaten up were Walter Reuther, R. T. Frankensteen, J. J. Kennedy and Robert Canter. Frankensteen telegraphed John Brophy, director of the Committee for Industrial Organization, at Washington, asking:

"Will the C. I. O. co-operate in simultaneous nationwide demonstration before Ford salesrooms to protest brutality at Ford's today and establish the right to organize?"

At the same time a strike of C. I. O. men closed the Ford assembly plant at Richmond, Calif., forcing 1,800 workers into idleness. The local union head there predicted strikes might spread rapidly from that beginning, possibly to all the Ford plants.

HEADS of unions affiliated with the A. F. of L., meeting in Cincinnati with President William Green and the executive council, went ahead with the plans to combat Lewis and the C. I. O. One of their first steps, it was indicated, is to be an invasion of Lewis' own union, the United Mine Workers of America, through the granting of a charter to its rival, the Progressive Miners' union in Illinois. Drives are expected in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania and the soft coal fields of Virginia, where there is considerable opposition to Lewis.

William Green

The United Garment Workers also declared war on the Amalgamated Clothing Workers whose chief is Sidney Hillman, first lieutenant of Lewis in the C. I. O.

In the Cincinnati conference John P. Frey, veteran president of the federation's metal trades department, accused the C. I. O. and the communist party of "sleeping in the same bed and under the same tent." Communists had obtained such a grip on the Lewis movement that C. I. O. leaders could not shake them off if they wanted to, Frey said. He contended the C. I. O. had sixty Communist organizers on its pay roll and that C. I. O. tactics were discussed in Moscow long before they were discussed in Lewis' office.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT in a special message asked congress to enact a new law for the benefit of workers in interstate industries, regulating the hours of work, the wages and the employment of children. Immediately after it was read, Chairman Hugo L. Black of the senate labor committee and Chairman William R. Connery of the house labor committee introduced identical bills designed to carry out the proposals of the President. The measure had been agreed upon in conferences at the White House and was promptly referred to committees with prospect of quick action. It had been approved by John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., but since laws setting minimum wages for men have always been opposed by leaders of the American Federation of Labor, it was considered probable that organization would not like the bill.

Senator Black

The twin bills originally had proposed a forty hour maximum week and a 40 cents an hour minimum wage. But, at the last moment, these limits were eliminated and spaces in the measures left blank for congress to fill.

STANLEY BALDWIN, prime minister of Great Britain, entertained the king and queen at dinner and then retired from his high office. He is succeeded as head of the government by Neville Chamberlain, who has been chancellor of the exchequer, and a few other changes in the cabinet were made.

If another war comes, the British empire will not be caught unprepared. The imperial conference in London turned its attention to this matter and a special committee was formed to organize all the empire's resources for an instant shift to war footing if that becomes necessary.

A subcommittee studied the problem of American competition with British shipping in the Pacific. British ship owners charge that the Americans are driving them out of business there because the latter are heavily subsidized.

SAN FRANCISCO put on a wonderfully brilliant festival to celebrate the opening of the Golden Gate bridge, the fulfillment of the city's dream of half a century. The battle fleet of the United States navy was there, and so were representatives of the states, of numerous cities and of many foreign nations. Automobile cavalcades from Oregon, Utah, Wyoming, Mexico and Canada, as well as from parts of California, joined in the great parade, with bands, floats and fiesta units. John Thomas, noted baritone, and a cast of 3,000 presented a pageant depicting the history of California and the West, and a week-long program of sports events was begun.

The Golden Gate bridge is a single deck suspension bridge, the longest single clear span in the world. It is 6,450 feet in length from end to end, and 4,200 feet center to center of piers. It crosses over San Francisco bay at a height of 250 feet and connects San Francisco by highway directly with the redwood empire of Northern California.

THE social security act, which President Roosevelt considers the soul of the New Deal, is constitutional, in the opinion of a majority of the Supreme court. The unemployment insurance provisions of the law were upheld by five of the justices, Van Devanter, Butler, McReynolds and Sutherland dissenting. The old age pension provisions were declared constitutional by all the justices except Sutherland and Van Devanter.

Justice Cardozo

Justice Cardozo wrote the two majority opinions, and, as it chanced, delivered them on his sixty-seventh birthday. Administration leaders declared they completely justified the President's broad interpretation of the general welfare clause of the Constitution and his policy of extending federal power, and it would seem that this is true.

In another 5 to 4 decision the court upheld the Alabama state unemployment insurance act, declaring the relief of unemployment a valid state function.

Yet another opinion was handed down by five of the justices, upholding Wisconsin's law prohibiting injunctions against peaceful picketing in labor disputes.

IN ORDER to determine the performance of co-operating farmers in the soil conservation program, the Agricultural Adjustment administration has employed thirteen aviation firms to make aerial maps of 377 agricultural counties in 22 states, the cost to be $753,909.

From a study of the photographs agricultural experts will be able to tell how much of his acreage each farmer retired from production and put into soil-building legumes. Their reports will be the final test of claims for farm subsidies under the new AAA. Department of Agriculture officials estimate there may be from 200,000 to 300,000 overpayments to farmers.

"I AM very tired," said John D. Rockefeller, Sr., to his secretary as he sat in the garden of his Florida winter home at Ormond Beach. Then he went to bed, soon fell into a coma, and a few hours later passed away, peacefully and painlessly. His wish to live to be one hundred years old was not fulfilled, but he would have been ninety-eight on July 8 next.

John D. Rockefeller, Sr.

Thus died the man who, starting with a $4.50 a week job, fought his way to the very top of the financial world, created the vast Standard Oil trust and built up one of the biggest private fortunes ever recorded.

Disturbed by ill health, John D. retired from active business in 1911. Some time before that he had switched from accumulating wealth to giving it away. The giving was done systematically, and representatives of the family interests estimate that his own benefactions between the years 1885 and 1934, both inclusive, totaled $530,853,632.

Mr. Rockefeller's body was taken from Ormond Beach to his estate at Pocantico Hills, Tarrytown, N. Y., and there the funeral rites were conducted by Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick of New York city. Next day the oil king was laid to rest in Lake View cemetery, Cleveland, beside his wife who died 22 years ago.

Only two of Mr. Rockefeller's children survive him. They are John D. Rockefeller, Jr., head of the business since the father retired, and Alta, wife of E. Parmalee Prentice. There are eight grandsons and five granddaughters.

SOVIET Russia is planning to establish regular airplane connection with the United States by way of the Arctic ocean, and in pursuance of the plan is building an air base on the ice within a few miles of the North pole. Four scientists have been landed there from a plane which first flew over the pole, and they will remain on the floe for a year, keeping in connection with the world by a powerful radio. They have named the floating ice field "Comrade Stalin's Land." The contemplated air route will be from Moscow to San Francisco.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL

By Carter Field

Washington.—J. P. Morgan and company and other great banking firms, which in the past have marketed huge amounts of foreign bonds to American investors, may never see the return of the "good old days." The business hasn't been so good for some years, now—not since the depression began, and defaulting by so many foreign governments developed. Also it has been handicapped sharply by the Hiram Johnson law, which prevents marketing in this country of bonds of any government that has defaulted on its debts to the United States government.

But—many bankers have thought all this would pass. It was just temporary. Some day something would be done about the war debts. There would be "settlements" or forgiveness, or both. Whereupon the business would go back to normal.

But for some time the securities and exchange commission has had a fishy eye on these prospects for another day of foreign bond selling, and an even fishier eye is being cast by many members of the house and senate.

The most recent gesture in this direction was made by Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, who introduced a bill which is receiving so much quiet support that it seems a practical certainty something like it will be passed, sooner or later. There is no hurry. Americans have not quite recovered from the burning they took on the defaulted foreign bonds. As a matter of fact, the average investor thinks that particular debacle was worse than it was, which attitude is most discouraging to would-be bond salesmen for foreign issues.

The Ellender bill would add a new section to the securities act making it unlawful to sell in the United States securities issued by a foreign government unless the net proceeds derived from such securities by the issuing government are equal to the par value of the securities, except that the securities commission may allow a service charge of not to exceed two per cent of the par value to be deducted from the proceeds to be received by the government selling the bonds.

Enormous Profits

"The purpose of the bill," Mr. Ellender explains, "is to reduce the spread between the price paid to foreign governments for their bonds and the price at which such bonds are offered to the public. A foreign bond for which the issuing government receives eighty-eight per cent of its face value may now be sold on the American market for ninety-nine. The investing public is led to believe that it is getting a bargain since the sale price is still below par. The underwriters receive enormous profits. It is believed that such a situation leads to an unwarranted amount of foreign financing in this country and encourages unhealthy practices in the conduct of such financing.

"Under the proposed bill the government would receive face value for its bonds, less the service charge allowed by the commission, which could not for this purpose exceed two per cent. Thus the profits of the underwriters could be excessive only if the bonds were offered to the public at a price above par. It is felt that this fact would tend to reduce the large price spread now possible and lead to more careful consideration of the value of such bonds by the investing public."

No allowance is permitted in the bill "for the assumption of risks or for the value of the trade name or good will of the persons rendering such service" — which seems rather unnecessary in view of the fact that the total "service charge" permitted is to be two per cent.

The bond salesman seems to qualify as the Vanishing American!

Irks Air Officials

The race between bigger and heavier airplanes and the larger, better, surfaced airports that the new planes require is bringing gray hairs to aviation officials. It seems a natural enough development, but it has plenty of complications. It is somewhat like the older story of the production of armor which will resist a shell from any existing gun, then a bigger gun that will pierce it, and then thicker and tougher armor—and then repeat!

Perhaps an apter comparison is whether to build bigger locks at the Panama canal, or build the big new ships according to freak specifications so they may still go through.

The difficulty in this race between airplanes and airports lies in the answer to the question: Who will finance the bigger airports?

American cities have already invested more than $400,000,000 in airports. They have about got to the end of their willingness to spend, it appears, and many are threatening to stop paying the bills.

Both airplanes and airports must be approved for interstate commerce by the bureau of air commerce. This body now approves some planes which could not, with its approval, land at many airports. So there is serious discussion of an idea to regulate for two or three years the size and design of certain classes of airplanes while the airports catch up to requirements.

Naturally this results in loud wails from the airplane manufacturers. Also from many operating companies. The proposed action, both say, would place them in a strait-jacket, arrest their development, hold America back while the rest of the world marches on to new efficiency in aviation.

So Fred Fagg, new director of the re-organized bureau of air commerce, discovers that his predecessor, Gene Vida, did not have such a bed of roses.

Airport Needs

Most airports need longer runways for heavy ships that fly faster and at flatter angles in the approach and takeoff. They need hard surfaces for increasing loads, especially as all weather schedules increase with better aids to flight. And equally costly is the purchase of additional land to clear obstacles around the edges of the fields, and to provide radio beam approach lanes.

The American Municipal association has taken up the cudgels in defense of the 200 odd cities which maintain established air route terminals, claiming the expense for the needed improvements is not justified, for the traffic is mostly interstate commerce.

The operators not only resent the proposed limitation on airplane design, but state emphatically that they will not pay for airport improvements. Their mail income has been cut, they point out, and their passenger rates have been forced down.

So Uncle Sam is to be called on to foot the bill, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to the contrary notwithstanding. Already two bills are in the hopper providing for just that.

Already about $75,000,000 has come out of the federal treasury as a contribution to the country's 2,700 airports, through C. W. A., F. E. R. A., W. P. A. and a little through P. W. A. But that is only a fraction of the investment by the individual cities, which the air bureau calculates at nearly half a billion dollars. Half a dozen cities have spent more than $5,000,000 each for their airports. Whereas much of the federal contribution, due to the fact that the chief goal was job making, was very inefficiently expended.

President Wins

If President Roosevelt wins on his idea of having congress grant the Chief Executive the right to cut fifteen per cent from any appropriation—instead of the ten per cent horizontal cut favored by many senators—his hold on congress through the remainder of this session and for the next year will not only be continued, but strengthened.

The point is that the President will then have the discretionary power to cut or pare appropriations which vitally affect every state and every congressional district in the United States—in short, to help or hurt every individual senator and representative in the one argument each likes most to make—that he "brings home the bacon" for his constituents.

This is vital in view of the probability that the President will suffer severe reverses in two of his important fights—for Supreme court enlargement and for government reorganization.

The tide of battle ebbs and flows on the court proposition, but it is almost a certainty as this is written that the President will not get the six additional justices he has asked for, and which he has repeatedly indicated he will insist upon. As it looks now he will be lucky to get two additional justices. It is just possible he will not get any.

This does not mean that his main objective will not be achieved, for there is practically no doubt that the majority of the high court will be "liberal" within a year. But it will be "liberalized" in part by retirements. It will not be liberalized by enlargement to as many as fifteen justices.

Would Mean Loss of Face

But the question of presidential prestige is something else again. If the President does not get six additional justices, it will mean a certain loss of face. It will be the first severe defeat he has taken since he was elected governor of New York in 1928. Critics may point to his defeat by the senate on the World court and on the St. Lawrence seaway, but neither of these was considered an important reversal for the President on Capitol Hill. Congressmen are perfectly aware of the special conditions applying to those fights. And they did not regard overriding his veto of the bonus bill as a sign of weakness at the White House. In fact, most of them think he could have changed that result if he had applied sufficient pressure.

On the theory that insurgency is like a snowball—tends to grow with advancement—it is rather important, therefore, for the President to have some increase in his ability to put pressure on congress should he suffer reverses in the Supreme court and the government re-organization battles. That is why it is so important to the White House to gain this discretionary power.

Poor Lo's Revival.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Despite the blessings of civilization which we have bestowed upon them, including diseases, whisky, soda pop, and $2 overalls, the American Indians are increasing.

This should give our red brothers cause for worry. Suppose they got so numerous that we gave this country back to them?

Irvin Cobb

Already we are indebted to these original inhabitants for quinine, cocaine, cotton, chocolate, tobacco, corn, beans, squashes pumpkins, grapefruit, huckleberries and hundreds of other remedial drugs or foodstuffs. Moreover, an eminent authority says the curative methods of the old medicine man had values which in many respects excelled what the white man has produced and suggests our scientists might well adopt certain aspects of the aborigine's plan.

What if we did that very thing and then, by the way of exchange, invited the tribesmen to take over such trifling problems as an unbalanced budget, our European debts, sit-down strikes and the younger generation?

Cleaning up the Stage.

HAVING lost their licenses, fourteen burlesque houses in New York won't ever get them back if the officials keep their word about it.

With this example to go by, authorities might next try the idea of cleaning up the legitimate stage there — the spawning-place and breeding ground of shows which filthy lines and filthier scenes are freely offered to pop-eyed audiences recruited from what we call our best families. Poisoning the moral atmosphere of the theater appears to be the favorite sport of a new school of dramatists who, when they were little boys, had their mouths washed out with soap for using dirty words, yet never got over the habit.

The Fate of Beauty Queens.

JUST as the weather gets warm so the contestants won't catch anything worse than sunburn, that outbreak of annual monotony known as the beauty contest will stir the populace to heights of the utmost indifference. There will be no dress rehearsals beforehand. With beauty contests, it's the other way around.

And then when Miss Cherokee Stripp or Miss Clear View has been hailed as America's prize package of loveliness, she will, if she runs true to form, put her clothes back on and catch the next train for California with the intention of starring in the movies.

On arrival, she will be pained to note that none of the studio heads is waiting at the station to sign her up; also that practically all the starring jobs are being held by young ladies who, in addition to good looks, have that desirable little thing called personality. And next fall she'll be dealing 'em off the arm in a Hollywood hashery.

International Slickers.

RUMORS persist that the United States, Great Britain and France are preparing for eventual agreements on monetary stabilization, tariff and trade adjustments, price-fixing of essential commodities—and, believe it or not, brethren and sistren—a settlement of the defaulted foreign debts owed to us.

Maybe it's significant—or, if you want to be broadminded and charitable about it, merely a coincidence—that every dispatch from European sources on this matter lists the debts last. And, verily I say unto you, that's exactly when and where they will come—last.

I seem to see the big three gathered at the council table for the final session and La Belle France moving that, everything else having been arranged to the satisfaction of the majority present and the hour being late, the detail of those debts be put over to some future date. John Bull seconds the motion. Motion carried by a vote of 2 to 1, Uncle Sam being feebly recorded in the negative.

A Sense of Humor.

DAMON RUNYON, who, being wise, should know better, reopens the issue of whether many people have a sense of humor. This provokes somebody to inquire what is humor, anyhow?

I stand by this definition: Humor is tragedy standing on its head with its pants torn.

Lots of folks think a sense of humor is predicated on the ability to laugh at other folks, which is wrong. A real sense of humor is based on our ability to laugh at ourselves. You have to say, not as Puck did, "What fools these mortals be," but, "What fools we mortals be."

That's why few women have a true sense of humor. Usually a woman, even a witty woman, takes herself so seriously, she can never regard herself unseriously.

CHAPTER I
—1—

With a nice sense of dramatic values, the heel of Brooke Reyburn's shoe turned sharply as she ran across the street. She went down on one knee just as the traffic light turned green. She had a confused sense of an automobile bearing down on her, the screech of brakes, of panting cars, of arms lifting her to the sidewalk.

"Hurt?" a voice demanded.

"I'm all right, really I am. It was my silly heel that threw me," she assured breathlessly, even as she moved her knee experimentally. It worked. It wasn't broken.

"Why wear such fool heels? If you're not hurt, why did you wince?"

The man's voice was husky; his eyes had a third-degree intentness which roused a little demon of opposition. Brooke retorted crisply:

"If you insist upon probing the secrets of my young life, I think I've skinned my knee."

She thought the man spoke as she merged in the stream of passers-by. She passed the building to which she had been hurrying to keep an appointment when she crossed the street. She wouldn't go in yet, she'd better wait till her still thumping heart quieted before she entered the offices of Stewart and Stewart, Attorneys at Law, she had too much pride to appear there breathless and shaken. That had been a narrow escape, not only for her, but for the man who had snatched her from the path of that speeding car, and—horrible thought—she hadn't even said "Thank you!"

If only she knew who he was she could write to him, but he might have been a stranger passing through the city whom she never would see again. In that case she would have to bear always this pricking sense of being ashamed of herself, it would bring her sitting straight up in bed when she thought of it at night.

She stopped at a flower shop. Its color and beauty were like a soothing hand on her smarting conscience. The air had but a hint of the crispness of early October.

Overhead a steeple clock chimed. The sound reminded Brooke of her engagement. She winced as she moved.

After a furtive look about, she examined her knee. Skinned. She had known it. Shreds of her silk stocking clung to the raw flesh. She winced as her lowered skirt scraped it. Her unknown rescuer need not fear that she would forget that lesson in a hurry, she thought as she entered the office of the junior partner of Stewart and Stewart.

Where was Mr. Jed Stewart?

There was an open book on his large flat desk. The title fairly jumped at her.

UNDERWOOD ON WILLS

Brooke's heart did a nose-dive. Did that particular book on that particular desk mean that Stewart and Stewart were preparing to contest the will in which she had been named residuary legatee?

Silly, she derided herself, wasn't the firm executor of the estate of Mary Amanda Dane? Hadn't Mr. Jed Stewart notified her that the will had been allowed, that she had acquired a fortune, hadn't he asked her to be at his office today at four? It was her late shake-up and this gloomy room which had started her imagination on the rampage. Where it wasn't knotty pine it was walled with books impressively, if mustily, bound in calf.

From outside came faint distant noises in the corridor; footsteps thudding, scuffing, springing past; the incessant clang of elevator doors. Inside, "Tick-tock! Tick-tock!" the wall clock marked time for the quick procession of the minutes.

And the minutes were marching along. Where was Mr. Stewart? Was it part of legal procedure to keep clients in suspense? The secretary in the outer office had shown her into this room, had said that she was expected, that the junior partner was in conference but would be at liberty in a few moments.

Restlessly she crossed to the window. She slipped behind one of the hangings to shut off the electric light in the room behind her. What a view! Roofs. Tiers of roofs alive with pigeons. Patches of bright blue broke up the pattern of gray clouds. Weather vanes pointed to the north. Innumerable wires etched gigantic cobwebs against the sky. Skylights shone like sheets of molten brass as they reflected the sun.

Her eyes lingered on the roofs. Beneath them business units were pitched together. Honesty and fraud; virtue and vice; ups and downs; efficiency and stupidity; ambition and lethargy; each unit moving in its own orbit and each thinking itself of supreme importance in the complicated pattern of the business world. She had been buffeting her way in it for five years.

"Miss Reyburn ought to be here, Mark, but I suppose like the majority of women she has no idea of the value of a man's time."

The annoyed comment in the room behind her snapped Brooke out of her reflections. How like a man to assume that she was at fault. She would make a dramatic entrance, and then—

"Glad she is late. I told you, Jed, that I didn't want to meet her. It was a beau geste for her to offer me half of the money, all of which should be mine by inheritance. I'll make my get-away before she comes. Let her move into Lookout House pronto. I'm the only person in the world with the right to contest Aunt Mary Amanda Dane's will, and, much as I would like to own the family heirlooms and add her part of the house to mine, I won't do that. I would have to prove 'undue influence' or 'unsound mind,' wouldn't I? How could I do that when under oath I would have to acknowledge that my aunt had said she would cut me out of her will? The fact that I didn't believe she would do it wouldn't cut any ice with the court. Nothing doing. I've had publicity enough over my domestic casualty to last the rest of my life."

"I Told You, Jed, That I Didn't Want to Meet Her."

Brooke's hand dropped from the hanging. That must be Mark Trent's deep voice tinged with anger. By "her" did he mean herself? So he thought her offer to share with him merely a beau geste. Should she have refused to take any of the legacy? This was hardly the tactful moment to make her entrance. He was going. As soon a the door closed, she would appear and explain to Mr. Stewart why she had been at the window; meantime she would be strictly honorable and not listen. She stuffed her fingers into her ears.

At the same moment on the other side of the hangings, Jed Stewart was saying:

"I never did understand why Lookout House was cut in two, Mark."

"It wasn't. Grandfather Trent had two houses built exactly alike, one for his daughter, Mary Amanda, and one for his son, my father; the Other House, the family called ours. Not satisfied with that, he had them set side by side on a rocky promontory—he intended them for summer homes only—with doors through the library downstairs and the hall on the second floor and connecting balconies; he was a glutton for balconies. Aunt Mary Amanda recently has lived there the year round. I inherited Father's house, but I haven't lived there since—well, for three years. It has been closed. I haven't rented it because I thought it might be unpleasant for my aunt to have strangers near when she was wheeled into the garden which serves for both places. Now, see what she does to me. She picks up this girl and later, while I'm starting a branch office in South America, leaves her her half of the real estate and all her money. Well, I'll be off. I have a date."

"Don't go, Mark. I asked Miss Reyburn to come here this afternoon to tell her what financial arrangements have been made for her, but principally to get you two face to face so that we could straighten out this mess about the personal property in the house."

"Mess! Do you call a sound, unbreakable will a mess? Aunt Mary Amanda Dane warned me that if I married Lola she would cut me off with the proverbial shilling; then, when my divorce became necessary, she was more opposed to it than she had been to the marriage. Can you beat that for inconsistency? I've always had a hunch that the French man and wife who have worked for and worked Mary Amanda for years might hypnotize her into leaving all her property to them—I warned her against them and somehow they found out and have hated me ever since—but I didn't think she would leave it to a comparative stranger. In my opinion, Clotilde and Henri Jacques are no better than a couple of bandits; they'll bear watching. I don't trust the Reyburn female either, her fine Italian hand crops up all through that will, but I don't like the idea of a girl living in the same house with them. However, she'd probably think I had an axe to grind if I warned her."

"Yellow journals and hectic fiction to the contrary, lawyers don't talk about the affairs of a client, even to their best friend, fella."

"Don't blow up like a pouter pigeon, Jed. Of course I didn't expect you to tell me; equally, of course, I wouldn't try to upset that will. My aunt's High Church convictions wouldn't permit her to approve of my separation from a wife who had been sordidly unfaithful. I thought she might soften toward me when Lola married the third time, but evidently not. If she wanted to bequeath her house, her money, and her jewels to a girl she had picked up via radio, okay. But why didn't she tell me about the Reyburn female? Why not ask me to meet her before I went to South America? That's what makes me suspicious. The secrecy of their friendship. Was the girl afraid that if I knew I would try to influence my aunt against her? If I was so dense, how do you suppose she got wise to Mary Amanda's fortune? I understand that she had supper and spent a night with her once a week, the night the companion-nurse had off. She must have had a strong motive to commute 20 miles after business hours. She's a fashion adviser in one of the big shops, isn't she?"

"Yep. Worked up from a model. Mary Amanda Dane tuned in on the radio one morning just as Brooke Reyburn was giving her fashion talk. She fell in love with her voice, and wrote to the girl asking what the well-dressed invalid tied to a wheel chair was wearing. Miss Reyburn answered with such sympathetic understanding that your aunt invited her to Lookout House."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

© Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for June 6

JOSEPH'S READINESS FOR SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 41:33-44.

GOLDEN TEXT—Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings. Proverbs 22:29.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Joseph's Errand.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Joseph Goes Before the King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ready to Serve.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Preparation for Public Service.

Public service—that position of opportunity and responsibility—merits far better treatment than is commonly accorded to it, for we know only too well how often it is nothing but a political football carried hither and yon as the dictates of partisan purposes may indicate.

Scripture holds a very exalted view of the public servant. Paul tells us to "be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God" (Rom. 13:1). The Bible clearly teaches that every governmental agency and every public servant from the policeman on the beat to the President in the White House, is only permitted to exercise authority over his fellowmen because God has ordained that there should be such government. Clear it is that every right-thinking official of state and nation should be humble, teachable, discreet, and wise in the exercise of his power, and God-fearing in the discharge of his responsibility.

Joseph, the one in the procession of the patriarchs of Genesis who passes before us in the lesson today is interesting from many angles His personal history is charmingly written and a model of appealing biography. He is a marvelous type of Christ, and one could devote hours to such a study of his life. But our lesson subject presents him as one ready for public service, and we may well profit by the lesson. He is an example of what men who serve their country should be.

I. Before God—Humble and Teachable (vv. 33-36).

The background of our lesson is found in the four preceding chapters. Joseph, the boy with dreams and aspirations, has learned obedience, humility, purity, and many other useful lessons in the hard school of experience. It has well been said that the tuition of that school is high, but the lessons are well learned.

Now he stands before the king to interpret a double dream, sent as a warning to the nation. The wise men who knew not the true God had vainly sought to answer the king's questions. Joseph sets them and us an example—he receives instructions and guidance from God, and speaks wise words because taught of him. Would that all those who stand as counsellors before kings and presidents in our day would listen for the voice of God before they speak.

II. Before Men—Spiritual, Discreet, and Wise (vv. 37-39).

Pharaoh recognized that the Spirit of God was in Joseph. That is a great testimony for Joseph, and at the same time it reflects credit upon the king. Who can say what would be the result if our government officials were chosen for their spirituality?

Spirituality is not the only qualification, however, for such service. The Christian who expects men to favor him because he is a Christian, even though he be careless and incompetent, finds no comfort in the study of Joseph. He was discreet and wise. The follower of Christ should distinguish himself by diligent and intelligent application of all his powers to his work. Then men will honor both him and his God.

III. In Service—Responsible and Powerful (vv. 40-44).

He who had humbled himself under the mighty hand of God was exalted in due time. (See I Peter 5:6.) Joseph was willing to abide God's time, and did not run ahead of him as did his father, Jacob.

The record shows that he used his place of honor and privilege to perform a difficult and arduous task and to do it well. Right-spirited men do not glory in position or power, but use the opportunity to give themselves in sacrificial service to God and their fellow-men. Someone has aptly said that a politician is one who has his eye on the next election while a statesman has his eye on the next generation and its welfare. God give us more statesmen!

Never Despair

Let no man despair of himself. We may be sepulchres full of dead powers; but Christ is the resurrection and the life, to make us shrines full of living, seeing, soaring, rejoicing thoughts and passions.—Dr. W. L. Watkinson.

Advantages of Tact

Without tact you can learn nothing. Tact teaches you when to be silent. Inquirers who are always inquiring never learn anything.—Disraeli.

Dressed for the Occasion

"HI THERE, Mrs. Astorbilt, where are you going in that lovely summer gown?"

"Not very far, Miss Junior Deb, just down to the store to buy material for a play suit like yours."

"Well, Ma-mah, if you must copy my style, you couldn't find a better model because these shorts really fit, and the whole thing is a tailored job."

A Stylist Speaks.

"May I as Susie Sew-Your-Own interrupt you two with the latest word from my class in dress design? You, Sis, are a pre-vue of Miss America in proper sports wear while Ma-mah is modern to the minute with her raised waistline and fulled bodice. I, in this morning frock, have what the book calls classic simplicity. Be that as it may, I couldn't get along without it, because it's so cool and comfortable."

Everybody's Happy.

"Thanks for the approval, Susie. Your clever dress would be a bright spot in anybody's kitchen, and now that you've got the swing of this sewing business there will be no stopping you. But even so, I must admit I'm a proud mother. You can go just as far as you like with this new hobby."

"Gee, Ma-mah, isn't it swell to be on such friendly terms with Fashion? I think good old Sew-Your-Own deserves most of the credit for arranging the introduction. Spring means so much more when one's clothes look the part."

"You're quite right, dear, but now let's run along. We have work to do."

The Patterns.

Pattern 1270 comes in sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust.) Size 16 requires 5⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1272 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 4⅜ yards of 39 inch material. 2½ yards of ribbon are required for the tie belt.

Pattern 1304 is for sizes 34 to 46. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 35 inch material plus ½ yard contrasting.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

The Chinese are much given to the pastime of kite flying and some of the constructions are marvelous to behold. The Chinese kites often have two strings and these enable the operator to make the kite do some wonderful things. It becomes an aerial messenger, as it is possible to make the kite form letters and characters by which messages may be exchanged.

GOOD RELIEF of constipation by a GOOD LAXATIVE

Many folks get such refreshing relief by taking Black-Draught for constipation that they prefer it to other laxatives and urge their friends to try it. Black-Draught is made of the leaves and roots of plants. It does not disturb digestion but stimulates the lower bowel so that constipation is relieved.

UNDER THE COURTHOUSE DOME

M. W. W.

The Chancery Division of the Circuit Court has been called to meet on June 25th in Columbiana, according to an announcement made by Judge W. W. Wallace.

County Court was held on Monday, Judge Len C. Walker, presiding.

Mr. Macey, popular State Examiner, who has found time despite his many official duties in the Courthouse to make numerous frineds in Columbiana, spent the week end in Montgomery, and on Tuesday, June 8th, when we saw the distinguished gentleman in the Courthouse, he was bsily engaged in receiving congratulations from his colleagues upon pass ing another birthday anniversary. We take a personal delight in wishing fo rthe thoughtful accountant many "happy returns."

Mr. and Mrs. Jones spent the week end in Huntsville, the guests of relatives and friends.

Harold Harlin, Cour tReporter, has returned from a visit with his father in Bowling Green, Kentucky.

"NOTHING DEFINITE" to report on the critical Road situation for Shelby County. Many letters from over the County urging "ACTION!" Among them is a request from WILTON to County Officials with a plea to take the citizens of this locality out of the "dust" and give them a paved highway. We pass on the communication to whoever may be concerned.

A shooting affray staged in the vicinity of the Southern Depot on last Sunday night ,resulted in seriously wounding Leonard Cotton, who was shot by Roosevelt Harris.

GRADUATE OF MONTEVALLO HIGH SCHOOL MAKES GOOD

Louis E. Lucas, who graduated from Montevallo High School, May 1936, was not financially able to enter college. Mr. Lucas enrolled in the Civilian Conservation Corps, serving ten months. This young ambitious boy made good in the C. C. C. Mr. Lucas has now accepted a Federal Government position doing Clerical work at Ft. McClellan, Alabama.

We are sure Mr. Lucas will continue to climb the ladder of success. He is now attending Business College in Anniston at night. Later he is planning to attend a Military Academy and get in the Reserve Corps.

COUNTIES GET MORE FOR ROAD DOLLARS

With convenient local materials proven suitable by tests made in the State Highway Department labora? tory for proper and satisfactory bases, it is now possible for a majority of the counties to place all-weather surfaces on new roads at a cost of only some $3,000 to $3,500 a mile more than gravel or sand clay surfaces, H. H. Houlk, State highway engineer, said.

It is one of the Highway Department's principal objectives ,he said, t odevelop the use of the local materials of proven worth, and the Highway Commission and department officials are greatly gratified that an increasing number of counties are employing competent supervision men in order to assure good roads properly located and constructed.

"In past years, comparatively few counties had road engineers," he said. "A number of counties have employed engineers formerly on the staff of this department and we do not stand in their way when they want to hire one of our men." Stressing the importance of exercising the greatest care in selection of the engineer or road superintendent, however "since mere technical ability and experience over a period of years is not enough," he added.

"The successful county engineer must have common sense, diplomacy and tact necessary to successfully engineer a county road system without antagonizing or surrendering to political powers. Unless a county secures the services of a capable, qualified engineer it is better that none be employed at all.'

JUDGES

In view of the fact that there has been much discussion recently about the ages of members of the United States Supreme Court, it might be of interest to know the ages of members of our own State Judiciary. Chief Justice Anderson of the Alabama Supreme Court is the oldest member of that body and will be 74 in August. Justice Thomas 70 in June. Justice Knight 69 in October. Justice Brown celebrated his 65th birthday May 18th. Justice Foster will reach his 65th birthday in October and Justice Gardner will be 61 in November.

Judge Samford is the oldest member of the Court of Appeals and will be 71 in August, Judge Bricken was 68 in March and Judge Rice was 51 in March.

Six of our Circuit Judges are more than seventy. Ben F. Elmore of the Seventeenth Circuit is the oldest and will be 76 in July, and W. L. Parks of the Twelfth Circuit will be 76 in August. Judge Leigh M. Clark of Birmingham, is the youngest Circuit Judge. He was 36 on May 16th.

PAYMENTS RESUMED FOR VACCINE GIVEN INDIGENTS

Montgomery—As a result of increass and better stabilizatoin of appropriations to the State Department of Health, it is possible for the State Health Department to resume payments to physicians for the administration of rabies vaccine to indigents, according to a letter issued by Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, to all county health offices and secretaries of county medical societies.

Ii is necessary to discontinue these payments about a year ago, when the special pasteur appropriation for the State Department of Health was reduced from $30,000 to $9,500. As before, the fee allowed for each complete treatment of 14 doses of rabies vaccine adminstered to indigent patients is five dollars.

Dr. Baker's letter points out that no fees can be remitted unless all regulations applying to such payments are complied with, including the complete filling out of the questionnaire wrapped around each treatment and the execution and return of affidavits sent by the State Department of Health.

It's success if you win but it's hard luck when you lose. And still there are those who say luck doesn't exist.

ANNUAL HOME COMING DAY AT PENTICOSTAL CHURCH

MERCHANTS MAKE GOOD WILL TOURS

The first of a series of Alabama Merchants good-will tours was made last Wednesday through Central Alabama. Each week a delegation of Birmingham's civic leaders takes a motor tour to the various cities of the State and extends personal invitations to the merchants and establishes an attendance committee in each city. The committee is headed by a leading merchant in each city and these organizations endeavor to make their merchant representation as large as possible at the convention in Birmingham, August 4th and 5th.

Convention committees and their chairmen in the cities visited Wednesday are: Calera, Chairman, C. D. Cowart, R. L. Holcomb and Lewis Baer; Columbiana, T. R. Walton, chairman, Carl E. Grouby and A. P. McGhee; Thorsby, Chairman S. W. Pate, M. E. Wright and Turner Gamble; Clanton, Chairman E. L. Mullins Dewey Rockett, E. E. Upchurch and V. J. Elmore; Montevallo, Chairman C. T. Acker, W. J. Bailey and Chas. G. Dobbins.

The host Birmingham merchants are exerting every effort to make the 1937 Alabama Merchants Convention the largest convention the largest convention of its kind in the country. An elaborate two-day program of entertainment is being arranged for the visiting merchants and every possbile accomodation being made. With greatly improved business conditions, Convention chairman Dr. W. W. Walker is looking forward to having the biggest merchants convention that has ever been held.

LEADERSHIP SCHOOL TO BE HELD HERE

A leadership School for Leaders and Presidents of Home Demonstraion Clubs will be held in the Home Economics Department of the Columbiana High School on June 15th from 9:30 to 1:20 o'clock. NEWS SUMMARY IS ABLY PREPARED

A world traveler who has spent years reporting important events both here and abroad, Edward W. Pickard brings readers th eexperience of a veteran newspaper man when he writes his "Weekly News Review" a regular feature of The Shelby County, Democrat.

Pickard, whose column is designed to interpret major developments in current events, has broadened himself for the task through travel and association with prominent people. An avid student of history, he is himself a historian, recording on the printed page a summary of the events that make news today.

EDWARD W. PICKARD
Famous Commentator Who Writes "Weekly News Review."

"History is always in the making,' he comments, "and the modern newspaper writer's task is to chronicle these events which are daily changing our very lives. It should also be the newspaper's task to interpret these happenings ,to present the clear picture of world events as they affect Mr. John Public."

Now in the "veteran' class so far as newsme nare concerned, Pickard has held many important assignments on metropolitan newspapers. He was at one time city editor of a large Chicago daily It is estimated that his "Weekly News Review," one of the Democrat's outstanding features, is the most widely-read syndicated article in the world.

DISEASE PUZZLES

SANTA ANA, Calif.—Physicians pondered today the strange disease which turned the skin of William L. Morrison, 49, black and caused his death.

An autopsy which Morrison authorized before his death disclosed what surgeons described as a "surprising amount of black substance" over the bones and organs, particularly the liver.

The brain also was coated by the dark substance, but not penetrated by it.

Physicians had diagnosed the disease as melanosis, resulting from a tumor on the liver. The autopsy failed to disclose the expected tumorous condition, they said.

One suggestion was the disease might have been caused by over-work and great fatigue. When abnormally cold weather gripped the citrus groves last Winter, Morrison worked continously for 50 hours around oil-burning heaters.

Windsor and Wallis Are Married, Anglican Church Outwitted—Tax Dodging by the Rich to Be Investigated—House Rebels Yield.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

EDWARD, duke of Windsor, and Mrs. Wallis Warfield, the American woman for love of whom he gave up his throne, were married in the Chateau de Cande, Monts, France, and are now spending their honeymoon at Wasserleonburg castle in lower Austria. Almost at the last moment the Church of England was outwitted by the action of an obscure provincial clergyman from the north of England, and the civil ceremony performed by the mayor of Monts was followed by a religious wedding conducted by that same minister, Rev. Robert Anderson Jardine, in flat defiance of the protests of the leaders of the church.

Duchess of Windsor

Sixteen principal guests were present in the chateau when Mayor Mercier, pronouncing the English names with difficulty, and speaking in French, performed the civil ceremony and pronounced the duke and Wallis man and wife. Vicar Jardine, who had volunteered his services, recited the solemn religious rites as prescribed by the church, the duke placed the ring on the duchess' fourth finger, and they knelt on white silk cushions while the minister prayed. Throughout the entire service the famous organist, Marcel Dupre, played softly. The duchess, who cannot be called "her royal highness," wore a gown of Wallis blue and the correspondents privileged to be present were agreed that she was a beautiful, gracious and serene woman. The Chateau de Cande, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bedaux of New York, was lavishly decorated with flowers. Wedding presents were numerous, of course, and some of the richest were sent by members of the British royal family.

Vicar Jardine was reproved by the church dignitaries for performing the religious ceremony, but the Bishop of Fulham, who has jurisdiction over Anglican church affairs in France, after sending a telegram of protest, admitted the vicar might not be disciplined. He insisted the only valid service Mr. Jardine could perform was benediction after the marriage. All Anglican church ministers on the continent had been warned not to marry the duke and Wallis.

ADMINISTRATION leaders, from the President down, "turned the heat" on the rebellious members of the house, and the latter sullenly gave in and passed the billion and a half dollar work relief bill about as Mr. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins wanted it. One after another the restrictive amendments earmarking $505,000,000 of the total for projects of a solid type, flood control and highways, which had been adopted in committee of the whole, were called up again and voted down by substantial majorities. The final vote by which the measure was sent on to the senate was 323 to 44.

The revolt collapsed after Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, outlined Mr. Roosevelt's position. He said the President had agreed to provide adequate funds from the relief bill for PWA projects, highways, grade crossing elimination, flood control and water conservation work.

Taunted by Minority Leader Bertrand Snell, Republican, New York, for the general character of his statement, Rayburn admitted he did not know the exact amount of money that the President would divert to the various projects, which have been described as "vote-getting" and "pork."

One of the "rebel" leaders, Joseph Starnes of Alabama, though voting for the bill, announced that congress would never again "relinquish its control of expenditures."

Still sore, especially at Harry Hopkins, the congressmen discussed the need for investigation of the relief administration, and a resolution calling for such action was introduced by Maury Maverick of Texas.

SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR HAROLD L. ICKES was taken to the Naval hospital in Washington to be treated for an intestinal disorder. Physicians said he probably would be absent from his office for several weeks, a protracted rest being imperative.

BY HUGE majorities in both senate and house congress overrode the President's veto of a bill to extend the war risk insurance act for another five years. It gives that additional time in which war veterans may exchange their government held term insurance policies for other forms of life insurance and affects about 23,000 men who have not converted their policies. Representative Rankin of Mississippi said these veterans were "too poor" to make the conversion at this time, and added: "The President apparently didn't consult with those familiar with veterans' affairs when he vetoed this bill."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT sent a message to congress asking for legislation creating seven regional power authorities patterned after the TVA. He proposed the country be divided into these regions:

The Atlantic seaboard.

The Great Lakes-Ohio valley.

The Tennessee and Cumberland river basins.

The Missouri and the Red River of the North basins.

The Arkansas, Red and Rio Grande river basins.

The basins of the Colorado and other rivers flowing into the Pacific south of the California-Oregon state line.

The Columbia river basin.

TAX dodging by wealthy men and women, excoriated by President Roosevelt in a special message, is going to be investigated speedily by a joint committee of congress. The resolution for the inquiry was introduced in the senate by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the finance committee; and in the house by Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina, chairman of the ways and means committee. The investigation is designed both to focus public attention on the extent of the alleged tax evasion and to provide congress with information necessary for the drafting of corrective legislation. Senator Harrison said:

Sen. Harrison

"I am sure that congress expects that, where the law has been violated, prompt action will be taken by the government against the malefactors."

He added that men and women referred to, not by name, in the President's message, would be given the opportunity to testify before the committee if their names were disclosed.

Accompanying Mr. Roosevelt's message was a long letter to him from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau in which were outlined eight devices which he said are being employed by a minority of rich individuals to evade taxes.

Legislation asked by the President would be an emergency measure. It is not to be confused with legislation to revise tax schedules, the President said.

"In regard to that subject," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "I have already suggested to the congress that at this session there should be no new taxes and no changes of rates."

GENERAL HAYASHI'S semimilitary government of Japan was forced to resign by the major political parties, and Emperor Hirohito summoned Prince Fumimaro Konoe, president of the house of peers, to form a new cabinet. This the prince proceeded to do, and he was meeting with almost complete success in finding men who would accept office. Temporarily he had trouble in getting a finance minister. The new government includes representatives of the big Seiyukai and Minseito parties and is considered, therefore, a national coalition cabinet. Presumably it is committed to a large army and navy, a strong foreign policy and drastic administrative reforms.

Prince Konoe

Prince Konoe said he would strive to end the rivalries among the various forces in the empire, meaning especially the disputes between the army and the political parties. The army will support him, but its domination over Japanese policies is practically ended with the retirement of Hayashi who was accused of trying to set up a Fascist regime.

BEFORE adjourning to October the Supreme court overruled a government request that it refuse to review litigation challenging the constitutionality of federal financing of municipal power plants. By consenting to pass on the controversy, the court deferred a final verdict in the case until next fall, after arguments are heard.

The Department of Justice contended this would postpone the employment of many thousands of men. Officials of the Public Works administration declared the court's action means that "at least another six months" will elapse before questions affecting the release of $51,000,000 for fifty-four public power projects are settled.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL

FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington.—Detroit and Los Angeles merchants are burned up because their citizens buy so much in Canada and Mexico, bringing their purchases in duty free under the $100 exemption. So they are trying to get congress to amend the law. They have no objection to the $100 limit being applied to returning European tourists, or for once a year tourists who take their vacations in Canada or Mexico or Cuba.

But the man who runs across the international line from some nearby American city every little while, chiefly for the purpose of getting tariff-free bargains, that's the fellow—and his wife—they are after.

Detroit merchants estimate that citizens of that city buy about $5,000,000 worth of merchandise a year in Canada under this $100 exemption clause. The city's board of commerce has representatives in Washington working to stop this "leak." They are getting co-operation not only from Los Angeles but from Seattle, El Paso, Buffalo and Erie.

The American Retail Federation and other retail groups are co-operating. Some of the estimates for the total amount of Canadian and Mexican goods brought in legally without payment of duty under this $100 exemption runs as high as $50,000,000 a year.

They say it is not only the money—they always do say that. But when Mrs. Smith Jones meets Mrs. Brown Robinson after such a foray to duty-free stores across the line she boasts about it. This not only encourages the second lady, and her sisters and neighbors to go and do likewise, but it builds up the sneaking impression that the American storekeepers are a lot of gyps, and that it is positively a civic duty to thwart them in their attempted robbery.

The Old Come-On

Then, too, the storekeepers know perfectly well that the person who goes shopping to get a bargain generally buys something else. That is the whole underlying basis for the "loss leader" device so frowned upon by the federal trade commission. The store advertising some particular bargain knows that if it can get people into its doors by selling something the customers know is very cheap, the probability is that one in every two will buy something else—something on which the storekeeper makes a real profit.

So this mouth to mouth propaganda that bargains are to be had over in Windsor, when the Detroit folks are talking, or down in Agua Caliente, if the Los Angeles and San Diego wives are talking about their shopping, is insidious.

Some of these tariff dodgers really buy only for their own use, but many of them resell, and make the trip as often as the law allows—once every thirty days. Canada offers tempting furs and duty-free British wool cloth and garments. Mexico has fine Indian art objects. Both admit varieties of foreign goods almost duty free because they do not happen to compete with local industries.

According to the Los Angeles merchants, the movie stars are the worst offenders. They like to run over to Mexico anyhow, for one reason or another. They resent federal taxes in a really big way and get a thrill out of cheating Uncle Sam legally, which may not bother the Treasury much but it is certainly a pain in the cash drawer for the Los Angeles department stores and specialty shops.

Incidentally, Los Angeles thinks the proposed amendment futile. It would permit the $100 exemption only if the tourist had been out of the country at least forty-eight hours.

"That's just a nice week-end," say the southern California dealers. They want the period made much longer.

Not an Accident

It was not just an accident that several newspapers had prominently displayed stories the day after the announcement of Justice Willis Van Devanter's resignation that the probable appointee in his place would be Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader of the senate for these many years.

The story was deliberately fed out by several senators who are strongly opposed to President Roosevelt's Supreme court enlargement plan. It was intended to embarrass the President in his fight, and to make absurd the contention that the court needed "young" men.

Being as the Arkansas senator is sixty-five, and is known to be a conservative at heart, the idea of his appointment was calculated to open the way to columnists and editorial writers all over the country to point to the absurdity of the situation.

But it was more than that. The story was put out by senators who not only are opposed to the President on the court battle, but who would not object to seeing him embarrassed aside from that. Indeed it is not too much to say that some of them, most active in pushing the idea that the President would certainly appoint Robinson, and getting it in print, were opposed to the court plan more because they were against Roosevelt than for any intrinsic merit in this particular battle.

Now the point is of course that Robinson has cherished the ambition to sit on the Supreme court bench for nearly twenty years. There is not a member of the senate who does not know about it, not because he talks about it all the time, but because in such a long period of time such an ambition would naturally reach the ear of every member of the upper house.

Robinson Popular

Now Robinson is a very popular man among his colleagues, all magazine articles and general reports to the contrary notwithstanding. Not that he has been particularly misrepresented in either magazine articles or gossip. He is hot tempered. He would do almost anything for the sake of the Democratic party. He would sacrifice almost any conviction if it seemed to interfere with the chances of success of his party, and he goes to what some think are extremes in loyalty to whoever is the party leader at the time, whether it be Woodrow Wilson insisting on ratification of the League of Nations treaty without the dotting of an "i" or the crossing of a "t," or whether it be Franklin D. Roosevelt insisting on six "young" justices for the Supreme court.

But his colleagues understand that. They are politicians too. They know what the Democratic party means to a man of Robinson's age, who was raised in the South, and who has seen local federal officeholders appointed by an opposition President during all his adult life. So they do not let the things that seem to offend some outsiders trouble them at all in appraising Joe. Outside of these points, which do not bother or even mystify them, they think Joe a grand person. He is an old friend of most of them, a co-worker, a pal, a hunting companion, a golfing opponent—yes, even a drinking companion.

So if the President throws him down, after all this build-up which has been fed to the newspapers by the President's enemies, the least that can be said is that it will not do the President any good.

Much Like Revolt

President Roosevelt is confronted with the most difficult situation he has yet encountered. It has all the earmarks of a revolt. It may peter out utterly, in fact, the reasonable probability would seem to be that it will. And it may turn into the sort of mess that will continue to plague the President as long as he remains in the White House.

Senators and representatives are insurging in every possible degree, and on every possible issue.

It began with the government reorganization proposal. This was something to give every member of the senate and house pause.

There was not a vote in either house which was not slightly or importantly influenced by personal friends and lieutenants scattered through the government departments and bureaus—any or all of whom might be put at the mercy of the White House in the course of the re-organization.

The insurgence became positively eruptive after the President asked congress to surrender its control over appropriations by permitting him to cut any one of them fifteen per cent in his discretion. This followed the proposal to enlarge the Supreme court, which has received plenty of public attention, and does not need any diagraming.

So there is bad feeling, among members of his own party, toward the President all over Capitol Hill.

Pass Up Big Guns

It is notorious how such senators as David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Royal S. Copeland of New York, Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, and Vic Donahey of Ohio have been bypassed on many appointments on which senators would normally be consulted.

Two preliminary moves figured as weather vanes to indicate how things were shaping. A house committee voted five to four to cut relief expenditures from a billion and a half to a billion flat. This challenged not only the President's views as to what should be appropriated for relief but his own economy plan—to cut fifteen per cent from such appropriations as he might choose.

More important, because more votes were involved, was the action of the house in voting 384 to 7, on a roll call, to extend the CCC camps for only two years instead of making them permanent, as the President wished. Unimportant except as showing the temper of house members, they voted also to cut the salary of the CCC director from $12,000 to $10,000.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.

If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable.

You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.

Thousands of sufferers have found in Adlerika the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adlerika rids you of gas and cleans foul poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika. Get rid of GAS. Adlerika does not gripe—is not habit forming. At all Leading Druggists.

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, a nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure on the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in," hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her.

"It's a fairy story brought up to date. Only, for the spell of a witch, substitute the broadcast of a girl's voice. The little schemer got not only the money but Mary Amanda's jewels, many of which were my grandmother's."

Brooke dropped her hands from her ears after what seemed hours. Still talking? Perhaps Jed Stewart was talking to the office boy. She heard him say:

"Your aunt said in her will, remember, that if she left the jewels to you, you might—well, that Miss Reyburn would appreciate them. She relented toward you to the extent of naming you legatee should the girl die without children; she was canny enough to prevent her fortune from falling into the hands of her family. You wouldn't think Brooke Reyburn a schemer if you saw her; you'd know that she had a background of cultivated living. She has a vivid face with a deep dimple at one corner of her lovely mouth; her voice is sweet, spiced with daring. She came out of college to carry her whole darn family when her father died—he was one of the tragic twenty-niners whose investments were wiped out—now, I suppose, her brother, who is acting in a stock company, and her sister will chuck their jobs and settle down on her. Her hair is like copper with the sun on it; her eyes change from brown to amber, and when she smiles at me I feel as cocky as a drum major at the head of a regiment."

"Help! You're raving, Jed. Perhaps you're thinking of marrying her?"

"Marry her yourself, Mark, and keep the fortune in the family."

"I! Marry that girl who hypnotized an old woman into leaving her a fortune! You're crazy. Besides, I am married."

"You haven't caught your aunt's ideas on divorce, have you? You don't feel tied to that woman who ran away with that French count, do you? You divorced her, didn't you? You—"

"Hold everything! We were talking of the Reyburn girl. You have nerve to make the suggestion that I marry her. Men have been put on the spot for less. I wouldn't marry that schemer if—"

Brooke flung back the hanging in a passion of rage.

"Nobody asked you to!" She cleared her voice of hoarseness, and flamed:

"Has it never occurred to you, Mark Trent—" She stopped, her eyes wide with amazement. Was this really the man who had pulled her from in front of that speeding car? After the first flash there was no recognition in his eyes, nor any concern, rather a quiet mockery, which, she felt, at the first word of hers would turn into active dislike.

"You! You—" Her breath caught in a laugh that was half sob. "What a mean break for you that you didn't know who I was, that you didn't let that car hit me! Then you would have had the money."

She had never seen a face so colorless as Mark Trent's as his eyes met hers steadily.

"Lucky I didn't know who you were, wasn't it? I might have been tempted. Schemers somehow lead charmed lives."

For a split second Brooke thought that fury had paralyzed her tongue. She made two attempts to speak before she protested angrily:

"I'm not a schemer! I suppose it never has occurred to you that the 'Reyburn girl' may have loved Mary Amanda Dane? May have been glad to spend one evening a week in a homey old house away from her whole 'darn family' in a crowded city apartment?"

Failure of breath alone stopped Brooke's tirade. There was plenty more she could say, she was apt to be good when she started. A laugh twitched at her lips. The two men facing her couldn't have looked more stunned when she made her theatrical entrance had a hold-up man with leveled gun suddenly stepped from behind the hanging. So this was Mark Trent. She had been careful never to go to Lookout House when he was there, for fear that he might think she had planned to meet him. She had not realized that he would be so bronzed nor so tall, that his dark eyes were so uncompromising, nor that the set of his mouth and chin could be so indomitable. There was a fiery strong quality of life in him which sent prickles of excitement like red-hot slivers shooting through her veins. She knew now that she should have appeared from behind that hanging at Jed Stewart's first word.

Stewart's always ruddy face was the color of a fully grown beet. He coughed apologetically.

"Sorry, Miss Reyburn. Didn't know you'd come. I'll slit the throat of that secretary of mine for not telling me. So you two have met before? That's a coincidence."

"No coincidence about it, Jed. Apparently we were both on the way to this office to keep an appointment with you, when we 'met' in the street almost in front of this building."

Brooke's anger flared again at Mark Trent's cool explanation. She met the terrier brightness of Jed Stewart's gray-green eyes. She had liked him when she had come to his office in response to the court's amazing notification that she was residuary legatee under the will of Mary Amanda Dane. The black and white check of his suit accentuated the rotundity of his body. He puffed out his lips as he regarded her with boyish entreaty. She laughed.

"The present uncomfortable situation only goes to prove, doesn't it, Mr. Stewart, that listeners never hear any good of themselves? Though really I wasn't listening. I stepped behind the hanging to look at the marvelous view, and then—"

"You heard Jed say that your hair was like copper with the sun on it, and—"

"I stuffed my fingers in my ears for a while, but I heard a lot more, a whole lot more," Brooke cut in on Mark Trent's sarcastic reminder, "before I heard you refuse to marry me."

"But that was before I had seen you." The suavity of his voice brought hot tears of fury to her eyes. Before she could rally a caustic retort, he picked up his hat.

"That's a bully exit line. I'll be seeing you, Jed. Hope you'll enjoy the house and the fortune, Miss Reyburn. Happy landings!" He laughed. "I'd better say, 'Safe landings!' You're such a reckless person."

"Hi! Fella!"

With an impatient jerk, Mark Trent shook off the hand on his sleeve, rammed his soft hat over one eye, and closed the door smartly behind him. Stewart relieved his feelings in an explosive sigh and pulled forward a chair.

"That seems to be that. Sit down, Miss Reyburn, while I tell you about the allowance which will be made you while Mrs. Dane's estate is being settled."

CHAPTER II

From the lighted stage Brooke Reyburn looked into the auditorium of the department store in which she had worked for four years. She had begun by modeling sports clothes, and because she had loved her work and had given it all the enthusiasm and drive there was in her she had been promoted steadily. The first of this last year she had been made head fashion adviser and had been set to Paris. She had made frequent trips to New York, but never before had she been abroad. Now she was talking for the last time to a hall full of women, many of whom she had come to know by sight. She had given her last radio talk. It was the end of her business career.

As she stepped from the stage, Mme. Celeste, the autocratic head of the store's department of clothes for women, stopped her. A hint of emotion warmed the hard blue of her eyes as she caught Brooke's hands.

"Cherie," her French was slightly denatured by a down-east twang, "I shall lose my right hand when you go. Why did that meddlesome old party want to butt in and leave you money? You were on the way to making it here."

"I shall miss you, Mme. Celeste." Brooke's voice was none too steady.

"Perhaps you won't have to long. In this here-today-and-gone-tomorrow age, money doesn't stay in one pocket. Remember, cherie, whenever you want a job, come to me. You'll be needing one. Au revoir!"

"Cheering thought that I may lose the fortune," Brooke reflected, as she approached her office across the hall. Suddenly the black letters:

MISS REYBURN

on the ground-glass panel of the door jiggled fantastically.

She blinked moisture from her lashes—she hadn't supposed she would feel choky about leaving. She opened the door, closed it quickly behind her, and backed against it as a man slid to his feet from the corner of her desk. His black hair shone like the coat of a sleek well-brushed pony; his dark eyes were quizzically amused as they met hers; his teeth were beautifully white; he was correctly turned out in spic and span business clothes. He was likable, but there was something missing—rather curious that never before had she felt it.

"How's tricks?" he inquired gaily.

"How did you get in here, Jerry Field?"

"Easy as rolling off a log. A taxi, an elevator, a few strides on shanks mare, and here I am."

"I've told you time and again not to come to my office."

"While you were on the job, you said, sweet thing. I've stayed away and all the time the old wolf jealousy gnawed at my heart. I've imagined you here entertaining the male heads of departments and letting them, or stopping them, make love to you."

"You've been seeing too many movies. How you dramatize life. You have been miscast. Instead of being born a rich man's son and spending your days dabbling in paint and the stock market, you should be on the stage. With your flair for good theater, you'd be packing them in. Perhaps Sam can get you a chance in his company. Have you seen the play in which he is acting?" she asked with a quick change from lightness to gravity.

"Yes. Your brother's good."

"But you don't like the play?"

"I can't hand it much."

"Neither can I. It's a dummy with not a breath of life, not a drop of red blood, just clever epigrams and stuffed-shirt characters. I wish Sam hadn't been cast in it."

"Don't worry. It won't last long. What's the next play on the stock list?"

"'The Tempest.' The apartment rings with, 'Bestir! Bestir! Heigh my hearts! Cheerily, cheerily my hearts!'"

"You're not bad yourself, Brooke. Why didn't you take to acting?"

"I ought to be good. We children were raised on dramatics and quotations. It was Father's habit to orate when he was shaving, and we could spout Shakespeare before we could spell. Besides being a publisher, he was a playwright for amateurs, but Sam is ambitious to write for the professional stage; he has one three-act comedy finished, that is, as finished as a play can be until it is put into rehearsal. That is why he is acting, that he may know all there is to know of stage technic. I've had theater enough in my late job. Late! I can't believe that I'm through. Come on, Jerry, before I sob on the shoulder of that display figure. I asked the girls not to come to say good-by as if I were going away forever. They gave me a grand farewell party last night, and I have perfume, hosiery, and bags enough to last the rest of my natural life. Go ahead. I want to snap out the light myself."

As she stopped on the threshold, Jerry Field caught her arm.

"Hey, no looking back. Remember what happened to Lot's wife. I'd make a hit, wouldn't I, tugging a pillar of salt round the dance floor." He shut the door smartly behind them.

Brooke blinked and swallowed. "Okay, Jerry, from now on I go straight ahead like an army with banners, but straight ahead doesn't mean teaing and dancing with you tonight."

When they reached the already darkening street, Jerry Field demanded:

"Won't you go stepping with me now?"

"No, thanks. I am going home to plan with the family about moving, and to plot the curve of our domestic future."

"Look here, Brooke, don't persist in that silly idea of living in the house Mrs. Dane left you. It's all right for spring and summer, but what will you do marooned on a rocky point of land almost entirely surrounded by water when the days get short, in a place where the residents dig in and nothing ever happens? If you were here in the city," he urged, "I could pick you up in a minute and we could go places. To date you've handed out the excuse that you were too busy. People are planning to winter there, are they? That's an idea. You won't lose the fortune if you don't live in the old place, will you? It wasn't a condition?"

They were walking toward the crimson and jade sunset against which a huge electric clock seemed colorless.

"No. Mrs. Dane merely left a note with her lawyer, in which she wrote that she wished I would live there for two years, or at least until I had cleared the house of her belongings, that she knew that I would not laugh at her treasures, that I would understand, and that I would care for her parrot, Mr. Micawber. That parrot leaves me cold, Jerry. So you see, I must live in the house for a while—now that the lordly Mark Trent has given permission. I—"

"What has Mark Trent to say about it?"

Brooke looked up in surprise as they waited for the traffic light at the corner to change to red and yellow.

"Don't bite. Do you know him, Jerry?"

"Sure, I know him," he replied shortly.

Bedouins Hospitable

Besides being one of the picturesque nomads of the desert, the Bedouin is "most hospitable," says a writer. A Bedouin host thinks it humiliating to ask his guest his name, his destination, or the time of his departure. It is a recognized law of the desert that if a stranger appears at your tent and your sheep are grazing far away, you are entitled, in order to follow the ancient law of hospitality, to steal a neighbor's sheep and to slay it in honor of your guest. This is a sort of borrowing and not literally stealing as the law is observed by all neighbors. Hospitality is not limited to food and drink, but includes affording the guest protection should his life be threatened. If a guest's belongings are stolen, the host will make every effort to have them restored.

Advertising Speaks for Industry

WE ARE all members of a privileged class today. We don't have to wait months for news, travelling by word of mouth, to reach us. If a manufacturer in a distant city produces a labor saving device, or an application to conceal birthmarks, these boons are brought to our attention at once through advertising. Advertising is the great voice of industry which we are all privileged to hear.

Wings Are Handy Things

A bird's wings are not just for flapping and flying. Among uses some birds find for their wings, J. W. Sugden, University of Utah, cites these: balancing, display or drumming in courtship, to shelter young, as a striking weapon, for aid in climbing, to stir up fish, and to support the body in place of the feet as a substitute for perching.—Science Service.

Young-Looking Skin at 35—Now a Reality For Women!

THOUSANDS of women now keep the allure of youthful, dewy-fresh skin at 30—35—40 and even after! Now a modern skin creme acts to free the skin of the "age-film" of semi-visible darkening particles ordinary cremes cannot remove. Often only 5 nights enough to bring out divine new freshness—youthful rose-petal clearness; and to eliminate ugly surface pimples, blackheads, freckles. Ask for Golden Peacock Bleach Creme today at any drug or department store . . . or send 50c to Golden Peacock Inc., Dept. H-315, Paris, Tenn.

VILLAGE CHATTER FROM SILURIA

What is so rare as a day in June? Then, if ever, come perfect days. Then heaven trys earth if it be in tune

And over it softly her warm lar lays.

—Boy. Oh, Boy! We'll sho' have to hand it to James Russel Loivell that he knew his onions when it came to expressing June weather. Of course, we need a shower spliced in ever and anon for good measure and believe you us, we have a sure fire method of producing a good old sluicy down pour. Here 'tis—let Nelle and Margaret go to town on a shopping spree. . . . "As much alike as three peas in a pod"—that's "perzactly" what popped into our minds when we beheld the three Hatfield brothers, namely, Clarence, Alonzo and Reese. walking briskly down trough hickory nut hollow . . . . We have tried in vain to imagine the feeling of relief that must have come to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stone upon learning that the telegram from the hospita informing them of the death of their baby daughter was all a mistake and that this tiny mite was as snug as a bug in a rug at that very minute in her crib. Gee! that must have been a great feeling . . . . Caryle Weller is among us with that smiling countenance and that hey-how-are-you? air. Not knowing we couldn't say whether he's here for keeps or not. Hope so anyway . . . We're crazy about those dinky little horns on Elvin Moor's and Lloyd Thorp's cars—"Sam Jones"—(you sing it). All done and said boys boys ,but no harm meant. . . . We sincerely regret that we were not at home Saturday when Mrs. L. C. Walker called on us. We hereby gratefully acknowledge the compliments she passed on our humble efforts at journalism. Call again, Lady Walker, we'll try our dead level best to be at home. . . . Clovis Guy calls his girls dandruff—they're always falling on his shoulders. . . Mrs. Basil Lowery is at home from the hospital and doing nicely. We will all be glad when you can get out and around again, Nona. . . . A certain young man around town says a girls face is easier made up than her mind. What about that girls—are we going to stand for it? Naw, let's sit for it hear. . . . We think Woodrow Davis is one of the nicest and most considerate boys we've ever known. He is always at the right place at the right time, furthermore, he knows exactly what to do and say in case of accidents. And it that's not saying a mouthful, we ain't here. . . . . What about that good looking new car Dr. Hinds is driving around nowadays? Boy! its a humdinger. We always did like green, no matter what color it was. And we couldn't miss this chance to make mention of that new vehicle Fred Philips is gliding about in. Really it's something stick . . . . This old town really wakes up along about nine o'clock on Saturday nights when the National Barn Dance and the Grand Old Opera gets to coming in on our local radios. . . . . "Ye Gods and little fishes"—the little fishes were really catching it Friday afternoon when Eason Henderson and two of his cronies were down on the creek bank dragging them out by the hook-full. Go easy boys, let's don't lose seed of them while we're chattering away, let us try to say how profoundly thankful we are to have a new bub in ourl street light. . . . There seems to be some confusion as to the pronounciation of our names as signed. Could we please make it clear? Both names are pronounced as though they were spelled Nell. Some think that Nelle is pronounced as Nellie but that's a mistake. Thank you . . . . No doubt the Imperial Apartments feel sorta lonesome what with two of its most charming young married couples having moved out. Yeah, Mary and George are now residing with George's sister, Lily, up on Main Street, and Doris and A. B are boarding with Mr. and Mrs. Willie C. Tucker. . . . How man yof you ever sit out at night and listen to the plaintive cry of the whip-poor-wills? Try it sometime—only you better not if you're lonesome . . . . An ideal married ocuple, to our way of thinking, are Mr. and Mrs. Berry Cofer. We felt sorta left out Saturday night when we saw them strolling along like sweethearts . . . Mr. and Mrs. A C. Brooks, of Kentucky are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Fallon here. Mrs. Brooks will be remembered as Clara Fallon. . . Flivvers come and flivvers go, models big and little, but Mary still wants half the road and she wants that in the middle." We bet that's just the way our ice man feels about that female driver who all but crowded him off the road in front of Booker's one morning last week. . . . Bridles and saddles hang over the shelf, if you want any more you can write it yourself. Contact—take off — here we go with the assurance that we remain,

Everybody's pals,
Nell and Nelle.

WHEN TO SIDE DRESS COTTON AND CORN

Cotton fertilized with 6-8-4 should not be side dressed as this grade of fertilizer contains sufficient nitrogen.

Cotton fertilized with grades other than 6-8-4 should be side dressed to bring the nitrogen up ot the equivalent of that in a 6-8-4.

For example, cotton fertilized with 600 pounds of 6-8-4 should be side dressed with 75 pounds of nitrate. That is, 12½ pounds of nitrate is used as a side dressing for each 100 pounds of 6-8-4.

If the cotton was fertilized with 600 pounds per acre of either 3-10-3 or 3-8-5, side dress with 112 pounds of nitrate is used as a side dressing for each 100 pounds of 3-10-3 or 3-8-5.

When should side dressing be applied to cotton? Wheather side dressing is being done to build the nitrogen in 3-8-5, 3-10-3, or 4-8-4 up to the equivalent of that in a 6-8-4 or where home-mixed fertilizer is being used, the side dressing of nitrate should be applied at "dirting" or first cultivation after chopping for the best results.

CORN

When should corn be side dressed? Side dress corn with 32 pounds of nitrogen per acre (225 pounds of nitrate of sodaor its equivalent) 30 to 40 days after planting. Corn following a good crop of winter legumes needs no fertilization.

In tests conducted by the Alabama Experiment Station, cron yields were increased at a cost of approximately 20c per bushel for nitrate. Increase you rcorn yield by side dressing.

Lobster Traps

Lobster traps are usually 3 or 4 feet long and capable of containing a number of lobsters. They are set in water ranging from 5 to 30 fathoms or even more, and are visited every two or three days, if the weather permits. From the traps the lobsters are taken to floating cages, called cars, where they are kept until enough are gathered to warrant a shipment.

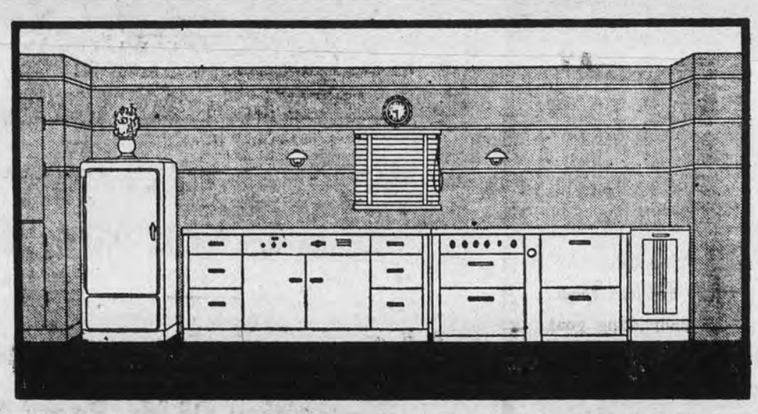
"Bankers Are Cold Blooded"



Everybody loves the "jolly good fellow"—the chap with the cheery smile, the cordial handshake and the open purse which succors friends and acquaintances whenever they are "in need of funds."

But nobody loves the banker who has the same qualities—or at least not for long—for it would be impossible for any banker to remain long in the banking business who dealt out the funds of his bank's depositors with a free and lavish hand.

Bankers may seem "cold-blooded" when they reject loans to those who cannot meet the bank's loan requirements. It is no pleasure for the banker to turn down a loan to some one who is urgently in need. All too frequently a banker wishes it were possible to make loans on the basis of the borrower's requirements instead of on the basis of sound banking. But bankers must be ever mindful of the fact that the money they are lending is not theirs to give away. They canot take the long chance. They cannot play the role of the "good fellow" with their depositor's money. They cannot enthusiastically accept the applicant's appraisal of his own proposal. They must investigate . . . weight . . . an lyze their loan applications from an objective viewpoint.

So when you criticize your banker for being "cold-blooded," stop and consider what would be the plight of your bank and its depositors if your banker were a good-fellow type, who yielded to the dictates of his heart instead of to the guidance of good judgement.

CAN YOU TELL WHICH IS THE WATER HEATER?

TALKING about placing a water heater in a kitchen suggests that you are "uglifying" instead of "beautifying." But look at the above illustration! Nothing ugly about that kitchen. And yet the water heater is there—next to the range. Many women prefer to have the new square, flat-top type of electric water heater because built table-high, it gives that much more working surface. (Oh, no, the electric water heater doesn't heat-up the kitchen!)

Electric water heaters are also made in the round type which cost a little less than the square type.

Don't Let Anybody Confuse You About the Operating Cost of the NEW TYPE Electric Water Heaters

Eight or 10 years ago electric water heaters were expensive to operate, because manufacturers had not discovered the BEST way to build them. But today, an electric water heater for the average family of 4 persons uses only 300 kilowatt hours a month, which come to you at the lowest rate.

While You Are Buying An Electric Range Ask About An Electric Water Heater Too!

You'll be surprised at the low price and easy terms. Any of the following makes of electric ranges or water heaters will give you satisfaction:

M-W — MONARCH — GENERAL ELECTRIC — MARION — L&H — STANDARD — ENTERPRISE — GRAYBAR-CRAWFORD ESTATE — KELVINATOR — PROSPERITY — PEMCO — REX WESTINGHOUSE — SEPCO — HOFFMAN — UNIVERSAL HERCULES — HOTPOINT — NORGE — SATURN

Salute To Youth

The annual season for sheepskins has just closed for millions of solemn-faced boy and sweet girl graduates their elders are wondering just what can be said in sincerity these uncertain days by way of counsel and advice.

The old formula won't do. In our generation's leading murchants would rise in all his self-made might and exhort the youngsters to hard work, thrift and the pursuit of success, sprinkling in a few generali ties on the need of "service" to give his address nobility But these times of merchines, massed industry, "over-production" and under-employment would scoff at such advise.

More realistic is a 1937 commencement address recently delivered by one of the nation's leading merchants, Edward A. Filene of Boston, over a nation-wide hook-up under auspices of the U. S. Office of Education.

"Let's be honest about it," he said. "In such changing times as these, we of the older generation are not equipped to tell the younger generation how to live.

"We have been disciplined by work. You must school yourself to rise beyond mere work. We have been disciplined by scarcily. You must school yourselves to solve the problems of abundance. We have been disciplined by the conflict which we thought would never end—the conflict of man against man. We have now reached the time, however, when that war must end, else the machinery we have developed will become machenery of destruction—used to halt the upward march of hte human race. It is up to you, therefore, to learn a way of life—a way of human peace, of human co-operation and of human kinship—which we of the older generations can scarcely comprehend.

"We who are about to die salute you! Long live the onward-marching race!"

People Like To Go Where They Are Invited

A long time ago the editor of a newspaper published in Greenville walked into a store and asked the owner about an ad for that week. The owner said he had nothing to advertise. The editor then asked, "Is your business a secret?"

In the Montgomery Advertiser of Monday a most interesting editoral comment on this quoted editorials fromThe Macon Telegraph and the Southwest Georgian, from which we take the liberty of quoting below:

With the coming of new modes of travel, merchants in small communities are asking, 'How can we keep our citizens from going to trade in larger towns and cities?"

To intelligently answer the question it is necessary to learn why those customers are tempted to trade elsewhere. The answer is simple. Advertised goods and attractive bargains offer the rule. No customer leaves his or her home to buy things that are not advertised. Theprice must appeal and the goods themselves must be temptingly described. Advertised goods always draw more and more business. Ask any traveling salesman and he will tell yor it is impossible to sell to merchants any but nationally advertised brands.

Advertising is the only known method to create increased human desires. Unless these desires are stimulated merchants stagnate.

The small town merchant has been notoriously disinclined to advertise. He took it for granted that people in his community would find him and ask for what they wanted. Occasionally one of these merchants did venture to use advertising space in his county newspaper and if he understood how to prepare his ads and to create desire, he made a fortune. Many communities have seen this happen.

Even such a necessity as flour is now competiitve, one brand matched against another. A good advertiser who studies his business can drive into the public mind the idea that his is the only brand that a house-wife can affod to uee; and he can do it without ever referring to any other flour.

If advertising can pay a flour merchant, it is certain to sell more of life's luxuries.—Greenville Advocate.

All The Cans Gone

Huntsville may lack something yet of being absolutely clean, and spick and span, but in one respect at least, it con qualify as about the neatest city in the State of Alabama. It would be hard to find a tin can lying around in it, or in its suburbs. The mosquitoes and other pestilence-breeding insects will have a hard time this Summer finding their favorite lodging places. For about every can, of any description, has been picked up, and is now lodged on the city dump heap. The city was literally scoured by the energetic youngsters battling for the cash prizes offored by The Times, as its contribution to the special period set aside annually for the clean-up and beautification of Huntsville and its surrounding territory. They strung together about 10,000 cons, big and little, new and rusty, grocery, oil or beer, and laid them end to end around the Courthouse. They circled the square about five times. And this did not inclube another truckload that was picked up, but not entered fromally in the contest. Now that the city is clear of this nuisance, housewives and other who use cans should cooprate to keep the streets and backyards clean of them.—Huntsville Times.

Rural Fire Loss High

According to Managing Director Franklin H. Wentworth of the National Fire Protection Association, one of the most serious phases of the fire problem is the continued high aggregate of losses in rural and small town districts.

Various causes are put forward for these losses, and intensive work is being done by stock fire insurance companies, various fire prevention organizations, and the U. S. Dparetment of Commerce in seeking to reduce them. It is pointed out, for example, that there has been a phenomenal spread in the use of electricity in farming districts, and this has brought with it a need for an electrical inspection routine to achieve the results regular inspection achieves in the cities. A model state law covering inspection is now being framed and should be adopted by all states.

Carelessness with smoking materials is naturally one of the worst country hazards. Little can be done to reduce the damage caused, unless the individual smoker firmly realizes his responsibility—and also realizes that it is in his own interest to be unremittingly careful. Too much effort cannot be given to correcting this evil.

An interesting experiment in another field is being conducted by a group of middle western stock fire insurance companies. These concerns are offering reduced rates on farm property where there is local water supply, a telephone and a rural fire department adequately organized and equipped.

All of this work is gradually bearing fruit. And in the meantime, formers and rural dwellers should make "personal fire prevention" an undiviating goal. Country fires get out of hand far more easily that city fires. Their menace to property and life is greater. And the finest campaign to reduce losses ever planned by experts, will be useless unless every individual takes an interest and does his part.

Ten Rules For A Long Life

If you would live to a ripe old age, here are ten rules given by Hygeia on how to live 100 years, which the current Progressive Farmer quotes as part of its campaign for better health.

1. Breathe fresh air, both day and night.
2. Exercise your larger muscles regularly every day.
3. Look on overfatigue as your enemy, and on rest as your friend. Take at least eight hours of sleep. (The voice of wisdom says one should turn off the radio at 10.)
4. Drink plnety of water at meals and also between meals.
5. Eat temperately, partaking of vegetables and fruit for "roughage" and health's sake, and sparingly of meat and sugar. Avoid overweight.
7. Avoid infection from both outside and inside sources. Make a thorough recovery from colds and sore throat.
8. Wash your hands before eating. (That the teeth are to be cleaned night and morning is taken for granted.)
9. Think wholesome thoughts. Face unpleasant situations frankly and sensibly, and don't worry. Keep your play spirit.
10. Have a health examination by your physician each year; ask his advice and follow it.

—The Progressive Farmer.

VINCENT NEWS

For the past week ,our little town has been almost filled with strange faces. They weren't strange very long ,though. Vincent has been a vacaiotn land for quite a few visitors. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wade have had their neice, Miss Majorie Meadows with them for a few days.

Mrs. Llue Montgomery has had as her visitor, Mrs. C. E. White.

Dr. and Mrs. J. E Embry have had Mrs O. S. Landham of Anniston, also her son, Dr. Landham and his wife.

Mr .and Mrs. H E Florey have had the latter's mot her, Mrs Margaret Ruffin of Helena, with them for a short visit

The population has remained as usual, as we have had a few Vincent people taking a vacation elsewhere

Miss Alyce Harris has chosen North and South Carolina for her vacation land

Dr. J. C. Embry has made Atlanta Ga., his vacation home for the past week. The doctor just had to have something to occupy his mide with and he took a post-graduate course at Emory College while there.

Any family that has ever lived in Vincent a considerable length of time isn't gone very long until they're back again. We're happy that our little town has that appeal that can't be resisted. Last week Mr. and Mrs. William Oakes and family returned. We're happy they're with us again. As their Sunday guests, they had: Miss Grace Oakes, a relative; Miss Dorothy Oakes, the youngest daughter, who is attending school in Birmingham, and Mr. Nathaniel Thompson, also of Birmingham. That afternoor, Miss Selma Mae Oakes, the oldest daughter, her cousin, Miss Grace Oakes and Mr. Nathanile Thompson attended a birthday party near Mt. Pisgah.

Miss Nattilene Sharbutt spent Friday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jones visited their mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. E .E. Florey over the week end.

Mrs. F. A. Gorman and Jimmy, spent the week end in Birmingham.

Monkey Puzzle Tree

Monkey Puzzle is the name given to the Chile pine (Araucaria imbricata) introduced into Great Britain in 1796 and since widely cultivated throughout Europe and the southern United States, especially in California. The tree grows to a height of 150 feet in the Cordilleras of Chile.

State Named "Deseret"

Deseret was the provisional state, organized in 1849 by a convention of Mormons, and it comprised the greater part of southwestern United States south of the forty-second parallel and west of the Rocky mountains.

First to Have School by Law

Massachusetts was the first colony to establish school by law.

Social and Personal Mention

MILDRED WHITE WALLACE, Social Editor

FEAR—ENVY—RESENTMENT

The three most damaging enemies to character and happiness, says one of my favorite columnists, George Matthew Adams, are FEAR-ENVY-and RESENTMENT Mr. Adams states further in his estimable dicourse on these three evils so prominently identified daily, that FEAR ENVY and RESENTMENT ride behind both rich and poor, employer and employee and they instigate more cruel and useless wars than all other enemies combined.

FEAR

"Nations arm because they FEAR their next door neighbors. Men and women remain in positions unworthy of their abilities because they FEAR to take the plunge and seek something better. We remain but a fraction of our possible selves simply because of a multitude of fears that beset our way. Possibly millions are in ill health because of FEAR. FEARS that are no more than imaginary ghosts.

ENVY

Now, then, that other little fellow ENVY! What a criminal he is Mr. Adams continues. He isn't satisfied with anything. He wants what the other fellow has not realizing that he might have more than that one, were he willing to work and sacrifice sufficiently. Why should we want another's wealth? Fame? Good standing? We only own what we earn. piness, is self bought! How glad we Happiness is self bought! How glad we should be to see another win!

RESENTMENT

And now that third destroyer RESENTMENT. There are those who resent the success of another, who look upon the glory handed to one worthy, as something that ought to have been placed at their door. As a matter of record we all get about what we deserve in this world. Some of us more-perhaps because of a kind and generous God.

One of the best ways to loose a good friend, is to start resenting his happiness, or his well earned place in the scheme of things. Such a procedure is sure to cloud that happiness of his, and as sure to poison the soul of the one who RESENTS.

We heartily agree with Mr. Adams that TACT, CONSIDERATION TOLERANCE of the other fellow's feelings, of his dreams and his hopes, and of his human qualities be they full of frailties or well purchased deserts this is what makes ours" the best of all impossible worlds"!

We leave the above thought with one who wandered into our little journalistic emporium, happily jubilant over a recent success which had crowned years of effort but "SOMEONE" envied his happiness. Some word of discouragement was allowed to fall. Some idle remark had left its poignant sting. The song was hushed! It reminded me of the following little story. How true none but those who have DREAMED can understand!

"A poet passed with a song of God
Hid in his heart like a gem in a clod.
His lips were framed to pronounce the thought,
And the music of rhythm its magic wrought;
Febele at first was the happy trill,
Low was the echo that answered the hill
But a JEALOUS FRIEND spoke near his side,
And on his lips the sweet song—
DIED!"

The many friends of little Annette Thompson are anxiously awaiting news from the little sufferer who is in a Birmingham hospital having had an acute attack of appendicitis.

COLUMBIANA ROADS

Columbianaites — there's a new word for you—are still complaining about the roads in the incorporated limits of the town. Please somebody —do something—whoever is supposed to tell whoever is supposed to do something—please tell them! Every day these holes grow deeper and deeper. When we began our tirade against it—they were uncomfortable jolts. NOW they will do credit to a ravine! See for yourself Mr. Doubtful! Just drive over our way and see how you feel after you arrive one block below the old Courthouse.

Miss Mary Wheeler, who is attending College in Jacksonville, spent Sunday with her father, Rev. G. B. Wheeler.

Mrs. Sue Bird is visiting relatives in Columbiana.

BENNETT - HARRISON

The marriage of Miss Mildred Holland Bennett and Karl C. Harrison of Columbiana, Ala., took place Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Epworth Methodist Church, Savannah, which was decorated with palms, lilies and ligted white candles. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Julian P. Dell.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Edith Bennett sang "I Love You Truly," and "O Promise Me."

Miss Helen Bennett, the maid of honor, wore a gown of pale green mousseline de sole, made in off-the-shoulder effect ,with rosettes of the material centered with flowers on the shoulders and on the wide full skirt.

The two bridesmaids were dressed in pastel mousaeline de soie made on princess lines with wide panels of lace inserted in back and in the puffed sleeves. Miss Edith Bennett wore blue and Miss Ruth Bennett, peach. The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore lacy broad-brimmed hats matching their gowns, and carried bouquets of pink roses tied with corresponding satin ribbons.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, J. L. Bennett, was gowned in white satin made with a cowl neckline and long sleeves fitted from the elbow to the wrist. Her veil of illusion tulle which fell from a halo of orange blossoms covered the long train of the gown. Her flowers were a bouquet of rbide's roses. and lilies of the valley.

The groom had as his best man, Claude Vardaman, of Sylacauga, Ala. and the groomsmen were Andrew Edwards and Leland Jones ,of Birmingham, Ala. The ushers were Ernest and Eugene Edwards, Edward Bennett and James Holland.

Mrs. Bennett's gown was of powder blue lace worn with a bolero packet. Her hat was of matching color and her corsage was of gardenias. The groom's sister, Mrs. Edward Lovelady of Columbiana, Ala., chose a shirt waist dress of powder blue gorgette with a pleated band edging the collar, cuffs and hem of the skirt Her hat was a leghorn model and she wore a corsage of gardenias.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a bowl of gardenias,Easter lilies and ferns. The same flowers decorated the rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison left later in the afternoon by motor for a wedding trip to Florida, the bride wearing for traveling a hyacinth blue crepe with white ruching at the neck, with hat and accessories of navy blue. On their return from Florida they will make their home in Columbiana, Ala.

The out-of-town guests included: Mrs. Lena Merrill and Miss Louise Lovelady, of Columbiana; Miss Effie Mims Davis, of Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Chapman; Miss Margaret Hatcher, Mr and Mrs. G W, Alexander, of Macon, and W. B. Martin of Perry, Florida.

JEAN HARLOW

The passing of Jean Harlow on Monday, was a decided loss to the Movie Industry. In all the verbal tributes paid the actress, we think none more beautiful nor an epitaph more to be coveted than the one paid her by Louis B. Mayer, whose pictures she so artistically exploited: Of Miss Harlow, Mr. Mayer said: "This is the end of a rich, personal friendship. This girl, whom so many millions adored was one of the loveliest. sweetest of the theatrical business. Ihave lost a friend, the world has lost a ray of sunlight".

Claude Pitts and three charming daughters, accompanied by Mrs. John S. Pitts of Sylacauga, were luncheon guests of the Whittiemore Cafe, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Pitts and Barbara Anne Pitts are the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pitts.

MAMIE JO HARBIN

To legions of friends throughout Shelby County will come the interesting news that Mamie Jo Harbin, former popular Health Nurse in Shelby County, will take Nell Davidson's place in the Health Office in Columbiana while Miss Davidson engages in further study of her chosen profession. The good wishes of the entire County follow Miss Davidson, who has done such creditable work since she came to the County three years ago—and a hearty welcome is sincerely extended "Mamie Jo" as she again assumes the helm of the duties of County Health Nurse in Shelby County. Miss Harbin since leaving the County, has held responsible positions in Athens and Dothan but states she loves Columbiana, and is joyously accepting the position tendered her again.

Mrs. Grace Carter has recently moved into one of the Woolley apartments, and is now at home to her many friends in Columbiana.

Mayor Harry Gordon is steadily improving at Stafford Springs and is expected home within the next week.

Mrs. Ruby Lovelady, Miss Louise Lovelady and Mrs Lena Merrell have returned to Columbiana, after attending the Bennett-Harrison nuptials in Savannah, Georgia, last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. McNeil nad B. J. Baldwin of Birmingham and Miss Idell Turner of Columbiana spent Sunday at Blue Creek on the Coosa River.

Powell Blair and Miss Odell Turner spent Sunday in Maplesville, visiting friends and relatives.

FATHER'S DAY

Dad is sometimes referred to as the "Forgotten Man" but on June 20th, he will step into his own sphere and receive the homage of grateful hearts who have ,thru the years, accepted his generosity and kindness, perhaps thoughtlessly, rather taking him for granted like all good things —Santa Clause, etc., but on Sunday, June 20th—make a little memoranda of this, and DON'T FORGET YOUR DAD. He is the best pal on earth—and one who never fails to answer when called. H edeserves evreything and should have it! Express your appreciation with a thoughtful remembrance! Believe it or not, HE, too, likes the snappiest things on the haberdashery market—and we have some attractive gift suggestions lined up for you in our own stores for next week. So, wait until you see the Democrat next week before buying. Leading merchants will offer special bargains for DAD'S DAY.

Mrs. Charles Swann and Charles Swann Jr., the Democrat Mascot, were cordially welcomed guests in the Democrat office Tuesday.

Mrs. J. G. Hendrich of Talladega visited friends in Columbiana and Shelby this week.

Friends of Margaret McGhee regret to learn of her illness in Birmingham.

Hubert Roberts, of Sylacauga, prominently identified with Brown Service Funeral Company, is spending this week in Columbiana, working with the local representative, John Curlee.

Mrs. Minnie Williams, former resident of Columbiana, spent Saturday in her former home visiting old friends and relatives.

Wayne Murray and Gene White of Ft. Deposit and Louise Thompson, were the Sunday guests of Maxine Collins.

Misses Beth Wallace and Louise Taylor left Columbiana Sunday for Auburn where they will take post graduate work thru the summer.

BAPTIST REVIVAL

Large congregations are greeting the Rev. Moye and his assistants as they conduct protracted services morning and night in the Baptist Church in Columbiana. Many additions to the church roll have been received since the meeting began a week ago. The final service will be held on next Sunday night and a cordial invitation from the local Pastor, Rev. Jones, has been extended to the entire community.

We join the chorus of pleased patrons of Uncle Sam's office in Columbiana, and pay our grateful homage to ts beloved postmaster, Charlie Niven, who has unceasingly worked in an effort to expedite mail service to and from the Magic City and other busy marts to aid his patrous in their request for better mail service. We have just read with a great deal of pride the announcement of this successful achievement on his part, and want to be the first to offer hearty congratulations sincerely renderd to one of Shelby County's most conscientious and efficient officials.

Senator Hugo Black, life long friend of Mr. Niven, become interested in the project after receiving a friendly communication of our problems and he immediately succeeded in obtaining the cooperation of Hon. Harllee Branch, Second Assistant Postmaster General in Washington, D. C. we have just read a formal declaration assuring us that an order has been issued increasing th frequency of service on the star route from Columbiana to Calera, effective July 1st, 1937. This decided improvement will give one day mail service from Birmingham and we say "Three cheers for Mr. Nivens" who with his friends, Senator Black have made it possible.

NOW—if we could only expedite the mail from the Southern Depot and raise the salary sufficient to warrant a motor vehicle we would be sitting pretty as far as getting information from the outside world on time is concerned!

After all the government is no worse off than most of us. It's budget is not balanced and neither is ours, so what?

Heart Drifts

REBIRTH

When I have glimpsed an orchard dressed in wonder
Beneath the magic of an April sky,
When I have seen blue violets growing under Last seasons leaves, when soft winds hurry by—
Then I feel youth renewed, old hopes are brightened
By newer hopes, and lost ideals
awake;
And I forget that souls were ever frightened,
And I forget that hearts could ever break!

When I have walked beneath the fragrant gleaming
Of cherry snow and apple trees in bloom
I feel that I have wakened from long dreaming
In an enchanted, beauty crowded room.
The ugly thoughts that often try to taunt me
The broken faiths, like shadows drift away;
And only loveliness is left to haunt me,
And yesterday is sweetened by today!

—M. S.

CANDLES

Joy lights the candles in my heart
When you come in, until it seems
The racing flames must fill the room
With Marathons of gleams.

The place where we are met is gay
And glowing with the darting rout,
'Till going you swing wide the door
And blow them out.

—B. D.

LEISURE

What is this life if, full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare.

No time to stand beneath the boughs
And start as long as sheep or cows.

No time to see, when woods we pass,
Where squirrels hide their nuts in grass.

No time to see, in broad daylight,
Streams full of stars, like shies at night.

No time to turn at Beauty's glance,
And watch her feet, how they can dance.

A poor life this, if full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare.

—W. H. D.

RETURN

Beautiful in the morning of our life
And beautiful in the evening,
The soun dof friendly feel upon the path
That leads unto our door.
More lovely far
Than goods and gold,
The clasp of friendly hand
And the deep look of loyal loving eyes
After long parting,
Beautiful and good,
The music of the coming of the friend,
Of the unspoken word, the unbroken silence
That lies like a warm blessing
On the heart.

—B. Y.

PRAYER FOR A NEW HOME

We bought a house today! A great oak spreading
Its branches wide to all wild things and shy;
Six slender thorn trees with their frail leaves threading
A patterned lace across an oval sky.
Stout beams and rafters overlaid with shingles;
Two tall red chimneys and a carven door;
And honeysuckles with barberry
mingles
Beside a shaded porch with red-tiled floor.

So much of beauty! We would ask
Thy guiding.
Let all who cross the threshold of this place
Find hope and Courage, friendliness abiding;
And added to these, grant Thy gift of grace;
Let peace that passes understanding rest
Upon this house, and us, and every guest.

TWO'S ENOUGH

"Shoes."

"Yes, sir. What number?"

"A couple. Think I am a centipede?"

Off

Two girl friends met in the street.

"I hear you've broken off your engagement," said one.

"Oh, my dear, yes," answered the other; "Jack became impossible. He criticized the way I dressed, objected to my friends, and always expected me to be at his beck and call. Then, on top of all that, he suddenly went off and married another girl, so I simply made up my mind to have nothing more to do with him."

THAT'S SOMETHING

"How do you know you're goin' to pass all de tests?"

"Me big brudder's engaged to de teacher."

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Deporting Alien Criminals.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Wouldn't it be lovely if the other states, not to mention the federal government, followed the example set by the governor of New York?

He commutes the sentences of foreign-born, long-term convicts so they may be eligible for parole—not mind you, to go free and sin some more, but to be turned over to the port authorities for immediate deportation.

Irvin S. Cobb.

That is, it would be a lovely idea if only we could be sure that these same criminals wouldn't come slipping back in again. The present immigration law was devised as a barrier to protect decent citizens, both native and naturalized, against the human scum of the old world, but it appears to be more like a sieve if we may judge by the hordes of nondesirable aliens who somehow manage to get in and stay in and even go on relief.

Missionaries From China.

FROM Peiping a group of believers in the doctrine of Confucius are sending missionaries to the United States. We've been sending out missionaries to their country for centuries, but that Chinamen should dare to try the same thing on us—well, that's a white horse of a yellow color.

What if, not content with seeking converts, these interlopers inculcated among us certain phases of their heathenish philosophy, such as teaching young people consideration and respect for their elders; and showing that rushing about in a frenzy does not necessarily indicate business energy; and that the natural aim of man is not always to worship speed and—up to thirty-odd thousands a year—to die by it; and that intolerance as between religious creeds isn't invariably proof of true piety; and that minding one's own affairs is really quite an admirable trait?

Vanished Americans.

IT'S exciting to prowl among the ruined cities of the first Americans, who scattered into the twilights of antiquity when the Christian era was still young. They were our oldest families, older than even old Southern families—and who ever heard of a new Southern family or even just a middle-aged Southern family?

But afterwards, it's confusing to read the theories of the expert researchers who have passed judgment on those vanished cliff-dwelling peoples, because few such learned gentlemen agree on any single point. There is one very eminent authority who invariably insists that all the rest of the eminent authorities are absolutely wrong about everything. He is the Mr. Justice McReynolds of the archeologists.

Unemployment Statistics.

THANKS to bright young bureaucrats in Washington, we know how many goldfish are hatched every year and what the gross annual yield of guinea pigs is, and the exact proportion of albinos born in any given period, but it never seemed to occur to anybody to compile reasonably accurate statistics on unemployment.

Yet, with depression behind us and business up to boom-time levels, it's estimated that between eight and nine million people are out of work, not counting those on strike, and judging by the papers there must be a couple of million of them. Apparently the more prosperous we grow on the surface, the more deplorable becomes the status of those off the payrolls. It doesn't make sense. Or anyhow there was a time when it wouldn't have made sense.

This curious situation puts a fellow in mind of the old old story of the chap whose wife had an operation, and, every day when he called at the hospital, he was told the patient showed improvement. One morning, as he came away, weeping, he met a friend.

"How's the wife?" inquired the latter.

"She's dead."

"I'm so sorry," said the friend. "What did she die of?"

"Improvements," said the widower.

Correct Vacation Toggery

VACATIONING they will go—Vera, Mom and Flo. And they will enjoy themselves the more because their wardrobes after Sew-Your-Own are just exactly right.

Mother in this model will be mistaken for daughter many a time because her design and dots are so very youthful. She will have various frocks in various materials developed on this theme, and in one of them, at least, the dots will be red.

Dates for Dancing.

Vera, to the right, has a date for dancing and when her escort admiringly effuses some such nonsense as, "That gown must have come on the last boat from Paris" she will toss her dark head and say, "No foreign frocks for me. I Sew-My-Own." Her dress of soft flowered material with demure braid at the neck and hem almost makes a sweet old-fashioned girl of her, but the tailored collar and trim cut label her the sophisticated young thing that she really is.

Only a snappy sophomore can fully appreciate just how smart are those buttons down the back of the model to the left. Her yoke and neckline are "Oh, so new, my deah"; her plaid as British as she would like her accent to be.

Best of good vacation wishes to the three of them from Sew-Your-Own.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1297 is designed in sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards of 35-inch material plus ½ yard contrasting.

Pattern 1998 is designed in sizes 34 to 46. Size 36 requires 4⅔ yards of 35-inch material. With long sleeves 4⅞ yards of 35 inch material is required.

Pattern 1307 is designed in sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch material. For trimming 7½ yards of braid or ribbon is required.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT — By Fred Neher

"Sure, they fit me fine . . . but they're a little tight for my brother on the night shift."

"Little Stories for Bedtime" by Thornton W. Burgess

PETER RABBIT WATCHES FOR SIGNS

SOME people never see things because they never look for them. Peter Rabbit isn't that kind. My goodness, no! Peter is all the time looking and listening. You see, he is dreadfully afraid that he will miss something. So every minute that he is awake he is looking and listening. It was this way more than ever now. Sister South Wind had arrived and said that Mistress Spring was not far behind, and that she had come to waken all the sleepers so that they would be ready to greet Mistress Spring when she did arrive.

What puzzled Peter was how gentle Sister South Wind, whose voice

He Would Carefully Cover Her Over Again With the Dead Leaves That She Might Not Catch Cold.

was hardly more than a whisper, waked all the sleepers. Rough Brother North Wind had roared and whistled and bowled through the Green Forest and over the Green Meadows all the long winter without waking one. In fact, the louder he roared the farther into dreamland the sleepers seemed to go. But when the gentle Sister South Wind wandered through the Green Forest and over the Green Meadows calling in just the lowest, softest voice,

Wake up, wake up, you sleepers!
Come open wide your peepers!

why, one after another they did wake up. Peter couldn't understand it, and finally he gave up trying to.

But it was great fun to go about watching for signs that the sleepers had heard gentle Sister South Wind. Peter would listen with one long ear against a maple tree. He would hear just the softest little sound under the bark, so soft that you and I couldn't hear it if we tried. Then Peter would kick up his heels for joy. It was the sap running up to all the branches and out to the tiniest twigs of the maple tree that Peter heard, and he knew that the maple tree was awake.

Then he would go over to a swampy place where the ice had melted away and hold his nose while he peeped into the brown hood of the skunk cabbage to see if there were any signs of flowers there. It had a dreadful smell, and yet it made Peter feel glad all over, because it meant that the queer little plant was awake. Then he would go up in the Green Forest to a warm, sunny place he knew of and there he would pull away the dead leaves of last summer until he found a tiny, furry cap peeping up above the ground. Then he knew that dainty little Hepatica was awake. He would carefully cover her up again with the dead leaves that she might not catch cold, after which he would kick up his heels in the funniest way, just because it made him feel so good.

Everywhere there were signs, if you had eyes to see and ears to hear them. And Peter had both. The Laughing Brook, which had been silent all winter because Jack Frost had bound it with ice, was laughing a great roar of a laugh, for its banks were very full, and that was a sign. The brown buds on the willows, which all winter long Jack Frost had pinched his hardest and failed to open, had split their little brown jackets at the first touch of the soft fingers of gentle Sister South Wind, and out of them had popped little gray pussies, and that was a sign. Farmer Brown had begun to clean up his cornfield, and that was a sign. There were signs everywhere, and every one of them made Peter feel happier.

But most of all Peter listened for something that he longed to hear. Every little while he would sit up and listen and listen, with his long ears standing straight up. Sometimes he would think he heard it, but he couldn't be sure. Then he would hold his breath and listen and listen and listen. What was he listening for? Why, for the loveliest sound he knows of—the voice of Winsome Bluebird.

"If I could only hear that," sighed Peter, "then I would know for sure that Mistress Spring is almost here, for Winsome Bluebird is her herald and she is never far behind." And this is how Peter Rabbit happened to forget all about those strange tracks he had found deep in the Green Forest.

Lesson for June 13

THE BROTHERLY LOVE OF JUDAH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 44:18-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let brotherly love continue. Hebrews 13:1.
PRIMARY TOPIC — Benjamin's Big Brother.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Big Brothers.
INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—Loving as a Brother.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Self-Sacrifice in the Family.

The fundamental unit of society is the family. It is of more importance than the state, the church, and the social order of which it is a part. The breakdown of the home and the sacred relationships sustained between parents and children, or brothers and sisters, points to the destruction of society itself.

God established the family in the garden of Eden. His plan and purpose have never been changed, nor have his laws for the protection of the home, for the sanctity of marriage, for brotherly love, been set aside. Men and nations may devise other plans and follow the dictates of the flesh, but that road always leads to ruin.

The continuation of our story of the life of Joseph and his brethren brings before us today the filial and paternal love of Judah, and affords us an opportunity to stress true brotherly devotion. No one should fail to review the connection between the chapter before us and the lesson of last week. Joseph had been dealing with his brethren who had failed to recognize him as the one they had sold into captivity. He was bringing them kindly but definitely to that point of repentance at which he could show himself gracious to them. In doing so he had brought disaster upon them. Being happily on their way homeward with a new supply of food, they were overtaken and Benjamin, the beloved of Jacob, stands accused as a thief, and by their own words condemned to die.

In this crisis the mouths of the ten others are closed, but Judah, who had really saved the life of Joseph (Gen. 37:26, 27), stands forth to make an eloquent and pathetic appeal to Joseph. It presents him as a brother who is

I. Courageous

Easy rests the yoke of family life as long as all is joyful and prosperous. But when adversity strikes, when sorrow comes, or sickness, or sin, then the true test of devotion is at hand.

It was a brave and manly thing for Judah to stand before the one whom he knew only as the man who was "even as Pharaoh." The circumstances were all against him. He expected the flaming anger of the offended ruler. His brethren had collapsed in despair. It was one of those dark hours which come to every family when someone must demonstrate true love by being strong-hearted and steady.

II. Intelligent.

Crises call for more than a cheerful smile or an encouraging word, much as they do mean in such an hour. But we must be prepared by our close contact with our loved ones to speak and act with vigor and assurance.

The plea of Judah is a masterpiece of logic, argumentation, and appeal, demonstrating that Judah was not only well-informed about his family and its problems, but ready to use his knowledge skillfully and effectively.

III. Sacrificial.

One step deeper goes the devotion of this man to his father and his brother He has done no wrong that merits punishment, but evidently his brother has been guilty. Had he been of the spirit of Cain he would have said "Am I my brother's keeper?" and let him answer for himself. Why should he suffer for another? Why should he allow himself to be imprisoned in a strange land to save his father from sorrow and his brother from what seemed to be the just reward for his deeds?

Thus reasons the man of the world, but such is not the language of love. "Let thy servant abide instead of the lad as a bondsman"—so speaks the true brother. And this is but a faint prefiguring of the One "who sticketh closer than a brother," who "though he was rich, yet for your sakes became poor that ye through his poverty might be rich" (Prov. 18:24; II Cor. 8:9).

Let us improve the opportunity to review our relations with our own family, to determine whether there is aught that we in intelligent and courageous self-sacrifice should do for our own.

An Aim in Life

We want an aim that can never grow vile, and which cannot disappoint our hope. There is but one such on earth, and it is that of being like God. He who strives after union with perfect love must grow out of selfishness, and his success is secured in the omnipotent holiness of God.

A Guide to Paradise

The life of a faithful Christian man is a guide to paradise.—Thos. a Kempis.

Spots in America That Resist the Melting Pot

Festivals of Various Kinds Call Attention to "Bits of Europe" Here.

"It takes celebrations like a tulip festival to call one's attention to the many 'bits of Europe' scattered throughout the United States," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Recently thousands of flower-loving Americans descended on Holland, Michigan, to witness the town's annual tulip festival. The gay blooms stretching for eight miles, lure visitors each spring to this largely Dutch community sprinkled with Dutch names and, for the festival period, with residents in Dutch costumes.

A "Little Greece" in Florida.

"Holland is one of the largest Dutch communities in the United States. Until recently, many of its factory workers spoke only Dutch, and neighboring farmers wore wooden shoes.

"Tarpon Springs, about half way down the west coast of the Florida peninsula, is the home of many swarthy, mustachioed Greek sponge divers and their families. They came to the warm blue waters of Florida fisheries from the sponge fishing grounds of the Mediterranean, and have made Tarpon Springs famous as a 'sponge city.' Their brightly painted diving boats are patterned after those used in Greek waters. The town supports a Greek Orthodox church, and on January 6 annually celebrates Greek Cross day, a religious fete brought from the homeland.

"Northwestern Pennsylvania has its Russians. Nearly half a century ago, some 'Old Believers,' descendants of seceders from the Russian church in the Seventeenth century, settled in Erie. The Russian colony now numbers about 2,000 inhabitants. Folk songs are sung to balalaika accompaniment by bearded men and long-haired women.

Finns Settled in Forest Lands.

"Although Finns dwell in small numbers in every state in the Union, they have not found the South appealing, and have settled chiefly in Michigan, Minnesota, Massachusetts, and Washington. From Finland, 'the Land of a Thousand Lakes,' they have been especially drawn to Minnesota. Their physical stamina and experience as lumberjacks in Finland's vast forests have fitted many of them particularly well to take part in America's lumber industry.

"The Finns retain their love of education, flocking to schools and night classes. As in their home land, they build log bathhouses in which to take steam baths, and carve from birchwood skis which carry them over the fields in rigorous winters. Finland, Suomi, Toimi, and Toivola are some Minnesota place names that tell of Finnish population.

Shipping Lures Dalmatians.

"For centuries Dalmatians have either tilled the soil or sailed under Ragusan and other flags all over the world. Today these dark, spirited people, with blood of bold sea rovers in their veins, not only man the orange-sailed fishing boats off the Dalmatian coast, but they man American ships and work in fisheries of Louisiana, Florida, and California.

"From green vineyards, gray olive groves, fig and orange orchards steeped in almost perpetual sunshine along the Dalmatian coast, have come many of the large commercial fruit growers of the Pacific coast, particularly those in Santa Cruz and Santa Clara counties. Watsonville, south of San Francisco, has a population almost entirely Yugoslavian.

"The majority of fishermen in Provincetown, Massachusetts, are Portuguese. Their ancestors sailed there on whalers from Portugal and the Azores. The city directory is filled with names that sound strange among those of most New England towns: last names such as Silva, Ramos, Furtado, Costa, Zora, Dutra, Cabral, Almeda, Agna, and Corea."

Somehow the Proverb Sounded a Bit Off

He had only recently joined the ranks of politicians, and he was anxious that his first speech to his prospective constituents should be a great success, says London Answers.

He spoke for a long time, warning his hearers of the dangers of war and the importance of keeping a large army. Wishing to finish with some quotation, he thought of the proverb about locking the stable door. But he wanted to be a bit more original.

Suddenly he had a brain-wave. "Ladies and gentlemen," he cried, "don't, I beg of you—don't wait till your house catches fire before calling the fire brigade."

Your Job

DO YOU realize that your job is the most important affair in the world, just because it is your job? The way you look at your job makes all the difference to your career. Do you regard it only as a money-making stunt? Or do you consider it a position to be proud of?

If you put your heart and soul into your effort, you are bound to make good and will wake up one fine morning to discover that you are one of the indispensables. The world respects you because it cannot get along without you.—Geoffrey Rhodes.

Firestone TIRES

GIVE YOU GREATER PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING AND BLOWOUTS

YOU will know the minute you see this tire why car owners everywhere call it the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. The deeper, wider, flatter non-skid tread made of tough, long wearing rubber will give you protection against dangerous skidding.

But tires cannot be judged on tread alone. Under the tread of Firestone Standard Tires are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords. This Firestone patented construction feature binds the tread and cord body into one inseparable unit. Every cotton fiber in every cord in every ply is saturated and coated with pure liquid rubber which counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily destroy tire life. This Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping gives greater protection against blowouts and is used only in Firestone Tires.

See your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store and join the Firestone Save a Life Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires.

Protect yourself and your family from the danger of driving on thin worn tires which may cause a serious accident.

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?

THAT a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to unsafe tires?

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

By Roger B. Whitman

CLEANING A BOILER

LAST winter a neighbor of mine began to complain about his coal consumption. He said that he was burning more coal than he had the previous winter. As the months went on he growled more and more about the quantity of coal that he was shoveling. I finally went to his house for a look at his steam boiler. My first move was to open one of the clean-out doors above the firing door. As I suspected, I found the interior so clogged with dust that I wondered that the fire was able even to smolder.

I asked him why he had not kept the interior of his boiler cleaned out, and he said he had no idea it was necessary; that no one had ever told him anything about it. I found a flue-cleaning brush in a corner of the cellar, and poked it in to show him that what seemed to be a solid wall of dust was actually a passage. With a few explanations of what to do, I left him to give the boiler a thorough cleaning. He called me up the next morning to say that his fire was burning more briskly than it had been all winter, and that steam had come up in what was an incredibly short time.

His was an extreme case, for to all appearances the boiler had been running for years with no cleaning out of the dust that had collected within it. The cleaning of the inside of a boiler is of much more importance than home owners in general believe it to be. In burning, coal develops a fine dust that settles in the upper part of the boiler.

When the inside surfaces of a boiler are clean, the metal absorbs a maximum amount of heat from the gases and flames that pass over them. There is little waste of heat up the chimney. When dust is allowed to collect on the inside passages, it has the effect of insulation. Less of the available heat is absorbed by the metal, and the waste of heat up the chimney becomes greater. Consumption of fuel naturally goes up.

THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis
© Public Ledger, Inc.

THE method and manner of one's thinking play important parts in making life a success or failure. A life that is filled with the contentment which comes only from complete expression of the inner self, or one that is restless and dissatisfied through lack of it.

To the experienced palmist, the indication of the outlets through which both conscious and subconscious thought are striving to function are clearly indicated by the characteristics of the finger of Saturn.

The Scheming Finger of Saturn.

The predominant characteristics of this type are: (1) straightness, (2) the manner in which the finger, with hand extended, clings to the side of the forefinger.

As a rule, such a finger of Saturn seems extremely long when compared with the length of the forefinger. Its knuckles are full, with somewhat pronounced slenderness in the spaces between the joints. The entire finger, despite its length and prominence of the knuckles, is pleasing in contour. And while decidedly not overfleshed, neither is it what might be termed "skinny." The nail tip is inclined to taper, and the nail is usually of oval shape, well set. Under backward pressure the entire finger mght be considered stiff were it not for just a hint of flexibility.

A Saturnian finger of this kind, without unfavorable indications in the palm or elsewhere, denotes a clear-thinking, ambitious mind that plans its purposes with care and somewhat selfishly and keeps them very much a secret until the time for action arrives.

CROTALARIA

Crotelaria is a summer legume recently introduced into Alabama as a soil building crop. This crop is so promising as a soil builder that you are urged to give it a trial this year, if only a seed patch..

Crotelaria increased the corn yield 28 bushels per acre on the Tennessee Valley Substation and 38 bushels per acre on the Sand Mountain Substation.

Crotelaria should not be used wher a hay crop is to be planted in the next two or three years.

Soils:—Crotelaria has been grown on all the principal soil types of the State. It succeeds best on the heavier types of soil.On poor sandy soils it has not ben a satisfactory crop planted at "laying by". Onsuch soils it should be planted early in alternate rows with corn, or alone and cultivated.

Variety:—In North Alabama plant the early strain of spectabilis. In South Alabama the late strian usually matures seed.

Planting:—Crotelaria may be plant ed alone in alternate rows with corn on well prepared land. Plant 7 to 10 pounds of scarified seed per acre in rows 3 to 3½ feet apart. The sorghum plate on an ordinary planter will put down 7 to 1[illegible] pounds of seed per acre. Plant at usual time for planting cottor and corn and when there is abundant moisture in the soil. Cover very lightly, not over ¾ inch deep. Inoculation is not necessary. Broadcast seeding alone or in corn middles frequently fails. If this method is used, broadcast 25 to 35 pounds of seed per acre.

Fertilizers:—Apply 100 to 200 pounds of superphosphate or 300 pounds of basic slag per acre at planting time if the soil is very poor.

Harvesting:—Crotelaria produces 500 to 2000 pounds of seed per acre. Theseed do not ripen evenly. The seed may be stripped by hand, or the plants may be cut and the seed threshed or flailed out.

Plowing Under:— Heavy growths of crotelaria should be turned in December or early January to get best results. Spring turning may result in poor results.

Try a patch of crotelaria.

Producing Cellulose

Wood is not an ideal source of cellulose. About half of its solid matter consists of resins and certain complex organic substances known as lignins, which act as binding agents to hold the cellulose fibers together. The process of extracting the cellulose from the other material consists of cooking wood chips under considerable pressure with either caustic soda or calcium sulphite. Under these conditions the resin and lignin are decomposed into water-soluble substances, which are drained off with the water as a dark colored liquor. The pulp remaining consists largely of cellulose, which, after bleaching, is ready for use.

Forced to Steal Girls

In the early days of Latin America each adoring swain, before he could gain his damsel's hand, must perforce join the conducta for his future father-in-law, and even after he had successfully put that through (a year's work without pay), he must buy or steal an Indian girl who should become the attendant of his bride. As Indian girls cost about $500 apiece in the market (far more than most young men possessed), stealing was in order, says the Washington Post. Not till all these things were accomplished could the poor youth really claim his lady-love.

Giant Jungle Animal

Twenty-five million years ago the Gobi desert in eastern Asia was a paradise of woods and waters. Thorugh its jungles ambled the hugest land mammal that ever lived, a giant of flesh nearly 18 feet tall and 30 feet long, rather resembling its modern relative, the rhinoceros. The animal was the baluchitherium, so named because the first fossil remains were discovered in 1911 in Baluchistan.—Literary Digest.

The meeting place of General Grant and General Lee at Appomattox is marked by a tablet which bears this inscription: "On this spot Lieut. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, U. S. Army, and Gen. Robert E. Lee, C. S. A., met on the morning of April 10, 1865."

Cascalote in Mexico

Cascalote is not widely known to the tanning world outside of Mexico, but it has been used in that country for hundreds of years, and great quantities of it are consumed in Mexican tanneries every year. It has been called the national tanning material of Mexico. The most important point of distribution is Toluca, and the state of Guerrero produces over 500 tons a year. The tanning content of cascalote is very high, running up to 55 per cent.

Mountain Goat High Climber

The Rocky mountain goat is most difficult to photograph because it climbs to extreme altitudes, dwells on the most rugged part of the mountain and has a keen sense of smell. It jumps from rock to rock with great speed.

Cheyne-Stokes Respiration

Cheyne-Stokes respiration is a breathing common in severe cases of diseases of the heart, kidneys and other affections. The respirations occur in a cycle, becoming gradually deeper and more frequent up to a point where they grow weaker until, to all appearance, breathing ceases. After a pause the cycle begins all over again. Such a state usually presages death.

UNCLE SAM GOES FEMININE IN ATHENS

The "Maid of Athens", diminutive Miss Louise Cribbs ,appeared on a delivery route lugging a big sack of mail for delivery, in Athens, Alabama on June 11th. She is substituting for Mr. Dement, the regular city carrier during his vacation period. We understand she rendered excellent service. Woman again scores in this work a day world!

DELINQUENT TAX SALE HELD

L. C. Abbott held the delinquent tax sale for Shelby County on Monday, June 14th. Only 80 assessments remained on his docket this year. A decided improvement on last year's sales—whcih optimistically may be looked upon as a step nearer the far famed prosperity—which heretofore has been located "just around the corner"—and a rather elusive corner it was!

L. H. ELLIS ASSURES US OF ROAD PROJECT

That busy, energetic, influential political attorney representative from Shelby County, L .H. Ellis, spent the past week end in Columbiana, and while here the writer was granted a few minutes interview about a subject which the Democrat has been vitally interested in—the ROAD PROJECT connecting St. Clair with Bibb County and running straight thru Shelby County.

We are delighted to be able to tell our readers we have written numerous letters requesting further information on this decided step forward in the permanent development of Shelby County, that the authorities and "powers that be" have assured L. H .Ellis that as soon as the paving is completed on the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway—possibly with in the next sixty or ninety days, that work will begin on this much needed Road above mentioned. Shelby Countians have cause again to be grateful to Representative L. H. Ellis, who, even amid the many duties incident to his extensive legal practice in the County, and his recent additional duties assisting in some legal investigation for the Administration, has found time to lend his valuable assistance toward obtaining the coveted Road, which will be a lasting memorial to the efforts of all who were concerned in obtaining this Highway.

Once in a while the people of the world get a break in the developments of affairs and at this writing it begins to look like the common people all over the world are thinking up things to ask for.

The good often sigh more over little faults than the wicked over great. Hence an old proverb, that the stain appears greater according to the brilliancy of what it touches.

Men who wear high collars and heavy coats in the summer are the ones who, some years ago lambasted woman's foolish clothes.

The Spanish revolution has about chased the apanese threat to China off the first page.

One Rose For My Love

By Milton Bird

Mary Arlington looked out her window wearily, at her garden, at the tall trees, at the shining, marble fountain that seemed to watch over the quiet and beauty therein. Down her cheeks, slowly, deliberately fresh tears ran like little streams to trickle offonto a folded piece of paper she held in her hand.

The words, written in a very clean hand, read:

"One rose for my love, Jim."

Why, she wondered, had Jim Stewart always been such a liar. She had liked him so much, yet had been able to believe him so little. She remembered unpleasantly their last night together. There had been a moon, and soft, fleecy clouds, and music in the distance, coming from the dance they had slipped away from. She hadn't known what to do when he had said, in his quiet, easy manner: "I love you Mary, and mean it..." And because she hadn't known what to do, she slowly gave in to her feelings and listened, and lived, and, quite unconsciously, returned his love.

Then after a while her doubting had returned and she had asked him, holding on tightly to his arm: "Will you mean it to-morrow or next week or next month?" He had promised Yes, that she was sure of, even now, with everything spoiled and only this one rose and a terrible ache in her heart left.

She pressed the flower close to her breast. Had she acted too hastily! The thought tore through her mind. Still, he had promised. And the day had come, without the rose, and now, one week later, it was here too fresh to have been lost in the mail, a tiny fragrant reminder of her happiness. No, she decided with a slight lifting of her pretty head, it was just as it had to be. He had forgotten, either deliberately or unconsciously, and the effect was the same. She had been foolish and she swore it the whole thing was over and done with.

Suddenly she felt glad that John had proposed last night. John was good and constant and trustworthy. Always she would be secure with John. He wouldn't cause her worry or heartache. She got up and walked over to a table to get a cigarette. The telephone rang and she jumped unconsciously. The voice was strange not Jim's and she felt suddenly let down.

"Is this Mary Arlington?" it asked.

"Yes."

"This," the voice went on, "is a clerk at William's Flour Shop. We went to appologize for sending your flower one week late, but the clerk who took the order left the next day without telling us the order had been placed. I hope we haven't caused you any inconveniences by this error."

MORE LAND BANK LOANS MADE THIS YEAR

Register In Chancery 7-5-36

More land bank loans were made by the Federal Land Bank of New Orlenas during the first five months of this year than were made by the bank during all of last year ,according to a report received by Mr. J. B. Williams, Secretary-Treasurer of the Columbiana and Shelby County National Farm Loan Association .

"There are many interesting angles to the report sent out by the bank", Mr. Williams said. "The record shows that of all applications received during the first five months of last year fifty-eight per cent were approved for loans ,while up to the end of May this year the bank has approved eighty-six per cent. This indicates a much healthier financial condition of the individual farmers who are seeking credit this year. Another important and encouraging fact is that the number of applications for loans to be used for the purchase of farms has increased twenty-nine per cent over last year. These facts reflect the improvement which has taken place in agriculture during the last several years in the Fifth Federal land bank district."

THE COLUMBIANA BAPTIST CHURCH

Refusal of Postal Employees to Deliver Mail to Stricken Plants Stirs Row—Labor Flare-Ups Continue—Britain Blames Franco for Naval Blast.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

AS A senate committee pondered the advisability of an investigation into the attitude of the post office department with respect to deliveries of mail to strike-crippled industrial plants, new incidents among employers, loyal employes and strikers flared up on half a dozen fronts.

Farley

When John L. Lewis gave the order throwing 70,000 men out of work in the plants of Republic Steel, Inland Steel and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, hard-boiled Tom Girdler, president of the American Steel and Iron institute and chairman of the board of the Republic Steel corporation, kept loyal workers housed in the Republic plants in Ohio and Illinois, so that despite the strike Republic was still turning out steel.

In Warren and Niles, Ohio, postal authorities refused to deliver parcel post packages containing food and clothing to workers inside the plants. This action brought from Republic a protest to Postmaster General Farley, requesting that he issue orders to postmasters to see that all legally presented and post paid mail be delivered regardless of picket lines.

"Unless you see fit to comply with this request, which we believe to be entirely within our legal rights," the message said, "we shall feel compelled to take such legal steps as may be available to us in the premises."

Capitalizing on the action of local postmasters, Ohio pickets issued a printed ultimatum to loyal steel employes. "Four departments of the United States government are fighting on our side," it said, and added: "Extra precautions will be taken throughout the next 12 hours to guarantee your safety in leaving the plant. After that time your safety will be your own responsibility."

The four departments of the government believed to have been referred to are the post office, labor department, labor relations board and interstate commerce commission.

It was Sen. H. Styles Bridges (Rep., N. H.) who presented the case for an investigation to the senate committee on post offices. He was reported to have enlisted the support of Democratic Sen. Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina.

REPUBLIC'S plants continued to be beehives of excitement. At Youngstown there was a pitched battle between pickets and police after a company truck carrying food for the employes in the plant had successfully run through the picket lines, accompanied by a cordon of police. As shots were exchanged one man was wounded. A dozen others received cracked skulls. Fifty strikers, many of them suffering from tear gas, were taken to jail.

In Chicago State's Attorney Courtney continued investigations of the recent riot in which C. I. O. strikers attacked police at the Republic Steel plant in South Chicago, resulting in seven deaths. Here, also, the company was housing loyal employes who remained at their work in its plant. Mayor Kelly ordered them removed on the grounds that such housing violated the city sanitation code. Republic countered by having Pullman cars moved into its plant yards and housing the employes in them. The mayor admitted he couldn't see anything wrong in that.

FOUR hundred C. I. O. power company strikers taught the 450,000 inhabitants of the Saginaw valley in Michigan what it is like to feel the power of organized labor when they sat down at their jobs for 15 hours. Electricity was shut off from 200 communities; hospitals as well as factories were without current before an agreement was reached and the strikers went back to work. It was a day's pay lost for 100,000 workers whose employers' plants depended on "juice" for life. General Motors employes alone lost $454,000.

Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs of Monroe, Mich., called for 100 war veterans as volunteer police to aid his force of 20 in preserving the peace as 782 strikers at the Newton Steel company returned to work. The C. I. O. had threatened to send 8,000 to 10,000 members from Detroit to enforce the employes' demands.

In Detroit, the Ford Brotherhood of America, Inc., was organized with a reported 7,000 members signed in two days, as an answer to attempts of C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers' Union to unionize Ford. Byrd W. Scott, a Ford machinist, for 20 years, explained: "The F. B. A. was started by myself, John B. McDowell, Benjamin Love and a number of Ford employees who have worked for the company from ten to twenty years. The organization was formed because we wanted an independent labor organization, not one affiliated with any national union."

READING the election returns of an overwhelming Democratic landslide last November, Charles Michelson, publicity director of the Democratic national committee, said: "We will regret this." The great party majorities in both houses now show signs of splitting into regional and economic blocs, which is exactly what he was afraid of. Biggest wedge in forcing the split among the party ranks was, of course, the President's bill for the reorganization of the Supreme court. This led a long list of bills, many of them expected to evoke heated controversies in congress, which threatened to postpone adjournment to mid-winter. Indeed, it was believed by some that if part of the program were not postponed, this session would run continuously into the next, beginning in January.

Besides the Court bill, there are to be acted upon measures for the establishment of wage and hour standards for interstate industries, the curtailment of tax dodging, reorganization of the executive branch of the government, helping farm tenants, conservation of soil, water power resources and housing.

"IS THE Democratic party going Fascist?" asked Samuel B. Pettingill, (Dem., Ind.) on the floor of the house, in upbraiding Gov. Frank B. Murphy of Michigan for his sponsorship of a law in that state which would authorize him to take over industrial plants and operate them when they have been closed by labor troubles.

"Let the historian note that this is the way Fascism made its start in Italy," he said. "If the state takes over the factories, who will fix wages then, who will fix hours then? After the state takes over a factory, will it permit its workers to strike? The state then has the opportunity of operating the plant at a profit, without running up a deficit for the taxpayers to absorb. Will the state then permit an interruption of operations?"

AS THE American Federation of Labor began its "purge" to eliminate member locals suspected of dealings with the C. I. O. from its membership, John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization showed signs of retaliation other than snorts of disgust and derisive laughter.

John L. Lewis

The Chicago Federation of Labor began it when, acting on the suggestion of President William Green, it ousted 27 local unions, comprising 20,000 to 30,000 members, charging that they had been active in behalf of C. I. O.

A day or so later Lewis admitted in Washington that his organization may enter the field of civil service. The move, which had been discussed by Lewis and his associates for several weeks, would be in direct opposition of two established A. F. of L. unions.

IN A scorching protest to Gen. Francisco Franco, Great Britain blamed the rebel regime for the death of eight and the wounds of 24 sailors when the destroyer Hunter ran into a mine off Almeria, Southern Spain, May 13. The protest called the affair an accident, but reserved the right to claim damages of $350,000.

Meanwhile rains were bogging down the rebels' northern offensive against Bilbao, but the Fascists launched a violent new offensive in the Pozoblanco sector about midway between Toledo and Seville in southern Spain, aiming for the rich mercury mines near Almaden.

ASTRONOMERS were treated to the feast of a lifetime in the South Seas as they were permitted by almost perfect weather conditions to photograph the longest total eclipse of the sun in 1,200 years. On Canton island the United States Navy and the National Geographic society, with eleven tons of equipment, took unusual pictures and radioed a description of the magnificent scene to millions of listeners back in the states. The scholars of the American Museum of Natural History viewed the eclipse from an airplane 25,000 feet above Lima, Peru. Other scientists made observations from ships in the Pacific. The time of the total eclipse at the various place of observation ranged from three and one-half minutes to seven minutes. It was a short show for which to travel thousands of miles with costly, cumbersome equipment, but, measured by scientific standards, it was worth the cost and the trouble.

ON December 15, 1936, Pilot S. J. Samson, operating a Western Air Express liner from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City, with four passengers, co-pilot and stewardess aboard, reported by his radio to the caretaker of the airport at Milford, Utah, and asked that his position be checked. His voice was never again heard. Now after nearly six months the wreckage of the airplane has been found high in the Wasatch mountains, 25 miles southeast of Salt Lake City and 35 miles off the regular airline course. So shattered was the plane that the largest single piece of debris was a part of a propeller. Bodies of all aboard were buried 25 to 50 feet in the drifts of snow.

With a rich jewelry shipment reported to have been aboard the ship, a guard was placed around the wreckage and given orders to "shoot on sight" until the wreck should be recovered; four souvenir-hunters were shot at three times. Ronald Dyche, of the national forest service, who aided in the long search, revealed how close the air travelers came to escaping death. "If they had just been flying 25 feet higher," he said, "they might have made it over the peak and possibly reached safety."

CERTAIN British and French newspapers of late have seen fit to "pooh-pooh" the naval strength of Il Duce in the Mediterranean. It is not altogether impossible that this deprecation may have made Adolf Hitler a little uneasy about his alliance with the Italians. So Premier Mussolini invited Field Marshal Werner von Bomberg down to the blue southern ocean to see for himself.

Il Duce

More than 70 submarines were massed as the feature of a mock combat off Naples. The grand fleet of 150 warships summoned for the maneuvers went through their exercises at a minimum speed of 30 miles an hour. The German registered delight continually as Il Duce pointed out to him every phase of the sham battle. Italian officers boasted: "Only Fascist Italy can mobilize so many underwater craft at a moment's notice."

The day before, Galeazzo Ciano, Italy's foreign minister, had informed the British ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond, that Italy accepted in principle all points in the British proposals to assure the safety of international naval patrols off Spain. It was understood that the Nazis had tendered the same approval.

The three main points of the British proposal were: That both Spanish belligerents be required to give formal solemn assurances that they will respect international patrol ships; that safety zones for patrol ships be established at certain specified ports of the two belligerent parties; and that the four naval powers engaged in patrol duties consult each other on measures to be taken if any of their patrol ships should be attacked. The Italians and Nazis wanted the third point to permit any ship attacked to retaliate at once. But they weren't insistent.

THE Reich's ministry of the interior was reported considering plans to control the utterances of Roman Catholic priests of Germany and to regulate Catholic cloisters. It is believed the declaration will be that any document not pertaining entirely to church matters will be regarded as outside the concordat with the Vatican and will not be permitted a reading from the pulpit. It was reported that five cloisters involved in immorality charges will be closed and that the Nazi government will take over the parochial schools.

Ten Roman Catholic priests were arrested as the dissention between the government and the church was fanned to a white heat, culminating in several fights in Munich. Priests replied spiritedly to charges of immorality within their ranks—charges made by Minister of Propaganda Goebbels in reply to a verbal attack upon the Nazis by Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago.

Hitler, in a speech at Regensburg, declared: "It is not God who divides us, but human beings. The Almighty has blessed our work; therefore, it cannot be destroyed."

Priests read their congregations the answer they had drafted to the immorality charges. It declared that of 25,635 priests in Germany, only 58 are involved in immorality charges, or "less than ¼ of 1 per cent, or one priest in every 500."

Pope Pius XI personally declared that he would continue the bitter fight for German Catholics "no matter what becomes of us."

JEAN HARLOW, one of the most glamorous characters in life to millions of Americans, died of uremic poisoning in Hollywood. The impetuous actress who started the platinum blonde craze was only twenty-six, but she had known tragedy. Born Harlean Carpentier in Kansas City, she came to the movie capital in 1927. She had been twice divorced and once widowed.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, who died May 23, left his residuary estate, estimated at $25,000,000 in trust for his granddaughter, Mrs. Margaret Strong De Cuevas, her two young children, Elizabeth and John, and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. The will was filed in the Westchester county surrogate's court at White Plains, N. Y.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL

By Carter Field

Washington.—The good old days o. 1929 are not coming back—are not en route—are not even desired by the New Deal. This has been said by President Roosevelt many times, but its present importance lies in some figures recently submitted to a group of economists by Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings institution.

Dr. Moulton made some very interesting comparisons with 1929 employment and production figures. Some construed the chief thought to be that the country has not arrived yet at a situation where enough of everything for everybody can be produced by people working only forty hours a week.

But more significant, in the view of some of the New Dealers who have been studying his attitude, is that the doctor made a liberal estimate about the number of men who could be employed—in addition to those working at present—in what are classed as the durable goods industries—primarily industries which produce machinery and other things which are not used up, but generally add to the country's productive capacity. As for example, a new blast furnace, a new newspaper press, new canning or textile machinery—in fact, machinery of any sort.

Dr. Moulton estimated that more than eight million more men would be employed in the durable goods industry if 1929 conditions were to be equalled. This does not mean that precisely that number less are employed now in the durable goods industries than were in 1929. Allowances are made for increase in population and other factors.

But the chief point here made by the New Deal economists is this huge number of persons employed in the durable goods industries was one of the really vital things wrong with the then situation—one of the important factors which resulted in the collapse—one of the contributing causes to the situation which the New Deal is seeking to correct.

Logic Is Simple

President Roosevelt does not believe such a large proportion of the country's labor should be used in the durable goods industries as was so employed in 1929. His logic is simple though not very widely understood.

His point is that too much of the earnings of the big corporations in the good years preceding the crash was plowed back into the business. Too many units in the various industries, he points out in conversations, decided that business was good, they could sell more goods than they could make—so they built an additional plant.
